Written Ministerial Statements

Monday 23 February 2009

TREASURY

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held in Brussels on 10 February 2009. The following items were discussed:

Preparation of the meeting of the European Council

a) European economic recovery plan

Ministers held a debate on the current state of implementation of the European economic recovery plan (EERP), including a first horizontal evaluation report from the European Commission. The Government are a firm supporter of the timely, targeted and temporary measures taken at national level under the framework of the EERP to stimulate growth in the EU.

ECOFIN exchanged views on the financial aspects of the Commission's proposals for energy and broadband projects to be funded through the EU budget. The Government will continue to scrutinise the Commission's proposals in detail.

b) Key issues paper

ECOFIN held an orientation debate on the "key issues paper" on economic and financial issues for the Spring 2009 European Council. The full version of the paper will be agreed before the European Council based on the outline proposed by the presidency. The Government supported the outline, which emphasises the serious challenges in 2009, and the remaining need for action to stabilise financial markets and facilitate a speedy economic recovery.

c) Reduced rates of VAT

Following a political discussion by Ministers, the presidency indicated it that it would reflect on how to take the dossier forward in response to the European Council's request to settle the issue by March. A further discussion is expected at the ECOFIN meeting on 10 March, in the run-up to the next European Council, on 19 and 20 March. The Government continue to believe that member states should be allowed the flexibility to apply reduced rates of VAT where they do not materially affect the functioning of the single market.

General budget of the EU: Discharge procedure in respect of the implementation of the budget for 2007

ECOFIN adopted a recommendation to the European Parliament on the discharge to be given to the Commission for implementation of the EU general budget for 2007. The UK welcomes the references within the recommendation relating to the key role of member states in improving financial management and accountability of EU funds under shared management.

Other business

Short selling

The Council took note of an intervention by the Dutch Minister calling for work to enhance greater co-ordination between member states and at international level on temporary measures aimed at short selling. The Commission and the Committee of European Securities Regulators (CESR) will look further into these issues, which the UK welcomes in the wider context of effort to improve corporate governance.

Breakfast meeting on the economic situation

Ministers discussed the implementation of financial rescue packages. They agreed that the priority is to fully restore the functioning of credit channels, and on that basis agreed to a set of lines of communication. ECOFIN agreed that, to safeguard banking sector stability, measures to deal with impaired assets could usefully complement agreed instruments, consistent with principles set in October 2008. ECOFIN will continue to monitor this issue closely. The UK fully supports these measures and the ECOFIN lines of communication as the basis of a flexible, co-ordinated European response to the financial situation.

Missing Trader Intra-Community Fraud

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): This is to announce a new procedure where HMRC suspect that there are serious indirect tax irregularities, knowing involvement in transactions that form part of a Missing Trader Intra-Community (MTIC) fraud and have reason to believe dishonest conduct has occurred, where neither criminal investigation nor the Civil Investigation of Fraud procedure outlined in Code of Practice 9(2005) is appropriate.

Code of Practice 9(2005) covers HMRC investigations of suspected serious fraud against the Exchequer where, for policy or operational reasons, it is considered inappropriate to launch a criminal investigation. Where cases are not suitable for Code of Practice 9 (2005) or criminal investigation, for indirect taxes, there is already a procedure for penalties to be imposed for dishonest conduct in cases involving lower level fraud set out in Notice 160 (Enquiries into Indirect Tax Matters (2007)).

This statement introduces a new notice, Notice 161, which explains how enquiries into serious indirect tax irregularities will be handled in cases involving transactions that form part of an MTIC fraud and where HMRC have reason to believe dishonest conduct has occurred.

The procedure complements HMRC's policy of providing a level playing field for all businesses by supporting those who wish to comply but dealing severely with those who seek an unfair advantage through non-compliance. It will be used in cases where HMRC suspects knowing involvement in transactions that form part of a (MTIC) fraud.

A copy of the new Notice 161, is being placed in the House of Commons Library.

Asset Freezing Regime (Counter-Terrorism)

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): In a Written Ministerial Statement on 10 October 2006, the then Economic Secretary undertook to report to Parliament on a quarterly basis on the operation of the UK's counter-terrorism asset freezing regime. This is the ninth of these reports and covers the period October to December 2008.[1]

Asset-freezing designations

In the quarter October to December 2008, the Treasury made one domestic designation under the Al-Qaida and Taliban (United Nations Measures) Order 2006.

There were three financial sanctions listings at the UN, and none at the EU, in relation to terrorism, or Al-Qaida and the Taliban of persons with links to the UK.

As of 31 December 2008, a total of 253 separate accounts containing just over £632,500[2] of suspected terrorist funds were frozen in the UK.

Reviews

The Treasury keeps domestic asset freezing cases under review. Ten formal reviews have been completed in this quarter; five persons or entities were delisted, with the remaining five continuing to be listed.

Licensing

In accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 1452 (2002), the Treasury operates a licensing system whereby designated persons and others are able to apply to make or receive payments under specific and, if necessary, monitored conditions. In this quarter, the following licences were issued to listed persons:

Nine listed persons were granted legal expenses licences;

Fifteen listed persons were granted a basic expenses licence (including licences for benefits payments);

One listed person was granted a licence for extraordinary expenses.

In this quarter no households of listed persons were granted benefits licences.

Litigation

Judgement on the Treasury's appeal against the High Court ruling in the case of A, K, M, Q & G v. HM Treasury, in which the judge ordered that the relevant legislation be quashed, was handed down by the Court of Appeal on 30 October 2008. The Court of Appeal overturned the High Court's decision. The Court of Appeal upheld the Terrorism Order—although it severed that part of the Order which it concluded was ultra vires—and the Al-Qaida and Taliban Order, confirming that the Government acted lawfully in making these Orders. This judgment ensures that the UK is able to maintain an effective terrorist asset freezing regime in accordance with our UN obligations.

[1] The detail that can be provided to the House on a quarterly basis is subject to the need to avoid the identification, directly or indirectly, of personal or operationally sensitive information.

[2] This figure reflects account balances at time of freezing and includes approximately $58,000 of suspected terrorist funds frozen in the UK. This has been converted using exchange rates as of 31 December 2008. Future fluctuations in the exchange rate may impact on the contribution this sum makes to future totals of suspected terrorist funds frozen.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Zimbabwe (Resettlement Scheme)

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): There are an estimated 3,000 British citizens and British nationals in Zimbabwe with the right of abode in the UK who are 70 or over or who are vulnerable because of their care needs or medical conditions.

The Government's advice to vulnerable British people and their families has been that if they are concerned about the situation in Zimbabwe they should consider their need to remain. This advice has been unchanged since 2007 and still stands.

But the Government are concerned about older and vulnerable British people who may be increasingly unable to support themselves in Zimbabwe and who are unable to return to the UK without assistance. We recognise that a power-sharing accord has now been agreed and that Morgan Tsvangirai was sworn in as Prime Minister on 11 February. However, some British people have been badly affected by the collapse of Zimbabwean infrastructure and we cannot expect this to be put right overnight. They are facing severe difficulties getting access to the food, medicines and care they need.

The Government are therefore ready to offer assistance in resettling in the UK to those older and vulnerable British people who are unable to make their own arrangements to leave and unable to support themselves financially in Britain. The Government are making arrangements to receive, assess needs of and support those eligible British citizens and British nationals with the right of abode who wish to resettle in the UK, including through early access to benefits.

We are putting in place reception arrangements and provision for appropriate accommodation and support. The Local Government Association, ADSS housing associations, local authorities and charities are involved in discussions on practical support and funding. The costs of this programme will be met by Government.

This is a cross-Government programme, involving a number of Departments, which the Prime Minister has asked me to co-ordinate.

We are informing older and vulnerable British people in Zimbabwe of the assistance available through the British Embassy in Harare. It is difficult to anticipate the extent of interest in this offer, but we estimate that up to 750 people may wish to come to the UK over 18 months.

The British Embassy is not advising British people to leave Zimbabwe and continues to provide a full range of consular services to those who remain.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

NATO Parliamentary Assembly

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): My hon. Friend the Member for Wakefield (Mary Creagh) has replaced my hon. Friend the Member for Glasgow, North (Ann McKechin) as a Member of the United Kingdom delegation to the NATO Parliamentary Assembly.

HEALTH

Funding (Department of Health and Food Standards Agency)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Subject to the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department of Health's element of the Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will increase by £26,403,000 from £98,565,431,000 to £98,591,834,000 and the Administration Cost Limit will be increased by £3,280,000 from £219,163,000 to £222,443,000. The Food Standards Agency DEL increases by £700,000 from £137,720,000 to £138,420,000. The overall DEL including the Food Standards Agency will increase by £27,103,000 from £98,703,151,000 to £98,730,254,000. The impact on resource and capital are set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL

*The total of "administration budget" and "Near cash in Resource DEL" figures may well be greater that the total resource DEL, due to definitions overlapping.

Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since the capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The Department of Health DEL has increased by £26,403,000 made up of:

the take-up of £3,000,000 (administration costs) end year flexibility as announced in the provisional outturn White Paper (Cm 7419);

£30,000 (£-200,000 capital) for adjustments to Invest to Save budget awards;

a net transfer of £296,000 (administration costs) from the Cabinet Office for services of the Parliamentary Counsel, offset by funding for the centre of expertise for sustainable procurement (Administration Cost Limit);

a transfer of £-16,000 (administration costs) to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills for the skills training strategy. (Administration Cost Limit);

a net transfer of £-5,025,000 to the Department for Children, Schools and Families mainly for substance misuse funding offset by a grant for the child migrant trusts;

a net transfer of £28,318,000 with the Ministry of Justice mainly for adjustments to prison healthcare budgets offset by funding for mental health review tribunals; and a transfer of £-200,000 to the Statistics Board for information on migration statistics.

In addition, there is movement from the revenue to capital DEL of £200,000,000 to allow for increased capital investment in the NHS.

The Department of Health's administration cost limit has increased by £3,280,000 as described above.

The change to the Food Standards Agency element of the DEL is due to:

a transfer of £450,000 from programme into capital; and reinstatement of £700,000 non-cash budget to the Comprehensive Spending Review settlement position.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Policing - Publication of Reports by Sir David Normington and Jan Berry

The Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing (Mr. Vernon Coaker): I am today placing in the House Library two reports that were published on Monday 16 February 2009 which form an important part of our overall approach to removing unnecessary bureaucracy in policing. These are "Reducing the Data Burden on Police Forces in England and Wales" by Sir David Normington, the permanent secretary at the Home Office, and the interim report by Jan Berry, the new independent Reducing Bureaucracy Advocate, entitled "Reducing Bureaucracy in Policing".

On the same day the Home Secretary announced the next step in common sense policing, by scrapping a police timesheet freeing up an estimated 260,000 police hours to focus on cutting crime and driving up public confidence. Police officers will no longer have to complete an annual analysis form accounting for their activity—a step which alone frees up approximately 150 extra officers and staff.

Both these documents form part of our overall approach to reducing the burdens placed on police forces and reforming processes to free up officers to deal with the issues that matter to people. The Government have rightly committed themselves to freeing up police time to work with communities to tackle the issues that matter to local people. This involves cutting red tape and dramatically reducing administrative tasks that can take up so much time – including the collection of data by the Home Office and others. This agenda was at the heart of the Policing Green Paper, "From the Neighbourhood to the National: Policing our Communities Together", published in July last year.

The Green Paper set out a clear commitment to reduce the data collection burden placed on police forces in England and Wales and Sir David Normington's review sets out how the Green Paper's commitment to reduce by up to 50 per cent. the amount of data collected by the Home Office is to be achieved.

His review contains a number of important proposals, most of which can be implemented in the short term, for:

cutting out altogether or significantly reducing 36 data streams;

ending activity-based costing – which alone will free up an estimated 260,000 police hours;

a reduction in ad hoc data requests from the Home Office;

a two-year moratorium on requests for new data collection; and a "gateway" process to limit requests that fall outside the annual data requirement.

A new "data hub" will further reduce the burden on police forces, dispensing with 40 per cent. of data requests from the Home Office. Taken together these measures will significantly reduce the central data burden imposed by the Home Office and its agencies.

The Home Office is also streamlining the performance management arrangements for police forces by removing police targets and replacing them with a new single top-down target on confidence. We are also continuing to invest in technology to allow officers to spend more time on patrol. We have now committed £80 million to delivering an ambitious target to put in place 30,000 mobile data devices by March 2010, and the second round of funding awards was announced on 29 December 2008.

The delivery of these mobile devices to the front line will save an individual police officer up to 30 minutes per shift.

We also used last year's Green Paper to respond to the recommendations made by Sir Ronnie Flanagan in his hugely important "Review of Policing". It is now almost one year on from the publication of Sir Ronnie Flanagan's recommendations and we have made considerable progress in implementing them. Nineteen of his 59 recommendations have already been implemented and the remaining are well on track to be delivered.

One of the most significant changes we have made is allowing forces to scrap the stop and account form, which if implemented by all forces could save the service up to 690,000 hours each year.

To build on the progress we have made, we have now appointed Jan Berry as the new independent Reducing Bureaucracy Advocate to provide a national lead across all the work under way to reduce bureaucracy.

In her report Jan Berry recognises the amount of work being undertaken across Government and the police service to reduce unnecessary bureaucracy and the benefits that are already being delivered. Examples include the streamlined processes project in the four force pilot areas (Leicestershire, Staffordshire, Surrey and the West Midlands), the digital recording of interviews in Lancashire and the use of electronic file-building in the West Midlands.

Jan Berry's full report will be published later in the year but her initial findings and recommendations are now being considered by the Government and include:

support for scrapping time-sheets for police officers; reviewing working practices within forces to simplify processes; making more use of technology to free up officer time and maximising the use of existing airwave equipment; and reviewing charging practices to reduce unnecessary burdens on officers and help them to use their discretion more.

Supported by a practitioner group made up of police officers and staff, Jan Berry is also looking in detail at the bureaucracy involved in 10 time-consuming policing processes in order to identify where further savings can be made.

There is more to be done, both within the police service and the Home Office, and we all must actively encourage police forces to share good practice and work collaboratively to adopt measures to reduce bureaucracy.

The Home Office will continue to play its part to drive this important reform and I am encouraged by the progress we have made since the publication of the Green Paper last July.

JUSTICE

Parole Board (Appointment of Chairman)

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): I have appointed Sir David Latham to be chairman of the Parole Board from 25 February 2009 for a period of 12 months. He succeeds Sir Duncan Nichol in this role.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): On 18 November, an historic agreement was announced by the First Minister and Deputy First Minister setting out a process which would pave the way to the devolution of policing and justice powers to the Northern Ireland Assembly.

The agreement, and the subsequent report of the Assembly and Executive Review Committee on the modalities of devolution contained a number of significant decisions on the shape of the post-devolution framework for the administration of policing and justice in Northern Ireland.

The Government are committed to helping to move the process forward in whatever way they can.

I am therefore today introducing a Bill to Parliament to give effect to those elements of the November statement and the AERC report that require primary legislation.

The Bill does not provide for when devolution will happen, nor does it provide for what is to devolve—both of these still require further consideration by the parties and ultimately by Parliament.

It does however provide a framework for the post-devolution administration of justice by providing for a new ministerial model which the Assembly can use to set up a new Department of Justice.

It also provides for certain functions in relation to judicial appointments and removals to rest with the Judicial Appointments Commission rather than the First and Deputy First Ministers.

In addition, later this week I will be laying an Order under section 17(4) of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 to increase the maximum number of ministerial offices to 11. This will enable the Assembly to give effect to the recommendation of the AERC report that a Department with policing and justice functions should be established as an additional Department to the existing Departments which make up the Northern Ireland Executive.

The Assembly is currently prevented from establishing an additional Department by section 17 of the Northern Ireland Act which limits the number of ministerial offices to ten.

Separately I will also commence a number of provisions under the Northern Ireland (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2006 and the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007. This will ensure that when the Northern Ireland Assembly makes a decision to legislate to set up the new Department of Justice it has a full range of options to choose from.

There are still important decisions to be taken by the Northern Ireland Assembly on the timing of devolution and on what functions they wish to see devolve.

However, these measures provide the framework for those decisions to be taken and represent another significant step for Northern Ireland on the path to the completion of devolution.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Spring Supplementary Estimate 2008-09

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Attorney-General's total DEL will be increased by £19,703,000 from £740,920,000 to £760,623,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL		£'000
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total
Resource DEL	17,703		754,226	283	754,509
of which:
Administration budget [1]	1,825		71,824		71,824
Near-cash in RDEL [1]	17,703		741,420	1,956	743,376
Capital DEL [2]	2,000		15,003		15,003
Less Depreciation [3]			-8,889		-8,889
Total DEL	19,703		760,340	283	760,623

[1] The total of 'Administration budget' and 'Near-cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping.
[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.
[3] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The Crown Prosecution Service's (CPS) element of the Attorney-General's total DEL will be increased by £4,114,000 from £636,325,000 to £648,559,000.

Changes in CPS's near-cash Resource DEL arise from:

Budgetary transfers from the Ministry of Justice totalling £2,769,000 consisting of:

£2,600,000 from the Victim Surcharge Collections

£169,000 to help fund the Liverpool Community Justice Centre

A budgetary transfer to the Ministry of Justice of £130,000 to support theVirtual Courts pilot scheme

The draw down of £650,000 from End Year Flexibility to increase spending on the prosecution of criminal cases

The take-up of agreed allocation from the Modernisation fund of £825,000 consisting of:

£500,000 to develop the Advocacy Strategy

£325,000 to develop leadership and management

The CPS administration budget increases from £56,002,000 to £56,352,000 due to the take-up of £325,000 modernisation funding to develop leadership and management.

The Serious Fraud Office's (SFO) element of the Attorney-General's total DEL will be increased by £14,089,000 from £44,094,000 to £58,183,000. This will enable repayment of the Contingency Fund advance as set out in the Ministerial Statement of 12 February 2009.

The changes in the SFO's near-cash resource DEL arise from:

Blockbuster Funding: £5.9 million Expenditure

An increase of £1,940,000 from our Ring Fenced Blockbuster Reserve for Oil for Food case.

An increase of £3,900,000 from our Ring Fenced Blockbuster Reserve for the Holbein and ICG Blockbuster Reserve.

Transformation Funding: £8.2 million Expenditure

The take up of £4,300,000 Programme resource End Year Flexibility.

The take up of £3,950,000 End Year Flexibility from the Revenue and Customs Prosecution Office.

A decrease of £1,000 as a result of the transfer of budget to TSOL for our contribution to the Government Skills Funding programme.

Asset Recovery: £1.2 million Neutral Amount

A cash neutral change to our Programme budget of £1,220,000 being both increase in costs and increase in revenue as a consequence of Proceeds of Crime income and additional Cost Awards.

The HM Procurator General and Treasury Solicitor's (TSOL) element of the Attorney General's total DEL will be increased by £1,500,000 from £15,984,000 to £17,484,000. This increase will occur within the Administration budget which will increase from £13,972,000 to £15,472,000.

The change in TSOL's near-cash resource DEL arises from:

Take-up £1,050,000 of administration costs resource End Year Flexibility (EYF) to meet the cost of policy support to the Attorney-General's office and accommodation.

Take-up £100,000 of administration costs resource End Year Flexibility (EYF) to meet increased spending by the Crown Prosecution Inspectorate (HMCPSI) to upgrade video link equipment and the HMCPSI database and to quality assure a review of support services.

Take-up £350,000 of administration costs resource End Year Flexibility (EYF) to meet an increase in costs for non-recoverable disbursements relating to cases for the Attorney-General and costs relating to the Government Property Lawyers (GPL).

The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office's (RCPO) element of the Attorney General's total DEL remains unchanged at £36,397,000.

Changes, which have no net effect on RCPO's DEL, are:

A transfer of £2,000,000 programme resources to Capital DEL. This is required to fund capital spending for essential upgrades in the Department's case management system.

Programme cost changes in respect of a £1,000,000 reduction in RCPO programme costs offset by a corresponding reduction in programme income.

TRANSPORT

Merchant Shipping (Light Dues)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I wish to announce that we will be consulting on proposed amendments to the Merchant Shipping (Light Dues) Regulations 1997.

On current projections, the General Lighthouse Fund will incur an estimated funding shortfall next year of around £21 million. Recent falls in the investment portfolio of the General Lighthouse Fund have reduced the capacity of the fund to defer or spread these increases in dues, which are being kept to the minimum necessary to deliver next year's funding requirement. The Government have a statutory responsibility to ensure that the fund is maintained at an appropriate level to meet the operating requirements of the General Lighthouse Authorities. Failure to deliver safe maritime conditions would adversely affect the business interests of commercial enterprises and the safety of vessels and their crews.

We are proposing that light dues rates for merchant vessels calling at UK ports will be adjusted from 1 July this year by 6p from 35p to 41p per net registered ton (nrt); that the tonnage cap will rise from 35,000 to 50,000nrt, so that the maximum charge per call will become £20,500; and that the voyage cap will be raised from seven voyages to nine voyages, so that a vessel will not be required to pay light dues after nine payments are made in the year. A payment is valid for a rolling month from the day of payment. Through this consultation we are seeking views on a range of options for raising the necessary money.

We have worked with the shipping industry over many years to reduce the costs of providing general aids to navigation and the General Lighthouse Authorities are rightly proud of their operational and financial performance where light dues rates have not had to rise since 1993 and have actually fallen by over 40 per cent. against RPI over that period. This has been achieved through major efficiency gains made by the General Lighthouse Authorities resulting in lower operational costs of over 20 per cent. in the last decade. We will continue to work with the industry and the General Lighthouse Authorities further to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the service.

In 2006, when rates were cut by 10 per cent., we had the industry's assurance that as a result of this significant reduction, if the General Lighthouse Fund were to face greater financial demands than it could meet, the industry recognised that rates would have to rise. That time has now come and that is why we are proposing to make these changes to the regulations.

We will continue our negotiations with the Irish Government aimed at reaching a new lasting agreement for funding the work of the Commissioners of Irish Lights in providing a whole of Ireland aids to navigation service.

Copies of the consultation paper have been deposited in the House Libraries and are available on the Department for Transport website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations. Responses should reach Department for Transport by 18 May 2009.

Urban Congestion Performance Fund

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): I am today announcing the second payment tranche for the Urban Congestion Performance Fund that will see the 10 largest urban areas in England receive a further £10.7 million to study and address the causes of urban congestion.

My Department has a public service agreement indicator regarding journey time on main roads into urban areas. The indicator states that by 2010-11, the 10 largest urban areas in England will meet the congestion targets set in their local transport plan relating to movement on main roads into city centres. The indicator will be deemed to have been met if, on target routes in these areas, an average increase in travel of 4.4 per cent. is accommodated with an average increase of 3.6 per cent. in person journey time per mile.

In February the Department and National Statistics published the Transport Statistics Bulletin for the period up to quarter 4 2008. This included performance data for the urban congestion indicator up to the end of August 2008. These data showed that the average person journey time across all the target routes has improved by 3 per cent. between the baseline (using 2004-05 and 2005-06 data) and 2007-08. At the same time the average level of travel fell by 3.3 per cent. across all the target routes.

Based on this performance, the £10.7 million payment will now be shared between the participating areas as below:

Urban Area	Tranche 2 payments
London	£3,900,000
Greater Manchester	£978,356
West Midlands	£1,064,645
West Yorkshire	£663,174
South Yorkshire	£1,042,607
Tyne & Wear	£873,772
Merseyside	£889,940
Bristol	£536,879
Nottingham	£432,334
Leicester	£361,226
Total	£10,742,933

The performance fund is worth a total of £60 million over four years, and today's announcement will have seen a total of £22.7 million paid to the 10 areas. A further £35 million is available over the next two financial years, and will also be awarded on a performance basis.

Written Ministerial Statements

Tuesday 24 February 2009

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Trawlermen Scheme

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): Further to my statement on 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 63WS, I am pleased to announce that we have today released a consultation paper, in which we are seeking views on the details of a new scheme to compensate former Icelandic water trawlermen who lost their livelihoods following the cod wars in the 1970s.

Copies of the consultation paper can be viewed at: www.berr.gov.uk/files/file49973.pdf. Views must be submitted by 8th May 2009. I will place copies of the consultation paper in the Libraries of the House.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

School Revenue Balances 2007-08

The Minister for Schools and Learners (Jim Knight): The Department for Children, Schools and Families has today published information on the end of financial year revenue balances of all local authority maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools for 2007-08.

This information is presented alongside information on schools' revenue balances for the financial years 1999-2000 to 2006-07 published on 1 April 2008. The information is taken from local authorities' published section 52 outturn statements for the years in question but presents this in summary form. Copies of the information have been placed in the Libraries and will be accessible from the Department for Children, Schools and Families website, at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/localauthorities/section52/subpage.cfm?action=section52.default.default&ID=58

Surplus balances totalled £2 billion and deficits £120 million at the end of 2007-08, giving net total revenue balances of £1.9 billion. This represents an increase of £248.6 million or 14.9 per cent. compared to the position at the end of 2006-07. At school level, 91.7 per cent. of schools held a surplus balance, with 38.3 per cent. holding an excessive balance, defined in guidance from my Department as over 8 per cent. of budget for primary and special schools and over 5 per cent. of budget for secondary schools. Excessive surpluses totalled £591.9 million.

The Government believe that the national total of revenue balances and in particular the level of surplus held by some individual schools is too high. While it is clearly sound financial management for schools to retain a small surplus from year to year, we expect revenue funding to be used for the salaries of staff at the school and on learning resources to support the education of pupils in school now, working towards raising attainment and narrowing the gaps in attainment between disadvantaged children and the rest. We would not normally expect schools to need to use it for capital improvement projects, given that separate capital funding is available. Where a school is in deficit, it must agree a recovery plan with the local authority to eliminate the deficit, normally over three years.

As I made clear in my previous statements to the House on 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 29WS, and 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 36WS, about school finances, we expect schools and local authorities to work to reduce the level of balances by the end of 2010-11 and to make full use of their power to claw back excess, uncommitted surpluses and redistribute the proceeds back to local schools in consultation with schools forums. If we do not see a substantial reduction of total revenue balances and the excessive balances held by individual schools, the Government will consult on further action from 2011-12 to bring the total down.

In the meantime the Department continues to work with its partners to prepare further advice for local authorities on effective claw-back of balances, including examples of good practice.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Spending Reports

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Sadiq Khan): We have published a consultation on the first arrangements for the production of local spending reports, which is a requirement of the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. This document has been placed in the Library of the House and is available on the Department for Communities and Local Government website at:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/localspendingreportsconsultation

The Sustainable Communities Act 2007 was introduced to Parliament as a private Member's Bill and aims to promote the sustainability of local communities in England. It is based on the principle that local people know best what needs to be done to promote the sustainability of their area, but that sometimes they need central Government to act to enable this to happen. In October 2008, the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government invited local authorities to submit proposals, via the Local Government Association in its capacity as 'the selector', which they consider would contribute to promoting the sustainability of local communities. The deadline for the submission of proposals to the Local Government Association is 31 July 2009.

The Act requires the Secretary of State to make arrangements for the production of local spending reports and to make the first arrangements for the production of these reports before 23 April 2009. The reports will provide information on expenditure by bodies exercising public functions in an area and over a period of time. The aim of these reports is to assist local authorities, their partners and local people in promoting the sustainability of local communities by providing more information about the public funding that is spent in their area.

Before making arrangements the Act requires the Secretary of State to consult such persons likely to be affected by the arrangements as the Secretary of State thinks appropriate. This will enable the Government to develop local spending reports which are useful and whose cost is likely to justify their benefit. This consultation paper is in two phases. Firstly, proposals for how the Government will put in place the first arrangements for local spending reports and, secondly, seeking views on how local spending reports might develop over time.

The first phase of the consultation closes on the 3 April 2009. We intend to make the first local spending reports available as soon as possible after that. The second phase of the consultation on how these reports might develop on a longer-term basis closes on 15 May 2009.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Environment Council

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): Hilary Benn, Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, and Ed Miliband, Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, will represent the UK at the Environment Council in Brussels on 2 March.

At Environment Council Ministers will discuss the development of the EU position on a comprehensive post-2012 climate agreement in Copenhagen and subsequently adopt Council conclusions. Climate change discussions will continue over the ministerial lunch.

The Czech presidency will also hold a discussion on the proposal for a directive on industrial emissions, integrated pollution prevention and control (IPPC Directive). The debate will focus on the scope of the proposal; the status of the European reference documents on best available techniques, "the BREFs"; the need for further "minimum requirements" and the large combustion plant provisions.

Furthermore, there will be a policy debate and adoption of Council conclusions on contributions to the Spring European Council, 19 and 20 March.

The Council will also be asked to adopt three council decisions regarding the provisional prohibition on the use and sale of two GM maize lines in Austria and one GM maize line in Hungary.

Finally, the Council will aim to adopt a Council decision on the proposal establishing the position to be adopted on behalf of the European community with regard to proposals for amendments to the International Convention on the Regulation of Whaling and its Schedule.

Under 'any other business', the Czech presidency will provide information on the fall in demand for recycled materials and the 25th Session of the UNEP Governing Council (Nairobi, 16-20 February 2009). Furthermore the European Commission will present proposals for a directive on the restriction of the use of certain hazardous substances in electrical and electronic equipment and for a directive on waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE). The Commission will also present a communication on a mid-term assessment of implementing the EC Biodiversity Action Plan.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Food and Environment Research Agency

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I am pleased to announce that, following careful consideration, the UK Government Decontamination Service (GDS) (an executive Agency of DEFRA) will join the new Food and Environment Research Agency (FERA) that DEFRA is establishing, from 1 April 2009. The remit and functions of the GDS, which I announced on 13 October 2008, will continue as a badged service provided by the Food and Environment Research Agency. That is, it will still be known as the UK Government Decontamination Service. This gives FERA a wider national emergency response and recovery capability, supporting UK resilience. In particular, the inclusion of GDS within FERA will strengthen the science capability underpinning GDS functions and areas of expertise.

The GDS will cease to be a separate executive agency on 31 March 2009. Its annual report and accounts for 2008-09 will be completed and presented to Parliament in due course.

Binyam Mohamed

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): Mr Binyam Mohamed returned to the UK yesterday, 23 February, following his release from Guantanamo Bay. A team of Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials, including a doctor, met with Mr. Mohamed on 14 February and confirmed there were no immediate medical concerns that would prevent him from travelling to the UK. The same team, along with officers of the Metropolitan Police Service, accompanied Mr. Mohamed on his return to the UK. The FCO was in close contact with Mr. Mohamed's family and legal representatives to inform them of his return.

This is the direct result of our request for his release and return, and follows intensive negotiations with the US Government over the past 18 months, since my request to Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice on 7 August 2007. These negotiations included pressing for and securing the disclosure by the US to Mr. Mohamed's lawyers of the 42 documents, which were the subject of a judicial review in the English courts, that could be used for Mr. Mohamed's defence. Further public disclosure of these documents remains a matter for the US Administration. In this regard we welcome the US Attorney General's order for a review of all the assertions of the state secrets privilege in the US Courts.

The Government abhor torture and do not order or condone it. We have raised with the US allegations of mistreatment put to us by UK nationals or residents currently or formerly detained at Guantanamo Bay, including Mr. Mohamed. The question of possible criminal wrongdoing that arose in Mr. Mohamed's case was referred by the Home Secretary to the Attorney General for her to consider. This was, as the court acknowledged, the proper legal process.

Mr. Mohamed's return does not constitute a commitment by the Home Secretary that he may remain permanently in the UK. His immigration status is being reviewed following his return. As always, the Government's top priority is national security, and should any steps be necessary, we will take them.

Mr. Mohamed is the first Guantanamo detainee to be released under President Obama's Administration. We have welcomed, and strongly support, the Obama Administration's aim to close Guantanamo. Our request for Shaker Aamer's return to the UK remains and we stand ready to share our experience in receiving former detainees with European member states, and others, as they consider how they can assist towards closure.

JUSTICE

Defamation Proceedings

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): I have today issued a consultation paper "Controlling Costs in Defamation Proceedings".

The high level of costs incurred in defamation and some other publication proceedings has been the subject of criticism and debate in the courts and Parliament. The risk of excessive costs may force defendants to settle unmeritorious claims, which in turn may encourage a more risk-averse approach to media reporting and is a risk to freedom of expression. The Government are therefore consulting on measures designed to place more effective controls on the costs in defamation and some other publication related proceedings. The measures include:

Limiting recoverable hourly rates by setting either maximum or fixed recoverable rates;

Mandatory or mandatory consideration of cost capping;

Linking recoverability of ATE Insurance premiums to notification and introducing a period of non-recoverability post notification; and Requiring the proportionality of total costs to be considered on cost assessments conducted by the court.

These proposals would work to: help deal with the threat of excessive hourly rates and base rates; limit the recoverability of after the event insurance premiums in certain circumstances; and enable the court to assess different cost elements together to ensure that the costs are proportionate and reasonable.

The measures, if accepted, would be implemented by way of amendments to the Civil Procedure Rules, practice directions and protocols, as appropriate.

Copies of the consultation paper have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The paper is also available on the Ministry of Justice website at www.justice.gov.uk. Copies have also been made available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office. The consultation period will close on 6 May.

PRIME MINISTER

Berlin Summit (February)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I attended a Summit in Berlin on 22 February hosted by Chancellor Merkel for the Leaders and Finance Ministers of the EU countries who will attend the London Summit in April, the ECB President, the Eurogroup Chair and the Governor of the Bank of England. I was accompanied by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

We agreed on the need to take decisive action to stabilise the global economy, to secure jobs and growth for the future. We need to support our financial systems and get lending moving to business and households, working together to maximise benefits and minimise the impact of these actions on competition.

Across Europe countries have adopted comprehensive fiscal, monetary and structural measures to support the economy and to secure growth and employment. We agreed on the need for common principles to minimise the impact of the measures we are taking, to support the economy on competition, and to deal with impaired assets in our financial systems.

We agreed on the urgent need to increase the resources available to the international financial institutions to sustain global demand, to protect the poorest, and address the impact of the financial crisis on emerging markets, including at least a doubling of resources for the IMF to $500 billion. We expressed our concern at the growing impact of the global financial crisis on the banking sectors in central and eastern Europe and the need for the EU to take a lead in addressing it.

We agreed to work together to strengthen our financial systems:

all financial institutions should be subject to appropriate oversight or regulation, including hedge funds. Regulation must be on the basis of what institutions do and the risks they pose, not on what they call themselves; credit rating agencies should be subject to mandatory registration and oversight;

we need decisive action against tax havens and unco-operative jurisdictions including the need to set up a list of unco-operative jurisdictions and a toolbox of sanctions. We cannot allow the world economy to be distorted by regulatory havens and tax havens; financial institutions must pay their employees in a way that does not contribute to excessive risk-taking. We asked the Financial Stability Forum to move quickly to produce principles for all countries to follow to make incentives more transparent and closely linked to sustainable business growth;

we should agree a charter of principles on financial regulation;

we should establish supervisory colleges for cross-border financial institutions to improve international co-operation on financial oversight.

We agreed we need to reform the IMF and Financial Stability Forum to provide early warning systems, and set out a clear timetable in London for reforming the governance of the international institutions to reflect the changing world economy. We must continue to work for an ambitious agreement on climate change in Copenhagen.

We are resolved that global problems need global solutions. We need a global new deal to aid the recovery of the world economy and a set of principles for a sound economic future.

We will work together in the run-up to the London Summit to make sure that by our co-operation and our determination to act together we can not only inject the confidence that is necessary in the world economy but also build anew the economic activity that is necessary for the jobs, for the security that the people of the world want.

TRANSPORT

Drivers' Hours (Exemption for Reservists)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I am pleased to announce today that the European Commission has agreed to the Government's request for an exemption from Regulation (EC) 561/2006 on drivers' hours for professional drivers operating solely within the UK when they are reservists undergoing military training or providing instruction to members of a Cadet Corps approved by the Secretary of State for Defence.

This exemption, which has been granted in accordance with the provisions in Article 14.1 of Regulation (EC) 561/2006, applies to the weekly rest requirements in Article 8(2) and 8(6) of Regulation (EC) 561/2006. It will enable a driver who finishes his normal driving duties on a Friday to complete a 34 hour period of military training as a volunteer reservist or as an instructor in the Cadet Corps and then resume his normal driving duties again on a Monday morning.

The following safeguards have been incorporated into the exemption to ensure that road safety is not jeopardised:

the exemption will apply to 15 days' annual camp and 10 weekend training sessions per annum - a total of 35 days. Weekend training will not be allowed to take place on consecutive weeks (other than in respect of the 15-day annual camp);

a regular daily rest period of 11 hours must be taken between the end of weekend training and start of work for the primary employer; a regular weekly rest period of 45 hours must be taken no later than at the end of the sixth day following a period of weekend training.

Until such time as the exemption can be transposed into domestic legislation, it will be implemented by administrative means. The Ministry of Defence will be issuing guidelines that outline how drivers can manage their volunteer reserve service in accordance with the exemption, and a copy of the European Commission's Decision will be published on the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency website.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Disability Benefits

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): My right hon. Friend the Member for Stirling (Anne McGuire), the then Minister for Disabled People, notified the House on 3 April 2008 that following the European Court of Justice decision of 18 October 2007 we would in due course publish details of the eligibility criteria for payment of the disability benefits, "Disability Living Allowance" (care component), "Attendance Allowance and Carer's Allowance" within the European Economic Area (EEA) and Switzerland for those people who wish to claim these benefits from abroad.

We have now carefully considered the full terms of the judgment and the provisions of European legislation which co-ordinates social security systems within the EEA and Switzerland, as it applies to the UK's disability benefits and their re-classification under European law as sickness benefits. Details of the eligibility criteria for payments of the disability benefits have been posted on the Directgov website on the pages: "Taking disability benefits to other European countries"[1], and "Claiming disability benefits if you live in another European country"[2].

Customers who would like more information about the effects of the judgment should contact the address below:

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

New RDA Board Chairs

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): I have decided to appoint the new RDA Board Chairs listed below.

Sir Roy McNulty—Advantage West Midlands (AWM)

Sir Harry Studholme South West Regional Development Agency (SWRDA)

Sir Roy McNulty will commence as Chair designate, to ensure continuity from 1 May 2009 and take up post as Chair from 1 September 2009.

Sir Harry Studholme will commence as Chair designate, to ensure continuity from 31 March 2009 and take up post as Chair from 6 July 2009.

The new appointments will be initially until 13 December 2012.

The appointments have been made in accordance with the Commissioner For Public Appointments Code of Practice.

I have placed further details of the appointments in the Libraries of both Houses. They were all made in accordance with the Code of Practice of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Elite Sport

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): I am pleased to be able to announce to the House the creation of a unique fundraising partnership for elite sport. The partnership brings together, for the first time ever, UK Sport, the British Olympic Association and the British Paralympic Association to raise funds for elite sport, along with the London Organising Committee of the London Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG). All the partners have today agreed a formal heads of agreement to pool their collective rights to help raise additional funds for elite sport in the run-up to London 2012 and beyond. This follows on from the challenge I set UK Sport last December to put in place a new partnership within Government to develop our private fundraising effort.

Building on our Medal Hopes scheme the partners have assembled an enhanced package of rights for sale as an official LOCOG activation programme. This will offer sponsors rights to branding, access and events surrounding our Olympic and Paralympic sports. The scheme will allow businesses to be associated with the success of all Olympic athletes, and all Olympic sports, through the UK Sport's World Class Performance Programme—rights that no other sponsorship deal can deliver.

This is why I believe, despite the challenging current economic conditions, the scheme has great potential for success. There will also be opportunities for regional and local companies, and individual patrons, to get involved in supporting our athletes.

In the 2006 Budget statement the Government announced a £600 million package for the remaining three years of the Beijing cycle and for the London cycle, comprising £200 million of Exchequer funding matched by £100 million of private sector investment, and supported by £300 million of lottery investment.

Last December I announced a record public sector funding settlement when I allocated a total of £550 million of public funds—an additional £50 million—to UK Sport to fund its elite programme. This consisted of additional Exchequer funding of £29 million to UK Sport over the four years to 2012; plus a projected uplift in lottery income of £21 million.

This meant that for the London cycle the elite sport system will receive £304 million, the highest level of public funding ever made available over a four-year Olympic-Paralympic cycle. UK Sport confirmed that this funding package enabled it to set a target to attain a place in the top four in the Olympic Games, and second place in the Paralympic Games in 2012—aiming to win more medals in more sports than in Beijing.

I was clear that this new funding was the limit of public investment in elite sport, with any further funding having to come from our private fundraising initiative. Since last summer we have been working with Fast Track Ltd and UK Sport in developing the Medal Hopes sponsorship package and this will now be subsumed within the new wider fundraising scheme.

However, my aim has not only been to keep the full fundraising ambition in play but also to establish a commercial funding structure to continue raising funds for elite sport beyond 2012. Funding has moved from lottery money for Sydney and Athens, to Exchequer and lottery money for Beijing, and now Exchequer, lottery and private money for London. I consider this mixed economy funding for elite sport to be the right long-term approach.

The creation of a unique fundraising partnership involving the wider Olympic family and the establishment of a third funding stream from the private sector will form a permanent legacy of the London Games. Both these measures, along with the record amount of public funding I have secured, leave elite sport with the best possible opportunity for a secure and successful future.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan (Air Support)

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): The statement by the then Secretary of State for Defence, my right hon. Friend the Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne), on 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 677-78, referred to the decision to withdraw the Harrier force and replace it with an equivalent force of Tornado GR4s by spring 2009 to Kandahar airfield. Delays in construction of the necessary supporting infrastructure and our current estimate of the time required to complete the Tornado Urgent Operational Requirement (UOR) enhancements means that the Tornado GR4s will now deploy in summer 2009. We expect delivery of the UORs in advance of completion of the infrastructure project and will keep both programmes under constant review to ensure completion as quickly as possible. In the interim, Joint Force Harrier will continue to contribute to the provision of close air support to UK and Allied Forces in southern Afghanistan; 1 (Fighter) Squadron will therefore replace IV (Army Co-operation) Squadron in mid-April.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The Justice and Home Affairs Council is due to be held on 26 and 27 February 2009 in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary (Jacqui Smith), my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Lord Bach) and the Scottish Solicitor General (Frank Mulholland), intend to attend on behalf of the United Kingdom. As the provisional agenda stands, the following items will be discussed:

During the mixed Committee with Norway, Switzerland, Iceland and Lichtenstein, Ministers will be asked to adopt Council conclusions on the second generation of the Schengen Information System. These reflect discussions at the informal Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council in January on action required in light of an analysis which identified problems with the central system. The conclusions set a direction for the central SISII project, and include a set of criteria against which the SISII based scenario and the alternative scenario, based on a SIS I platform, will be assessed. They call for a decision regarding the future of the project to be taken by June 2009 at the latest.

The presidency will present to the mixed Committee the current state of play on the implementation of regulation establishing the Visa Information System (VIS). The UK does not participate in the VIS. The presidency will also report on the outcome of the Swiss air borders evaluation which took place on 9-13 February. Providing the air borders evaluation does not throw up any shortcomings and is fully compliant with the Schengen Acquis, Switzerland will be able to abolish checks on persons at its air borders on 29 March 2009.

The Council will then exchange initial views on a new proposal from the Commission for a regulation establishing a European asylum support office. The aim of the office will be to co-ordinate practical co-operation on asylum between member states. The UK will have 3 months to decide whether to opt in to this proposal.

The presidency will present the recent report by the Commission on the implementation of the Free Movement Directive (2004/38/EC) by all member states. The UK strongly supports correct implementation of free movement rights and also welcomes the Commission's undertaking to provide effective guidelines on abuse of free movement.

The Council will discuss key issues around combating illegal immigration in the Mediterranean. This arises out of Migration Pact discussions. Four countries are calling for greater EU support in managing illegal migration flows through this region. The Government recognise the significance of these flows and support strong EU co-operation on this issue.

The Council will discuss the situation of Iraqi refugees informed by Council conclusions agreed on 27-28 November. The UK has already committed to resettling 1,000 Iraqi refugees during 2008-2010—financial years—and does not have capacity to include additional spaces. This has been communicated to the Council. The UK will encourage other EU member states to set up their own resettlement programmes and will offer technical support based on our longstanding experience.

The Council will have a discussion over lunch on the appointment of the new Europol director. The United Kingdom will push for adoption of the unanimous recommendation of the Europol Management Board that the UK candidate was the most suitable for appointment.

The presidency will seek a steer from the Council on various aspects of the proposed framework decision in conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal matters. The proposal sets out a mechanism at union level to prevent potential conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal proceedings and determine the most appropriate jurisdiction in cases where more than one member state could potentially exercise jurisdiction over the same case.

The presidency will ask the Council to adopt a negotiating mandate for a mutual legal assistance agreement between the EU and Japan. The Government are happy with the mandate in its current format. A key priority for the UK is to ensure the inclusion of video conferencing to give testimony.

The presidency will update the Council about the implementation of the European e-justice action plan, which was approved by the Council in November 2008. The Government welcome the Presidency's commitment to the e-justice action plan and supports the development of a more detailed roadmap to ensure proper implementation of projects such as the e-justice portal and video conferencing

Under any other business, the Council will discuss any potential role of the EU in the closure of Guantanamo while the Commission will present an outline of a report by Judge Jean-Louis Bruguiere on the processing of member states' personal data by the US—Treasury Department—for counter-terrorism purposes. The Council will also have a discussion on the EU anti-drug policy, originally planned for the informal JHA Council in January. This will enable the UK to emphasise the continued necessity of EU action in tackling cocaine trafficking through West Africa. Greece is expected to highlight the third Global Forum on Migration and Development taking place in early November in Athens. The chosen overall theme is "Integrating Migration policies in development strategies for the benefit of all". The UK is (as in previous years) a member of the steering group for the Athens Forum and will in that capacity help oversee and shape preparations.

The presidency are expected to inform the Council on the state of play of the negotiations with the European Parliament on the proposal for an amending Directive on ship-source pollution and on the introduction of penalties for infringements. The UK supports the Directive and is keen to see a successful passage in the European Parliament. Germany will provide information on the International Tribunal for Law of the Sea based in Hamburg. Finally, Sweden is expected to raise the issue of transparency as a tool for strengthening citizens' trust in the European institutions.

JUSTICE

Criminal Trial Processes (Young Witnesses)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Maria Eagle): Today the Government have issued their response to the consultation "Improving the Criminal Trial Process for Young Witnesses".

DEFENCE

Defence Technology Plan

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Quentin Davies): The Ministry of Defence has today published the Defence Technology Plan (DTP) on the www.science.mod.uk website. This is a cost-balanced expression of research priorities for the MOD that takes forward the Defence Technology Strategy (DTS), published in October 2006. The DTP provides clear direction to the R & D community on current priorities for investment in defence technology and seeks fresh, innovative thinking.

The DTP has a dynamic online format, allowing regular updates when necessary. The publication of the DTP completes a suite of MOD strategies and policies that now form MOD's Innovation Procurement Plan. As part of the commitments set out in the "Innovation Nation" White Paper, published in March 2008, the MOD's Innovation Procurement Plan explains the hierarchy and roles of MOD's existing documents that describe our approach to innovation:

The Defence Industrial Strategy
The Defence Technology Strategy
The Innovation Strategy
Technology Partnership in Defence

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

EU Energy Council

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): I represented the UK at the Energy Council in Brussels on 19 February.

The Council discussed the Russia-Ukraine gas crisis and the Commission's recent Second Strategic European Energy Review (SEER2) (Council Document 15944/08). Ministers reiterated their support for the SEER2 and agreed Council conclusions, which will be submitted to the Spring European Council scheduled for 19-20 March.

This was followed by a policy debate on measures to promote oil and gas security, based on questions prepared by the Czech presidency. Ministers generally endorsed the Commission's objectives on oil stocking and gas security of supply, although the presidency noted the need for a balance between the harmonisation of objectives and flexibility in member states' obligations in meeting them.

Finally, the Commission and presidency presented information on a number of international energy-related events which have taken place or are due to take place under the Czech presidency, including the Sofia Energy Summit and the Hungarian Nabucco Summit. Slovenia spoke about its candidature for the seat of the Agency for the Co-operation of Energy Regulators (ACER).

Over lunch, Ministers discussed informally the energy dimension of the Commission's economic recovery package.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Olympic/Paralympic Games (Safety and Security)

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): The Government have made a commitment to the International Olympic Committee to take all the "financial, planning and operational measures" necessary to ensure the safety and the peaceful celebration of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The Government have now approved the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Safety and Security Strategy which sets out how we will achieve our aim of a safe and secure games in keeping with the Olympic culture and spirit.

The strategy has been developed by the Office of Security and Counter-Terrorism in the Home Office in association with Government Olympic Executive, the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA), the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG), the office of the London Mayor, the security and emergency services and a wide range of other Government Departments and agencies.

The objectives of this strategy will be to: protect Olympic venues, events and supporting infrastructure including the transport networks; prepare for events that may significantly disrupt the safety and security of the games and mitigate their impact; identify and disrupt threats to the safety and security of the games; command, control, plan and resource the security operation; and engage with domestic and international partners to enhance security and ensure the success of the strategy.

This strategy provides a framework for programmes run by the police and other agencies and by ODA and LOCOG. It is integrated with and will draw on resources allocated under the Government's counter-terrorism strategy (CONTEST) and other pre-existing security regimes, such as those governing the transport networks. The strategy benefits from the Government's ongoing work and investment generally in security and law enforcement and in particular the expansion of the UK's counter-terrorism capabilities through the CONTEST programme.

The Government have also endorsed an outline 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Safety and Security National Concept of Operations which describes how the strategy will be delivered. The concept of operations will evolve as work is completed on the broader Olympic infrastructure and as LOCOG and others develop their concept of operations for the games as a whole.

The full strategy, concept of operations and detailed security plans are classified documents and will not be placed in the public domain, but the Government will provide as much information to the House about security planning as possible. Agreement of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Safety and Security Strategy and the development of the national concept of operations ensures that the games security planning remains on track and on budget.

The strategy and the concept of operations are designed to respond flexibly to changes in the risks to the games and deal with any unexpected events which may occur between now and 2012.

Risk assessment is central to the strategy and to operational planning for 2012 safety and security measures, and activity to mitigate risk is already underway. The design of the Olympic park, new competition venues and associated infrastructure is being developed by the Olympic Delivery Authority with the full involvement of security advisors from the police and the Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure, with the overall aim that all new construction will meet the Association of Chief Police Officers' "Secured by Design" standards.

The Metropolitan Police have established a dedicated specialist team to police the Olympic park and associated commercial developments, which will reduce the potential for criminal activity by supporting on site security and co-ordinating operational activities. The police are also leading a wider initiative to prevent economic crime opportunities and are working with key Olympic stakeholders, relevant agencies and concerned parties to increase protection against criminal networks and individuals who want to exploit the Olympic economy for their own profit.

The Government and the police are also increasing the capacity of the airwave tetra radio system in advance of the 2012 games to deal with the expected increase in requirement and ensure that the airwave network remains resilient.

On 15 March 2007, my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Olympics, set out an envelope of financial provision for additional policing and wider security for the Olympic and Paralympic Games of £600 million. The strategy, concept of operations and detailed plans will be delivered within this provision and the security budgets of the Olympic Delivery Authority and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games, as well as drawing on the Government's substantial investment in counter-terrorist and other security, law enforcement and resilience measures. This £600 million, together with a contingency of £238 million on which there are currently no plans to draw, and the security budget of the Olympic Delivery Authority are parts of the overall Olympic public sector funding package of £9.325 billion.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

World Bank

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I have placed in the Libraries of both Houses a copy of the DFID report, "The UK and the World Bank 2007-2009".

This report sets out how we have worked with the World Bank from July 2007 to November 2008. Similar reports will now be published on an annual basis in order to provide more regular and up-to-date reporting and accountability.

The report provides an explanation of major developments in policy and strategy, the UK's engagement and the outcomes. It also explains how bank operations and implementation have been taken forward and highlights examples of major projects and programmes launched.

The major issues that the bank has worked on during this period, and on which DFID has engaged are:

The Food, Fuel and Financial Crises.

International Development Association Replenishment.

Climate Change and Sustainability.

Making the Bank more Representative and Responsive.

Governance and Fragile States.

Human Development.

Growth and Trade.

Debt.

In addition the report sets out UK priorities and high-level objectives for engaging with the bank in 2009. These focus on securing optimal bank support to countries dealing with the economic downturn; a stronger bank focus on environmental sustainability, climate resilient development and low carbon growth; improving the delivery and effectiveness of bank assistance and the way it works with others, especially in fragile and conflict affected countries; delivery on gender commitments and stronger focus on supporting women and girls; and improvements in bank governance which increase developing country voice and make it more efficient and effective.

The next annual report will set out progress against these priorities and objectives, and outline those for the year ahead.

JUSTICE

Election Candidate Address Publication (Government Response)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. Michael Wills): The Government published today their response to the consultation paper on the publication of candidates' addresses at UK parliamentary elections.

The purpose of this consultation was to seek views on whether the addresses of candidates at UK parliamentary elections should continue to be included on ballot papers and other election documents open to the public. The responses reveal that there are strongly-held views on both sides.

The Government are aware that at least one Member of Parliament intends to table an amendment to the Political Parties and Elections Bill which would remove the requirement for a candidate's full home address to appear on publicly available election documents, including the ballot paper.

The responses to this consultation will help to inform consideration of any such amendment by Members of Parliament.

Copies of the response paper will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses and on the Department's website at: www.justice.gov.uk.

Copies will also be available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Caroline Flint): I represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Preparation of the European Council, 19-20 March

The presidency presented the draft agenda for the Spring European Council. First, on the economic and financial situation, EU heads would look at short-term measures such as the European Economic Recovery Plan and the conclusions of the de Larosiere high level group on cross-border financial supervision, but also at the longer term, in particular the Lisbon Strategy. The meeting will also look ahead to the 2 April London summit. Second, on energy and climate change, leaders would look at energy security and preparations for the December Copenhagen climate change conference. There was also widespread support for the presidency's decision to focus the external relations discussion on the eastern partnership.

As I said in my letter of 18 February to the Chairs of the European Scrutiny Committee and the Select Committee on European Union, the Government support the presidency's priorities for the Spring European Council.

The presidency also outlined their plans for the 1 March Informal European Council. Four issues would be addressed: the functioning of the banking sector (including impaired assets); the implementation of the European Economic Recovery Plan; how to stimulate employment, and prevent and limit job losses; and London summit preparations, on which Chancellor Merkel and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister will give a joint presentation.

European Economic Recovery Plan

The Council assessed the list of energy, agriculture and broadband projects proposed by the European Commission, to be funded by an additional €5 billion contribution from the Community budget. Ministers also discussed how to finance the package. There was a consensus that the Commission's preferred option, to use the margin from the 2008 budget, was not acceptable. The presidency therefore concluded that that more work on an alternative solution was required.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Afghanistan

The presidency said the EU needed to deliver on its commitments to Afghanistan, working alongside the US. The Commission agreed: they would decide whether to deploy a full election observer mission following an exploratory mission next month. The main concern was the security situation—it was clear that EU observers would need security support from NATO and ISAF (International Security Assistance Force). They had already committed €25million to support the election process.

High Representative Solana noted the importance of a strong police sector in Afghanistan and stressed the importance of the EU meeting its existing commitments on the EUPOL police reform mission, particularly by providing personnel.

I said that prioritisation was key; the EU needed to take a closer look at where it could really add value and increase its effectiveness; its priorities should include support to the elections, policing, financial assistance and regional engagement.

The presidency concluded that Foreign Ministers would continue the debate next month, including at the Spring European Council, focusing on how to: increase EU engagement and effectiveness; support the elections; complement NATO activities; and be instrumental in the regional dimension.

MEPP

The presidency outlined its main messages for the Gaza reconstruction conference in Sharm el-Sheikh on 2 March: humanitarian aid delivery and relief remained a priority; importance of opening the crossings; support to Egypt's ceasefire and reconciliation efforts; support to the Palestinian Authority (PA) and President Abbas; donor assistance should be channelled through the PA and or existing international funding mechanisms; the need for a durable ceasefire. High Representative Solana noted that ceasefire talks in Cairo had stalled; he would return to the region shortly and remain there until 2 March.

Eastern Partnership

The presidency said that this was a priority for them. The Commission presented the proposals in line with its communication of 3 December 2008. Stability, prosperity and security to our east were important for the EU. There was broad agreement on the importance and principles of the initiative, including that financing should not be at the expense of the EU's southern neighbours. Ministers and discussed the eastern partnership launch summit to be held on 7 May, including the question of Russian and Belarusian participation. With support from a range of other member states, I expressed caution about Belarus: it was up to the regime to deliver the necessary political reform in order to take part in the initiative.

Western Balkans

Ministers discussed how best to handle Montenegro's application for EU membership. With support from most member states, I argued that we should maintain the momentum of enlargement to ensure stability in the Balkans and that we should ask the Commission for its detailed advice on the reforms needed before we could open accession negotiations. This would help focus action on priority reforms and strengthen the conditions-based enlargement process. The presidency stated their intention that the Council should revert to the issue at the March GAERC.

On Bosnia and Herzegovina there was an inconclusive discussion of progress towards meeting the conditions for closure of the office of the High Representative (OHR). I reiterated UK support for maintaining clear conditionality for a decision on OHR closure.

There was an inconclusive discussion on the possibility of implementing Serbia's "Interim Agreement" with the EU. I confirmed that, while the UK would be ready for the EU to recognise Serbia's significantly improved co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) in The Hague by allowing entry into force of Serbia's "Interim Agreement", full co-operation with ICTY remains the condition set by the EU for ratification of Serbia's Stabilisation and Association Agreement with the EU.

Sri Lanka

Ministers adopted conclusions without discussion, which called for an "immediate ceasefire" to allow humanitarian access; condemned the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam's use of violence and terrorism, and urged the Government of Sri Lanka to engage in an inclusive political process that would address the legitimate concerns of all communities, in order to find a lasting political solution to the conflict.

Iraq

Ministers adopted conclusions without discussion, which welcomed the provincial elections of 31 January as an important step towards democratisation and reconciliation, and reaffirmed the EU's support to Iraq, in co-operation with international organisations.

HEALTH

Meningitis C Vaccine

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): On 25 February, and in consultation with the Medicines and Healthcare products regulatory Agency (MHRA), Novartis Vaccines and Diagnostics issued a precautionary recall of two batches with a total of 17,000 doses of a meningitis C vaccine "Menjugate Kit". A potential problem has arisen with the solvent that is used to reconstitute the vaccine before it is administered. This follows the detection of the Staphylococcus aureus bacteria in part of a batch manufactured in Italy but which did not reach the UK. All batches of the vaccine that have come into the United Kingdom have passed all their tests including sterility.

The MHRA has reassured me that parents need not be concerned over this recall, as there is currently no evidence to show that UK children have been put at risk. However, if parents are in any way concerned, then they should consult their doctor about the issue or contact NHS Direct.

The MHRA has received no reports of infections following vaccinations. There is also no current evidence to suggest that UK children have been given a contaminated vaccine.

Further investigations into the incident are underway by Novartis. Tests have also begun on batches in the UK.

We will provide a further statement to the House when the necessary investigations have been completed.

JUSTICE

Breach of Community Order Pilots

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): On 2 April 2001, the then Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Social Security, my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey, (Angela Eagle), debated the Social Security (Breach of Community Order)

Regulations 2001. These were subsequently approved by the House of Commons on 4 April 2001, Official Report, column 479. My noble Friend Baroness Hollis of Heigham, the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Social Security, also successfully moved, Official Report, column 639, that the draft order laid before both Houses on 20 March, to enable the establishment of the benefit sanctions pilots for offenders in breach of their community order, be agreed. Following this, the pilots in four areas, by which social security benefit would be withdrawn for offenders in breach of community orders imposed by the courts, were commenced. The pilots covered Derbyshire, Hertfordshire, Teesside and West Midlands. They involved joint working between the Department for Work and Pensions, the Home Office and the Ministry of Justice. This statement announces that, subject to Parliament's approval, we now intend to end these pilots and explains the reasons why.

The original objective of the pilots was to link the receipt of benefit more closely to the fulfilment of responsibilities to society and to encourage greater compliance with community sentences.

Initial evaluation research showed a modest 1.8 per cent. improvement in compliance by sanctioned offenders, directly attributable to the impact of the policy. However over a longer period research has not shown the advantages expected. Overall, when the administrative costs for the scheme were balanced against the likely savings, the pilots have not been found to provide sufficient value for money to justify their continuation. Improvements in compliance of 5 per cent. could be expected to deliver savings in the pilot areas of about £9,500 a year. However, once all costs had been factored in, the overall sum for continuing the scheme would be in the region of £652,000, or £5.60p for every £1 of savings made under the scheme.

In consultation with the DWP, we plan to end the benefit sanction pilots subject to parliamentary approval. The regulations to end the pilots will be laid shortly. The decision has been made following evaluation that showed the pilots did not provide sufficient value for money to justify their continuation.

It remains the Government's intention to continue to take a rigorous approach to sentencing for breach of a community order. With the introduction of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 measures on compliance and enforcement have been strengthened. Courts must now respond to a breach either by amending the order to make it more demanding or by revoking it altogether and dealing with the offence afresh, which includes the power to send the offender to prison for up to 51 weeks. Courts must hold offenders to account in all cases where they do not comply with their order.

The Probation Service now has a strong record of enforcing orders promptly. In 90 per cent. of cases, offender managers take enforcement action for breaches of community orders within 10 days. Compliance with community orders is at a record level and increasing, with 75 per cent. of cases reaching the 6 month stage of an order without the need for breach action.

The learning from the pilots will be carried forward into the DWP's benefits sanctions initiative for drugs misusers who fail to attend for employment interviews. These will combine sanction with support in a carefully constructed package designed to improve compliance. They will be monitored and evaluated throughout to ensure value for money and effectiveness in meeting their original aim of getting more drugs misusers into employment or training. We remain committed to the principle that entitlement must be balanced against a responsible attitude to obligations. The public should have every right to feel confident in tough, effective and visible community sentences that are rigorously enforced.

PRIME MINISTER

Criminal Justice System (Official History)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I have appointed Professor Paul Rock, Professor David Downes and Professor Tim Newburn from the London School of Economics to write the official history of the Criminal Justice System.

WORK AND PENSIONS

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): Further to my statement of 3 February 2009, I am pleased to announce that yesterday the United Kingdom Ambassador to the United Nations, Sir John Sawers, signed the optional protocol to the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on behalf of the United Kingdom, and in doing so we joined over 80 other UN member states who have so far signed.

The decision to sign this optional protocol was reached in the light of our work towards ratification of the convention itself. We are now close to starting the parliamentary procedures required for ratification, and I hope to be able to make a separate announcement on that soon.

Signature of the optional protocol is an important step and underlines the messages in the convention about respect for the human rights of disabled people. We will now be working towards ratification of the optional protocol as soon as is practicable.

As my 3 February statement indicated, the optional protocol builds on the convention by establishing two additional procedures in respect of implementation and monitoring of the convention itself.

The first is a procedural avenue that, subject to meeting conditions set out in the optional protocol, will enable individuals or groups of individuals to bring petitions to the UN Committee that has been established to monitor implementation of the Disability Convention if they believe that their rights under that convention have been breached. The second is an inquiry procedure giving the Committee authority to undertake inquiries when reliable information is received into allegations of grave or systematic violations of convention rights.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Controls on Deactivated Firearms

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Alan Campbell): I have published a consultation paper, "Controls on Deactivated Firearms", which seeks views on how to reduce the use of deactivated firearms in crime.

The Government do not want to interfere with the legitimate collection of deactivated firearms and is looking for a proportionate but effective response to the problem. The consultation paper sets out a range of possible options for reducing the availability of deactivated firearms to criminals.

Copies of the consultation paper are available in the House Library and on the Home Office website at: www.homeoffice.gov.uk. We should be glad to receive views by 25 May.

Police Use of Firearms

The Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing (Mr. Vernon Coaker): The latest figures from 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008 show that the number of police operations in which firearms were authorised was 21,181—an increase of 17.5 per cent. on the previous year.

The number of Authorised Firearms Officers (AFO's) was 6,780—an increase of 52 (1 per cent.) officers overall on the previous year. The number of operations involving armed response vehicles was 16,712—an increase of 2,197 (15 per cent.) on the previous year.

The police discharged a conventional firearm in seven incidents (up from 3 incidents in the previous year).

Full details are set out in the tables below:

PRIME MINISTER

Informal European Council (Brussels)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I attended an informal meeting of the European Council in Brussels on 1 March with other EU leaders.

We discussed the EU's continued response to the economic downturn and measures that will be part of the agenda for the G20 London summit on 2 April. Leaders agreed on the need for co-ordinated action to meet unprecedented economic times and restore confidence in the global financial markets.

First, EU leaders agreed to improve regulation and supervision of financial institutions. We need new regulatory standards, improved risk management and systems to foresee, prevent and manage crises in the banks and in the markets. There should be no financial market in the world where risks can be run that threaten the very integrity of the global financial system. We will need cross-border supervision of financial institutions.

Secondly, the whole world must agree that protectionism is not the answer to the crisis. EU leaders therefore agreed in Brussels on the need to reject protectionism while continuing to make maximum use of the single market as the vehicle for recovery to support growth and jobs. We agreed that the European Recovery Programme, finalised last December, continued to provide the right framework for EU action to help jobs and growth, and agreed we should assess the implementation of it both at the European and national levels at the spring European Council on 19 and 20 March.

Thirdly, we agreed that the EU must continue to play its part in stimulating the global economy with a co-ordinated fiscal stimulus and European-wide action to keep interest rates low. Europe's recovery plan must have high skilled, high technology and low carbon priorities at its heart.

Fourthly, we again agreed on the need to deliver urgent and substantial reform of the international financial institutions. We need more resources for the international financial institutions to prevent and deal with financial crises in different countries. We agreed on the need for early warning systems and reform of the World Bank.

On employment, EU leaders agreed on the importance of measures to counter the negative impact the economic crisis was having on employment. I welcome Prime Minister Topolanek's decision to convene a special European summit in May to focus on concrete measures to address the social and employment impact of the crisis.

We discussed the particular impact of the global financial crisis on central and eastern Europe. We acknowledged the clear differences between member states in the region, but noted the longer-term benefits to those countries of EU integration. We agreed and welcomed the importance of EIB finance to the region and welcomed the recent announcement by the EIB, World Bank, and EBRD of a €25 billion joint initiative to support the banking sectors and businesses in the region. We agreed to keep assistance provided to those countries under review.

TREASURY

Government Infrastructure Investment

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Yvette Cooper): I am announcing Government action today to ensure vital PFI infrastructure projects will go forward as planned despite current financial market conditions, so they can support jobs and the economy.

This action will ensure that crucial and valuable public investment will not be disrupted by problems in the financial markets. In total, £13 billion of public investment in procurement will be safeguarded. This protection will assure the future of a broad range of public infrastructure projects including £3.5 billion of waste treatment and environmental projects, £3.1 billion of transport projects and £2.4 billion of schools projects. It will also avoid the significant delays which would be entailed by switching these projects to alternative procurement approaches. These projects can therefore go ahead swiftly and support jobs and the economy and help prepare the country for the future recovery.

Around 110 PFI projects are currently in the pipe line, and PFI projects make up typically 10 per cent. of public capital investment. PFI projects have consistently demonstrated value for money and high levels of user satisfaction in vital areas of public service delivery.

PFI projects continue to be able to secure equity as private construction companies and investors are still willing to put money in and bear the risk of delays or cost overruns, rather than the taxpayer. Some projects, however, are finding difficulties obtaining sufficient debt as a result of the global credit crunch.

From today the Government will lend to those PFI projects that cannot raise sufficient debt finance on acceptable terms, lending alongside commercial lenders and the European Investment Bank. It will also be able, where necessary, to provide the full amount of senior debt required by a project. Funding will be provided from across Government, including initially from unallocated funds and Departmental underspends on previous projects. Equity investors will continue to bear the primary risk in these projects and, where available, private sector debt will continue to be provided.

The Government believe it is vital to get these infrastructure projects under way as swiftly as possible—to support jobs and the economy this year as well as delivering important public services. Switching to alternative procurement methods or conventional funding for these projects at this late stage would incur significant additional delays or risk projects failing. For that reason we have decided that providing additional debt finance is the most effective way to get construction underway swiftly and support the economy.

Retaining the PFI structure will mean that the private sector will continue to bear the risk of cost over runs and delays. A recent Ipsos MORI report on the operational benefits of PFI has shown that contract managers are highly positive about the overall performance of PFI projects, contract service levels are being achieved and user satisfaction is high.

The Treasury will use professional lending skills, and intends to lend to projects only where appropriate funding is not available from the market. It will be a temporary intervention. As with normal commercial lending these loans will bear interest and will be repaid over the life of the project. The Treasury envisages, however, selling the loans it makes prior to their maturity when favourable market conditions return.

I have agreed that all PFI projects in procurement (that have, to date, issued a notice in the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU)) will be eligible for this finance from the Government. Future projects intending to go to market soon will also be eligible, provided they meet the usual value for money and affordability criteria, and subject to Treasury approval before issuing their OJEU notice.

Tax Law Rewrite Project

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): I am pleased to tell the House that Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs will shortly publish drafts of the Tax Law Rewrite project's sixth and seventh Bills.

These two Bills are a major landmark in the task of rewriting the legislation for the two main direct taxes which are of great importance to individuals and businesses. The project has, since its inception in 1996, been rewriting the income tax and corporation tax codes in a clearer and more understandable form, making them more accessible than at any time in recent memory. The Bills, when enacted, will complete this work.

One is the Corporation Tax Bill which is the second of two Bills by that name which will rewrite substantially the whole of the corporation tax code. (The first is presently before Parliament and will become the Corporation Tax Act 2009.) It is expected to become the Corporation Tax Act 2010. It includes provisions about the treatment of losses and gifts to charities, reliefs, distributions, particular types of companies and activities, avoidance and definitions.

The second is the Taxation (International and Other Provisions) Bill which includes provisions about double taxation relief, transfer pricing, advance pricing agreements and tax arbitrage. The Bill also seeks to help users by relocating and where appropriate rewriting provisions which would otherwise have been left unhelpfully in the Income and Corporation Taxes Act or one of the Finance Acts.

It is planned to introduce the Bills into Parliament by the end of 2009. Four previous Bills of the project were enacted as the Capital Allowances Act 2001, the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003, the Income Tax (Trading and Other Income) Act 2005 and the Income Tax Act 2007.

The scope of these new Bills and the timing of consultation were agreed with the project's Consultative and Steering Committees which together include the main representative bodies and other users. They benefit from a style and structure that has been developed as a result of consultation over the previous rewrite Bills. Earlier versions of the legislation in these new Bills have been revised in the light of comments and suggestions from tax professionals and others who engaged in the consultation process. This has only been possible thanks to the close collaboration and co-operation between the project team and tax practitioners, the legal profession and business representatives.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Schools Capital Funding (2009-10)

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): I am today announcing that £919 million of capital spending on schools and children's play areas will be brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10.

Of the total, £499 million is allocated among 116 local authorities. These authorities bid to have expenditure brought forward in response to an invitation we issued following last November's pre-Budget report.

Some £390 million of capital funding devolved direct to all schools in England is also being brought forward to invest in smaller projects as they see fit. In addition, £30 million of investment in play facilities is being brought forward.

Bringing forward capital spending is a key plank of the Government's fiscal stimulus package to boost the economy in the current downturn. It means that thousands of school modernisation projects across England can start 12 months early.

The full details of today's capital acceleration package are:

£499 million allocated to 116 local authorities who bid for the capital made available in the pre-Budget report to be brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-11 (all the authorities' bids within the terms of the offer have been accepted). The allocation comprises:

- £235 million for Local Authority Modernisation Grant
- £76 million for Primary Capital Programme
- £50 million for Locally Controlled Voluntarily Aided Programme
- £138 million for Targeted Capital Fund for 14-19, SEN and disabilities fund.

£390 million being allocated a year early direct to every school in the country—bringing forward 40 per cent. of all indicative Devolved Formula Capital allocations for 2010-11 to 2009-10. It means:

- a typical unmodernised primary school of 250 pupils will now get £47,600 this year, including £13,600 brought forward from its 2010-11 allocation. A primary school newly built, rebuilt or refurbished in the last eleven years will now get £23,800—up from £17,000.
- a typical unmodernised secondary school of 1000 pupils will now get £158,200, including £45,200 brought forward. A secondary school newly built, rebuilt or refurbished in the last eleven years will now get £79,100—up from £56,000.

£30 million of investment for play facilities brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10.

All accelerated spending will be taken off the 2010-11 local authority and school allocations.

The 2008-11 local authority capital settlement in October 2007 set out that £6,669 million would be invested in 2008-09; £7,024 million in 2009-10 and £8,235 million in 2010-11. The revised national figures for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are now: £7,943 million and £7,316 million. This is a significant real-terms increase from just £700 million a year in 1997.

Capital allocations remain available for all local authorities to bring forward, including the 33 local authorities who have chosen not to bid so far.

The relevant table has been placed in the library.

JUSTICE

Volunteering Across the Criminal Justice System (Government Response to Baroness Neuberger's Report)

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, my right hon. and noble Friend the Attorney-General and I are today publishing the Government's response to Baroness Neuberger's report on volunteering across the Criminal Justice System. We are grateful to Baroness Neuberger for her work on the report and for highlighting the key role of volunteers across the Criminal Justice System.

We recognise and value the huge contribution that thousands of volunteers make right across the CJS. We have already taken important steps to strengthen the role of volunteering and we will drive this work forward as part of our commitment to promote community engagement and active citizenship and to deliver first class public services. This is why my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, the Member for Dewsbury (Mr. Malik), who leads on community involvement in justice issues, has been appointed as the cross-CJS ministerial champion for volunteering.

Our focus is on practical action that enables volunteers to contribute to the delivery of high quality value for money services. It is also important that people from all backgrounds are encouraged and empowered to play their part.

The champion will work with criminal justice agencies to identify practical opportunities to enhance their work through the use of volunteers and improve our engagement with the community.

Copies of the Government's response have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies of the response will also be available on the Criminal Justice System website at: www.cjsonline.gov.uk.

WORK AND PENSIONS

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): I am pleased to announce that the Explanatory Memorandum and Command Paper for ratification of the UN convention on the "Rights of Persons with Disabilities" will be laid before Parliament later today.

In taking this important step, the Government have confirmed their commitment both to this convention, and to the principle that it enshrines that disabled people have, and should be able to enjoy, the same human rights as other people.

In working towards this point, Government Departments and the devolved Administrations have been checking their legislation, policies, practices and procedures against the convention's provisions. The UK does not ratify any international treaty until it is in a position to ensure that it can implement the provisions and therefore comply with its obligations. The Explanatory Memorandum which has been laid explains the basis on which the Government proposes the UK should now ratify the convention, and the handful of reservations and interpretative declarations that are required in order that we may do so.

A reservation is proposed in respect of service in the armed forces to preserve the position already reflected in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as amended (DDA). Service in the armed forces is exempt from the employment provisions of the DDA. This approach is entirely consistent with EU Council Directive 2000/78/EC establishing a general framework for equal treatment in employment and occupation. Service in any of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown are excluded from the DDA's employment provisions to preserve their combat effectiveness. The Government decided to exclude members of the armed forces in the DDA because armed forces personnel need to be combat effective in order to meet a world wide liability to deploy, and to ensure that military health and fitness remain matters for Ministry of Defence Ministers based on military advice, not for the courts.

An interpretative declaration is proposed to make clear that the UK general education system includes both mainstream and special schools, thereby clarifying how the UK Government interpret the convention. This will make it clear that special schools are considered part of the UK's general education system and that parents have the right to express a preference for a special school. A reservation is proposed to allow for circumstances where disabled children's needs may be best met through specialist provision, which may be some way from their home—so they will need to be educated outside their local community. This also maintains parental choice for schools outside the local community.

A general reservation is proposed in order to retain the right to apply immigration rules and to retain the right to introduce wider health screening for applicants entering or seeking to remain in the UK, particularly in the event of a global health emergency, if this is considered necessary to protect public health. This clarifies the Government's understanding that the convention does not create new or additional rights for non-UK national disabled people relating to the entry into, stay in and departure from the United Kingdom. This reservation will be subject to review 12 months after the UK has ratified the convention in order to assess whether there is a continued need for it in practice.

A reservation is proposed in respect of article 12.4, which concerns safeguards for the exercise of substituted decision-making and includes a requirement for "regular review" by a competent, independent and impartial authority or judicial body. There is currently no review system for Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) appointees; that is, people who are appointed to claim and collect benefits on behalf of another person due to that person's lack of physical or mental capacity. Those appointee arrangements are not at present subject to the safeguard of regular review, as the Government believe this article requires. DWP is therefore actively working towards a proportionate system of review to address this issue.

Moving towards ratification is a major achievement. I believe that this step will be welcomed, along with the signing of the optional protocol to the UN convention last week. Together, these two actions send out a very strong signal—the Government are serious about achieving equality of human rights for disabled people and are making real progress towards their goal of disability equality by 2025.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

EU Competitiveness Council (March 2009)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Ian Pearson): On 5 March I shall be representing the UK at the EU Competitiveness Council.

There will be five main items being discussed and debated at the Council (as listed below), of which the two most high profile issues to be discussed will be the crisis in the automotive industry and the EU economic crisis/recovery plan, which will be discussed by Ministers over lunch.

Government aims for Council

Throughout these sessions the Government's aim will be to:

Emphasise that a fully functioning open and liberalised single market can be an aid to economic recovery rather than detrimental

Highlight the need to avoid creating barriers and distortions in responses to the downturn and the need to avoid undermining the internal market, and avoid protectionist measures in the car sector and more generally.

Stress we must not forget the aim of moving to a low-carbon economy, and EIB funds must be there to support all parts of the automotive industry to lower-carbon emissions.

Explore with other member states what more the EU can do to stabilise financial markets, stimulate our economies, and enable families, workers and businesses to get through the downturn and on track for a sustainable path to recovery and growth.

The morning and lunch sessions will cover

Exchange of views and adoption of Council conclusions on follow-up to the single market review.

There will be a debate on Lisbon strategy: Lisbon Policy Exercise 2009—Key Issues Paper of the Competitiveness Council to the spring European Council with the aim of final adoption of paper.

Lunchtime discussion on economic crisis and recovery

Discussion points for the lunch have not been finalised and may be subject to change before 5 March but we understand that possible issues for discussion will include:

Further discussion on Commission's economic recovery package.

Car industry access to framework programme 7 funding.

Role/use of EIB funding.

The afternoon session will cover

An exchange of views with the aim of adopting Council conclusions on crisis in the automotive industry.

A progress report on better regulation.

Any other business

In addition to the main Council items, there will be eight further items taken under "any other business" all of which fall under BERR's responsibilities:

(i) Information from the presidency and Commission on Forum on Services and Trade Liberalisation. (Prague, 2 and 3 February 2009).

(ii) Commission update on services directive: state of play of implementation process.

(iii) Presentation by the Commission on Internal Market Scoreboard No.18.

(iv) Commission Presentation on Communication from the Commission to the European Parliament, the Council, the European Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions: Monitoring consumer outcomes in the single market—Second edition of the Consumer Markets Scoreboard.

(v) Information from the presidency on Five years after Prague: impact of enlargement in the European economies.

(vi) Information from the Commission on Transatlantic Economic Council.

(vii) Presentation by the Commission communication on the external dimension of the Lisbon strategy for growth and jobs: "Reporting on market access and setting the framework for more effective international regulatory co-operation".

(viii) Commission overview of implementation of the SBA action plan at a community and member state level.

DEFENCE

Kosovo Draw-down

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): The Supreme Allied Commander Europe has decided that the specific capability, currently provided by the UK to the NATO force in Kosovo, is no longer required. Our current force of 167 personnel will draw-down to a small number of posts between the end of March 2009 and 1 September 2009.

Our draw-down reflects the changed circumstances in Kosovo, in particular the improved security situation. The key milestones in Kosovo's independence have passed without major incident and the security situation in Kosovo is generally calm. The EU rule of law mission has recently rolled out across Kosovo. Against this backdrop, and with over 14,000 personnel still in theatre, NATO remains well placed to deal with any potential security incidents.

Aircraft (Available Support)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Quentin Davies): I am pleased to announce that the Ministry of Defence has signed a five-year contract with BAE Systems, worth around £450 million, for the provision of an availability support service to the Typhoon fleet of aircraft.

This innovative partnering arrangement will create up to 150 highly skilled new jobs, mostly at RAF Coningsby and sustain a further 350 at its peak. The Typhoon programme directly employs some 16,000 aerospace and engineering staff at various locations across the UK, and many more throughout the supply chain. This new contract adds to and sustains this number. The programme is very important to the UK from both the military and industrial perspective.

This contract will see BAE Systems taking a major role in ensuring the availability of the Typhoon fleet to meet its standing and operational commitments and demonstrates the Ministry of Defence's commitment to partnering British industry to get more efficient support for our front-line Typhoon fighter force.

Service Complaints Commissioner's First Report

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): I have placed in the Library of the House today a copy of the Service Complaints Commissioner's first annual report on the fairness, effectiveness and efficiency of the service complaints system.

The Government committed to the establishment of a Service Complaints Commissioner in its response to the Deepcut review which was published in June 2006. Provisions had already been proposed in the Armed Forces Bill then under consideration for an independent external reviewer who would examine the fairness and effectiveness of the service complaints system and report annually to Ministers. However, in the light of the Deepcut review the reviewer was given a wider role in relation to allegations of bullying, harassment and other improper behaviour. Recommendations made by the House of Commons Defence Committee (HCDC) in its Duty of Care Report 2004-5 also helped shape the role of the Commissioner and the complaints process.

The role of the Commissioner is to provide scrutiny and assurance that the complaints process is working effectively and that lessons learned are being implemented. The Commissioner offers an independent ear for the concerns of service personnel and their families, and can pursue their proper consideration by the chain of command. The Commissioner's work will help us to maintain a complaints system that is fair and effective, and where necessary improve it. I am confident that the Commissioner provides the optimum arrangement for both service personnel and the chain of command responsible for their welfare and discipline.

I and the service chiefs are committed to the role of the Commissioner and welcome this first annual report. We are committed to continuously improving the service complaints process, and take the Commissioner's recommendations very seriously. I am pleased that the report states that the new complaints system is well designed and is working; it also makes a number of criticisms of current procedures, which we will need to consider carefully. I will provide a formal response to the Commissioner once we have had time to look at the report in detail.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Capital Investment (Further Education Colleges)

The Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (Mr. John Denham): In 1997 there was no capital budget for Further Education (FE) Colleges and the National Audit Office (NAO) described FE college buildings as "ageing and their quality and fitness for purpose was often unsatisfactory, affecting the reputation of the sector."

Between 1997-98 and 2006-07, more than £2 billion has been invested in modernising FE facilities. My Department will spend another £2.3 billion in the current spending review period. We have brought forward £220 million of this funding, £110 million from 2009-10 to 2008-09 and a further £110 million from 2010-11 to 2009-10, as part of our response to boost the economy. Nearly 700 projects in 330 colleges throughout England have been agreed, and 253 schemes are under way or fully approved. Only 42 colleges have yet to receive any investment. Last summer the NAO reported the programme as making good progress with the renewal and modernisation of the FE estate with the great majority of projects coming in on budget and delivering great improvement for learners.

I previously informed the House that the demand for funding by colleges has risen. The size of projects and the scale of Government funding required has increased. In December, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), which administers the programme, decided to defer further approvals of projects in principle and in detail while assessing the programme overall. As I said in the House on 3 February, this decision did not affect projects that have already received agreement in detail and are in progress and we anticipate spending the full £2.3 billion allocated in this spending review period.

Today the council met to discuss the results of its assessment of the programme. It has decided to give detailed approval to eight schemes at colleges in Stoke-on-Trent, Coulsdon (Surrey), West Kent, Liverpool, Solihull, Northampton and two in Bolton.

These colleges had all been recommended for approval by the national Capital Committee of the council and decisions to approve their applications in detail had been deferred from the December meeting.

The total cost of these schemes is nearly £400 million. The council will provide more than £300 million in Government funding over the next five years. Following the Council's decision today, the LSC will be working with the colleges involved on the phasing and funding requirements of these projects and how they are now taken forward. Their benefits will be felt by students and their local communities for years to come.

However, the LSC has now completed its assessment of other colleges seeking approval in principle or detail. I am informed that the council has already given 79 colleges the first stage of approval in principle. Government funding of nearly £2.7 billion would be needed for them to proceed. A further 65 colleges have submitted bids to the national LSC for approval in principle with an assumed funding contribution from Government of a further £3 billion.

As a consequence, there are many more schemes currently in preparation than can be funded in this spending round. For that reason, I agreed with the council that they would appoint an independent reviewer—Sir Andrew Foster—to find out how this situation arose and what lessons must be learnt for the future. It is clear that even at current record levels of funding not all schemes can be implemented on the timescales originally envisaged. I have therefore asked the council to consult with the Association of Colleges and the FE sector to advise me on ways of prioritising schemes in the future programme.

I have asked the council to keep interested Members informed on the progress and status of schemes in their area.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Application for Advance from Contingencies Fund (2008-09)

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): Subject to parliamentary approval, the Northern Ireland Office (NIO) will be taking a 2008-09 Spring Supplementary Estimate. This will increase the NIO's Net Cash Requirement by £1,387,681,000 from £11,546,811,000 to £12,934,492,000. £1,285,000,000 of the increase relates to Request for Resources 2 in respect of the Northern Ireland Consolidated Fund. Given the estimated date of parliamentary approval for 2008-09 Spring Supplementary Estimates, the Northern Ireland Block requires an advance from the contingencies fund to meet urgent cash requirements in advance of Parliament's approval for public expenditure commitments that cannot be deferred.

Parliamentary approval for additional resources of £340,309,000 will be sought in a Supplementary Estimate for the Northern Ireland Office. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £340,309,000 will be met by repayable cash advances from the contingencies fund.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Women and the Global Economic Downturn

The Minister for Women and Equality (Ms Harriet Harman): Sunday 8 March marks International Women's Day. This year the theme chosen for this event is Women and the Global Economic Downturn. To mark it, the Government are publishing today:

a booklet specially produced for women - "Real help now for women" - which sets out the wide range of practical support available to women including childcare, help with family finances, developing skills and finding a job.

a short fact-sheet summarising the key findings of a report on quantitative and qualitative opinion polling work which my Department carried out last month, on women's attitude to the economic downturn. The results show clearly that women have more, and wider-ranging concerns than men about nearly every issue raised.

I am placing copies of both these publications in the Vote Office. I have also placed copies of them together with the main opinion polling report in the Libraries of the House. Copies will also be available on the Government Equalities Office website www.equalities.gov.uk. They are intended to inform a number of events this week to mark International Women's Day, during which we will discuss the concerns women have about the effect of the downturn on them and their families and the action we are taking to provide real help now as well as real hope for the future. In particular:

later today, we will be meeting with leading business women and third sector organisations.

tomorrow, there will be a full day's debate in this House on the theme of supporting women and families through the downturn and building a strong and fair economy for the future; a similar debate will also be held in the House of Lords on Thursday 12 March.

We are discussing with our international partners how we can best work together this week and next in New York as part of Commission on the Status of Women. In Europe the UK is co-chairing a Working Group of the European Commission Advisory Committee on Equal Opportunities for Women and Men, and will draft an "Opinion on Gender Perspectives on the Response to the Economic and Financial Crisis."

These events and debates take place in the context of the national and international efforts to address the global financial crisis. The road to the London summit points to the importance of "ensuring that the UK workforce has the skills it will need to take advantage of the opportunities of an increasingly globalised world, through the education system and lifelong learning including support for part-time and flexible work for men and women."

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Spring Supplementary Estimates

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's DEL will be reduced by £1,905,574,000 from £3,367,913,000 to £1,462,339,000 and the Administration budget will be reduced by £55,714,000 from £332,531,000 to £276,817,000.

Within the DEL change, the impact on Resources and Capital is as set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non-Voted	Voted	Non-Voted	Total
Resource (£000)	936,100	-1,686,869	438,114	1,008,411	1,446,525
of which
*Administration budget	-55,714	-	276,817	-	276,817
*Near cash in Resource DEL	885,423	-1,694,221	239,793	998,926	1,238,719
Capital (£000)	6,562	-1,201,767	-757,437	773,251	15,814
Less Depreciation (£000)	2,468	3,872	-46,336	-20,812	-67,148
Total (£000)	945,106	-2,884,364	-365,659	1,760,850	1,395,191

The total of the 'Administration Budget' and 'Near-Cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping.*
Capital DEL includes items treated as Resource in Estimates and Accounts, but which are treated as Capital DEL in Budgets.*
Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes Capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.*

The change in the resource element of the DEL arises from:

R/RI

(i) a Machinery of Government transfer to the Department of Energy and Climate Change of a net negative £992,323,000 voted near cash and £1,711,504,000 of non-voted near cash in respect of clean, safe and competitively priced energy and energy liabilities;

(ii) virement of £7,000,000 Insolvency Service under-spend to the non-voted Capital Departmental Unallocated Provision to reduce the negative balance shown in the Winter Supplementary Estimate;

(ix) virement of £1,000,000 from the Insolvency Service, utilised to reduce the negative capital Departmental Unallocated Provision shown in the Winter Supplementary Estimate.

We regret that in error this written ministerial statement was not laid in the House on 12 February when the supplementary estimates were laid before Parliament (HC221).

TREASURY

Alignment Project

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Yvette Cooper): The Government announced in its July 2007 Green Paper "The Governance of Britain" (Cm 7170) that it would simplify its financial reporting to Parliament, ensuring that it reports in a more consistent fashion at all three stages in the process—on plans, estimates and expenditure outcomes.

The Treasury submitted an initial memorandum to the relevant parliamentary Committees in November 2008, outlining the Government's emerging thinking on how this commitment might best be delivered. I have sent a further memorandum to the Committees this week setting out the Government's formal proposals for achieving better alignment between budgets, estimates and accounts. The proposals take account of the views expressed by the Committees in response to the November memorandum, as well as the results of a consultation exercise with key stakeholders external to Government, carried out during autumn 2008.

The memorandum notes that the Government propose to begin implementation of the new, better aligned framework from April 2010. To achieve this deadline, the Government would welcome Parliament's agreement to its proposals by July 2009.

The memorandum is being published as a Command paper and presented to the House, and copies have today been placed in the House of Commons Vote Office, to enable all Members to assess the Government's proposals.

Monetary Policy Committee

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): In my statement to the House of Commons on bank lending of 19 January, I announced the setting up of the asset purchase facility. I noted that this facility could be used by the Monetary Policy Committee as an additional way for meeting the inflation target, and that I would inform Parliament if the facility were to be used for monetary policy purposes.

Following the meeting of the Monetary Policy Committee on 4 and 5 February 2009, the Governor of the Bank of England wrote to me on 17 February, requesting that the Monetary Policy Committee be authorised to use the facility to purchase eligible assets financed by central bank money. The Governor's letter set out that the Monetary Policy Committee had concluded that it might be necessary to use asset purchases at future meetings in order to meet the 2 per cent. target for CPI inflation.

I replied to the Governor on 3 March, authorising the Monetary Policy Committee to use the asset purchase facility for monetary policy purposes. I also extended the range of assets eligible for purchase by the Bank of England asset purchase facility fund to include UK Government debt purchased on the secondary market as well as the full range of private sector assets previously specified in my letter to the Governor of 29 January 2009. And I also authorised an increase in the scale of purchases under the facility to up to £150 billion, but that, in line with current arrangements and in recognition of the importance of supporting the flow of corporate credit, up to £50 billion of that should be used to purchase private sector assets. These are maximum limits within which the Monetary Policy Committee will determine the scale of its purchases each month; the proportion of Government and private sector assets purchased will be kept under review.

These changes do not affect the objectives of the Government's monetary policy framework. The remit of the Monetary Policy Committee continues to be maintaining price stability, and subject to that, to support the Government's economic policy, including its objectives for growth and employment. The symmetrical inflation target is 2 per cent. on the CPI measure, as specified in my letter to the Governor of the Bank of England of 11 March 2008.

The Government's debt management objective remains to minimise, over the long term, the costs of meeting the Government's financing needs, taking into account risk, while ensuring that debt management policy is consistent with the aims of monetary policy.

A copy of my letter to the Governor has been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Planning Applications (Killian Pretty Review)

The Minister for Housing (Margaret Beckett): Today I have published the Government's formal response to the Killian Pretty review. Our response sets out our proposals to take forward an ambitious programme of measures to create a more proportionate and responsive planning application process. This will help businesses, developers, councils and the wider community, particularly in the current challenging economic environment.

The review was commissioned jointly by the Secretaries of State for Communities and Local Government and Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to consider how the planning application process could be improved for the benefit of all involved. The final report, with detailed recommendations, was published in November 2008.

We welcome the Killian Pretty report as a strong foundation for the next stage in reforming the planning system. In response to its recommendations, we propose actions to improve the planning application process from start to finish, grouped into five main themes:

- reducing the number of small scale developments that require full planning permission;
- making the planning application process more efficient and effective for all involved;
- improving the quality of information available to users of the planning application system;
- improving local authority capacity and performance in the process; and
- streamlining the national planning policy framework.

We propose a phased approach to reform, with immediate priority given to consulting on detailed proposals to extend permitted development rights for businesses and public services and to streamline information requirements for applicants.

Clearly, successful development and implementation of further improvements to the planning application process requires the active involvement of key stakeholders, including local government, the profession and private sector. So a key part of the implementation programme is to work closely with stakeholders, in a range of ways, including the formation of a stakeholder sounding board, in addition to full public consultation on draft proposals, where appropriate.

A copy of the Government's response is available in the Libraries of both Houses and on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/killianprettyresponse

HEALTH

NHS Charges

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): Regulations have today been laid before Parliament to increase national health service charges in England from 1 April 2009. There will be an increase in the prescription charge of 10 pence from £7.10 to £7.20 for each quantity of a drug or appliance dispensed.

The cost of a prescription prepayment certificate (PPC) will rise to £28.25 for a three-month certificate and to £104.00 for an annual certificate. PPCs offer savings for those needing four or more items in three months or more than 14 in one year.

Prescription charges are currently expected to raise some £435 million for the NHS in 2009-10. This figure excludes prescription charges collected by dispensing doctors, which are not collected centrally, but remain with primary care trusts.

Charges for elastic stockings and tights, wigs and fabric supports supplied through hospitals will be increased similarly.

Regulations have also been laid to increase certain NHS dental charges, and increase the value of NHS optical vouchers, from 1 April 2009.

The dental charge payable for a band one course of treatment will increase by 30 pence from £16.20 to £16.50. The dental charge for a band 2 course of treatment will increase by £1 from £44.60 to £45.60. The charge for a band 3 course of treatment will remain at £198.

Dental charges are expected to raise between £6 to £700 million for the NHS in 2009-10. The exact amount will be dependent upon the level and type of primary dental care services commissioned by primary care trusts and the proportion of charge paying patients who attend dentists and the levels of treatment they require.

This annual adjustment to dental charge rates is intended to sustain the expected contribution to the overall cost of dental services from patient charge income.

The range of NHS optical vouchers available to children, people on low incomes and individuals with complex sight problems are also being increased in value. In order to continue to provide help with the cost of spectacles or contact lenses, optical voucher values will rise by an overall 2 per cent.

NHS charges and optical voucher values in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are a matter for the devolved Administrations.

Details of the revised charges for prescription items, appliances, dental charges and optical voucher values are as follows:

Increases in Prescription Charges from April 2009

Item	Current Charges	New charges
Prescription per item	£7.10	£7.20
12-month PPC	£102.50	£104.00
3-month PPC	£27.85	£28.25
Surgical brassiere	£24.00	£24.35
Abdominal or spinal support	£36.30	£36.80
Stock modacrylic wig	£59.20	£60.00

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council was held in Brussels on 26 and 27 February 2009. My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary, my noble Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Ministry of Justice, Lord Bach, and the Scottish Solicitor-General, Frank Mulholland QC, attended on behalf of the United Kingdom. The following issues were discussed at the Council:

During the Mixed Committee with Norway, Iceland, Switzerland and Liechtenstein, Ministers discussed progress in implementing the second generation of the Schengen Information System (SIS II) in the light of the analysis which had identified problems in the central system. Both the Commission and the presidency recognised the importance of the SIS II programme and the presidency reiterated that the repair phase would consist of two aspects, to be developed in parallel: an analysis and repair plan to resolve known bugs in the current SIS II programme and a contingency plan. The presidency also stressed the need for agreement on a set of common criteria against which both of these aspects could be assessed in the first half of 2009. The Council subsequently adopted Council conclusions confirming the action required in relation to the central SIS II project and a set of criteria against which the SIS II based scenario and an alternative scenario, based on a SIS I platform, would be assessed. They confirmed that a decision regarding the future of the project would be taken by June 2009 at the latest.

During the Interior Ministers' meeting the Commission outlined the plans for implementation of the Visa Information System (VIS), notifying member states that the final phase had been pushed back to December 2009. The UK does not participate in the VIS.

The Council was presented with the draft report on the outcome of the Swiss air borders evaluation which will be considered by experts in March. Switzerland thanked the Commission and presidency for the help they had given in the months before the evaluation and indicated that it was happy with the conclusions of the draft report, taking note of its recommendations and undertaking to report regularly on progress. The presidency concluded by looking forward to 29 March when the Swiss were expected to join the Schengen area in full.

The Commission presented its proposal for a European Asylum Support Office (EASO) to the Council. The Commission explained that the EASO's aims would be to enhance practical cooperation; help member states under particular pressures; and ensure a common European asylum regime. It would not make case decisions and would be part-financed through changes to the European Refugee Fund. The Commission hoped that the proposal would receive political agreement by the summer and be implemented in 2010. The proposal was broadly welcomed by a number of member states. The UK thanked the Commission for its proposal, noting that it went to the heart of what European co-operation was about: making a difference on the ground. It emphasised its support for practical co-operation on asylum in order to provide protection for those who needed it. The UK stated that systems should be streamlined, to deliver fair decisions quickly and tackle abuse. The UK also argued for more work with countries outside the EU in order to stop asylum being the weak point in immigration systems and to stop refugees having to travel to the EU to find safety.

The presidency presented the Commission's report on implementation of the free movement directive. The Commission said it hoped to adopt guidelines on application of the directive by the summer. They confirmed that the guidelines would cover abuses of free movement rights, including marriages of convenience and persistent criminality; moving to another member state carried responsibilities as well as rights. A number of member states highlighted their concerns about abuses of free movement. The UK welcomed the Commission's work on guidelines and asked that they should set out consequences when these responsibilities are not met.

The Council briefly discussed the issue of combating illegal immigration in the Mediterranean. The discussion highlighted the role of Frontex (the European Border Agency), readmission agreements and the need for further development of the EU's Global Approach to Migration.

The Council also discussed progress in resettling Iraqi refugees following the Council conclusions adopted in November 2008 which set an EU target of 10,000. The Commission welcomed the fact that member states had notified their intention to resettle 5,100 refugees so far, improving the situation of refugees in Syria and Jordan. The Commission stated that additional funds (€20 million) would be made available to support member states' efforts.

During the working lunch Interior Ministers discussed the appointment of the Europol director, but no agreement was reached. The presidency said that it wanted to reach agreement at the next JHA Council meeting in April. The UK said that the recommendation of the management board, endorsing the UK candidate, should be followed.

The closure of the US detention facility at Guantanamo Bay was also discussed during lunch. Ministers agreed that there was a need to obtain more information and study all aspects of the issue. Following the previous discussion in the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) there was agreement that further discussion with the United States would be a good idea.

Under any other business, SWIFT was discussed, concerning the controls and necessary safeguards on data protection and use under the Terrorist Financing Tracking programme. Judge Jean-Louis Bruguière commented that the US Administration had set up a particularly robust programme to ensure the protection of personal data for counter terrorism purposes, though there was still room for improvement. The Commission would be making available a report on state of play on SWIFT. On the EU's anti-drug policy, the presidency and Commission stressed the need for more and better supply side indicators. A report would need to go to Council in June on this subject.

Ministers reached a broad consensus on presidency conclusions to steer negotiations on the proposed framework decision on prevention and settlement of conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal proceedings, in particular focusing the instrument on preventing situations where the same person is subject to parallel proceedings in different member states, and establishing flexible mechanisms for communication. The UK supported these conclusions. The presidency hopes to be able to reach political agreement on this proposal at the June JHA Council.

A negotiating mandate was also agreed authorising the presidency to open discussions with Japan for an EU agreement on mutual legal assistance. The Commission noted that in future it would be necessary to decide how to prioritise target countries for these agreements.

The presidency updated member states on progress in e-justice and asked the Commission about the financing of e-justice projects, particularly video conferencing. The Commission reminded member states that there was already money available to fund e-justice projects and undertook to present all the available funding opportunities at the next JHA Council.

Under any other business the presidency provided a state of play report on negotiations on an amending directive on ship-source pollution and on the introduction of penalties for infringements. It noted that the Transport and Tourism Committee of the European Parliament had proposed 19 amendments to the proposal. The presidency hoped that it would be possible to reach a first reading deal in April.

Sweden presented a paper on transparency in the EU, advocating the need to demonstrate a greater commitment to transparency, stronger protection of citizens' individual rights and better understanding of the citizens' expectations. Germany updated member states on the appointment of a new director to the tribunal for the International Law of the Sea, which dealt with civil disputes. The Romanian delegation drew attention to the conference of Prosecutors General that they will be hosting in Bucharest from 23 to 25 March 2009.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

EU Education Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (Mr. Siôn Simon): I represented the UK at the Education Council, on behalf of DIUS and DCSF.

Ministers adopted key messages to send to the spring European Council to be held on 20 March. These emphasise the importance of maintaining investment in training, the 'knowledge triangle' of research, education and innovation, the establishment of partnerships between education institutes and employers, and the upgrading and development of skills in developing a knowledge-based low-carbon economy. We welcome these messages. I highlighted domestic best practice in tackling the economic crisis, including support for small businesses and increased apprenticeship places.

Over lunch and in the meeting itself, Ministers held an exchange of views on the establishment of an updated strategic framework for European co-operation in education and training post-2010. This will build on the work programme in education already in place. Ministers were enthusiastic about working together to share best practice and welcomed the four strategic objectives for the new period identified by the Commission. These focus on:

- Making lifelong learning and learner mobility a reality;
- Improving the quality of education provision and outcomes;
- Promoting equity and active citizenship;
- Enhancing innovation and creativity, including entrepreneurship, at all levels of education and training.

However, there were reservations about the proposal to develop ten education benchmarks to measure progress against the strategic objectives. These would build on existing benchmarks for the period up to 2010 that measure low achievers in reading, early school leavers, completion of secondary education, numbers of maths, science and technology graduates, and participation in lifelong learning.

Most member states were content with the extension of existing benchmarks but were reluctant to establish many new ones. There was some support for a benchmark on pre-school learning and some opposition to 'input based' benchmarks on language learning and higher education investment. It was also generally felt that further work was needed to develop helpful and measurable benchmarks on mobility, employability, and innovation and creativity. Netherlands was the most negative member state on benchmarking in general. I and some other member state Ministers feel we can accept a few of the new topics proposed if there is further refinement of the measurement of the benchmarks. Further work will be required before agreement can be reached on this issue, expected at the next Education Council in May.

Under Any Other Business, the Commission noted that they had published the communication 'New Skills for New Jobs' in December 2008.

Sir Fred Goodwin

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): The reply I gave the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Mr. Llywd), on 4 March 2009, Official Report, Vol. 488, column 847 was incorrect.

It was in fact the case that Sir Fred Goodwin received his knighthood for services to banking.

PRIME MINISTER

Intelligence and Security Committee (Annual Report 2007-08)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I have today laid before the House the Intelligence and Security Committee's Annual Report 2007-08 (Cm 7542). This follows consultation with the Committee over matters that could not be published without prejudicing the work of the intelligence and security agencies.

I have also laid before the House today the Government's response to this report (Cm 7543). Copies of the report and the response have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

I am grateful to the Intelligence and Security Committee for its valuable work.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council will be held on 9 March 2009 in Brussels. I will represent the UK, except for the agenda item on the Pregnant Workers Directive where the UK will be represented by my hon. Friend, Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs. There are no health or consumer affairs issues.

The first and main item of the agenda is the preparation for the spring European Council which will be held on the 19 and 20 March 2009. A key messages paper will be adopted following a public debate on the economic crisis and the European economic recovery plan. The key messages paper identifies the main messages emerging from the various other reports for adoption at the March Council. The presidency will also give information on preparation for the Tripartite Social Summit. The Tripartite Social Summit meets a minimum of once a year, including before each spring European Council. It is attended by the current presidency, the two future presidencies (Sweden and Spain), the Commission and the social partners.

The next item will be the presidency's progress report on the negotiations to amend the European Globalisation Adjustment Fund (EGF). Member states can apply to the EGF for matched funding of measures to help back into work any people made unemployed through large scale redundancies. The Government believe that the EGF plays an important role and the UK is involved in negotiations to ensure that recently proposed revisions mean that it plays that role as effectively and efficiently as possible.

The Council will also seek adoption of Council conclusions based on the recent Commission Communication "New Skills for New Jobs". The conclusions commit member states and the Commission to develop policies and services to address skills needs and labour markets mismatches. There will also be adoption of Council conclusions on Professional and Geographical Mobility and the Free Movement of Workers. The conclusions rightly stress the importance of joined-up approaches, to support professional and geographic mobility, in response to the economic downturn. The Government welcome both sets of conclusions.

There will be a policy debate on the draft proposal to amend an existing directive which sets out the minimum protections for pregnant workers, and new or breastfeeding mothers. The UK system of maternity leave and pay is in many ways more generous than the proposed minimum. The Government support the aims of the proposal but need to ensure that any proposed changes would be compatible with our own existing provisions.

Under any other business, the Commission will present its recent communication contributing to the spring European Council. In addition, the chairs of the Employment Committee and the Social Protection Committee will give an oral presentation to provide information on their 2009 Work Programmes. There will also be information on all conferences held under the Czech presidency to date.

Written Ministerial Statement

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Authority Rents

The Minister for Housing (Margaret Beckett): Each autumn, after consultation, the Government publish formal guideline rents so that local authorities know where they stand on Government subsidy on the Housing Revenue Account (HRA) system.

Authorities are then free to make their own decisions on the actual rent level to set in their particular circumstances. Many authorities set actual rents below the guideline figure.

Last year, the Government were pressed to give authorities greater financial certainty and responded by giving guidance for two years rather than one—which authorities appeared to welcome. However, since recent major changes in the economic situation, the Government are under substantial pressure from local authorities which would prefer us to reconsider the two-year deal. I have already indicated that we will re-examine the guideline rents for the second year, 2010-11.

More recently, we have also had increased pressure to re-examine the guideline rents already issued for this coming year. Under normal circumstances, this is not something that I would be prepared to contemplate.

But, in, and only in the context of the present unprecedented global downturn, it is right that the Government offer real help to council tenants. I am therefore quite exceptionally prepared to offer authorities the opportunity to bid for additional subsidy, if, and only if they are preparing to revisit the level of rents set and reduce them by that amount.

We are therefore halving the national average guideline increase from 6.2 per cent. to 3.1 per cent. This will require the Department to issue new 2009-10 guideline rents for all local authorities. I am prepared to change the subsidy position of those authorities that reduce their actual average increase in rents in 2009-10 in line with the new national average.

We will be inviting authorities to let us know whether they will take this up by around the end of April. They will be able to introduce the new rent increases as soon as is practicable for them.

OBSERVATIONS

TRANSPORT

Traffic Management (Essex)

The Petition of Samantha Mitchell and local residents,

Declares that residents are deeply concerned about the safety of the road design at the junction of Climmen Road and Central Wall Road and have noted many accidents at this roundabout junction including injury accidents involving children, and therefore call on the Borough and County councillors to listen to residents and improve the road design in consultation with residents.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to review its guidance to local councils on the design of road junctions where mini roundabouts are used and to ask the local authority to investigate this particular junction and to implement a new and safer scheme after full and detailed consultation with residents.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Bob Spink, Official Report, 2 February 2009; Vol. 487, c. 671.]

[P000312]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport:

Essex County Council is the strategic highway authority for all local roads within the County of Essex, the provision of traffic management on these roads is for them to consider. The Government have responsibility for the strategic highway network which is managed through the Highways Agency.

As part of its role however central government does provide a range of guidance to local authority's including Traffic Advisory Leaflets, Local Transport Notes and Good Practise Guides. These are regularly updated based on ongoing monitoring of the performance of engineering schemes that are put in place and can be viewed on the Departments website www.dft.gov.uk.

With regard to the junction of Climmen Road and Central Wall Road it is understood that a recent Casualty Reduction Site Investigation has taken place by Essex County Council and improvements are planned for the next financial year.

A study of Personal Injury Collision (PIC's) data for the period from 01/06/2003 to 31/05/2008 at this location shows a pattern of nose to tail and failure to give way accidents on all arms of the mini roundabout with particular problems on the north east arm. During a visit to the site it was observed that it is apparent that there is a lack of deflection on any of the approaches and there is not a domed central island which therefore permits drivers to negotiate the junction at unsuitably high speeds. In addition there are a number of unapproved signs, badly worn road markings and concern with regard to lighting given the number of PIC's occurring in darkness.

It has therefore been recommended that the following measures are undertaken:

(i) Existing junction to be redesigned to incorporate suitable deflection on all approaches and include a relocated domed central island. Traffic islands should also be provided on the approaches to narrow the carriageway and encourage slower speeds throughout the junction.

(ii) High friction surfacing to be provided on all approaches to the junction and all road markings should be refreshed throughout the vicinity of the junction as required.

(iii) All non approved warning signs to be removed and all existing regulatory and warning signs to be upgraded to largest possible yellow backed versions and relocated to suitable distances where necessary. A review of all other local directional and information signs to be undertaken and signs to be removed or relocated where possible to prevent sign clutter in the vicinity of the junction.

(iv) A review of the lighting levels at the junction to be undertaken and improvements made if they do not meet the required standards.

(v) Any vegetation that currently obscures or has potential to obscure sign faces or affect visibility splays to be cut back or removed as necessary.

HEALTH

Stillbirths

The Petition of Emma and Alexander Pheby (parents of Xanthe Pheby, stillborn on 4th April 2007),

Declares that every one in two hundred pregnancies in the United Kingdom end in stillbirth (around 3600 children a year) and yet in over half of these cases a cause for the baby's death is not established. There is currently very little funding for research into unexplained stillbirth;

Notes that in the 1980s important research was carried out into sudden infant death syndrome (otherwise known as SIDS or cot death) which in turn led in 1991 to a public health campaign and the numbers of cot deaths were dramatically cut;

Further declares that it is time for the United Kingdom Government to fund additional epidemiological studies and new scientific research to identify risk factors, causes and prevention strategies for unexplained stillbirths so that the country's high rates can be reduced.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government of the United Kingdom to put more resources into research in this area.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Charles Clarke, Official Report, 3 February 2009; Vol. 487, c. 9P.]

[P000316]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

The Government recognise that to lose a baby is a devastating experience and are committed to improving outcomes for both mother and baby.

We believe that it is important that bereaved parents receive the support they need. The Department has asked all NHS maternity care providers to ensure that all health services have comprehensive, culturally sensitive, services and facilities for the support of families who have experienced a neonatal death or stillbirth.

The Department has placed safety, quality and improving standards of care at the heart of its vision, this recognises that for the best health outcomes, it is important that women access maternity care at an early stage. To that end, maternity services are working to increase the number of women who have had their personal needs assessed, including whether their pregnancy is at high risk of complications, by the 12th week of pregnancy. This will enable an individualised care plan to be developed and has the potential to help reduce the number of stillbirths.

The Government's investment in health research in England is made principally through the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) and the Medical Research Council (MRC). NIHR and MRC funding arrangements generally preclude ring-fencing. Research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. Applications are subject to peer review and judged in open competition, with awards being made on the basis of the scientific quality of the proposals made.

The Department of Health's Policy Research Programme and the NIHR spent £2.2 million in 2007-08 on research related to stillbirth.

The Policy Research Programme supports the National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit. The aim of the unit is to conduct research with a view to providing information that can improve the health and welfare of babies, mothers and their families and promote the effective use of resources in the perinatal health services. Much of the Unit's work on the compromised foetus and baby focuses on or is linked to preterm birth.

The reasons for a stillbirth are complex. The Confidential Enquiry into Stillbirths and Deaths in Infancy (CESDI) was established in 1992 specifically to improve understanding of how the risks of death in late fetal life and infancy might be reduced.

Progress in reducing stillbirth has not been as significant as progress with reducing neonatal mortality. We are currently funding a successor to CESDI - the confidential inquiry line into maternal and child death (CEMACH). The findings from CEMACH's most recent report into perinatal mortality, including stillbirth, suggest that demographic factors known to be associated with stillbirths such as obesity, ethnicity, deprivation and maternal age may be contributing to this lack of progress.

The MRC spent £1.2 million in 2007-08 on research related to stillbirth. The MRC also funds several large cohort studies which include a component of research into stillbirth and supports a large portfolio of underpinning reproductive medicine and paediatric research.

OBSERVATIONS

DEFENCE

Service Accommodation (Glamorgan)

The Petition of the residents and former residents of ex-Ministry of Defence service family accommodation on the West Vale estate, and others,

Declares that Brey Services has billed the residents and former residents of ex-MOD service family accommodation on the West Vale estate for sewage/wastewater charges dating from 1 December 2003 to the present day; notes that these properties had not been billed for the provision of sewage/wastewater services since the MOD's contract with Brey Services began in December 2003; and further declares that this delay has caused great distress to many families who are struggling to find the money to pay the said bills.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of the State for Defence firstly to ensure that these bills are waived on the grounds that an unreasonable amount of time has passed, and secondly to ensure that the party responsible for the delay in issuing the bills settles the sewage accounts for the residents and former residents of the West Vale estate from 1 December 2003 until 2 October 2008.

[P000291]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Defence:

At the outset let me say that I understand and sympathise with those who have signed the petition. I can imagine that receiving a bill for utilities provided in past years must have come as a considerable surprise. Nevertheless, this Department does have to seek payment.

That said, I can assure you that we will ensure that any repayment process is affordable to the residents, and does not put them under undue pressure. To this end, BREY Services Ltd already has long-term payment plans in place with a significant number of residents, some making repayment of as little as £10 per month over a six-year period. I would encourage all residents to get in touch with BREY Services Ltd, who have been instructed to act sympathetically to put in place payment plans. The following paragraphs set our position on the billing arrangements.

As part of the Aquatrine Public Private Partnership project, MOD transferred responsibility for the supply of water and wastewater services to the majority of its sites and Service Family Accommodation (SFA) estates in Great Britain to three private sector service providers. Thus, responsibility for properties at West Vale housing estate at MOD St Athan, which consists of both current and former SFA properties, was transferred to BREY Services Ltd on 1 December 2003. BREY now acts as MOD's billing agent for the recovery of costs from MOD contracted customers, including residents of the West Vale estate.

A water supply failure on the West Vale estate in 2003 led to the water system being separated from that of the MOD base. It was re-provided by Dwr Cymru. This created a direct relationship between Dwr Cymru and the residents (who were responsible for payment). However, MOD continued to be billed for the water supply to civilian properties, as was confirmed by Dwr Cymru in July last year.

Those who bought their homes when the properties were initially sold were advised by the managing agent at the time of the direct billing arrangement with MOD for water services and of a separate private sewer system, discharging to an off-site public sewer maintained by Dwr Cymru. Those who have bought their homes more recently should have been told who provided the water and wastewater services by their agents (as part of the usual searches). For those reasons, it is clear that responsibility for payment in these cases does and should fall to individual householders.

Thus it is, and has been for some years now, clearly the responsibility of the homeowners at West Vale to meet the costs of their water supply. It is equally clear that these costs should not fall to the taxpayer generally. For that reason MOD is seeking to recover sums owed for previous years. The Water Resale Order—which formed part of the Water Industry Act 1991—provides the authority to bill retrospectively up to a limit of six years.

However, as I said at the beginning of this letter we are very conscious of the burden this may place on some residents. That is why, while fulfilling our duty to protect the taxpayer generally, we are ensuring that the arrangements put in place to collect the money owed are as reasonable as possible.

Written Answers to Questions

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Redundant Churches

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 983W, on redundant churches, what assessment the Church Commissioners have made of the reasons for churches being closed for regular public worship. [256411]

Sir Stuart Bell: Decisions to propose closure for regular public worship are taken within each diocese and the Commissioners have made no specific assessment of the reasons behind such decisions. Where objections are received, the Commissioners consider whether there is a pastoral need for the church. On average, between 25 and 30 churches are closed each year; this is in the context of over 16,000 churches in use, including a number of new places of worship opening each year.

Religious Buildings: Water Charges

Ben Chapman: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners whether the Church Commissioners plan to take steps to implement the resolution of the General Synod on church water rates; and if he will make a statement. [257043]

Sir Stuart Bell: The General Synod motion urged the Government to press Ofwat to ensure that water companies did not treat places of worship as if they were businesses and, as my hon. Friend will note from my remarks on the Floor of the House on 5 February 2009, Official Report, columns 971-72, I fully support the position taken by General Synod.

I might add by way of a statement that the Archbishops Council will take the lead in the Church's ongoing discussions with Government on this matter and it will do so not only with General Synod's support but also the support of the Church Commissioners, the wider Church, other charitable bodies, a good many Members of Parliament and, it seems, an increasing proportion of the general public.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Palace of Westminster: Pedestrian Access

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission with reference to the answer of 6 November 2006, Official Report, column 671W, on pedestrian access, what progress has been made in ensuring that pedestrian access to the Palace of Westminster is not impeded by inadequate rainwater drainage on St. Margaret's Street; when the House of Commons Commission last discussed this issue with Westminster City Council; what response was received; on how many occasions since December 2008 pedestrian access to the Palace of Westminster has been impeded by rainwater; and if he will make a statement. [256726]

Nick Harvey: A record is not kept of the number of times pedestrian access to the Palace of Westminster has been impeded by rainwater. The drainage gully on St. Margaret Street adjacent to St. Stephen's Entrance is blocked regularly with rubbish and detritus and Westminster city council arrange for it to be cleared when flooding is causing a nuisance. Further representations will be made to the council to increase the frequency of cleaning in this location and to explore whether the gully can be covered to reduce the likelihood of future blockage. There have been no discussions on this subject between the House of Commons Commission and Westminster city council.

Parliament: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many repairs have been required to the fabric and installations of each building on the Parliamentary Estate in each year since 1990; and what the estimated total cost was for each building. [248141]

Nick Harvey: A list of the repairs to the fabric and installations of each building on the parliamentary estate has been placed in the Library. Information on the number of repairs is available back to 2000, and on the cost of repairs back to 2005-06.

Working Conditions: Temperature

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the (a) highest and (b) lowest temperature measured in the Churchill Room and nearby areas during working hours were between November 2008 and January 2009; what steps are taken in exceptionally cold weather to provide additional heating in the House, with particular reference to the Churchill Room; and what recent representations have been made by (i) House staff and (ii) customers about the temperature in the Churchill Room. [257381]

Nick Harvey: The highest temperature recorded in the Churchill Room—on numerous occasions—between November 2008 and January 2009 was 21 degrees centigrade. The lowest temperature during the same period was 17 degrees centigrade on 12 January 2009. The prevailing weather conditions are monitored by House engineers and the heating system adjusted accordingly to maintain temperatures at acceptable levels. Since November 2008, two requests have been recorded on the estates helpdesk about cool temperatures in the Churchill Room, on 20 November 2008 and 4 February 2009. Work has taken place during the February constituency week to replace the heating and ventilation controls for the Churchill Room and further work will take place in the Easter recess.

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what temperature range is deemed acceptable by the House authorities for staff to work in. [257382]

Nick Harvey: The statutory minimum temperature for office environments is 16°C. There is no statutory upper limit. In line with Chartered Institute of Building Services Engineers (CIBSE) guidance the House aims to maintain temperatures of 21°C in office areas.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government have taken to assist agricultural producers affected by the outbreaks of foot and mouth disease. [256935]

Jane Kennedy: The Animal Health Act 1981 and Human Rights legislation require that compensation is paid for animals compulsorily killed to prevent the spread of disease. For foot and mouth disease (FMD), compensation is paid for all animals compulsorily slaughtered at the full market value before the animal became infected. Compensation is also paid for other items, such as farm equipment and feed etc. which are seized as they are considered to be contaminated. This includes such things as milk. The amount of compensation payable for animals for FMD is determined by an approved valuer at the time of slaughter.

Animal Welfare

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) incidents of animal cruelty have been reported and (b) people have been charged with offences of animal cruelty in (i) England, (ii) the North East, (iii) the Tees Valley and (iv) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last 10 years. [254890]

Jane Kennedy: The number of people proceeded against at magistrates courts for animal cruelty in (a) England, (b) the north-east, and (c) Cleveland police force area for the years 1998 to 2007 (latest available) can be viewed in the table.

Charging data are not held by Ministry of Justice, therefore data on cases proceeded against have been provided in lieu.

Crimes relating to cruelty to animals are summary offences and thus reported cases of animal cruelty are not included in the police recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office.

Court data are not collected centrally at constituency level; thus Cleveland police force area data have been provided in lieu of (c) Tees Valley, and (d) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts for animal cruelty in Cleveland police force area, north-east region, and England for the years 1998 to 2007[1,2,3,4,5]

									Proceeded against

England	1,168	1,081	1,110	1,026	1,022	1,005	1,013	1,104	1,048	1,079

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Staffordshire police force were able to submit sample data only for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

[5] Crimes relating to cruelty to animals are summary offences and are therefore not included within the police recorded crime series. Police recorded crime covers crimes which are recorded by the police and which are notified to the Home Office. All indictable or triable-either-way offences are included together with certain closely associated summary offences.

Birds

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 320W, on birds, about what elements of the report there were uncertainties; what the reasons are for the time taken to resolve such uncertainties; and whether the contract made provision for financial penalties for late or sub-standard delivery. [253683]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Queries about the nature, reliability and robustness of the information reported, have delayed publication of this report. These queries included the extent to which conclusions in the report were supported by reliable evidence, and whether individuals named in the report had agreed to the inclusion of their names.

The report was reviewed with the authors five times as a consequence of officials raising questions about its content. While the authors of the report acted as promptly as possible, delays did occur due to the difficulties of verification of data with third parties overseas, or as key personnel were not available temporarily.

While the contract did allow for penalties none were imposed because at the time, March/April 2008, the report was believed to be reasonably correct. Most of the concerns about the style and content of the report only came to light subsequently, and the contractor then undertook the necessary additional work.

Charities: Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which charities have been prosecuted under the waste management duty of care provisions of the Environmental Protection Act 1990; and how much revenue has been collected from fines resulting from such prosecutions. [256403]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not hold the information requested. Recorded details on prosecutions do not identify the type of business or organisation.

Departmental Buildings

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether a Display Energy Certificate has been produced for each of his Department's buildings. [252630]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm that Display Energy Certificates (DECs) have been produced for the 39 DEFRA properties meeting the requirements of the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248712]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA and its Executive agencies operate a number of different non-financial reward and recognition schemes for staff (excludes bonus schemes) at grade 6 equivalent and below.

These provide DEFRA and its agencies with the flexibility to recognise and reward their employees, with small/symbolic awards.

Details of the costs associated with each scheme are outlined as follows:

DEFRA Team Awards (including Executive agencies)

The DEFRA Team Awards identify and celebrate success across DEFRA and its agencies.

Each year an annual awards dinner and ceremony is held, to which short-listed teams from across DEFRA are invited.

The winning teams in each category receive a certificate of congratulations and are awarded a trophy, made from recycled materials, that has no commercial value.

The cost of staging the event in each of the last three years are given in the following table.

2006	20,557.92
2008	23,328.20

'Achieving the Best'—Animal Health (AH), DEFRA Executive agency

'Achieving the Best' is the agency's scheme for recognising and rewarding good performance and long service at local and agency-wide level.

The scheme was introduced on 1 April 2007.

There are two recognition and reward schemes that operate under the 'Achieving the Best' scheme:

the Animal Health Instant Award; and the Animal Health Long Service Award.

Animal Health Instant Award

This takes the form of a voucher up to a value of £50 per employee. The minimum voucher award is £10 and the maximum is £50.

The total cost of providing the Instant Awards for 2007-08 was £89,518.

Animal Health Long Service Awards

Two awards (a 25-Year and a 40-Year Long Service award) are presented locally to individuals who have completed the requisite service in the civil service (including any previous service in MAFF, DEFRA, the State Veterinary Service, Animal Health or any other Government Department).

Recipients receive a certificate and are granted two days special paid leave (for the 25-Year award) or five days special paid leave (for the 40-Year award), which are awarded at the agency's bi-annual awards ceremony that celebrates success.

For 2007-08, 16 25-Year awards were made to Animal Health staff, at a cost of £5,758.02; three 40-Year awards were made at a cost of £3,299.57.

The costs shown are inclusive of a proportion of the costs for staging the Long Service Awards part of the event.

Voucher Scheme—Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS), DEFRA Executive agency

The agency operates a voucher scheme, which is designed to recognise one-off achievements throughout the course of the year. These are awarded in £50 lots.

The cost of operating the scheme in each of the last three years are given in the following table.

2006	15
2007	15

Non-Pay Reward Scheme—Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA), DEFRA Executive agency

The scheme is designed to act as a motivational award to an individual or team, which underpins VLA's organisational values, aims and objectives. It encourages and rewards good performance, promotes team building or recognises outstanding contribution.

Responsibility for deciding on the award is delegated to Heads of Departments/Units, who are each allocated a share of the non-pay reward budget, relative to the size of the team.

The cost of operating the scheme in each of the last three years are shown in the following table.

2007-08	12,236
2008-09 (to date)	6,004

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 770W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251326]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA Ministers attended three courses in the period concerned, each of them lasting no longer than one day. The courses were intended to enable Ministers to carry out their duties effectively in line with the ministerial code.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what powers waste collection authorities have to enter premises in relation to suspected breaches of waste regulations; and what powers they have to (a) measure and (b) photograph household waste; [252326]

(2) whether joint waste authorities will be eligible to undertaken directed surveillance under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; [252407]

(3) what powers of entry the joint waste authorities will have. [252410]

Jane Kennedy: Section 92A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA) gives local authorities powers to serve a litter clearing notice on any open land, requiring the occupier, or failing that, the owner, to clear litter from that land. If the notice is not complied with, they can enter the land, clean up and then reclaim their costs.

Section 59 of the EPA allows waste regulation authorities and waste collection authorities to serve a notice on the occupier or owner of land to require the removal of controlled waste unlawfully and knowingly deposited. Where a person fails to meet these requirements, the local authority or the Environment Agency may clear the waste and seek to recover the costs.

Waste collection authorities have no powers to enter domestic premises to gather evidence of breaches of regulations on how waste is presented for collection.

It is intended that joint waste authorities should have the same powers as are currently available to local authorities when they are carrying out those functions which joint waste authorities may take over.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has provided to local authorities on the use of large communal bins for household waste; [252636]

(2) what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has provided to local authorities on the number of household waste bins to be provided to households. [252637]

Jane Kennedy: There has not been a call for guidance on the use of large communal bins for household waste or on the number of household waste bins to be provided to households, either to DEFRA or WRAP.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have undertaken into means of waste (i) collection and (ii) disposal of mercury-containing compact fluorescent lights for domestic use. [252729]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA and its agencies have undertaken no such research.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps his Department is taking to encourage local authorities to undertake separate food waste collections; [252927]

(2) how many local authorities offer a separate food waste collection service. [252928]

Jane Kennedy: Separate collection of food waste has so far been introduced by 36 local authorities in England, including 17 authorities who are working with the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) on trials of the collection of segregated household food waste. These are separate food only schemes and do not include mixed food and garden waste collections.

Separate collection of food waste can help achieve environmental gains more cost-effectively, including through the use of anaerobic digestion to provide energy. Further means of extending separate food waste collections and increasing the proportion of food waste collected which is routed to anaerobic digestion are also under consideration.

EC Law

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what provisions of EU directives within his Department's area of responsibility have not yet been transposed into law; in respect of the provisions of which such directives the UK has been subject to infringement action by the European Commission since January 2005; and what stage has been reached in such action in each case. [255490]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There are 34 Directives within the Department's responsibilities, in relation to which the due date for transposition has not yet been reached, or which have not yet been transposed completely into UK law.

It is the Government's policy to neither confirm nor deny the existence of infringement proceedings or to disclose details of any infringement action by the European Commission except where an overriding public interest in disclosure of such information can be demonstrated on a case-by-case basis.

Electronic Tagging: Sheep

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the effect on the sheep industry's revenue of the introduction of the electronic identification of sheep. [257422]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for East Devon (Mr. Swire) on 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2031W.

Flood Control

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in the development of catchment flood management plans. [256352]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The 68 Catchment Flood Management Plans in England have been completed and signed off by Environment Agency Regional Directors. The Environment Agency is re-consulting on elements of six of the plans that impact on the East Riding of Yorkshire council.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many properties in England and Wales are classified as at risk of flooding. [256355]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency undertakes regular assessments of the number of properties at risk of flooding from rivers and from the sea through its National Flood Risk Assessments. In the most recent assessment (in 2006) DEFRA and the Environment Agency estimated that 2.3 million properties were at risk of flooding in England and Wales.

Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Rural Payments Agency on the processing of applications by growers to be recognised as producer organisations for the purposes of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme. [252581]

Jane Kennedy: No ministerial discussions have taken place with RPA on the processing of applications by growers to be recognised as producer organisations for the purposes of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme. My predecessor was fully briefed concerning developments following recent European Court of Auditors and European Agricultural Guarantee Fund audits of the scheme and remedial actions required to address audit concerns.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many organisations in England were recognised as producer organisations for the purposes of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme in 2004; how many have been de-recognised since 2004; and how many are currently recognised. [252584]

Jane Kennedy: There are currently 54 recognised producer organisations.

In 2004 there were 73 recognised producer organisations in the scheme. 32 of them have been de-recognised since 2004. In addition some have left the scheme voluntarily and/or merged with other producer organisations.

Joint Waste Authorities

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the latest timetable is for the establishment of joint waste authorities. [253878]

Jane Kennedy: Proposals for Joint Waste Authorities may be submitted until 31 July 2009. It is estimated that it will take 12 months to assess a proposal and to lay the relevant legislation. The first Joint Waste Authorities may therefore be established from 31 July 2010.

Livestock: Exports

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) calves and (b) horses were exported from the UK for further fattening and slaughter to each destination country in the latest period for which information is available; and what the average journey times were to each such country. [252865]

Jane Kennedy: The Cattle Tracing System (for Great Britain) and APHIS (for Northern Ireland) show the following numbers of calves (animals under 42 days old) as being exported from the United Kingdom during 2008. Due to the way the data are held, it is not possible to specify whether the animals were intended for breeding, production or slaughter.

Export destination	1 January 2008 to 31 December 2008[1]	Range of travelling times (hours)	Average times (hours)
Belgium	17,548	10.5-17.5	14.38
France	13,469	8.5-18.5	13.24
Republic of Ireland	1,181	19	19.05
Netherlands	21,914	11.5-28	17.40
Spain	1,436	22.5-32.5	29.37

[1] Animals under 42 days old

The range of travelling times and averages are taken from new route journey log applications received in 2008 that have been calculated and approved excluding rest times (mid journey rests and rests at control posts). These are only plans and not the actual times recorded from journeys that have taken place.

No horse or pony export welfare licences were applied for or issued for slaughter or fattening during 2008.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to reply to the letter of 12 December 2008 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on the Amazon rainforest. [256809]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 12 February 2009]: I signed a reply to the hon. Member for West Worcestershire (Sir Michael Spicer) on 10 February.

Public Footpaths

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will bring forward funding to enable British Waterways to undertake (a) necessary maintenance of its grade D and grade E assets and (b) projects to improve the standard of towpaths to create a national towpath network; [256123]

(2) if he will estimate how many (a) employment and (b) training opportunities a programme of maintenance and towpath network improvement undertaken by British Waterways would provide. [256127]

Huw Irranca-Davies: £5 million has been brought forward from 2010-11 and will contribute towards British Waterways' maintenance of its grade D and E assets.

An estimation on the number of employment and training opportunities the creation of a national tow path would bring, depends on the scale of the programme. DEFRA is considering a range of possible proposals to support the economy and environment.

Recycling

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate (a) his Department, (b) the Environment Agency and (c) the Waste and Resources Action Programme have made of the cost to local authorities of storing paper collected from households for recycling in 2008-09. [252396]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the Waste and Resources Action Programme have not made an estimate of the cost to local authorities of storing paper collected from households for recycling. However, the Environment Agency has reported that it has not seen significant increases in requests for additional storage capacity for recyclable materials.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate has been made of the percentage of municipal waste consisting of recyclable material landfilled by local authorities in England in the last 12 months which could have been recycled. [256375]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimate has been made by DEFRA.

Recycling: Calderdale

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of (a) household recycling rates and (b) levels of collection services for materials for recycling in Calderdale; and if he will make a statement. [256813]

Jane Kennedy: [holding answer 12 February 2009]: In 2007-08 Calderdale council's household recycling and composting rate was 24.92 per cent. 96.53 per cent. of households in Calderdale had a kerbside collection of at least one recyclable material.

These data are available at local authority level for the last three years at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/wastats/index.htm.

Rural Areas: Community Development

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make representations to his EU counterparts on a replacement for the LEADER Programme. [257031]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The LEADER approach is now being implemented through mainstream rural development programming rather than as a separate programme in its own right. Under the Rural Development Programme for England (RDPE), 61 Local Action Groups have been selected so far to deliver the LEADER approach. This element of the RDPE has only been operational since January 2008 and we will want to review progress over the remainder of the programming period with a view to preparing for EU negotiations on the next programming period. The current programme runs until 2013, and therefore we do not envisage discussions at EU level on the future rural development programme for some time.

Sewers: Fats

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of sewer blockages caused by cooking oils, fats and greases in each water company area in each of the last five years. [256660]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department does not collect information on the causes of sewer blockages.

However, Water UK, the representative body for the water industry, estimates that there are on average around 200,000 sewer blockages in England and Wales each year, of which fats, oils and greases are responsible for up to 75 per cent.

Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much (a) household and (b) non-household waste was collected by each local authority in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [253201]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is on the DEFRA website and can be found at the following address:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/wastats/bulletin08.htm

WasteDataFlow

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) Travellers and (b) people in domestic dwellings not rated by the Valuation Office Agency due to their transitory nature will be liable to pay charges for the collection of household waste under the forthcoming pilot schemes. [252635]

Jane Kennedy: Paragraph 15 of schedule 2AA of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 defines the term "domestic premises" for the purposes of a waste reduction scheme.

Waste Disposal: Private Finance Initiative

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many waste infrastructure plant projects under the private finance initiative scheme have (a) applied for and (b) been granted planning permission in each of the last three years. [251691]

Jane Kennedy: According to available data, since January 2006 there have been 14 planning applications from 13 authorities that have been allocated private finance initiatives. Of these, 11 have been granted planning permission.

Water Supply: Leaks

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the volume of water lost through leaks from water pipes of each individual water company in each of the last five years. [256365]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Water companies report annual leakage figures to Ofwat in June as part of their annual regulatory returns. Ofwat publishes leakage performance annually in the service and delivery report. Leakage performance for each water company for the years 2003-04 to 2007-08 were as follows:

DEFENCE

Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre

8. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers seriously injured in Iraq and Afghanistan were treated at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre Headley Court before the introduction of compensation payments. [257887]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme was introduced on 6 April 2005. Between 1 April 2003 and 31 March 2005, 3,507 reviews of inpatients were conducted at Headley Court. Headley Court treats personnel injured as a result of a variety of incidents, including from operational deployment to road traffic or sporting accidents. Headley Court does not record centrally the number of injured personnel they treat from each location.

War Memorials

9. Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on consulting regimental associations on the protection of war memorials. [257888]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence officially commemorates the final resting place of all those who die in service. The UK Government contribute close to £40 million each year towards the work of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission to mark and maintain the graves, and the official memorials for those who have no known grave, of the Commonwealth Service personnel who died during the two World Wars.

However, the Department does not have the responsibility for war memorials. This responsibility rests with the owner of the memorial, which is normally a local authority, a private individual or organisation.

Iran: Missile Development

10. Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the implications for UK defence policy of recent Iranian missile development. [257889]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Member for Upminster (Angela Watkinson).

Military Doctors: Reserve Forces

11. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of military doctors serving abroad are members of the Territorial Army and other reserve forces. [257890]

Mr. Kevan Jones: From a total of 11 medical officers currently serving at the field hospital in Iraq on OP TELIC, five are members of the reserve forces. At the field hospital in Afghanistan on OP HERRICK, three, from a current total of 15 medical officers, are reservists.

Aircraft Carriers: Air Defence Capability

12. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next expects to meet his NATO counterparts to discuss the air defence capability of aircraft carriers. [257891]

Mr. Hutton: There are no specific plans for discussions with NATO counterparts, in the near future, on the air defence capability provided by aircraft carriers.

Afghanistan

13. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his latest assessment is of the armed forces' performance against their military objectives in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [257892]

Mr. Hutton: UK and other ISAF troops are making tangible progress in Afghanistan. In Helmand, all the major towns are now under the Government of Afghanistan's control and the insurgents can no longer rest easy in their traditional heartlands. But Afghanistan's problems cannot be solved by military means alone and nor will they be solved quickly. Significant security challenges remain and we are working with the Afghan Government also to improve governance, economic development and the rule of law.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment of the strength and capabilities of the (a) Afghan national army and (b) Afghan national police is. [253714]

Mr. Hutton: Good progress has been made with the Afghan national army (ANA). The ANA is 78,000 strong and in 2008 they led in 60 per cent. of the operations in which they participated.

There are now some 82,000 Afghan police (ANP). Through the US and EU-led programmes ANP capacity has improved.

We will continue to work closely with the government of Afghanistan and the international community to build the capacity of the Afghan national army and police.

Chiefs of Staff

14. Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what procedures there are for co-operation between the chiefs of staff of each of the services. [257893]

16. Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what procedures there are for co-operation between the chiefs of staff of each of the services. [257895]

Mr. Hutton: The chiefs of staff meet informally and formally to discuss matters of mutual interest on a regular and ongoing basis.

Warship Construction Programme

17. Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made on the warship construction programme; and if he will make a statement. [257896]

Mr. Hutton: Good progress continues to be made across the future warship build programme.

Centred on the Type 45 Destroyers, the Astute class submarines, the Future Aircraft Carriers and the Future Surface Combatant, it is providing industry with a strong order book which will continue well into the next decade and beyond.

Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference

19. Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on preparations for the Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference. [257898]

Mr. Hutton: I have regular discussions with the Foreign Secretary on a range of issues, including non-proliferation. Our respective Departments continue to work closely together, and with international partners, to ensure that the 2010 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference will be a success.

Trident

21. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent consideration he has given to the future of the UK's Trident nuclear weapons system; and if he will make a statement. [257900]

Mr. Hutton: We laid out the Government's decisions on the nuclear deterrent in the December 2006 White Paper, 'The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent', which the House voted to support, by a large majority, in March 2007. We expect to reach the Initial Gate approval point for the programme to replace the Vanguard-class submarines in autumn 2009. This will signify the end of the concept phase. We are also participating in a programme to extend the life of the Trident II D5 missile until around 2042.

ATLAS Consortium

22. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the ATLAS consortium's performance against objectives in implementing the Defence Information Infrastructure; and if he will make a statement. [257901]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The performance of the ATLAS consortium is continually assessed by the DII Programme's governing bodies. The most recent assessment is that performance remains satisfactory against the objectives of the programme.

Specifically, just beyond the 31 January 2009 milestone set for the end of the first increment, 62,800 terminals will have been delivered. This increases confidence in achieving the next milestone of 100,000 terminals to be delivered by the end of December 2009. In addition over half of the MOD population currently have DII Future (DII(F)) accounts and a capability to process secret data is now in place allowing the programme to roll DII(F) into the five major headquarters of the MOD, Royal Navy, RAF, Army and Permanent Joint Headquarters.

ATLAS is also on track to deliver a deployed and top secret capability within planned timescales and financial estimates for the on-contract programme remain within 3 per cent. of the original estimates.

Iraq

23. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of the security situation in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [257902]

Mr. Hutton: The overall security situation in Iraq continues to improve, with violence remaining down at levels last seen in 2003. This was demonstrated by the recent provincial elections, which passed with just one reported security incident in Basra, where Iraqi security forces are maintaining the significant security gains achieved over the course of 2008.

Afghanistan: Serious Injuries

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British soldiers have been seriously injured in Afghanistan (a) since 2001 and (b) since January 2006. [257894]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since the start of coalition operations in Afghanistan in October 2001, 175 British service personnel have been very seriously or seriously injured. 165 of these individuals incurred their injuries since January 2006.

Afghanistan: Civilian Casualties

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps UK forces are taking to minimise the number of civilian casualties in Afghanistan. [257897]

Mr. Hutton: We deeply regret any incidents where civilians are killed as a result of actions by international forces. Procedures are in place, and being constantly updated in the light of experience, both to minimise the risk of these casualties occurring and to investigate any incidents that do happen. In addition troops undergo comprehensive individual and collective training before they go on operations. Significant resources and effort are put into understanding properly the operational environment, including details of the civilian population who wherever possible are warned of impending operations.

We should, however, remember that insurgents are the real threat to the safety and security of the Afghan people through their indiscriminate use of violence.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1016W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, when he expects the review to be completed. [255588]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The review of UK detention records has been a major undertaking; we hope to publish the findings in the near future.

Ammunition

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether British armed forces have used white phosphorus munitions in (a) Iraq since 2003 and (b) Afghanistan since 2001; [254686]

(2) when white phosphorus munitions were last used in action by British armed forces; and in what circumstances they were used. [254688]

Mr. Hutton: In Afghanistan, white phosphorus munitions are routinely used to protect troops on operations by producing a smoke screen to provide cover. Records show white phosphorus munitions were last used for the same purpose in Iraq in 2005.

In accordance with the UN third convention on conventional weapons, UK training in the use of white phosphorus emphasises that it should be used solely for its intended purpose and not as an anti-personnel weapon.

Ammunition: Exports

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the UK has made any exports of white phosphorus munitions in the last 10 years. [254687]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply:

BERR's Export Control Organisation only has information on licences issued, not actual exports. 67 licences have been issued since March 1999 for munitions that, like white phosphorous munitions, are designed to create illumination or act as an incendiary. Because the export licence application form does not require the exporter to provide the chemical composition of munitions to be exported, it is not possible to say how many—if any—of those 67 related to the export of white phosphorous

Armed Forces: Blood

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will request NHS Blood and Transplant to supply pathogen inactivated blood products for military personnel use. [255760]

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will ask the NHS Blood and Transplant Service to supply pathogen-inactivated blood products for use by military personnel. [256969]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Pathogen inactivation (PI) is a process designed to eliminate pathogens—i.e. viruses, bacteria and fungi—from water, air or donated blood. The majority of the blood held in-theatre by the Defence Medical Services is supplied by the UK National Blood Services (NBS), which does not routinely carry out PI on its blood products. However, the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs (SaBTO—a Department of Health NDPB) will be reviewing options to reduce the risk of bacterial infection in platelets, including pathogen inactivation, in early 2009, which will inform decisions on its use in the UK. It would be premature of MOD to pre-empt the results of this review.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of personnel in each pinch point trade in the (a) Royal Navy and (b) Royal Air Force exceeded harmony guidelines for tour intervals in the latest period for which figures are available. [257685]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As I stated in my answer on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1521W, it is not possible to identify the tour intervals for individual service personnel who are considered to be in pinch point trades. The Joint Personnel Administration system is designed to identify where individual harmony guidelines, as a whole, are being broken rather than the intervals between tours.

Armed Forces: Drugs

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the incidence of substance misuse amongst members of the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [258185]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: MOD monitors regularly the incidence of substance misuse in the armed forces. The services have robust policies and procedures in relation to the taking of unlawful drugs, as well as a comprehensive range of measures for raising awareness of and dealing with alcohol abuse. The evidence is that the level of taking unlawful drugs by service personnel is far below that of their civilian counterparts.

Armed Forces: Housing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1264W, on departmental housing, how many houses owned by his Department were rated as grade (a) one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007. [251695]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Officials are working to identify what information can be provided. I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Substantive answer from Kevan Jones to Willie Rennie, dated 21 February 2009:

My right hon. Friend the Minister for the Armed Forces undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 305W about grades of Service Family Accommodation.

The following breakdown of Service Family Accommodation properties worldwide by each Grade for Charge (GfC) at 1 April 2005, 2006, and 2007 respectively.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) trained requirement, (b) trained strength and (c) numbers fit for duty are of (i) Territorial Army staff, (ii) Royal Armoured Corps, (iii) Royal Artillery, (iv) Royal Engineers, (v) Royal Signals, (vi) Infantry, (vii) Army Air Corps, (viii) Royal Army Chaplains Department, (ix) Royal Logistics Corps, (x) Royal Army Medical Corps, (xi) Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, (xii) Adjutant General's Corps, (xiii) Royal Army Veterinary Corps, (xiv) Small Arms School Corps, (xv) Royal Army Dentistry Corps, (xvi) Intelligence Corps, (xvii) Army Physical Training Corps and (xviii) Queen Alexandra's Royal Auxiliary Nursing Corps are. [257775]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the following table, the trained requirement figures requested are shown by the funded liability. Fit for duty figures are not held centrally, however, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1117-118W, to the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) which provides infantry figures:

Armed Forces: Racial Discrimination

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what policies and practices are in place to counter sectarianism and racism in the armed forces. [248689]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The armed forces aim to create a working environment free from harassment, intimidation and unlawful discrimination in which everyone is not only valued and respected, but encouraged to realise their full potential, regardless of race, ethnic origin, religion, gender, social background or sexual orientation. All complaints of discrimination or harassment are taken seriously, investigated thoroughly, and, when proven, dealt with robustly.

Education is central to the drive to promote awareness of diversity and equality and to eliminate unacceptable behaviour. Diversity and equality training is undertaken at the Joint Equality and Diversity Training Centre and widely across all three services. Other measures include: confidential advice and support helplines; trained equality and diversity advisers in every unit; guidance, videos and briefings on diversity issues, harassment, bullying and complaints.

A Service Complaints Commissioner for the Armed Forces took up her appointment on 1 January 2008. The Commissioner has the power to refer allegations of discrimination, harassment, bullying, and dishonest, improper or biased behaviour to the chain of command for action. The role of the Commissioner is to provide scrutiny and assurance that the complaints process is working effectively and that lessons are learned and implemented.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many recruitment training courses were either cancelled or postponed in each of the last three years; and how many recruits were affected. [245117]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Overall some courses were cancelled or postponed but all entrants were trained without undue delay. The information available for each service is:

Navy

Over the course of the last three financial years, four Royal Marine other ranks initial training courses have been cancelled; this was primarily due to the lack of recruits to fill allocated places. In all, some 120 trainees were affected as their entry to CTCRM was delayed by two weeks. No other Naval Service initial training courses were cancelled or postponed in that time.

Army

Over the last three financial years 12 infantry platoons did not form up due to insufficient trainees and five courses at the Army Training Regiment Bassingbourn were cancelled. Further courses were run with reduced numbers due to trainers not being available. In total 1,197 training places were affected. Planning has ensured that no recruits were affected.

RAF

In total, seven initial training courses have been cancelled over the last three years: six in FY2006-07; and one in FY2007-08. No recruits were affected, as the courses were cancelled before any recruits were allocated places.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on recruitment advertising for each of the armed forces in each month in each year since 1998. [248668]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: A monthly breakdown of advertising expenditure is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, a detailed breakdown of armed forces recruitment advertising costs by year for each service is provided in the following table.

Army: Contracts

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what multi-activity contracts the Army has; and what the (a) scope of activities, (b) monetary value and (c) date of expiry of each is. [257159]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Multi-activity contracts (MACs) provide soft facilities management services including but not limited to:

Catering, retail and leisure;
Waste management and cleaning services;
Pest control; and
Laundry and tailoring services (including footwear repair).

In some locations, several MACs are grouped together into a super MAC (SMAC), which is managed by a single point of responsibility.

The following table provides the information requested for the Army's 19 MACs and SMACs.

Army: Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of management of each category of vehicle within the Army's wheeled vehicle fleet. [256427]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Cluster Munitions

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the store of cluster bombs at RAF Welford has been removed since the Government signed the Oslo convention; and whether any cluster bombs remain in the UK. [255603]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We will have eight years, from entry into force of the Convention on Cluster Munitions for the UK, to destroy all cluster munition stockpiles under UK jurisdiction and control. Lord Malloch Brown said in another place on 3 June 2008 that it was his expectation

"that there will be no such weapons on British Territory at the end of the eight year period".

Concerning any cluster munitions stored on UK territory but under United States control, we are engaged with the United States in order to meet the eight year deadline. All UK cluster munition types have been withdrawn from service. A progressive UK cluster munition disposal programme has begun, with some munitions already destroyed. We expect that all UK stockpiles will be destroyed by 2013 which we anticipate will be four or five years ahead of the deadline.

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what mechanisms his Department uses to monitor levels of compliance across military bases with the Government's commitments on cluster munitions under the Oslo Convention on Cluster Munitions. [256495]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: All UK cluster munitions, prohibited once the Cluster Munition Convention enters into force, were withdrawn from operational service on 30 May 2008, when the Convention was adopted. All were immediately segregated for disposal to prevent use and transfer and some have already been destroyed.

Those that are awaiting disposal are stored in a number of secure licensed munitions storage locations and, as such, all cluster munitions are fully accounted for at all times. The MOD has contractual control and oversight over all disposal contracts and disposal certificates are issued when each cluster munition has been destroyed. The MOD carries out checks on contractors to ensure compliance. There is no scope in the disposal contracts for a disposal contractor to do anything other than destroy the munitions. Furthermore, cluster munitions are recorded on the Department's inventory and explosives safety management IT systems, which means that they can be tracked and prevented from being inadvertently issued for either operational or training purposes.

In withdrawing these munitions from service on 30 May 2008, the UK complied with the spirit of the Convention immediately and well ahead of ratification at which point the provisions of the Convention will become a legal requirement.

Cyprus: Voting Rights

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether British citizens stationed in 'the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia are entitled to vote. [255861]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Yes.

Defence Training Review Programme

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the Defence Training Review programme; and if he will make a statement. [257678]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The DTR Package 1 Project continues to move forward. A final clarification and confirm exercise, evaluating the Metrix Consortium's revised proposals, is now nearing completion. The focus of the project team's and the Metrix Consortium's effort is on improving certainty of the programme, affordability, maturing the project agreement and in preparing to implement some early works activities to ensure that the contract can be signed in 2010.

Metrix, furthermore, are undertaking a number of key activities with the support of the MOD which include environmental and other survey work at St. Athan, and development of the construction proposal with a view to submitting a planning application before the summer.

Defence: Finance

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the effect on UK military operations of changes to the budget for urgent operational requirements. [257881]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There is no such effect whatsoever.

Departmental Billing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on the period in which suppliers to his Department are paid; and whether his Department issues guidance on the prompt payment of invoices. [256700]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Department currently aims to meet the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act requirement of paying valid bills within 30 calendar days of receipt by allowing up to 19 days for MOD branches to confirm that the services or goods supplied have been satisfactorily delivered and then 11 calendar days for the Financial Management Shared Service Centre (FMSSC) to check the invoices and make payment. The FMSSC has introduced daily payment runs to enhance its flexibility in providing a prompt and efficient service to industry and the smaller supplier.

The Department is reviewing the processes associated with the overall payment cycle and is working towards meeting the Government's 10 day target set for small and medium enterprises. Once this work is complete it should ensure that the Department is able to measure the 10 day target and report on performance against it. The 10 day target will apply to all MOD suppliers, irrespective of size, as it would be impractical to differentiate between small and medium-size enterprises and others.

Guidance on prompt payment is provided in the form of a Contract Payment Guide available via the MOD website:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/WhatWeDo/FinanceandProcurement/FMSSC/ContractPaymentGuide.htm

The guide does not apply to goods and services covered by the electronic P2P purchasing arrangements as payment advice for this type of invoice is issued separately to suppliers. The FMSSC also operates a help desk facility to assist suppliers with their enquiries.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245321]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: MOD is a large organisation with a commensurate number of contracts—almost 23,000 contracts were placed in Financial Year 2007-08. MOD is in the process of confirming full compliance with all its suppliers and expects to complete this task by end March. As an initial step those defence contractors who have declared to Defence Security and Safety Assurance (MOD's Accreditation Authority), a requirement to have a connection to MOD's restricted network (the RLI) or work electronically at confidential or above, have been asked to confirm their compliance with MOD's List-X Notice on laptop and media encryption policy, issued in response to the data handling review. Some 73.3 per cent. have confirmed compliance. A further 8.3 per cent. have confirmed that they do not currently comply but have (or are in the process of) submitting risk balanced cases to describe how they are mitigating these risks together with plans to address shortcomings. 18.3 per cent. are still to respond formally and are being hastened.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reported incidents of lost data there were in his Department in each year from 1987 to 1997. [250736]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally for the years requested. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256140]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Databases can vary in their size and scope from small, locally maintained systems held on standalone computers to those used more widely across the Ministry of Defence. There is therefore no centrally held record of all databases owned and managed by the Department and its agencies and the cost of maintaining them in 2006, 2007 and 2008 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Flowers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on (a) pot plants and (b) flowers in each of the last three years. [254874]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. All expenditure must comply with the principles of propriety set out in Managing Public Money and in the Treasury's handbook on regularity, propriety and value for money.

Accessibility to expenditure information on discrete items and services is largely determined by the MOD's Chart of Accounts (Joint Service Publication 530), copies of which are placed in the Library of the House for each financial year. It is also published in the MOD's Publication Scheme at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/FinancialReports/ChartOfAccountsManualJsp530.htm

Departmental ICT

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chesterfield (Paul Holmes) of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 897-8W, on departmental ICT, how many internal investigations have been held into the (a) loss or theft and (b) recovery of (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) hard drives; and how many such investigations related to the loss of material classified as (A) confidential, (B) secret and (C) top secret in 2008. [255054]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD takes any loss of media storage devices very seriously and has robust procedures in place. In response to the findings of the Data Handling Review and Burton Report new processes, instructions and technological aids are being implemented to mitigate human errors and raise awareness of every individual in the Department. Details of the number of investigations into lost/stolen/recovered media storage devices are not collated centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions an IT system administered by his Department has failed in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [256701]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: IT systems can vary in size and scope from those that stand alone on single computers and are locally managed to major systems, such as the Defence Information Infrastructure programme. There is therefore no centrally held record of all IT systems administered by the Ministry of Defence and details of the number of occasions on which each failed in the last 12 months could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Soupe and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [254222]

Mr. Kevan Jones: According to our records, the only representations are 47 parliamentary questions tabled by Lord Moonie for the period 1 July 2008 to 31 January 2009.

Departmental Official Visits

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hon. Members have visited (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in circumstances where his Department assisted in the visit in the last three years; on what dates such visits took place; and what the purpose was of each visit. [248160]

Mr. Hutton: Detailed information on all visits by Members of Parliament to operational theatres over the last three years is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the maximum monthly allowance in addition to basic salary is for civilian employees of his Department working in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [254019]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: MOD civil servants deploy into Iraq and Afghanistan on a voluntary basis to provide specialist support to UK armed forces. They are required to work long hours, usually over a six-month period and in austere living and working conditions alongside their military counterparts where they are exposed to operational risk.

These living and working conditions are recognised through a system of taxable operational allowances:

Operational deployment allowance (ODA) takes into account the working and living conditions experienced in theatre. It is reviewed on a regular basis.

Operational working allowance (OWA) recognises the very long hours and additional duties undertaken by deployees in excess of their normally contracted employment. The minimum operational working week is 92 hours as opposed to the standard UK 37 hour week. Many work in excess of those hours.

The total sum payable to an individual will vary. It is dependent on both their grade and their location. The current maximum monthly allowance in Iraq is £9,250 before tax for a Band B civil servant based in Basra. In Afghanistan it is £9,000 before tax for an identically graded civil servant based in Lashkar Gah, Helmand province. By comparison a Band D civil servant in Basra and Lashkar Gah would be paid sums of £5,250 and £5,000 respectively.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254227]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication 'Making and Managing Public Appointments'. For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the 'Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies'. Copies are in the Libraries of the House. Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at

Successful candidates are requested to declare their political activities. Information on MOD's Public Appointments can be found at www.mod.uk

Departmental Recruitment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many new recruits his Department took on in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; how many of these were taken on as (i) permanent, (ii) temporary and (iii) agency staff; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for (A) 2009-10 and (B) 2010-11. [254474]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Information on the numbers of recruits appointed in the Department as permanent, temporary or agency staff in years 2005-06, 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09 is provided in the following table. The Department does not currently have firm estimates for civilian external recruitment for the years 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Permanent	4,260	3,810	3,950	3,270
Temporary	1,930	1,780	1,410	820
Agency	774	783	1,429	1,676

Departmental Staff

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254089]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held centrally for all the dates requested. However, records held centrally of civilian staff disciplined specifically for bullying and harassment of colleagues in the Department for the periods:

March 2007 to March 2008 include 16 cases of disciplinary action specifically for bullying and harassment of colleagues.

April 2008 to January 2009 include 10 cases of disciplinary action specifically for bullying and harassment of colleagues.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252035]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Staff who work in excess of their conditioned hours have the opportunity to receive payment for those hours worked or take the time off in agreement with their local line management.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252036]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department does not hold this information centrally.

EU Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1406W, on EU rapid reaction force, what forces are available for planning purposes for EU missions. [257498]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the then Secretary of State my right hon. Friend the Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne) gave on 4 March 2008, Official Report, column 2348W.

Falkland Islands: Air Routes

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next plans to review the fares applicable to the Falkland Islands Airbridge; and if he will make a statement. [257810]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The fares for civilian access to the South Atlantic Airbridge are presently governed by the 1992 Joint Policy Statement between the FCO and MOD. A new Joint Policy Statement is nearing agreement and, once signed, a new fare structure will be implemented.

HMS Endurance

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects a full assessment of the damage to HMS Endurance on 16 December 2008 to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [256718]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Work has been already undertaken to assess HMS Endurance's material state, but further investigations are required which will take place on her return to the UK at the end of March. It is estimated that a full assessment of its condition will be completed by the end of May.

Infantry: Manpower

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) full strength and (b) actual number of deployable troops is of each infantry battalion; and if he will make a statement. [257345]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The figures requested are shown in the following table:

Division	Unit	Actual strength	Number of deployable troops

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to the public purse of the UK's involvement in military action in Iraq has been in each of the last five years. [256238]

Mr. Hutton: The audited outturn for the net additional costs of military operations in Iraq for each of the last five years is published in the relevant annual report and accounts, as set out in the following table.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 509W, on the Joint Strike Fighter, what estimate he has made of the effect of the recent changes in the value of sterling against the US dollar on the cost of the development phase of the Joint Strike Fighter programme. [257519]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Since the UK joined the development phase of the joint strike fighter programme in 2001 we have benefited significantly from the strength of the pound against the dollar and as a result forecasted costs are still expected to remain within the approved level. As the UK contributions to this phase of the programme are largely complete, I do not anticipate a significant impact.

Military Afloat Reach and Sustainability Programme

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the planning assumption date for each element of the Military Afloat Reach and Sustainability craft is. [257682]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Military Afloat Reach and Sustainability (MARS) programme is in its assessment phase. It is MOD policy not to publish internal planning assumption dates while programmes are in this phase and prior to the main investment decision being taken.

Military Aircraft

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many air-to-air refuelling sorties were flown by the (a) Tornado and (b) Harrier fleets in the United Kingdom in each month of each of the last five financial years; [248571]

(2) what the rate of rejection of eco-engines from first line in the United Kingdom was in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248526]

(3) how much aviation fuel was transferred to the Tornado air defence and ground attack fleets during air-to-air refuelling operations in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248527]

(4) how much aviation fuel was used by the Tornado air defence and ground attack fleets in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248528]

(5) how much aviation fuel was consumed by the Harrier fleet in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248577]

(6) what the rate of rejection of RB 199 aero engines from first line was in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years. [248585]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member.

Substantive answer from Bob Ainsworth to David Lidington:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your six Parliamentary Questions on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1051W, requesting information about fuel consumption and engine rejection rates for the Harrier and Tornado fleets.

You asked for a range of detailed and specific information about fuel consumption, much of which is not held centrally in the format requested and could only be provided at disproportionate cost. However, you have since indicated that your main interest in asking about fuel consumption was to establish whether there is an unjustified increase in RAF flying patterns towards the end of a financial year, designed to ensure that all available fuel is consumed and to justify future fuel budgets. Relevant data are readily available showing the volume of fuel transferred on the ground and during air-to-air refuelling (AAR) with UK tankers, for the Harrier, Tornado GR4 and Tornado F3 fleets for each financial year. This indicates fuel consumption trends by month across financial years since 2005-06. Data prior to 2005-06 are not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

These data are set out in the following tables. To better show the trends they have also been presented in graphs for each financial year in an annex to this letter. It should be noted that the figures provided do not include fuel transferred from foreign tankers, for example during NATO exercises. They also do not include data for AAR consumption by 14 Squadron (Tornado GR4) based at RAF Lossiemouth, which are not available. Additionally, due to the relatively small level of consumption, figures for the Fast Jet Weapons Operational Evaluation Units are only recorded annually and so have not been included, as to do so would not assist in analysing any possible month on month trends. Because the figures which are missing are relatively small we do not consider them to be statistically significant.

As you can see, the data do not indicate a general upturn in fuel consumption in the final months of a financial year. Although this does occur in some cases, there are also some decreases at the end of financial years and peaks occurring at other times of the year. There are a number of reasons why flying rates may increase from December to March, including the improving weather and the fact that there is normally less flying in December and January, owing to traditional periods of leave. Flying may also increase in March because aircrew need to renew certain qualifications before the end of the training year, which coincides with the end of the financial year.

You also asked about the rejection from first line in the UK for the Pegasus and RB 199 engines in each week of the last five financial years. This data is available on a monthly basis for both engine types from 2005-06 only and is provided in the following table. It is to be expected that there will be a higher number of rejected RB 199 engines, due to the much larger size of the Tornado fleet (for example there are currently 210 Tornado F3 and GR4 and only 75 Harrier GR9 in the fleet) and the fact that that the Tornado is a dual-engine aircraft, whereas the Harrier only has one Pegasus engine. However, on average the rate of rejection for the three financial years works out at almost the same: 3.39 engines per 1000 flying hours for the Tornado RB 199 engine as opposed to 3.52 for the Harrier Pegasus engine.

An 'engine rejection' occurs when it is deemed unserviceable and the necessary repair action cannot be carried out with the engine installed or is beyond the capability of the engineers on the squadron. Unserviceability may be caused by, among other things, physical damage to the engine, engine components becoming life expired, unsatisfactory vibration characteristics or poor performance.

I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Netherlands: Joint Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1116W, on Netherlands: military exercises, (1) how many Royal Marines he expects to participate in the 2009 UK/Netherlands amphibious landing force training exercise. [255587]

(2) where the 2009 exercise will take place. [255639]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Up to 700 Royal Marines are expected to participate in support of the 2009 UK/Netherlands amphibious landing force exercise, which is expected to take place in Turkey and Brunei.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what legislative or other authority Royal Navy ships may come under European Union command during Operation Atalanta. [256426]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Operation Atalanta was launched by a Joint Action, a unanimous decision of the Council of Ministers of the European Union, which comprises national Ministers from each of the EU member states. In the UK this decision was subject to parliamentary scrutiny.

Royal Navy ships that the UK Government decide to make available to participate in Operation Atalanta come under command of the EU's Operation Commander for the operation, Rear Admiral Philip Jones RN, based in his operation headquarters at Northwood.

In his role as Operation Commander, Admiral Jones reports to the Political and Security Committee, a Council body in which ambassadors from each of the EU member states exercise political control and strategic direction over the operation, on instructions from national authorities.

The Political and Security Committee reports regularly on the progress of the operation to the Council of Ministers.

Stabilisation Aid Fund

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will provide a breakdown of his Department's contribution of £15,350,000 to the Stabilisation Aid Fund as referred to in the written ministerial statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 78-9WS, on departmental expenditure limits. [257969]

Mr. Hutton: The Stabilisation Aid Fund (SAF) amounts to £73 million in 2008-09. For the purpose of the fund's financial management, the SAF sits on the MOD's baseline, but is managed jointly by the Department for International Development (DFID), the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the MOD. During the course of the financial year, the MOD has transferred funds to the FCO and DFID according to their forecast expenditure on SAF projects. The transfer of £15.35 million at spring supplementary estimates to the FCO is to cover residual forecast expenditure across a number of projects. Of this, £1.75 million is for project costs in Iraq, and £13.6 million for project costs in Afghanistan.

UK Forces: Afghanistan

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what formal statement of co-operation in relation to UK forces operations and activities in Afghanistan has been approved by (a) NATO and (b) the EU. [253207]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 2 February 2009]: UK forces in Afghanistan operate under the auspices of a Military Technical Agreement between the International Security Assistance Force and the Government of Afghanistan. This arrangement is in accordance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 1833.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the future of the BVT Surface Fleet; and if he will make a statement. [257677]

Mr. Quentin Davies: BVT Surface Fleet Ltd. (BVT) became fully operational on 1 July 2008 and is one of the Department's key maritime industrial partners. The company is at the heart of the future warship build programme, for example as the prime contractor for the Type 45 destroyers, playing a key role in the Alliance that will deliver the future carrier, and in providing maintenance support to in-service Royal Navy warships through the Surface Ship Support (SSS) Programme and the Warship Support Modernisation Initiative (WSMi).

MOD and BVT are working to establish a new long-term incentive based Terms of Business Agreement (TOBA) which will seek to transform their surface warship business delivering significant benefit to MOD, its industrial partners and taxpayers.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the warship construction programme; and if he will make a statement. [257878]

Mr. Hutton: Good progress continues to be made across the future warship build programme.

Centred on the Type 45 destroyers, the Astute class submarines, the Future Aircraft Carriers and the Future Surface Combatant, it is providing industry with a strong orderbook which will continue well into the next decade and beyond.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by her Office. [256204]

Chris Bryant: The office of the Leader of the House of Commons employs one EU foreign national and no non-EU foreign nationals.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Leader of the House how much her Office has spent on (a) pot plants and (b) cut flowers in each of the last three years. [256118]

Chris Bryant: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons spent £1,872.72 on the provision of plants and flowers during the 2007-08 financial year.

Following a machinery of government change, information prior to 2007-08 is available only at disproportionate cost.

A decision was taken in January 2009 to terminate the contract for plants and flowers at the earliest possible opportunity.

Members: Allowances

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie) of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 1W, on Members: allowances, how many requests for advances of communications allowance have been granted to date; and what the reasons for the request for the advance was in each case. [257487]

Chris Bryant: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 1W, in which I answered that no advance from the Communications Allowance had been requested either in the year 2009-10 or the previous year. There have been no requests for advances from the Communications Allowance in the period since this answer.

PRIME MINISTER

Ministers: Pay

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what criteria are used to determine which Ministers receive ministerial salaries and which Ministers receive no salary; and if he will make a statement; [257241]

(2) what percentage of Government Ministers who are unpaid are (a) male and (b) female; and if he will make a statement. [257242]

The Prime Minister: Details of which Ministers are unpaid are a matter of public record and can be found in the Ministerial Appointments press notices issued by my Office. Copies are available in the Library of the House and are also available on the No. 10 website:

http://www.number10.gov.uk/news/press-notices

All ministerial salaries are paid in accordance with the "Ministerial and other Salaries Act 1975".

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefits Helpline

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will assess the effects of the methods of operation of Benefits Helpline on benefits claimants; and if he will make a statement; [256411]

(2) what representations he has received on the operations of a company called Benefits Helpline; and if he will make a statement. [255784]

Mr. McNulty: The Department for Work and Pensions makes advice on benefits and a wide range of other entitlements easily accessible to everyone through a variety of channels including information leaflets, telephone helplines, websites, and through intermediary organisations working closely with us.

These sources of help and information are consistently promoted through the Department for Work and Pensions website, phone books, in Jobcentres and pension centres and by local authorities.

In order to streamline public access to this and other Departments' information, it is now government policy that Departments should use Directgov:

www.direct.gov.uk

an online, TV and mobile phone service, providing citizens with access to information and services from across Government. This will replace the large numbers of standalone websites that Government currently run. The change is taking place between now and 2011.

We also run many promotional campaigns to ensure that eligible and vulnerable people are aware of their entitlements.

We would always recommend that where people are seeking information on entitlements, they should turn to the relevant Department for Work and Pensions agency or trusted sources of information like Age Concern and the Citizen's Advice Bureau.

We are aware that other organisations promote benefits advice services on a commercial basis and have received a small number of representations. However, these services are not in themselves illegal, and it is the responsibility of the service Regulator to monitor their operation and to take action where necessary to control them.

Carer's Allowance

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people in receipt of carer's allowance who are over retirement age; [255725]

(2) how many people were (a) eligible to receive and (b) in receipt of carer's allowance in the last year for which figures are available. [255726]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information is in the following table.

Carer's allowance caseloads: May 2008

	Total	Pension age
Cases in payment	480,730	29,270
Entitlements	882,800	374,530

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Pension age means women aged 60 and over, and men aged 65 and over.
3. "Cases in payment" shows the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and excludes people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended.
4. "Entitlements" shows the number of people who, following an application for carer's allowance, were assessed as eligible. This figure includes those who receive no actual payment as well as those who are actually receiving benefit.
5. These figures are published on the DWP website at:

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission: Marketing

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission plans to spend on advertising in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [250927]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how much the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission plans to spend on advertising in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [250927]

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is currently developing its communication strategy, and therefore any plans for spend on advertising have not yet been finalised.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what guidance the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission has issued in fulfilment of its obligations under section 5 of the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008; [249027]

(2) how many (a) parents with care and (b) non-resident parents have been referred by the Child Maintenance Options Service to the face-to-face service in each month since July 2008. [249028]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of people who have made applications to the Child Support Agency since March 2003 have not yet received any maintenance payments; and if he will make a statement. [255262]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many and what proportion of people who have made applications to the Child Support Agency since March 2003 have not yet received any maintenance payments; and if he will make a statement.

Table 2.1 of the December 2008 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS) shows that 1,677,000 applications have been received between March 2003 and December 2008 under the current scheme. The QSS is available in the House of Commons library or online at:

http://www.childmaintenance.org/publications/statistics.html

Table 2.3 of the QSS shows that of the 1,677,000 applications received since March 2003, 39,600 cases with a positive maintenance assessment have still not resulted in a payment to the parent with care. This represents 2% of all applications received.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what criteria the Child Support Agency uses in determining whether a consolatory payment may be made; and if he will make a statement; [256032]

(2) how many (a) consolatory payments and (b) other compensatory payments the Child Support Agency has been made to residents of (i) Ribble Valley constituency, (ii) Lancashire and (iii) the UK in each of the last 10 years; and what the monetary value of such payments was in each such year; [256136]

(3) what the (a) highest and (b) average value of consolatory payments made by the Child Support Agency for maladministration was in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement; [256162]

(4) how many consolatory payments for maladministration were made by the Child Support Agency in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [256163]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, the Minister promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what criteria the Child Support Agency uses in determining whether a consultancy payment may be made; and if he will make a statement. [256032] and:

How many (a) consolatory payments and (b) other compensatory payments the Child Support Agency has been made to residents of (i) Ribble Valley constituency (ii) Lancashire and (iii) the UK in each of the last 10 years; and what the monetary value of such payments was in each such year. [256136] and:

What the (a) highest and (b) average value of consolatory payments made by the Child Support Agency for maladministration was in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [256162] and:

How many consolatory payments for maladministration were made by the Child Support Agency in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [256163]

We spoke to your office who confirmed that, in parliamentary question number 256032, the word 'consolatory' should be substituted for 'consultancy'.

Since the 1st November 2008, the Child Support Agency has been the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. The Commission is focused on providing high standards of customer service and seeks to provide rapid and satisfactory resolution of client complaints. In the event that official error or delay has had an adverse impact on a client, the Commission operates a discretionary scheme providing financial redress.

Consolatory payments form part of financial redress and are made by way of an apology for the handling of a client's case. These payments are not usually large amounts but do acknowledge that a client's case has not been handled as well as might have been expected. Consolatory payments are considered in very exceptional circumstances, where maladministration has had a direct adverse impact on the life of the client or, much more exceptionally, on that of another person, for example the client's spouse. Each case is considered individually.

Information on the number of consolatory and compensatory payments made to residents in specific geographic areas is not available as the information is not routinely recorded in this format.

However, the remainder of the information requested regarding the total number of consolatory payments for residents of the UK and the highest, average and total amount of consolatory payments made for maladministration is presented in the attached tables. Information prior to December 2001 is not available, therefore the first full year is 2002/03.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many liability orders were issued in each region in each of the last three years by (a) his Department and (b) the (i) agencies and (ii) commissions for which he is accountable. [256242]

Kitty Ussher: I would refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 11 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1977-79W.

Cold Weather Payments: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of households in areas covered by weather stations situated in North Yorkshire which will be eligible for cold weather payments in 2008-09. [254220]

Kitty Ussher: The only weather station used for the cold weather payments scheme which is situated in North Yorkshire is Linton on Ouse. The estimated number of benefit units which are eligible for cold weather payments in 2008-09 and whose postcodes are linked to Linton on Ouse weather station is 138,900.

Notes:

1. Some postcodes in North Yorkshire are not linked to Linton on Ouse weather station and some postcodes outside North Yorkshire are linked to Linton on Ouse weather station.

2. Cold Weather Payments are made to benefit units rather than households. For example, a disabled adult on income support living with his mother on pension credit counts as two benefit units but would be thought of as one household. Estimates of the number of households eligible for cold weather payments are not available.

3. The estimate has been rounded to the nearest 100.

Compensation

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions compensatory payments have been made by (a) the Pension Service and (b) the Child Support Agency in each of the last 12 months; and what the total monetary value of such payments was in each of those months. [255757]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is focused on providing high standards of customer service and seeks to provide rapid and satisfactory resolution of any customer complaints. In the event that agency error or delay may have an adverse effect on a customer, the Department operates a discretionary scheme providing financial redress. Under these arrangements a special payment can be made to compensate for the impact of any error on the customer.

The information requested is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following tables.

3. The figures do not include special payments awarded on an extra statutory basis or as part of a special exercise.
4. The Pension Service and the Disability and Carers Service were brought together into a single agency from 1 April 2008. The figures quoted reflect payments authorised by the Pension Service element of the new agency.
5. The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission replaced the Child Support Agency from 1 November 2008.

Council Tax Benefits: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many outstanding unprocessed (a) council tax benefit and (b) housing benefit claims there were in each London borough in each (i) quarter of each year from 1998 to 2008 and (ii) of the last 12 months; and what the average number of days taken to process (A) council tax benefit and (B) housing benefit applications was in each London borough in each (1) quarter of each year from 1998 to 2008 and (2) of the last 12 months. [257175]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Northavon (Steve Webb) on 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1417W.

Crisis Loans

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many and what percentage of refusals of crisis loan applications were (a) subject to appeal and (b) overturned on appeal in each of the last four years; [255324]

(2) how long on average it took for successful crisis loan applicants to receive payment in each of the last four years; [255325]

(3) how long the process of appealing against refusal of a crisis loan application took on average in each of the last four years. [255326]

Kitty Ussher: A first review is a review at Jobcentre Plus requested by an applicant. Data are not available on the number of refusals of crisis loan applications which were (a) subject to first review and (b) overturned on first review. This is because some crisis loan applicants apply for a review of a partial award and data are only available on the number of all crisis loan applications which were (a) subject to first review and (b) overturned on first review. Similarly, data are not available on the average time taken to process a first review of a refusal of a crisis loan application, but are only available on the average time taken to process all first reviews of crisis loan applications.

Information regarding reviews by the Independent Review Service is a matter for the social fund commissioner.

Crisis loan awards for items are normally sent by post, so data are not available on the average time taken for successful crisis loan applicants to receive payment. However, data are available on the average time taken to process all crisis loan applications, but not on the average time taken to process successful applications only.

Crisis Loans: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time was for decisions to be taken on crisis loan applications in the North East in each month of 2008; and if he will make a statement. [254916]

Kitty Ussher: The available information is provided in the following table.

Crisis loan applications in the North East in 2008 by month

Month	Average actual clearance time (working days)
January	1.3
February	1.3
March	1.3
April	1.3
May	1.3
June	1.2
July	1.3
August	1.3
September	1.2
October	1.2
November	1.2
December	1.4

Notes:

1. The clearance time for an individual crisis loan application is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received until the date the decision is taken on whether to make a loan offer, plus, if a loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply. The minimum clearance time recorded for an individual crisis loan application is one working day, even if the application is cleared immediately.
2. Numbers are based on applications cleared in each month, not on applications received during that month.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248255]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on the numbers of staff in the Department for Work and Pensions that have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to the Department in each year since 1997 is not available in the format requested.

The Department for Work and Pensions records the numbers of staff investigated, suspended and dismissed for misconduct under general headings, but does not record this information under the specific categories requested. To extract more detailed information from individual records under the categories requested would be at disproportionate cost.

Departments have taken urgent and decisive action across government to improve data handing including minimising the amount of data put on removable media, encryption programmes for data and mobile devices that carry personal protected data and the introduction of training and education programmes to improve staff awareness of information risks.

Government take data security very seriously which is why a report into data handling procedures across government was commissioned and new measures to improve and strengthen controls in the protection of personal data were introduced.

Following publication of the Data Handling Report in June 2008, the Department for Work and Pensions has clarified its disciplinary rules and standards of behaviour to reinforce security measures around the safeguarding of data and equipment.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the number of inaccurate records held on his Department's customer information system. [256069]

Jonathan Shaw: The DWP customer information system (CIS) holds over 90 million records, of which around 35 million relate to people receiving benefits who have an obligation to report changes to their personal information. There is no such obligation for those people who are not receiving benefits and for that reason it is not possible to provide an estimate of the number of records which may contain details which are not up to date.

The Department has put in place procedures to ensure that queries about the accuracy of personal information held on the customer information system are dealt with as soon as they are identified.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254089]

Jonathan Shaw: This information is not available in the format requested. To extract more detailed information from individual records under the category requested would be at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256195]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested on (a) EU foreign national and (b) non-EU foreign nationals employed by the Department for Work and Pensions is not available and to obtain it would involve disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) original expected cost, (b) original expected delivery date, (c) actual cost incurred and (d) actual delivery date was of each ICT project undertaken and completed by his Department in each year since 1997; who the contractors for each project were; what the (i) initial estimated and (ii) outturn payment to each contractor was; and if he will make a statement. [251145]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) was created in June 2001. Prior to that, the provision of detailed project information was the responsibility of different departments and agencies.

Although the DWP does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmers that include changes to, or new enabling, IT to a greater or lesser extent.

At present the Department has over 200 change projects, a number of which have an IT element which is critical to the success of the project. The number of projects in train at any one time will vary and the duration of the project lifecycle is usually more than one calendar year.

Information on projects that completed more than 4 years ago could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The information requested in relation to contractor payments is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows:

Completed projects where the IT element supported the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business;

the original expected and actual investment costs of these projects;

the original expected delivery date and the actual delivery date where appropriate;

the main IT contractors involved in delivering the project.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248422]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 27W.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253262]

Jonathan Shaw: Members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of their pension on retirement if they continue in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement prompts the member to consider boosting their pension and provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions and a calculator to work out costs for added pension (previously added years).

New entrants are informed of pension options in the employment offer and are provided with a pension information pack.

Cabinet Office provides leaflets that explain added pension and additional voluntary contributions for members. The information is also available in scheme booklets. These are available on the civil service pensions website or on request from the member's pensions administrator.

The Department for Work and Pensions regularly communicates with its staff about Civil Service Pension Schemes via the DWP Intranet.

Departmental Pilot Schemes

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the number of people participating in each (a) pilot programme run by his Department and (b) pathfinder area programme in (i) each of the last two years and (ii) each of the next five years. [249192]

Mr. McNulty: The activities of the Department for Work and Pensions cover a very wide range of programmes and services. Pilots and pathfinders are a normal part of departmental business. The information requested is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254244]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on appointments made by the Department is published in the Annual Appointments Plan which can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/sdpb/public_bodies.asp

More detailed information about individual appointments is set out in the relevant body's Annual Report which is also available through this link.

Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at:

www.publicappointments.gov.uk

The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication "Making and Managing Public Appointments". For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the "Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies". Copies are in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251402]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has not brought forward any capital expenditure.

Departmental Telephone Services

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of telephone calls to his Department's helplines which were answered at the latest period for which information is available. [256368]

Jonathan Shaw: The latest available figures for the percentage of calls answered by DWP's businesses relate to the quarter October to December 2008 and are as follows:

	Percentage
Jobcentre Plus	93.0
Pension Disability and Carers Service	93.4
Debt Management	93.0

The figures represent the percentage of calls answered as a proportion of total calls offered to DWP network or centre. Total calls answered will include those answered by agents/advisers and voice recognition/auto attendant if applicable.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent by his Department on (a) agency and (b) temporary staff in each financial year since 2005-06. [251350]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions utilises both staff employed by agencies and temporary staff employed direct on a casual basis; these costs are shown in the following table:

£ million

	Agency staff	Temporary staff	Total
2005-06	46	32	78
2006-07	43	29	72
2007-08	41	19	60

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252240]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department does not hold records on the information requested centrally; individual business units retain records locally and as such this information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Disability Living Allowance: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in West Chelmsford constituency claimed the higher rate care component of disability living allowance in 2007-08. [254675]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information is in the following table.

Disability living allowance higher rate care component—cases in payment in West Chelmsford parliamentary constituency

	Number
May 2007	710
August 2007	710
November 2007	730
February 2008	720

Notes

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Figures show the number of people in receipt of an allowance and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.

Disability Living Allowance: Sight Impaired

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of visually impaired people who would be classified as having no useful sight for orientation purposes who are not in receipt of disability living allowance higher rate mobility component; what the eligibility criteria for this group are; and how much he estimates it would cost to change the rules so that this group received the component. [250240]

Jonathan Shaw: There is no accepted definition of "no useful sight for orientation purposes". However, during helpful discussions with the RNIB they have suggested that this could be interpreted as meaning that a visually impaired person would have: no perception of light; perception of light only; perception of hand movement; or a visual acuity of 3/60[1] and either "total" or "extensive" loss of visual field. Using these definitions of visual impairment we estimate that, if implemented in 2010-11, we would require additional annual benefit expenditure of around £45 million to extend the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance to this group.

[1] This means that a person with 3/60 can see at three metres an object which a person with normal vision can see at 60 metres.

Disabled: Children

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will bring forward proposals to increase the financial support for mentally and physically disabled children given up for adoption by their parents. [254801]

Jonathan Shaw: We keep the level of all benefits constantly under review. In addition, in the White Paper "Raising Expectations and Increasing Support: Reforming Welfare for the Future" we accepted that there is a need to look closely at the challenges that the current system of benefits presents to carers. We remain committed to looking at carers' benefits in the context of our wider ambitions for the welfare state and to ensuring that the needs of carers are central to the future reform of the benefit system.

Discrimination: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what procedures are available to individuals to lodge complaints against (a) a public body and (b) a private organisation in relation to failure to comply with disability discrimination legislation; and if he will make a statement. [257257]

Jonathan Shaw: There is a range of procedures available to individuals who wish to pursue complaints where they consider that an organisation has failed to meet its duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA). There is no distinction between the arrangements for complaints brought against private organisations and those brought against public bodies.

An individual who wishes to bring a complaint that an organisation has failed in its duties under the DDA may do so by informal means, such as a direct approach to the organisation, the questions procedure, or conciliation.

The Act provides for formal enforcement through civil proceedings. Where the complainant wishes to bring legal proceedings against the organisation, different legal processes apply according to the nature of the complaint.

For complaints concerning employment and vocational training an application may be made to an employment tribunal.

For complaints concerning post-16 education, access to goods, services, facilities and premises, private clubs, and the functions of public bodies, the complainant may bring legal proceedings in a county court in England and Wales, or in a sheriff court in Scotland. In respect of post-16 education in Scotland the claim must be served on the education service provider.

For complaints involving education in schools in England, claims of unlawful discrimination may be made to the 1st Tier Tribunals (formerly Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal), and for Wales to the Special Education Needs Tribunal for Wales. The 1st Tier Tribunal in England will also hear appeals on grounds of disability discrimination in relation to fixed-period (temporary) exclusions from all schools and also, admissions to, and permanent exclusions from, all schools other than maintained schools and academies. Appeals on grounds of disability discrimination in respect of a refusal to admit to, and permanent exclusions from, maintained schools and academies are heard by admissions appeals panels or independent appeals panels. Appeals are dealt with in a similar way in Wales. In Scotland, complaints involving education in schools are dealt with in the sheriff court.

Individuals may also instigate judicial review proceedings against a public authority if they believe it has failed to pay due regard to the disability equality duty.

The Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) has powers of enforcement in respect of the provisions in the DDA that cover discriminatory job advertisements; instructions and pressure to discriminate in employment and vocational training; and the disability equality duty. An individual may raise their concerns about these issues with the EHRC, but it is for the Commission to determine whether enforcement action should be taken.

Discrimination: Mentally Ill

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to increase public funding aimed at reducing levels of discrimination on grounds of mental health. [253138]

Jonathan Shaw: We are committed to ending disability discrimination, including on the grounds of mental health, and are targeting resources in a number of areas to ensure that disabled people have the opportunity to benefit from the positive impact on health and well-being that work can bring.

Through the "Employ ability" programme, we are engaging with employers to improve their understanding of disability and their attitudes towards employing disabled people. Employ ability activity is aimed at small to medium-sized employers and is being rolled out to Scotland, Wales and seven English regions between 24 March 2008 and 27 February 2009. The Government have committed £4 million to the campaign.

Access to Work helps around 24,000 disabled people take up or stay in work annually by helping to fund specialist equipment, such as writing support software, reading rulers or a Job Coach who can work with the customer to help them develop strategies for organising their work. The Access to Work budget has been increased from £15 million in 1994-95 to £69 million in 2008-09. In the White Paper, "Raising Expectations and Increasing Support", we made a commitment to double the budget for Access to Work. This will be a major expansion of the support we can offer to disabled people to help them get and sustain employment. We estimate that this could potentially double the number of people helped annually by 2013-14.

The Government's response to Dame Carol Black's review of the health of Britain's working age population set out our plans to launch a range of initiatives to improve working age health and well-being, including mental health. These include the development of the first ever cross-Government National Mental Health and Employment Strategy which will bring employment and health services closer together, support employers and health care professionals and tackle issues such as discrimination and stigma.

We have also improved and strengthened the Disability Discrimination Act to provide disabled people with a full and comprehensive set of enforceable rights in all areas of life, including in employment. The Disability Discrimination Act provides protection from disability discrimination for anyone who meets the Act's definition of a disabled person. A person with a mental health condition will therefore be covered by the provisions of the Act if the effect of their impairment meets the various elements of the definition.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254067]

Jonathan Shaw: The global economic downturn has far-reaching consequences and requires a co-ordinated response from across Government and businesses. We have been working hard to promote closer working between employers and Jobcentre Plus. On 12 January, for example, we hosted an Employment Summit, bringing together around 120 employers, representative groups and training providers to discuss how businesses can play their part in the response to rising unemployment. The total cost of the event was £162,076.18.

Building on this, the Secretary of State jointly hosted the first meeting of the National Employment Partnership on 11 February. This event was attended by 22 key employers from across a number of sectors to discuss the implementation of the Government's new package of support for those who are still unemployed six months into a jobseeker's allowance claim, and to discuss the role and importance of Local Employment Partnerships.

In addition to these events, Ministers and senior officials continue to meet with outside organisations on a regular basis to discuss specific issues arising from the recession across the whole spectrum of the Department's work.

Employment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what recent steps the Government has taken to assist the long-term unemployed gain employment; [253245]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to help people returning to work. [253246]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The Government are doing everything they can to help those who become unemployed back into work as quickly as possible. We recognise that extra support is needed during the downturn, and a range of new help is being made available to jobseekers.

We are investing an extra £1.3 billion to ensure that through Jobcentre Plus we can continue to provide personal help and advice to everyone who needs it—help in finding a job, filling in job applications and writing a CV plus advice on re-training and acquiring new skills.

From April 2009 we will also be investing a further £0.5 billion to guarantee more support to every person still looking for work after six months by making a range of additional options available including providing up to £2,500 for employers who recruit and train people unemployed for over six months; money and support to set up their own business; training to improve skills to get a job; and the opportunity to volunteer where this will help a person move towards work.

And we are pressing ahead with our welfare reforms from this year that will increase support for unemployed people as their claim to benefit continues. We are creating a new contract for jobseekers, promising help with skills and with employability.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many vacancies were advertised by jobcentres in the (a) fourth quarter of 2008, (b) third quarter of 2008, (c) fourth quarter of 2007 and (d) fourth quarter of 2006. [254035]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is in the following table:

Number of Vacancies advertised in Job centres: Great Britain

Quarter ending	Vacancies
October 2006	397,652
November 2006	347,079
December 2006	308,414
October 2007	504,290
November 2007	469,282
December 2007	394,904

September 2008	373,922
October 2008	383,331
November 2008	343,274
December 2008	271,011

Notes

1. These are not whole economy figures. Coverage relates just to vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus and as such represents a market share of vacancies throughout the whole economy. This proportion varies over time, according to the occupation of the vacancy and industry of the employer, and by local area.
2. These figures are of stocks of unfilled vacancies which reflect more accurately job opportunities available via Jobcentre Plus. In the case of unfilled vacancies, use of the figures on live vacancies is recommended (i.e. excluding suspended vacancies), and this is the default option. Live vacancies may still include some vacancies which have already been filled or are otherwise no longer open to recruits, due to natural lags in procedures for following up vacancies with employers.
3. Comprehensive estimates of all job vacancies (not just those notified to Jobcentre Plus) are available from the monthly ONS Vacancy Survey since April 2001, based on a sample of some 6,000 enterprises. However, the ONS survey is currently designed to provide national estimates only.
4. Interpretation of these data needs to take account of changes in recent years to Jobcentre Plus procedures for taking and handling vacancies. These figures are not fully comparable over time and may not indicate developments in the labour market. A more detailed explanation is available on the nomis website.
5. Data labelled as "Month X" predominantly relate to the previous month. The release calendar gives details of the monthly release dates and the periods covered. For example, January 2009 relates to the period 16 December 2008–12 January 2009).
6. Reporting months relate to either a four week or five week period depending on count dates. Users should be cautious about comparing monthly flows and may wish to standardise the figures. For example the January 2009 period is a four week period whereas February 2009 is a five week period.
7. Vacancy data are collected by month and quarterly data are not available. It is not possible to sum up each month in the quarter as this would lead to some job vacancies being counted twice.

Employment Schemes

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the personalised employment programme pilots are part of (a) the progression to work pathfinders and (b) the invest to save pathfinders. [255101]

Mr. McNulty: The Personalised Employment Programme pilots will test a single, integrated, flexible employment programme for jobseeker's allowance claimants, new employment and support allowance claimants and parents with younger children. These pilots are designed primarily to test a new delivery model for contracted out employment support across multiple client groups.

We intend that the Progression to Work pathfinders will be separate from personalised employment programme pilots. However, we will apply the same broad conditionality framework for the Progression to Work group in the pilots as we plan to use in the pathfinders.

The invest to save pathfinders will be separate from the Personalised Employment Programme pilots in order that we can properly evaluate the impacts of the different delivery and funding models.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of (a) lone parents and (b) partners of existing benefit claimants will participate in progression to work pathfinders. [255115]

Mr. McNulty: The 'Progression to Work' pathfinders will, subject to the passage of legislation, cover approximately 10 per cent. of lone parents on income support with children aged one to six. This equates to approximately 60,000 lone parents falling into the Progression to Work group each year, based on current volumes.

Subject to the passage of legislation, the 'Progression to Work' pathfinders will cover approximately 10 per cent. of partners of benefit recipients with children aged one to six. Based on current volumes, this equates to approximately 10,000 partners of benefit claimants falling in the Progression to Work group each year.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals claimed travel expenses for journeys to and from (a) work-focussed interviews and (b) meetings with personal advisers at Jobcentre Plus offices in each of the last 60 months; how much on average was claimed by each individual; and how much was claimed for such expenses in each month. [256807]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Employment Services: Down's Syndrome

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to help people with Down's syndrome into work. [253097]

Jonathan Shaw: We have significantly improved and strengthened the employment provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, so that it now provides a comprehensive set of enforceable rights for disabled people, including those with Down's syndrome.

We also operate a number of different schemes that disabled people can access in order to help them find work.

Remploy offers support to disabled people with job search facilities and includes one-to-one advice and guidance. Remploy can also set up individually designed development plans, as well as offering in-work support and access to a range of local employment opportunities. Remploy has a proven track record of finding jobs for disabled people.

Jobcentre Plus is committed to supporting disabled people, including those with Down's syndrome, to find suitable, sustainable employment in their local area. It does this through its personal advisers, including Disability Employment Advisers.

Jobcentre Plus works with a range of providers from the private, public and voluntary sectors to provide specialist disability programmes to help disabled people to overcome the labour market barriers they may face. these include Work Preparation, WORKSTEP (a programme of supported employment), New Deal for Disabled People, Residential Training and the Job Introduction Scheme. Disability Employment Advisers have access to work psychologists to assist them in supporting customers if appropriate.

Disability Employment Advisers are also able to facilitate disabled people's applications to Access to Work, which can assist an individual who already has a job or has a job to start. Access to Work can provide practical advice and support to the disabled person and their employer to help them overcome work related obstacles resulting from disability. All Access to Work support is tailored to the individual's needs.

The Government have also set up the "Employ ability" programme, in which we are currently engaging with employers to improve their understanding of disability and their attitudes towards employing disabled people, with long-term health conditions. "Employ ability" is aimed at small to medium-sized employers and is being rolled out to Scotland, Wales and seven regions between 24 March 2008 and 27 February 2009.

Employment Services: General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 615W, on employment services: general practitioners, (1) what the location is of each GP surgery in which an employment adviser is placed; [248399]

(2) how many Jobcentre advisers have been placed in GP surgeries in each financial year since the programme started; [248400]

(3) what future projections his Department has made for (a) expenditure on and (b) the number of Jobcentre employment advisers in GP surgeries; [248401]

(4) how much has been spent on placing Jobcentre advisers in GP surgeries in each financial year since the programme started. [248402]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Information about surgery locations in the original pilot and expansion is in the following table. In addition, advisers provide services in approximately 70 GPs surgeries in Scotland. Information about the towns where the surgeries are located is also provided.

In the original five pilot sites the project was funded for one full time adviser. The current projection for expenditure is £309,996 per year per district. This includes staff costs, training and set up costs for the surgery which will include a risk assessment. The number of advisers will remain at one full-time post per district. Occasionally a district will split the post to two part-time posts. The projected total is therefore 15 to 17 advisers. The original pilot had five to seven advisers.

The original five pilot sites were funded from Pathways to Work programme money with £1.5 million for three years. However, individual sites added funding from a variety of sources to boost provision for the Pathways Advisory Service. For the expansion no significant spend has taken place as the districts are currently working to set up the project. It is expected each district will keep within the projected £309,996 figure.

For Scotland, information about the number of whole time equivalent advisers who have worked in GPs surgeries is in the following table. Funding for the project is not ring-fenced but comes from outreach work budgets. Therefore, associated costs such as risk assessment will be part of this spend and mirror the costs incurred for the main project. The cost of the personal advisers is met from general Jobcentre Plus staff cost budgets. It is planned to continue to provide the equivalent of nine full-time advisers for the foreseeable future.

Employment: Coastal Areas

Mr. McNulty: The Department has made no assessment of under-employment in seaside towns.

Employment: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were notified to Jobcentre Plus in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [255641]

2007	8,811	66,075

1. These are not whole economy figures. Coverage relates just to vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus and as such represent a market share of vacancies throughout the whole economy. This proportion varies over time, according to the occupation of the vacancy and industry of the employer, and by local area.

Employment: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many vacancies for positions within the Jobcentre Plus network have been advertised in each of the last 12 months in the North East; and what proportion of those were advertised in local newspapers. [254914]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many vacancies for positions within the Jobcentre Plus network have been advertised in each of the last 12 months in the North East and what proportion of those were advertised in local newspapers. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The table below gives the total number of vacancies in the North East Region of Jobcentre Plus, and the number and proportion of these that are externally advertised through a variety of routes. We are not able to identify which specific vacancies were advertised in local newspapers. However, external vacancies were advertised by grouping these into 16 separate recruitment exercises and of these, 12 recruitment exercises advertised vacancies through the local press.

Employment: Wimbledon

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were notified to the Jobcentre Plus branch which serves residents of Wimbledon constituency in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [256616]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The information is in the following table.

Number of notified vacancies in Wimbledon parliamentary constituency in 2006-08

	Number
2006	4,463
2007	4,667
2008	4,903

Notes:
1. Changes to Jobcentre Plus vacancy handling procedures have lead to a major discontinuity in the vacancy statistics pre and post May 2006. See http://www.nomisweb.co.uk/articles/177.aspx#may06 before comparing data over this period. Interpretation of this data needs to take account of changes in recent years to Jobcentre Plus procedures for taking and handling vacancies.
2. These figures are not fully comparable over time and may not indicate developments in the labour market. A more detailed explanation is available on the nomis website.
3. These are not whole economy figures. Coverage relates just to vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus and as such represent a market share of vacancies throughout the whole economy. This proportion varies over time, according to the occupation of the vacancy and industry of the employer, and by local area. Jobcentre Plus Labour Market System.
4. Notified vacancies include any speculative placings recorded by Jobcentre Plus. Datasets from May 2006 may reflect substantially reduced levels of speculative placings as part of the notified series. Consequently, care should be taken in interpreting time-series data of the notified series.
5. Comprehensive estimates of all job vacancies (not just those notified to Jobcentre Plus) are available from the monthly Office for National Statistics Vacancy Survey since April 2001, based on a sample of some 6,000 enterprises. However, the Office for National Statistics survey is currently designed to provide national estimates only.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253589]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP and local authorities offer administrative penalties as an alternative to prosecution for benefit fraud. The amount of the administrative penalty is set in legislation (Section 115A of the Social Security Administration Act 1992) as 30 per cent. of the amount of the overpayment.

Health and Safety Executive: Marketing

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of the Health and Safety Executive's Make the Promise campaign was; and if he will make a statement. [254069]

Jonathan Shaw: The cost of Health and Safety Executive's (HSE) 'Make the promise - Come home safe' farm safety campaign to date is £692,000. This covers development work; advertising in the trade press and online publications; a direct marketing pack to nearly 68,000 farmers; a press and PR campaign.

Farming is one of the most dangerous ways to make a living in Britain. Agriculture comprises about 1.5 per cent. of the working population but accounts for 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. of fatal incidents each year. This new campaign is part of a wider HSE initiative targeted at reducing the number of work related deaths in farming. The 'Make the promise' campaign has very strong support from the National Farmers' Union and other stakeholders.

Housing Benefit

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) calendar days and (b) working days on average each local authority took to process (i) new housing benefit claims and (ii) housing benefit claims submitted by existing recipients as a result of a change in circumstances in each of the last (A) 12 months and (B) five years. [257192]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 762W.

Information is not available in working days or for individual months.

Incapacity Benefit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on the administration of incapacity benefit in each of the last 10 years. [249152]

Jonathan Shaw: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your question asking how much was spent on the administration of Incapacity Benefit in each of the last 10 years. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus started recording the costs of activities such as Incapacity Benefit processing in 2003/04. The available information is in the following table.

Incapacity benefit administration costs

	£ million
2003-04	100
2004-05	97
2005-06	94

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest million.
2. Figures are from the Jobcentre Plus Activity Based Information system for 2003-04 and 2004-05. The figures for 2005-06 onwards are from the Jobcentre Plus Activity Based Management System.
3. Figures represent salary costs only for Jobcentre Plus staff undertaking the task of incapacity benefit processing.
4. Various changes to incapacity benefit policy and the centralisation of benefit processing have had an effect on the costs of incapacity benefit processing and administration costs. However, the Activity Based Management system cannot quantify these changes separately.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of existing incapacity benefit claimants will take part in (a) a single work-focused interview, (b) three work-focused interviews and (c) mandatory work preparation activities in (i) 2009, (ii) 2010, (iii) 2011 and (iv) 2012. [255182]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 9 February 2009]: From April 2008, all incapacity benefits claimants have been able to access Pathways to Work on a voluntary basis, including work-focused interviews and a range of back-to-work support.

From late 2009 we plan to start providing three work-focused interviews to existing incapacity benefit claimants under the age of 25 in Jobcentre Plus-led Pathways to Work areas.

For the majority of existing incapacity benefits customers, the mandatory engagement announced in the White Paper 'Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future' (Cm 7506) will occur once those claimants have been transferred to employment and support allowance between 2010 and 2013. Customers placed in the support group will not be required to undertake any mandatory activities, although they will be able to volunteer for back-to-work support.

As the exact timing and profile of the transfer of these customers is still being developed, it is not possible to fully answer the question at this point in time.

Industrial Health and Safety: Nuclear Power

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the budget of the Nuclear Directorate of the Health and Safety Executive (a) was in each of the last five financial years, (b) is in 2008-09 and (c) will be in each of the next five financial years; [255929]

(2) what the budget of (a) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, (b) the Office for Civil Nuclear Security and (c) the Health and Safety Executive Nuclear Directorate (i) is for 2008-09 and (ii) was for each of the last five financial years. [256000]

Jonathan Shaw: The budgets for 2008-09 and for each of the last five years are set out in the following table:

	2008-09[1]	2007-08[2]	2006-07	2005-06	2004-05	2003-04
Nuclear Installations Inspectorate	25.389	21.844	19.034	19.203	18.215	[3]n/a
Office for Civil Nuclear Security[4]	2.867	2.481	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
Nuclear Directorate[5]	28.256	24.977	19.643	19.881	19.252	19.397

n/a = Not available

[3] The figure for 2003-04 for the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate are unavailable other than at disproportionate cost to HSE.

[4] The Office for Civil Nuclear Security was transferred to HSE on 1 April 2007 from the then Department for Trade and Industry.

[5] Some 97 per cent. of ND's direct costs and overheads are recovered through charges to industry under the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 and Health and Safety (Fees) (Amendment) Regulations 2007. Since 2007-08 this has also included 100 per cent. recovery of the Office for Civil Nuclear Security direct costs and overheads recovered under the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001, the Energy Act 2004, the extant security provisions of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 (as amended) and, in respect of nuclear material, the Import of Goods (Control) Order 1954. These costs exclude the HSE central service costs.

Nuclear Directorate's (ND) indicative budget for 2009-10 is £36.4 million[1]; and for 2010/11, £37 million[1]. ND's budget beyond 2010-11 has not yet been set.

[1] ND's indicative budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11 were revised in January 2009 to reflect the forecast costs of ND's transition to a statutory corporation. The figures will be further revised to reflect the outcome of HSE's pay negotiations with its trades unions.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the budget of (a) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, (b) the Office for Civil Nuclear Security and (c) the Health and Safety Executive Nuclear Directorate is allocated to (i) staffing costs and (ii) transport costs. [256001]

Jonathan Shaw: The answer is provided in the following table.

			Percentage
Financial year 2007-08[1]	Nuclear Installations Inspectorate	Office for Civil Nuclear Security	Nuclear Directorate
Staffing costs[2]	76	61	75
Transport costs[3]	6	10	7

[1] The percentages are calculated based on the outturns for the last full financial year, rounded to the nearest whole number.

[2] Staffing costs cover permanent staff payroll costs and the cost of staff substitutes such as agency workers.

[3] Transport costs cover travel and subsistence, official vehicle hire and detached duty costs both in the UK and internationally.

Industrial Health and Safety: Prosecutions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many successful prosecutions the Health and Safety Executive brought for breaches of health and safety law by employers that led to an illness believed to be caused or made worse by their current or past work in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254210]

Jonathan Shaw: From 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2008, the Health and Safety Executive took the following number of successful prosecution cases against employers for instances of work related ill health:

	Number
2004-05	5
2005-06	3

These prosecutions resulted from action taken following the investigation of cases of reported occupational disease, or where employee work related ill health was identified during other HSE interventions.

Across the same period, HSE has successfully prosecuted many more employers for failing to control the risks of their work activities to their workers' and others health.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many successful prosecutions the Health and Safety Executive made for breaches of health and safety law by employers that led to a workplace fatality in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254284]

Jonathan Shaw: From 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2008, the Health and Safety Executive took the following number of successful prosecution cases against employers for instances of work related fatalities:

	Number
2004-05	108
2005-06	79
2006-07	104
2007-08	98

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many successful prosecutions the Health and Safety Executive brought for breaches of health and safety law by employers that led to a workplace injury in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254209]

Jonathan Shaw: From 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2008, the Health and Safety Executive took the following number of successful prosecution cases against employers for instances of work related injury:

	Number
2004-05	380
2005-06	306
2006-07	277
2007-08	274

These figures exclude prosecutions of work-related fatalities.

Industrial Health and Safety: Temperature

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints the Health and Safety Executive received on high temperatures in the workplace in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254274]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is as follows:

	Number of complaints
2004-05	2
2005-06	2

The information has been obtained from HSE's operational information system (COIN)

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many prosecutions of employers the Health and Safety Executive undertook in cases of failure to manage high temperatures in the workplace in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254275]

Jonathan Shaw: From 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2008, the Health and Safety Executive took no prosecutions as a result of employers' failures to manage high temperatures in the workplace.

Although outside the period specified in the question, legal proceedings have recently been initiated by HSE related to a workplace fatality in 2006-07 in which heat stress was implicated.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people who have a condition believed to have been caused or exacerbated by exposure to high temperature in their work. [254276]

Jonathan Shaw: There is insufficient evidence to allow a reliable estimate to be made.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance the Health and Safety Executive has issued on workplace temperatures (a) which are not considered reasonable and (b) at which control measures to manage heat must be put in place. [254283]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Rochdale (Paul Rowen) on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1450W.

The guidance issued by HSE does not specify a maximum workplace temperature at which control measures must be put in place.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many workplace injuries where exposure to high temperature was a factor were reported to the Health and Safety Executive during (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [254277]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Rochdale (Paul Rowen) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 88W.

Jonathan Shaw: Instances of heat stress, as a medical condition, may be included in injuries reported under the Reporting of Injuries Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 but it is not possible to identify them separately.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the administrative cost of the Jobcentre Plus closure programme was in each of the last five years; [251468]

(2) what savings were achieved by the Jobcentre Plus closure programme in each of the last five years; [251469]

(3) what the cost of running the Nairn Jobcentre Plus office was in each of the last five years before it was closed. [251471]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints Jobcentre Plus have received from customers on the physical inaccessibility of Jobcentre Plus offices and facilities in each year since 1997. [249631]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The information is not available.

Jobcentre Plus: Manpower

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria will be used to allocate the additional 2,000 staff at Jobcentre Plus offices proposed in the pre-Budget report; what the timetable for their recruitment is; how many staff have been recruited; how many additional staff will be allocated to the Sutton Jobcentre; whether a Rapid Response manager has been appointed in each district; and if he will make a statement. [254511]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what criteria will be used to allocate the additional 2,000 staff at Jobcentre Plus offices proposed in the pre-Budget report; what the timetable for their recruitment is; how many staff have been recruited to date; how many additional staff will be allocated to the Sutton Jobcentre; if a Rapid Response manager has been appointed in each district. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

In October 2008 the Secretary of State announced that Jobcentre Plus would retain 2,000 more staff than originally planned in 2008-09. In November 2008, following the pre-Budget report, the Secretary of State announced that there will be an extra 6,000 staff in place in Jobcentre Plus for the 2009-10 financial year.

Jobcentre Plus will allocate the additional staff on a proportionate basis between our Jobcentres, Contact Centres and Benefit Delivery Centres. My operational directors will use their judgement and workload information to decide where to deploy the resources.

Since November we have recruited 2,700 additional staff nationally and plan to recruit at least 1,200 a month until we reach the right level. We have already placed an additional ten staff in Sutton Jobcentre and are in the process of recruiting further staff. The precise number of extra staff who will be placed in Sutton Jobcentre is not yet known.

I can confirm that each Jobcentre Plus district has a named Rapid Response Manager. When redundancies in local businesses become known, this Manager co-ordinates the Jobcentre response and support. I am pleased to report that since November over 650 employers have accepted help from Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus: Sutton

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment his Department has made of the (a) staffing and (b) office space capacity of the Jobcentre Plus office at Helena House, Sutton, in connection with increased demand resulting from (i) the economic downturn, (ii) changes to incapacity benefit and (iii) changes to other welfare benefits; and if he will make a statement. [254512]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question on what assessment has been made of the need for additional staff and office accommodation at Sutton Jobcentre in connection with increased demand resulting from the economic downturn, changes to incapacity benefit and other welfare benefits. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We have already placed an additional ten staff in Sutton Jobcentre and are in the process of recruiting further staff. We are currently looking at the possibility of taking on an extra floor at Helena House to give us extra capacity. I am unable to provide a firm timescale at this stage as the space we are seeking is currently occupied by another Government Department. I have asked my District Manager for South London, Chris Nichol, to keep you updated with progress on this and related work to respond to the rise in unemployment in Sutton, and changes to the welfare system.

Jobcentre Plus: Temporary Employment

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the policy of Jobcentre Plus on the employment of temporary staff (a) up to and (b) beyond 52 weeks is; and if he will make a statement. [245446]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what is the policy of Jobcentre Plus on the employment of temporary staff up to and beyond 52 weeks. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Department for Work and Pensions policy, which applies in Jobcentre Plus, is that in normal circumstances we recruit temporary staff for up to 39 weeks. In very exceptional circumstances they can be extended up to a maximum of two years.

I hope this is helpful.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many contribution-based claimants of jobseeker's allowance who were entitled to receive an income-based allowance after 182 days experienced a gap in payments before receiving an income-based allowance, in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [255557]

4. When presenting the EU time series, countries which joined the EU during the time series have been included in the EU for the whole of the time series, to facilitate comparisons over time.
5. The EU time series excludes national insurance numbers registered to UK nationals.

Natural Gas: Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to raise public awareness of the fact that CORGI is no longer the body responsible for gas safety; and if he will make a statement. [249900]

Jonathan Shaw: As part of its contract with HSE, Capita are responsible for promoting and communicating the new Gas Safe Register™ brand to installers and the general public. Capita have a Key Performance Indicator to achieve at least 40 per cent. unprompted brand recognition of the New Gas Safe Register™ among gas consumers by the end of October 2009, rising to 75 per cent. by 2011. HSE also plans to communicate directly with gas installers and through the trade press to make clear that, from 1 April 2009, the Gas Safe Register is the only register approved by HSE for gas work under gas safety law, and that the CORGI register will no longer count for these purposes.

New Deal Schemes

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish the letter recently sent by his Department to bidders for Flexible New Deal contracts regarding the Department's revised assumptions for customer volumes; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter. [254959]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 February 2009]: A letter was issued to shortlisted bidders in the Flexible New Deal competition on 30 January. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what timetable he has set for awarding contracts for providers under the flexible new deal; and if he will make a statement. [256607]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The competition for contracts to deliver Flexible New Deal is under way; 124 bids were submitted and these are being evaluated. The number of people expected to start the programme is likely to increase from the numbers provided to bidders earlier in the competition. DWP believe it prudent to now ask bidders to submit an additional bid.

This consultation will delay the announcement of preferred bidders. However the Government remains committed to bringing in the Flexible New Deal phase 1 from October 2009.

Notes

1. The average cost has been calculated by dividing the total expenditure each year by the number of customers joining the programme within that year. This provides a good approximation, but since the costs for any one individual occur over a period of time (and are not possible to track) the figures will not be exact.
2. Expenditure figures exclude administration costs as they cannot be identified since 2002-03 when ring fences were removed with agreement from HM Treasury.
3. In the case of New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 Plus, the expenditure does include associated Annually Managed Expenditure (weekly training allowances).
4. New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 Plus started in 1998, with phased introduction between January and July. Average expenditure per customer on New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 Plus has reduced year on year since 2005-06 due to changes to New Deal from April 2004 (which included reducing the length of the options period to 13 weeks). The full impact of this change did not take effect until 2005-06.
5. New Deal 50 Plus started in 2000. Performance information is not available until 2003-04. New Deal 50 Plus costs reduce after 2002-03 as the employment credit element of ND50+ (funded by DWP) ceased and was replaced by the 50 plus element of the working tax credit (funded by HMRC). The small residual spend relates to the New Deal 50 Plus Training Grant.
6. New Deal for Disabled People (NDDP) started in 2001. Spend prior to this date is for pilots in selected areas. Performance information is not available until 2001-02. Both costs and participant numbers have risen significantly following re-tendering in 2004. As participants can stay on the programme for longer than a year, dividing spend by starts is not really a valid comparison of spend per person. Furthermore, NDDP is no longer a national programme (it only operates in 19 districts) so costings would be further affected since the programme was subsumed by provider led Pathways from December 2007.
7. New Deal for Lone Parents started in 1998. Average expenditure per customer on the New Deal for Lone Parents programme increased from 2006 due to the additional help available by way of in work credit, child care costs and the increased availability of training opportunities.
8. New Deal for Partners started in 1999 and was re-launched in 2004. Performance information is not available until 2004-05.
9. New Deal for Musicians started in 1999. Performance information is not available for the New Deal for Musicians Programme.

Peers: Interests

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255234]

Jonathan Shaw: None of the DWP Ministers received representation from Lord Moonie, Lord Taylor of Blackburn, Lord Snape or Lord Truscott in the last seven months.

Pension Credit: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people resident in West Chelmsford constituency (a) were entitled to claim and (b) claimed pension credit in each of the last five years. [254756]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Estimates of eligibility to pension credit are not available below the level of Great Britain.

The latest estimates of the take-up rates and the number of those entitled to but not receiving pension credit is published in the report "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2006-07".

The numbers of claimants in receipt of pension credit in West Chelmsford in each of the last five years are shown in the following table:

Claimants of pension credit in West Chelmsford parliamentary constituency[1]

As at May each year	Total claimants
2004	2,890
2005	3,180
2006	3,170
2007	3,210
2008	3,130

Notes:
1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Pension credit is claimed on a household basis. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pension Protection Fund

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed pension payments from the Pension Protection Fund in (a) the UK, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last five years. [245864]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pension Protection Fund was set up to up to protect members of eligible defined benefit and hybrid pension schemes when the sponsoring employer experiences a qualifying insolvency event and the scheme cannot afford to pay members' benefits at PPF levels of compensation. Individuals do not need to make a claim to be eligible for PPF compensation.

The PPF commenced operations in April 2005 and the first schemes transferred to the PPF in December 2006.

As at 30 November 2007 there were 1,167 members receiving compensation from the PPF, with 6,024 members due to receive compensation in future as it falls due. 10 members receiving compensation and 29 deferred members, resided in the North East of England.

As at 30 November 2008 there were 7,703 members receiving compensation from the PPF, with 12,942 members due to receive compensation in future as it falls due. 345 members receiving compensation and 518 deferred members, resided in the North East of England.

A breakdown of the aforementioned figures below regional level is not available.

While in the PPF assessment period, the process which determines whether a scheme transfers to the PPF, the trustees remain responsible for the running of the scheme with benefits being paid to members at PPF levels when they fall due. As at 30 November 2008 there were 121,300 scheme members, across the UK, in the assessment period.

Pension, Disability and Carers Service: Correspondence

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the number of inaccurate letters sent out to pensioners by the Pension, Disability and Carers Service in each of the last five years. [257086]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The requested information is unavailable.

Pensioners: Carer's Premium

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants above state pension age currently receive a premium for being a carer; what the cost to the Exchequer is expected to be over the next 12 months of such payments; if he will estimate the cost of making a payment equal to the current carers premium to the pensioner carers of recipients of attendance allowance or the pensioner recipients of the care component of disability living allowance; and if he will make a statement. [250398]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Pension credit ensures a guaranteed minimum income for all people aged 60 and over. People who are entitled to carer's allowance—whether or not carer's allowance is in payment—may benefit from the additional amount for carers in pension credit. The pension credit standard minimum guarantee of £124.05 for single pensioners (£189.35 for couples) is increased by £27.75 where the additional amount for carers is payable—if both members of a couple are entitled to carer's allowance the additional amount is doubled.

Approximately 240,000 pension credit claimants had an additional amount for carers in May 2008.

In addition, approximately 20,000 claimants of housing benefit and/or council tax benefit aged 60 or over were in receipt of a carers' premium in May 2004, the latest available data.

It is estimated that, all else remaining unchanged, the current additional amounts for carers increase the costs of income related benefits by some £300 million in 2009-10.

Information necessary to estimate the cost of making a payment equal to the current carers premium to the pensioner carers of recipients of attendance allowance or the pensioner recipients of the care component of disability living allowance is not available.

Pensioners: Income

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of pensioners who fall below (a) 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income, (b) 50 per cent. of contemporary median household income and (c) 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 contemporary median household income top rated in line with (i) prices and (ii) earnings in (A) each constituency in Greater London and (B) England. [256756]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Specific information regarding low income for the United Kingdom is available in "Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2006-07".

Latest figures for the percentage of pensioners in Greater London and England who fall below 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income, 50 per cent. of contemporary median household income and 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 contemporary median household income uprated in line with prices are shown in the following table:

Percentage of pensioners falling below various thresholds of median household income after housing costs, London and England: 2004-05 to 2006-07

	Greater London	England
Below 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income[1]	22	18

Percentage of pensioners falling below various thresholds of median household income, after housing costs, London and England, 2004-05 to 2006-07

	Greater London	England
Below 50 per cent. of contemporary median household income	12	9
Below 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 median household income uprated in line with prices	12	9

Notes:
1. Three survey year averages are given as robust single year estimates cannot be produced because of small sample sizes.
2. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
3. The figures are based on OECD equalisation factors.
4. Figures are based on survey data and as such are subject to a degree of sampling and non-sampling error.

The data source does not allow us to provide robust numbers for estimates below the level of Government office region. Information on the percentage of pensioners who fall below 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 contemporary median household income uprated in line with earnings is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pensions: Teachers

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of recipients of pensions under the Teachers' Pension Scheme were receiving incorrect pension payments when the errors in payments to some public service pensioners were discovered. [255758]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

Of the estimated 95,000 pensioners referred to in the written ministerial statement made on 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 111-12WS, just over 20,000 were members of the Teachers' Pension Scheme. This equates to less than 4 per cent. of pensioners in the scheme.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many companies submitted bids for the Post Office card account successor contract prior to the cancellation of the tendering process. [256114]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Three suppliers submitted bids for the Post Office card account successor contract.

Poverty

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell of 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 849W, on jobseeker's allowance, if he will estimate the (a) number and (b) proportion of households who have someone in work but where the household was in poverty in each of the last five years. [256113]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The information is shown in the following table.

Number and proportion of households who have someone in work and have a household income below 60 per cent. of contemporary median income, 2002-03 to 2006-07, before and after housing costs

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The information is shown in the following table.

The risk of a working age adult who is working being in a low income household in Great Britain in 1998-99 is much lower at 7 per cent., before housing costs and 10 per cent., after housing costs than for workless working age adults, where the equivalent proportions are 35 per cent. (before housing costs) and 46 per cent. (after housing costs) as shown in the aforementioned table.

Poverty: Children

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to reduce levels of child poverty in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency since 1997. [256401]

Kitty Ussher: Since 1998-99, 600,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty and the number of children in absolute poverty has halved from 3.4 to 1.7 million.

Government measures over the past two years will lift around a further 500,000 children from relative poverty, these include increasing the rate of child benefit and disregarding child benefit in calculating income for housing benefit and council tax benefit from October 2009.

We have also helped nearly 600,000 lone parents into work through the new deal for lone parents programme. As two-fifths of children in poverty live in lone parent families, new deal for lone parents is invaluable in contributing to the target of abolishing child poverty.

A number of pilot schemes will be introduced shortly to trial innovative initiatives to reduce child poverty. The Work-Focused Services in Children's Centres initiative will pilot in Redcar and Cleveland, with other child poverty pilots to be trialled in other local authorities within the north-east region.

Legislation, planned for this session, will ensure all levels of Government play their part in meeting our target to eradicate child poverty by 2020.

Rail Warrants

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on rail warrants for customers to attend appointments required by the Department in the last year for which figures are available; and how many rail warrants were issued in this period. [245800]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Rapid Response Service

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what qualifications would make a person over-qualified and therefore not eligible for Government-funded re-training as part of the Rapid Response Service; and if he will make a statement; [254043]

(2) what qualifications are available from Government-funded re-training offered by the Rapid Response Service; and if he will make a statement; [254044]

(3) what guidance is available to Jobcentre Plus district managers to help them decide when a significant redundancy which warrants the use of the Rapid Response Service has taken place; and if he will make a statement. [254046]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking what qualifications would make a person over qualified and therefore not eligible for Government-funded re-training as part of the Rapid Response Service; what qualifications are available from Government-funded re-training offered by the Rapid Response Service; and what guidance is available to Jobcentre Plus District Managers to help them decide when a significant redundancy which warrants the use of the Rapid Response Service has taken place. These are issues that fall within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Rapid Response Service is available to all employers Jobcentre Plus identify as being in the process of making redundancies. We will contact every employer who meets their statutory requirement to notify the Insolvency Service when making 20 or more people redundant. In addition we will offer support to any other employers we identify as making redundancies where, based on their knowledge of the local labour market, the District Manager determines that the cumulative impact of redundancies justifies using the Rapid Response Service.

If the employer accepts our offer of support, we give help and advice on claiming benefits and jobsearch to those people faced with redundancy. As part of the support package, where the type of work being lost is not readily available in the labour market, a Skills Transfer Analysis is offered to all those affected.

The Skills Transfer Analysis compares the skills the person has with those required to find work in the labour market in which they are looking for work. Where skill gaps are identified Job Focused Training is sourced to fill the gaps and help people quickly fill the skills gaps. A person cannot be over qualified for Job Focused Training, provided the Skills Transfer Analysis identifies that there is a need for the training.

The prime purpose of the Job Focused Training is to help the person gain the necessary skills to find work quickly. There is no expectation that this training will lead directly to a qualification.

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the take-up of the Jobcentre Plus Rapid Response services by employers contemplating redundancies. [254429]

Mr. McNulty: Jobcentre Plus offer support to employers when they receive formal notification of 20, or more, potential redundancies from Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform or when they are made aware through other means. Since the announcement of the expansion of the Rapid Response Service in November 2008, over 650 employers have accepted the offer of support.

The Rapid Response Service is a voluntary service. Employers are free to take it up or make their own arrangements to help their redundant staff.

Rented Housing: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much and what proportion of private rented accommodation in (a) Southend-on-Sea local authority area, (b) Essex county council area and (c) Southend West constituency is available for rent at or below the median rent established by the Rent Service for the relevant rental market area; and if he will make a statement. [255103]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 469W.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to enable Jobcentre Plus customers to receive emergency assistance in addition to provision available under the Social Fund. [253451]

Kitty Ussher: In terms of emergency assistance, the social fund provides financial support to vulnerable people in times of genuine need through crisis loans. This type of assistance has first call on the social fund loans budget and all crisis loan applicants who satisfy the eligibility conditions are given an award. Gross expenditure on crisis loans in Great Britain has increased by 31 per cent. between January and December 2007 and January to December 2008.

From January to December 2008, around 45 per cent. of crisis loan awards in Great Britain were made to people representing hardship before their first benefit payment. The current legal provisions do not specify that an advance payment of benefit can be made in such circumstances. The current Welfare Reform Bill contains powers that will address this point, allowing the consideration of advance payments for this group of people. This will reduce the need for such crisis loans.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will reduce the rate of national interest on savings taken into account when assessing a person's entitlement to means-tested benefits. [258045]

Mr. McNulty: The first £6,000 of capital/savings (£10,000 for those in care homes) is fully disregarded in the income related benefits:

Income support;

Jobseeker's allowance (income-based);

Pension credit;

Housing benefit; and Council tax benefit.

The formula for calculating the amount of income that can be generated from capital/savings above £6,000 in the income related benefits, known as tariff income, is not intended to represent any rate of return that could be obtained from investing capital. It provides a simple method of calculating the weekly contribution that people with capital in excess of the level of the disregard are expected to make from their resources to help meet their normal living costs.

As there is no link with actual market rates, the tariff income rates within the income-related benefits remain unaltered regardless of whether interest rates rise or fall.

The tariff income levels are kept under continual review but they can be increased only when priorities and resources allow.

Social Security Benefits: Control Orders

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 275W, on control orders, (1) how many individuals subject to control orders are in receipt of benefits administered by his Department; [248842]

(2) how much his Department has spent on (a) incapacity benefit, (b) jobseeker's allowance, (c) disability living allowance and (d) income support in order to assist individuals who are subject to control orders in each year since 2005. [248845]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Secretary's last quarterly written ministerial statement on control orders, covering the period 11 September to 10 December 2008, was published on 15 December 2008. The figures provided in this report are the latest published figures on control orders. These show that on 10 December 2008 there were nine individuals whom the Home Office cited as being subject to a control order who were in receipt of Department for Work and Pensions administered benefits. Seven individuals were in receipt of jobseeker's allowance only; one was in receipt of incapacity benefit and income support; and one was in receipt of incapacity benefit, income support and disability living allowance.

The requested information on expenditure is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Social Security Benefits: Dual Nationality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what account his Department took of the situation of UK citizens with dual nationality when it decided to require a passport as proof of identity for the purpose of access to services it provides. [256654]

Mr. McNulty: The Department for Work and Pensions follows a robust process to verify an individual's identity prior to providing access to benefits.

The Department accepts passports, including those passports held by citizens with dual nationalities, as well as birth certificates and a range of other supporting identity documentary evidence when assuring a person's identity.

Social Security Benefits: Inverness Nairn Badenoch and Strathspey

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants of each type of benefit there were in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency in each of the last 60 months. [251475]

Mr. McNulty: Constituency information is not available prior to 2005. The available information is in the following table.

Working age and pensioner client groups, by statistical group in the Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, as at May each year

	2005	2006	2007	2008
All	25,590	25,720	25,940	26,300
Jobseekers	990	980	760	730
Incapacity benefits	4,320	4,320	4,330	4,110
Lone parent	890	870	800	770
Carers	900	1,000	1,030	1,040
Other income related benefits	3,680	3,790	3,770	3,750

Working age and pensioner client groups, by statistical group in the Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, as at May each year

	2005	2006	2007	2008
Disabled	2,790	2,880	2,940	3,140
Bereaved	330	290	250	230
State pension only	11,690	11,670	12,050	12,550

Notes:
1. Caseload figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3. Figures for attendance allowance, carers allowance, and disability living allowance include those cases with entitlement but where payment is currently suspended (for example because of an extended stay in hospital or being in receipt of an overlapping benefit).
4. Statistical group is a hierarchical variable. A person who fits into more than one category will only appear in the top-most one for which they are eligible:
Jobseeker: claimant on jobseekers allowance;
Incapacity benefits: claimant on incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance;
Lone parent: claimant on income support with child under 16 and no partner;
Carer: claimant entitled to carer's allowance;
Other income related benefit: claimant on income support or pension credit; disabled: claimant on attendance allowance or disability living allowance, anyone of working age in this group will be claiming DLA only, and is likely to be in work;
Bereaved: claimant on bereavement benefit or widow's benefit;
State pension only: claimant in receipt of state pension only.
For example a claimant of disability living allowance and jobseekers allowance would appear in "job seeker", not in "disabled".
5. Jobseeker's allowance data have been revised following improvements to the methodology for compiling Department for Work and Pensions jobseeker's allowance statistics. To ensure consistency overtime the improved methodology was applied to historical data. The preferred source of data for jobseeker's allowance claimants is the Office for National Statistics' claimant count. However, in this case, the Department for Work and Pensions Work and Pensions Longitudinal Survey has been used for consistency with the other benefit statistics.

Social Security Benefits: Medical Examinations

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which medical examination centres in London are contracted by his Department to carry out medical assessments in relation to claims for benefits; which such centres have parking spaces for disabled people; and what requirements his Department makes in respect of the accessibility of such centres to people with disabilities. [255459]

Jonathan Shaw: There are seven medical examination centres in the London area. These are Balham, Highgate, Croydon, Marylebone, Romford, Ealing and Wimbledon. None of these buildings have any car parking facilities. Under the terms of the Medical Services Contract, Atos Healthcare is required to comply with all appropriate legislation in delivering medical services which includes the Disability Discrimination Act. Where a customer's disability would give rise to difficulties in accessing an examination centre, Medical Services are required to make alternative arrangements for the examination to take place.

Social Security Benefits: Offenders

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many written warnings have been issued to benefit claimants in (a) pilot and (b) other areas on sanctions in relation to refusal to engage in a rehabilitation programme in respect of anti-social behaviour or criminal behaviour under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 as amended by the Welform Reform Act 2007 in each month since November 2007; in how many cases benefit sanctions have been applied; what assessment he has made of progress in the pilot areas against the objectives of the pilot scheme; and if he will make a statement. [254031]

Mr. McNulty: Although the pilots for the sanction in housing benefit related to anti-social behaviour have been running since 1 November 2007, none of the eight local authorities has issued a written warning under section 130B of the Contributions and Benefits Act.

The courts for the pilot areas have notified the department of only five repossessions on the grounds of anti social behaviour. There are no data for other areas. Research conducted so far has concluded that, although the sanction has been publicised and used in routine warning letters to tenants engaged in anti-social behaviour, the general view is that the impact of a warning of a sanction at an early stage is limited and the threat of eviction is taken more seriously. However, the pilots have 10 more months to run and we will continue to research the deterrent effect of the sanction and the impact of any sanctions administered during that period.

Social Security Benefits: Overpayments

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many overpayments of each type of benefit were made to claimants in (a) Eastbourne and (b) the UK in the last 12 months. [257207]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available for claimants in Eastbourne. Information in relation to how many overpayments of each type of benefit in the UK is in the following table. The information is not available in the format that covers the last 12 months, but is broken down for the year April 2007 to March 2008, and then from April to December 2008 inclusive.

The data include all identified overpayments, including those classified as fraud, customer error and official error.

Volumes of overpayments by benefit

	2007-08	2008 April to December
Attendance Allowance	127,894	97,829
Bereavement Allowance	480	309

Employment and Support Allowance	0	7
Incapacity benefit	81,200	47,498

Social Security Benefits: Overseas Residence

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions to which allowances and benefits UK citizens living in other EU member states and Switzerland may be entitled; and when the Government plans to implement the decisions of the European Court of Justice on the matter. [255298]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 February 2009]: People who move from the UK to live in other EU member states and Switzerland may continue to receive certain UK social security benefits. For example they continue to be paid some UK contributory benefits such as state pension or bereavement benefit.

UK citizens who live in other states may be able to claim benefits from their state of residence. The exact nature of the benefits they can receive depends on where they have worked, what benefits they receive from the UK, whether they meet the relevant entitlement conditions and how the benefits are covered under the European social security coordination rules. These rules cover benefits for old age, survivors, invalidity, unemployment, industrial injury and prescribed diseases, sickness, maternity, and family.

The UK does not hold detailed information on the benefits systems of other states.

We expect to set out entitlement conditions for those wishing to claim the UK disability benefits from abroad shortly. The Directgov website will be updated at that time:

www.directgov.gov.uk.

Social Security Benefits: Postal Services

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what recent discussions he had held with Royal Mail on redirecting benefit-related communications sent by his Department; and if he will make a statement; [253490]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness in reducing benefit fraud and error of the agreement with Royal Mail to redirect benefit-related communication sent to customers by his Department. [253491]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The Secretary of State has not held any recent discussions with Royal Mail regarding redirection of benefit-related mail by his Department.

The Department has not made any recent assessments of the effectiveness of the agreement between Royal Mail and the Department to redirect benefit-related communications.

However, responses from a recent local authority survey and discussions with local authorities' representatives suggest that it acts as an effective deterrent against fraud.

The Do Not Redirect agreement between Royal Mail and DWP is an anti-fraud measure that applies specifically to local authorities' housing benefit and council tax benefit correspondence.

I would also like correct previous answers given regarding this matter—16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1376W and 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 698W, do not make clear that the agreement with Royal Mail relates to local authority housing benefit and council tax benefit only. It does not apply to any of the benefits administered by the DWP. I apologise to my hon. Friend for this error.

Social Security Benefits: Proof of Identity

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons his Department has decided to require the production of a passport as proof of identity for the purpose of access to the services it provides; and what consideration was given to continuing to accept a birth certificate as proof of identity. [256666]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Department for Work and Pensions follows a robust process to verify an individual's identity prior to providing access to benefits.

The Department accepts passports, including those passports held by citizens with dual nationalities, as well as birth certificates and a range of other supporting identity documentary evidence when assuring a person's identity.

Social Security Benefits: Reform

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of drug users who would be liable to be required to (a) answer questions, (b) undertake substance-related assessment, (c) undertake relevant tasks and (d) undertake rehabilitation plans under the provisions of Schedule 1(a) of the Welfare Reform Bill during the first full year following its entry into force. [256245]

Mr. McNulty: We expect approximately 15 to 20 per cent. of new problem drug user claimants to flow through the pilots. This equates to 2,500-3,500 problem drug users each year. It is anticipated that a significant number of this group will participate in the key components of the new employment and support programme.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of basic state pension claim forms were processed within 60 days of receipt in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 to date. [257099]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The answer is in the following table:

State pension clearance times

Target	2007-08	Percentage January YTD[1] 2008-09
Clear 95 per cent. of non-complex state pension claims within 60 days	93.11
Clear 91 per cent. of complex state pension claims within 85 days[2]	90.10
Clear at least 95 per cent. of new claims to state pension within 60 days[3]		94.71

[2] Complex claims are claims to state pension from customers who have been widowed or divorced and the spouse's national insurance contributions are taken into consideration.

Train to Gain Programme

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the written ministerial statement of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 2-4WS, on support for jobseekers, whether companies which had (a) made redundancies and (b) dismissed employees by the date of the Statement are eligible for (i) the funding and (ii) the recruitment subsidy. [254225]

Mr. McNulty: The Government's intention is that the recruitment subsidy should not be available to companies which have dismissed or made redundant employees. We are currently in discussions with key stakeholders, including employers and unions about the details of the recruitment subsidy scheme and how it will operate.

All businesses in England which qualify for the recruitment subsidy will be able to access the Train to Gain funding.

Unemployed: Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what programmes his Department has to assist problem drug users to obtain jobs. [252131]

Mr. McNulty: Problem drug users on jobseekers allowance and incapacity benefit/employment and support allowance have access to mainstream employment programmes through the New Deals and Pathways to Work. In addition, recovering drug users have voluntary access to the Department's progress2work programme which supports around 12,500 people each year.

The Welfare Reform Bill includes provisions to introduce a new regime for problem drug users. This includes a new mandatory programme which will support problem drug users to make progress in addressing their drug use and any other barriers to work that they face.

Unemployment

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in the UK were unemployed in accordance with the International Labour Organization definition of unemployment in each year since 1997. [255738]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people in the UK were unemployed in accordance with the International Labour Organisation definition of unemployment in each year since 1997. (255738)

The information requested is provided in the attached table. The estimates are consistent with those published in Table 1 of the Labour Market Statistics First Release Historical Supplement, which is available on the National Statistics website via the following link:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/OnlineProducts/LMS_FR_HS.asp

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Unemployment Benefits

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people aged (a) under 60 and (b) 60 and over who are out of work and seeking work and who have not signed on because they are not entitled to receive contribution- or income-based jobseeker's allowance owing to their receipt of an occupational pension or other income. [249391]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Vocational Training

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether an applicant's age is taken into consideration in determining eligibility for re-training programmes funded by his Department; and if he will make a statement; [254288]

(2) whether eligibility for (a) the Rapid Response Service and (b) any other re-training courses for the unemployed funded by his Department are determined wholly or partially by reference to the postcode area of the applicant; and if he will make a statement; [254289]

(3) what criteria have to be met for an unemployed person who does not qualify for the Rapid Response Scheme to be eligible for a Government-funded re-training course; and if he will make a statement. [254290]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 February 2009]: Work-focused training is available to everyone who participates in the New Deal regardless of age or post code.

Jobseeker's allowance customers aged 18 to 24 are currently required to participate in the New Deal for Young People when they have been continuously claiming jobseeker's allowance for six months. jobseeker's allowance customers aged 25 or over are currently required to participate in the New Deal 25 Plus when they have been continuously claiming jobseeker's allowance for 18 months, or have been claiming jobseeker's allowance for 18 out of the previous 21 months if there has been a break in their claim.

Voluntary New Deal programmes are available to customers across benefit groups. Access to New Deal 50 Plus is restricted to benefit recipients aged 50 or over. The New Deal for Lone Parents, New Deal for Partners and New Deal for Disabled People each have their own specific qualifying criteria in order to target particular customer groups.

The work-based training courses currently available via the New Deal are decided by each Jobcentre Plus district to meet the needs of local labour markets and so provision will vary throughout Great Britain.

The introduction of the Flexible New Deal later this year will establish a new, unified approach for all jobseekers, whatever their age, skills or barriers to work. The Flexible New Deal will deliver work-focused support, tailored to each individual's needs and local labour market requirements.

Jobcentre Plus offers the Rapid Response Service to all employers who notify more than 20 redundancies and can also offer its support to employers who make fewer than 20 redundancies. The service is not limited to specific postcode areas.

An unemployed person's eligibility for re-training courses is not determined by postcode area. However, there is some specific provision that is targeted at deprived areas. The Working Neighbourhoods Fund, for example, tackles worklessness in specific deprived areas in England. The City Strategy Pathfinders align a range of funding, including the Working Neighbourhoods Fund and the Disadvantaged Areas Fund, to tackle worklessness and social exclusion in some of the country's most disadvantaged locations.

Vocational Training: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what courses were offered to jobseeker's allowance claimants in Vale of York constituency in the last 12 months; how many people completed each course; and what the cost to the public purse of each completed course was per person. [254219]

Mr. McNulty: The specific information requested is not available separately for the Vale of York.

Depending on their needs, customers in the Vale of York are able to access the range of provision that is available across the North Yorkshire district.

Winter Fuel Payments

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the amount of winter fuel allowance overpaid in each of the last three years; and how much of the sum overpaid has subsequently been repaid. [244908]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Winter fuel payments are made based on a customer's personal circumstances in the qualifying week.

Any overpayment of winter fuel payment is recoverable if it arose in consequence of a misrepresentation of, or failure to disclose a material fact.

Recoverable winter fuel overpayments[1]

Notes:

1. In year recoveries are amounts received against the total debt stock each year and therefore may exceed the amount of payments recorded in any one year.
2. Of £764,271 winter fuel recoverable overpayments recorded in 2007-08 a total of £403,568 related to overpayments from October 2005 to March 2008.
3. Calculation and recovery action was pursued on all cases in accordance with the Overpayments Recovery Guide. Recoveries of £403,568 for the period October 2005 to March 2007 were recorded on an interim Overpayment Recovery System. These were then migrated and brought to account on the Debt Manager system in December 2007 and appear in the figure for 2007-08.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people (a) were eligible for and (b) received cold weather payments in the week commencing 5 January 2009. [249425]

Kitty Ussher: A weather station is said to 'trigger' when the average temperature has been recorded as, or is forecast to be, 0°C or below over seven consecutive days. An eligible customer receives a cold weather payment when the weather station to which the customer's postcode is linked triggers. The number of customers who were entitled to cold weather payments because of triggers notified in the week commencing 5 January 2009 is estimated to be 2.4 million.

Some customers received two payments based on triggers notified in the week commencing 5 January 2009. This happened if the weather station to which the customer's postcode is linked triggered once for a 'recorded' period of seven consecutive days and once for a 'forecast' period of seven consecutive days.

Information oh the number of customers who received payments in that week is not available.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on cold weather payments in respect of the period of cold weather since 25 December 2008, broken down by weather station area. [249441]

1. The admin area gives the location of each weather station, not the area which is linked to the weather station. For example, Heathrow weather station covers almost all of Greater London, but not all of it, and some areas outside Greater London are linked to Heathrow weather station.
2. The estimates of expenditure are the most recently available, but they are only estimates.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioner households will receive the extra £60 winter fuel allowance payment in (a) January, (b) February and (c) March 2009; and whether these households will be informed when they can expect to receive the payment. [253625]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no extra £60 winter fuel allowance payment. However, there is an additional £60 payment to the Christmas bonus.

Around 12.5 million Christmas bonus recipients are pensioners. It is not possible to determine from the system generated payments the precise number of pensioners who have been paid the additional Christmas bonus as eligibility for the payment is not based on age. However out of the 12.2 million payments issued by 9 February we estimate that over 90 per cent. were to people of pension age.

The remaining pensioners, paid by a different computer system, are due to receive their payments by the end of February with exceptionally some clerical payments after 15 March 2009.

The table sets out the payment schedule for the additional £60 for all entitled customers including pensioners.

Actual and forecasted volumes for additional £60 payment

	Volume payments to be made	Percentage of forecasted total
1 January 2009 to 15 January 2009	12,175,120	81.94
16 January 2009 to 31 January 2009	41,630	0.28

Notes:
1. All payment figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. As of 9 February 2009 DWP have issued 12,231,904 payments.
3. The total volume of payments forecast to be made is 14,857,929.

Special Payment Programme weekly review document 11 February 2009.

A series of newspaper advertisements were published in the week of 5 January to alert all recipients of the Christmas bonus to the additional £60 payments and to explain that payments would be made between January and March 2009.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioner households in each constituency are entitled to receive the extra £60 winter fuel allowance payment. [253626]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The extra £60 is an increase in the Christmas bonus payment not the winter fuel payment. It is not possible to provide the number of pensioner households in receipt of the Christmas bonus as the Christmas bonus is paid according to an individual's eligibility.

However, I have placed in the Library information on the approximate number of individual pensioners in each constituency eligible to receive the extra £60 Christmas bonus payment.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints his Department has received regarding incorrect winter fuel payments in each of the last five years. [255976]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In winter 2008-09 we made over 12 million winter fuel payments to over 8.5 million households. The answer is in the following table.

Winter Fuel Payments: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people entitled to a winter fuel payment in Greater London are yet to receive their payment from the last round of applications. [254805]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available.

Of the 12 million winter fuel payments, the vast majority, over 95 per cent. are made automatically before Christmas based on information already held in DWP records. In these cases individuals do not need to make an application.

However there are a small group of people who may qualify for winter fuel payments who need to make an application. This is usually because they are not in receipt of a state pension or other benefit administered by the DWP. Applications for this year must be received by March 2009. Payments are made in stages between November 2008 and May 2009 depending on when the application and supporting information is received.

In winter 2006-07, the last year for which figures are available, 1,082,070 people in the London Government Office region received a winter fuel payment.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government is taking to protect the Jewish community from anti-Semitic attacks; and if she will make a statement. [256730]

Mr. Khan: Following the dramatic rise in anti-Semitic attacks recorded since the onset of the conflict in Gaza, the Secretary of State and I met with representatives from Jewish organisations to provide reassurance that we are taking the action necessary to tackle the recent upsurge in anti-Semitism. The Government will continue to engage with relevant agencies including the Community Security Trust to ensure that the Jewish community is fully protected from the scourge of anti-Semitism.

The 'All-Party Inquiry into Antisemitism: Government Response One year on Progress Report' published in May 2008 set out the Government's current programme of work to combat anti-Semitism. On 11 February, I attended a ministerial seminar hosted by my hon. Friend the Minister for Culture, Creative Industries and Tourism to discuss the Government's strategy towards tackling anti-Semitism on the internet. This was one of the key commitments set out in the progress report.

The UK is also taking an international lead in tackling anti-Semitism and hosted a landmark conference in February which brought together MPs and experts from across the globe to tackle anti-Semitism.

Bellwin Scheme

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was claimed under the Bellwin scheme following the summer floods of 2007; and how much has been paid out to local authorities. [257331]

John Healey: Local authorities claimed a total of £24,074,196 under the Bellwin scheme for the 2007 summer floods. £5,278,917 was excluded as it was not eligible expenditure under the scheme. A total of £18,795,279 was therefore paid out under the Bellwin scheme by the Department.

Community Relations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to improve community relations between diverse populations. [257705]

Mr. Khan: In 2007 we announced a renewed commitment to community cohesion with a £50 million investment over three years and a new public service agreement to build cohesive, active and empowered communities. We continue to support local authorities in delivering improvements in cohesion by providing a framework of guidance and targeted local support.

In addition in July 2008 we published the Inter Faith framework which aims to facilitate inter faith dialogue, thus building understanding and celebrating the values held in common by the different faith communities, such as integrity in public life, care, compassion and respect. The framework, which is supported by a funding commitment of over £7.5 million, is also intended to increase the level of collaborative social action involving different faith communities and wider civil society, so that people work together to bring about positive and concrete change within their local communities. Finally, it aims to maintain and further develop good relations between faith communities and wider civil society.

This work will also make a positive contribution to work we are undertaking to deliver the Meaningful Interaction strand of PSA21 (Cohesive Engaged Empowered Communities) which aim to encourage meaningful interaction between people from different backgrounds.

Council Housing: Hampshire

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people are on local authority housing waiting lists in (a) Winchester and (b) Hampshire; and what the equivalent figures were (i) five and (ii) 10 years ago. [257788]

Mr. Khan: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households registered on local authority housing waiting lists in each local authority, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The latest available data are at April 2008. The link for this table is given below:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table600.xls

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. The number of households on local authorities' waiting lists in Hampshire is provided in the following table. This includes numbers for each local authority in Hampshire, including Winchester.

Departmental Contracts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1137-40W, on departmental contracts, what the (a) purpose and (b) project topic is of each consultancy contract in the table provided in the answer. [252798]

Mr. Khan: A revised table showing (a) purpose and (b) project topic, has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish a copy of her Department's website accessibility plan. [257236]

Mr. Khan: The Department publishes its commitments on the accessibility of its websites at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/help/accessibility/

This has been updated in line with recent Cabinet Office guidelines on accessible and inclusive websites.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many expert advisers, excluding special advisers, have been commissioned by her Department since June 2007; and on which topics they have advised. [254742]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 239W.

Departmental Overseas Visits

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1392W, on departmental overseas visits, how many of the overseas visits were made in order to attend foreign conferences; and what conferences were attended. [252792]

Mr. Khan: Records on overseas visits held in Communities and Local Government (CLG) do not identify separately the number of overseas visits made to attend foreign conferences or information on what conferences were attended. This information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All ministerial travel and travel by CLG staff is undertaken in accordance with the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Ministerial Code".

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252251]

Mr. Khan: There are three ways in which staff in this Department might be entitled to a non-consolidated award in the financial year 2008-09.

The Government have accepted a recommendation by the Senior Salaries Review Body that for senior civil servants over the period 2008-11 there should be an indicative envelope, of 7 per cent. of paybill per head, available for normal base pay increases and increasing the non-consolidated performance pot. Under these arrangements, the Department has made non-consolidated payments in 2008-09 to 111 staff at a total cost of £856,392.

The pay settlement for staff below the senior civil service for 2008-09 has yet to be determined and so we cannot provide information in relation to the cost of non-consolidated payments at this time.

All non-consolidated payments above are funded within existing pay bill controls, have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs.

In Communities and Local Government, non-consolidated payments are made to those members of staff who are found to have made a significant contribution towards the achievement of the teams, and/or Department's objectives. Individuals are expected to show that they have exceeded the requirements set for the achievement of the objective and have demonstrated exemplary behaviour in doing so.

Our senior civil service staff members are also assessed against a range of factors, such as:

- The achievement of their Prime Objective which focuses on the way in which they lead, manage and develop their staff;
- Degree to which business objectives are met;
- Delivery for Ministers;
- Demonstration of skills such as judgment, leadership and the PSG skills;
- Effective resource management.

The Department also operates a scheme for all staff below the senior civil service under which individuals or teams may receive a small non-consolidated award in recognition of an outstanding contribution over a limited period. A formal allocation of funding is not made for this scheme but a limit of 0.2 per cent. of the paybill is placed on expenditure under these arrangements. The maximum payment under these arrangements is £600 but records are not available to show the number of payments made under this scheme in 2008-09.

Departmental Standards

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to her Department of conducting comprehensive performance assessments has been each year since the assessments were introduced. [255592]

John Healey: The cost of the Audit Commission's work on comprehensive performance assessment (CPA) was covered by income from fees paid by local authorities, along with grant to the Audit Commission from the Department. The cost to local authorities of Audit Commission fees was offset by the revenue support grant paid to them by the Department.

I have asked the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member directly with an estimate of the costs of conducting CPA since its introduction in 2002.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 23 February 2009:

Parliamentary Question: what the cost to the Department for Communities and Local Government of conducting comprehensive performance assessments has been each year since the assessments were introduced

I have been asked to follow up your Parliamentary Question on what the cost to the Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG) of conducting comprehensive performance assessments has been each year since the assessments were introduced, with some further information.

For local authorities, the Audit Commission's work on comprehensive performance assessment (CPA) has been funded by a mixture of direct grant from CLG and fees charged to the local authorities being assessed. For fire and rescue authorities, CPA work is wholly funded by CLG grant. I attach two schedules providing the details of this funding since the respective frameworks started.

I trust this information is helpful.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have been employed to work on comprehensive performance assessments in each year since the assessments were introduced. [255593]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 23 February 2009:

Your Parliamentary Question on how many people have been employed to work on comprehensive performance assessments in each year since the assessments were introduced has been passed to me to reply.

I attach two schedules (one for local authorities and one for fire and rescue authorities) setting out the number of inspections and associated inspector days in connection with Comprehensive Performance Assessment (CPA) undertaken by Audit Commission staff in each year since 2002/03. The schedules also show the number of full-time equivalent inspectors represented by the volume of inspection work in each year.

In addition, the CPA ratings for local authorities draw on the work of external auditors appointed by the Audit Commission. This use of resources assessment forms part of the external audit programme and the days spent on this element are not collected separately.

I trust this information is helpful.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many language translators are employed in each of her Department's executive agencies; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257155]

Mr. Khan: The Fire Service College engaged three part-time translators to work with staff delivering courses to Saudi Arabian students (during various periods between 5 January 2009 and 27 March 2009). Full costs have been recovered from the sales revenue.

The Planning Inspectorate procures translation services, and spend was £59,215 in 2007-08.

As a trading fund, the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre would buy in and recharge if translation services were requested by its clients.

Some Ordnance Survey staff have second language skills which are used when expedient. Ordnance Survey contracts a commercial agency to provide the bulk of its language translation needs. In the twelve months to 31 January 2009, Ordnance Survey spent £20,055 on external language translations; predominantly in the translation of documentation and web-based information into Welsh in support of its commitment to the Welsh Language Act 1993.

Design for Manufacture Programme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes were constructed for approximately £60,000 under the Design for Manufacture programme. [252746]

Margaret Beckett: The Design for Manufacture (DFM) competition was launched in April 2005 and was run by English Partnerships until the end of last year. English Partnerships was replaced in December 2008 by the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA), operating on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government. The competition was the Government's challenge to the house building industry to build high-quality, well-designed homes for £60,000. The figure of £60,000 relates to a target construction cost for building a two-bedroom home and does not reflect the development cost or sale price.

The competition is expected to deliver more than 1,100 high-quality, well-designed, sustainable homes. Of these, developers were asked to build around 30 per cent. for the target construction cost of £60,000 or less. However, the other 70 per cent. were expected to be larger and smaller homes built at an equivalent cost-efficiency.

Construction of all of the homes being built through the DFM competition is still under way, so it is not possible to predict how many homes will be completed for the target cost. However, the HCA last year commissioned a professional firm of chartered surveyors and cost consultants to analyse cost data received from the various developers building the homes.

It is not practical at this stage to compare the sites in this study and draw any firm conclusions, as the property designs and types are so varied. Also, the sites are located in different areas in the country and each site has reported different obstacles to overcome. However, early indications from this study show that out of a sample of 135 units surveyed and completed at the time of the study, and with appropriate cost adjustments to reflect price inflation since the competition was launched in April 2005, 79 were built for close to or less than £60,000.

Durham County Council: Pay

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many employees of Durham County Council have salaries in the range (a) £80,000 to £89,999, (b) £90,000 to £99,999, (c) £100,000 to £149,999, (d) £150,000 to £199,999 and (e) £200,000 and above. [255310]

John Healey: The information requested is not held centrally.

Eco-Towns

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the costs incurred by local authorities which have a proposed eco-town site in their area arising from the eco-town initiative to date. [255668]

Margaret Beckett: We are working closely with local authorities and have encouraged promoters of eco-towns to engage locally with authorities and key stakeholders. It is not possible for this Department to estimate the total costs incurred by individual local authorities with an eco-town proposal in their area, some of which is planning and assessment work which would be needed in any event. As part of the assessment process we have agreed to contribute to local authority costs in supporting this process, and so far £820,000 has been allocated to provide support to local authorities and agencies to undertake work in support of the eco-towns assessment process, including funding for impact reports.

Eco-Towns: Consultants

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultancy advice (a) the Town and Country Planning Association, (b) Mr. Jim Duggan and (c) Mr. David Locke are providing to her Department on eco-towns; and at what cost in each case. [255250]

Margaret Beckett: As set out in the written ministerial statement given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Pontefract and Castleford (Yvette Cooper) on 7 March 2007, Official Report, column 128WS, we asked the Town & Country Planning Association (TCPA) with Professor David Lock, then Chair of the TCPA, to provide further advice on the practical application of the key sustainability and development criteria for eco-towns. More recently the TCPA has continued to advise my Department through developing best practice guidance on the laying out and planning of eco-towns and similar development, and co-ordinating the input of experts to this. This is generic guidance which is publicly available and at no time have TCPA been involved in advising us or assessing any individual eco-town projects.

To manage any potential conflicts of interest with Professor Lock's role as a planning consultant and Chair of the TCPA at that time, a protocol of roles and responsibilities was drawn up and is publicly available on the TCPA's website. Professor Lock's involvement in advising this Department on eco-towns has only been through the TCPA and their work on the practical application of the key criteria for eco-towns. Professor Lock stood down as Chair of the TCPA last year, having served two terms in that role. In terms of the funding that we provide to the TCPA for this work I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 771W.

Mr. Jim Duggan has not been employed by this Department to provide advice on eco-towns.

Eco-Towns: Expenditure

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on its eco-towns initiative to date; under what budget headings such expenditure has been incurred; and what estimate she has made of such expenditure incurred in 2008-09. [255669]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar on 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1265W. This sets out details about spending on the eco-towns programme, and the following table provides an update on the costs related to technical consultancy and marketing. This is of course ongoing work involving private consultants, and it would not be appropriate to provide further details of the anticipated costs at this time. In terms of costs in relation to the recent judicial review, the Department's legal costs were awarded to the Secretary of State. Such costs are the subject of agreement between the parties and in the absence of this a judge will decide the amount in a detailed assessment hearing. It is therefore not possible to provide an estimate in advance of this process.

Emergency Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many near misses were recorded by fire and rescue services in each of the last 10 years. [256987]

Mr. Khan: Available information, on the number of health and safety near misses, is set out in the following table.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make all energy performance certificates accessible to the public. [256567]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Individual energy performance certificates are provided to prospective buyers and tenants of properties by sellers and landlords. All EPCs are lodged in a central register, and I have no current plans to provide public access to this register.

Fire Prevention: Hotels

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has considered the merits of awarding a certificate of compliance to bed and breakfast establishments which have complied with the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. [258076]

Mr. Khan: Fire certificates were abolished when the raft of fire safety legislation was replaced by the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. There are no plans to reintroduce any certification regime for fire safety in England.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on the bed and breakfast industry of variations in application of the provisions of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 between local authorities. [258078]

Mr. Khan: As no two premises are likely to be the same, a 'one size fits all' approach to fire safety is inappropriate. The Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 is non-prescriptive. It is for the responsible person to assess what fire safety measures will best deliver an adequate level of protection in the light of the specific circumstances of their premises.

In carrying out their audit and enforcement responsibilities, individual fire safety officers will use their professional judgment and expertise to consider the extent to which the fire safety measures in place in a particular building deliver an adequate level of compliance with the provisions of the Order. Under the Regulators' Compliance Code local fire and rescue authorities are expected to implement the Hampton principles of better regulation when delivering these functions.

We have commissioned a qualitative evaluation into the initial impact of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 on representatives from the business community, the enforcing authorities and the fire safety industry and hope to be in a position to publish this shortly.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has made an assessment of the merits of awarding a grant to bed and breakfast establishments to assist them in complying with the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. [258080]

Mr. Khan: All those with responsibility for commercial premises or other buildings to which the public have access should ensure that an adequate level of fire protection is in place to minimise the risk to life in the event of a fire. These costs will vary according the nature of individual premises and the risks associated with their use.

We do not consider it would appropriate to offer any specific segment of the business community financial assistance to comply with the requirements of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) enforcement notices were issued, (b) prohibition notices were issued and (c) prosecutions were brought by fire authorities against bed and breakfast establishments under the provisions of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 in (i) England, (ii) Devon and (iii) East Devon in each year since it came into force. [258177]

Mr. Khan: The first full year for which this information is available is 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008. During this period Fire and Rescue Services in England reported issuing 947 enforcement notices and 71 prohibition notices, and bringing seven prosecutions to hotels or bed breakfast premises. The information provided to the Department from Fire and Rescue Services does not require distinction between hotels and bed and breakfast premises.

Separate information on Devon and East Devon is not centrally held. The figures for the Devon and Somerset Fire and Rescue Authority area are 173 enforcement notices, two prohibition notices and no prosecutions.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has considered the merits of providing free professional assistance to bed and breakfast establishments in complying with the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. [258178]

Mr. Khan: We have not considered providing free professional advice on complying with the requirements of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 to businesses in any sector. We believe that those with responsibility for the premises are best placed to understand and manage the risk from fire in their premises by carrying out and implementing the findings of a fire safety risk assessment.

To help the proprietors of bed and breakfast establishments in particular comply with their duties under the order, we have recently published a free booklet 'Do you have paying guests?' which aims to offer straightforward and practical fire safety advice. This is in addition to the suite of technical fire safety risk assessment guidance documents, including one specifically for those involved in the provision of sleeping accommodation, which is available to download free from:

or to purchase in hard copy.

Where a responsible person feels unable to carry out their duties under the order they can ask or employ someone with greater knowledge, experience or expertise to help them. We believe it is right that businesses should pay for professional services where they deem it necessary or appropriate to use them.

Fire Services: Injuries

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many major injuries were sustained by firefighters in each of the last 10 years. [256988]

Government Office For the Regions: Public Relations

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press, marketing or public relation officers were employed by the Government Office in each region in each year since 1997. [257484]

Mr. Khan: The Government Office Network have not employed any public relations or marketing staff but have used the services of central Departments and COI to support press announcements and public information campaigns.

A number of Government Offices have employed information officers, the specialist grade in Government dealing in press work, in the following years during the period specified.

Home Information Packs

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people selling their homes she estimates will be required to renew their home information pack in 2009. [255441]

Margaret Beckett: There is no requirement for sellers to renew their home information pack as long as the property remains on the market.

Homebuy Scheme: Finance

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to her Department's press release of 15 December 2008 on Homebuy, from which such budget the extra £100 million of funding from the project will come. [253895]

Margaret Beckett: In light of the strong response to the scheme from developers, the Government have pledged to make a further £100 million available for Homebuy direct (over and above the £300 million announced in September). This will allow the scheme to help up to 18,000 first-time buyers into home ownership (compared to the 10,000 announced in September). The precise sum that is spent on the scheme will depend on the level of take-up by first-time buyers. Any expenditure over and above the initial £300 million will be drawn from the National Affordable Housing Programme.

Homelessness

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the likely change in the numbers of people becoming homeless in the next 12 months; what plans her Department has put in place to cope with that change; and if she will make a statement. [258035]

Mr. Khan: We allocated over £200 million to local authorities and the voluntary sector between 2008-09 to 2010-11 to tackle homelessness effectively. The latest statutory homelessness statistics were published on 11 December 2008, and include statistics up to the July to September quarter. This showed that local authority housing homelessness acceptances fell compared to the previous quarter and year, with 14,340 during the quarter, and the number of households placed in temporary accommodation has continued to fall, for the twelfth consecutive quarter, to 72,130 by the end of September.

We also recently announced a £200 million Mortgage Rescue Scheme to help vulnerable homeowners. This scheme is available to all local authorities and will aim to help up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable households avoid the trauma of repossession over the next two years. This scheme is now operational.

Alongside this, the new Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme, which was announced in the Queens Speech, will enable households that experience a significant and temporary loss of income as a result of the economic downtown to defer a proportion of interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years. The Government will guarantee a proportion of the deferred interest payments in case the borrower defaults.

Local Authority Business Growth Incentive Scheme

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the funds allocated to local authorities under the local authority business growth incentive scheme will be ring-fenced for the provision of assistance to local businesses. [255584]

John Healey: No.

Local Government Finance

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much local authority expenditure was provided by (a) central government, (b) council tax revenues and (c) special grants for each local authority in each of the last 12 years, broken down by region with authorities ranked in order of total expenditure. [257336]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House tables showing the details of local authority revenue expenditure funded by central Government grant including specific grants and council tax by each local authority and region in England from 1996-97 to 2007-08.

Local Government: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities have Disability Equality Schemes in place; and if she will make a statement. [257255]

Mr. Khan: Information on the number of local authorities who have disability equality schemes in place is not held centrally.

Local Government: Essex

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will commission a review of the (a) cost-effectiveness and (b) legal basis of the procurement process used by Essex County Council to award a contract for transformational services and delivery support. [258206]

[256906]

Mr. Khan: As I set out in my answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 778W, no request has been made to resolve any dispute, nor are we aware of such a dispute between the parties.

Local Government: Public Participation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to improve facilities for local community use. [257703]

Mr. Khan: The "Communities in Control" White Paper set out the Government's aim to increase the number of people engaged in the running and ownership of local services and assets. More widely, the Department for Communities and Local Government has a range of policies and programmes designed to improve and increase the use of facilities for community use. These include:

£70 million Community builders programme which will strengthen the resilience of a range of new and existing multi-purpose community-led organisations. These organisations provide facilities for community activities, local services and the development of community enterprise to take place.

We have established an Asset Transfer Unit, operational from January 2009, building on the work of the Advancing Assets for Communities programme, led by the Development Trust Association (DTA) and its partners.

A commitment to working with and promoting the role of social enterprises (businesses with primarily social or environmental objectives) which play a key role in empowering local communities through activities such as managing and supporting community owned assets.

In addition to this, the Office of the Third Sector run a number of programmes which can be used to increase the use of community facilities including:

Grass-roots Grants: £130 million providing small amounts of money to enable grass-roots groups to thrive and direct their energies to the particular challenges they see in their local community.

Futurebuilders: an innovative programme which provides loan and grant-based finance to support third sector organisations develop their delivery of public services.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to promote community empowerment. [257706]

John Healey: The White Paper "Communities in control: real people, real power", which was published in July 2008, was the first major government policy statement on transferring power to citizens and communities, giving people more control and influence over decisions in their local areas and promoting vibrant local democracy. These ideas should be seen as essential for public agencies, the third sector and communities in responding to the challenges of the economic downturn.

Current work on implementing the White Paper and promoting community empowerment includes:

Participatory budgeting (PB): involves local people in making decisions on the spending from public budgets. We have rolled out a national strategy setting out how the Government will achieve their ambition for PB to be used in all local authority areas by 2012. There are currently 34 pilot areas, covering a wide variety of different areas. PB exercises have so far engaged local people on spending for activities such as local environmental issues, community facilities, parks and play areas, road safety measures, and anti-crime measures.

The Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill: currently being debated in Parliament includes:

a new duty on local councils to promote democracy—putting local authorities at the forefront of the drive to reconnect people with public and political decision-making. The duty will ensure all sections of their community understands how the council works, who makes the decisions on their behalf in their neighbourhood, and how they can get involved if they wish to;

new rights for the citizen to have more information and influence over the local decisions;

new powers to hold politicians and officials to account;

a new duty on local councils to respond to petitions.

Asset Transfer Unit: The White Paper set out the Government's aim to increase the number of people engaged in the running and ownership of local services and assets. The "Asset Transfer Unit" opened for business in January 2009, and over the course of the year, it will:

create an interactive web-based resource detailing sources of support for organisations engaging in asset transfer; deliver an England-wide information, advice and referral service on asset transfer to both community organisations and local authorities and other statutory bodies;

implement up to 38 local authority asset transfer projects, supported by a capital investment of £30 million from the Office of the Third Sector; develop and introduce model asset transfer strategies in a number of local authority areas across England; promote and refine the use of community shares and bonds issues as methods of tapping new sources of community investment and involvement in local projects.

Take Part: In order for more people to be able to participate in local decision- making, they need to have a better understanding of how local services are managed and local democracy operates. We are launching the "Take Part local pathfinder programme" to support people and encourage them to have the confidence to speak up and get involved.

18 pathfinders will be announced during 2009. They will operate as partnerships between local authorities and other key organisations, such as third sector bodies and educational institutions. The first eight pathfinders will offer tailored support (through learning and community leadership programmes etc.) to at least 3,400 people during 2009. More general support will also be given to the wider community, through the use of Take Part websites and other communications methods (such as newsletters) produced by the pathfinder partners and disseminated throughout the local authority area.

Communitybuilders: is a £70 million investment fund, run jointly with the Office of the Third Sector, to strengthen the sustainability of multi-purpose inclusive community-led organisations operating at the neighbourhood level. We are currently in the process of tendering for a national partner organisation to deliver the fund on the Government's behalf. The national partner will use their skills and expertise to identify and fund projects through an open and transparent process.

The national partner will be announced and the programme will become open to applications in spring 2009.

Empowerment Fund: The Government are seeking to create an ever stronger partnership with the third sector, both nationally and locally, in the design, development and delivery of policy making to help build cohesive, empowered and active communities. The "Empowerment Fund", launched last year by Communities and Local Government, will strengthen national infrastructure and intermediary bodies, who can translate key proposals into practical action and support for frontline organisations.

The Empowerment Fund will provide £7.5 million to support organisations operating across the country assist local communities to take forward key themes of the White Paper. It will:

be open to partnership applications with an eligible lead;

have a more flexible allowance on the Department's financial contribution; give added weight to those working with excluded groups across all themes.

The closing date for receiving applications was 6 January 2009. We have received 157 applications and are currently working through the evaluation process, aiming to announce the successful organisations in March.

The Fund will begin in April 2009 and will last until March 2012.

Youth Advisers: Young people are being placed at the heart of government policy formulation. A panel of nine young people—recruited from the national pool of young advisors—act as youth advisors to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, giving a young person's perspective as policies are developed and implemented. These young advisors are the Secretary of State's eyes and ears on issues that affect them the most, from the housing offer for young people and the impact of the economic downturn, to their role in community cohesion and the Olympics legacy.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to encourage participation in local democracy. [257707]

Mr. Khan: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 requires local electoral officers to take appropriate steps to increase participation in the electoral process, the costs of which may be reimbursed by the Secretary of State. The intention is to encourage electoral officers to pursue activities aimed at increasing awareness of and involvement in the democratic process.

The White Paper "Communities in Control" set out additional actions including a new duty on local councils to promote democracy. This has the aim of making citizens more aware of the democratic process including who makes decisions about local services; how to influence and take part in making those decisions; and how to stand for civic roles, such as councillor, school governor or magistrate.

Government are also supporting a range of programmes to enable and encourage a wider range of people to become involved in local democracy, including the Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic Women Councillors Taskforce and the Take Part programme.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding has been allocated to the London Fire Brigade in 2008-09 to meet the costs of (a) resilience and (b) the threat of a terrorist attack on London; and if she will make a statement. [256697]

Mr. Khan: Details of funding allocated to the Greater London Authority in respect of the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority (LFEPA) for the period in question, relating to (a) resilience and (b) the heightened threat of a terrorist attack on London are given in the following table.

Microgeneration

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to consult on the introduction of permitted development rights in respect of the installation of micro-generation units on non-domestic buildings; and if she will make a statement. [257654]

Mr. Khan: The Government are currently considering the scope for the introduction of permitted development rights for the installation of microgeneration units on non-domestic buildings. We aim to consult on the proposals in the summer.

Mortgage Interest Deferral Scheme

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, columns 683-84W, on the Mortgage Interest Deferral Scheme, what estimate her Department has made of the cost and take-up of the scheme; when the scheme description commenced; when each remaining stage in devising the scheme descriptors is expected to be completed; when she expects to publish the full impact assessment; and if she will make a statement. [254506]

Margaret Beckett: Our intention to set up a new Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme was announced by the Prime Minister on 3 December 2008. As part of a much wider package of real help for home owners, the scheme should enable ordinary hard-working households that experience a redundancy or significant loss of income to reduce their monthly payments to a more manageable level, by deferring a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years. The Government will guarantee the lender against a proportion of any loss incurred on the deferred interest payments in case the borrower defaults.

I wrote to all lenders on 18 December 2008, setting out the proposed scheme design and seeking their views by 14 January. The legal authority to pursue such a scheme was established when the Banking Act gained Royal Assent on 12 February 2009. We are now working closely with the lenders and debt advice agencies to finalise scheme design and agree plans for scheme implementation. Once discussions with the lenders to agree the scheme design have concluded, we will publish an Impact Assessment setting out the cost and anticipated take-up of the scheme. We currently expect the scheme to be up and running in the spring.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications have been made to the Homeowner Mortgage Protection Scheme. [256187]

Margaret Beckett: Following announcement of the proposed homeowners mortgage support scheme on 3 December 2008, we have been working urgently with a range of lenders and representatives from the money advice sector to finalise the detail of the scheme and ensure it delivers the right help to households in difficulty. The Government want to see this scheme help as many struggling homeowners as possible. We are working to open the scheme as soon as possible but as the hon. Member will be aware legislative authority to proceed had to be sought and was only received when the Banking Act received Royal Assent on 12 February 2009.

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of houses in each county were registered for business rates in each year since 1997. [256457]

John Healey: This information is not collected by Communities and Local Government.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of paying business rates on empty commercial properties to local government in 2009-10. [255741]

John Healey: An estimate of the cost to local government of providing empty property relief on non-domestic properties was published on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/0910/dacalcs.xls

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty hereditaments were eligible to pay non-domestic rates in each region in each of the last five years. [258138]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Meriden on 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 968W.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department required the Valuation Office Agency to take to assess port businesses for individual rating (a) before and (b) after the end of prescriptive rating. [256926]

John Healey: The legislative framework for non-domestic rating is set out in Part III of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 (c.41). Property which is subject to non-domestic rating is valued every five years, and valuation is carried out by a valuation officer. He is appointed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and he has a duty to compile and maintain an accurate list of property subject to non-domestic rating (a 'rating list').

This Department does not instruct the Valuation Office Agency in tasks relating to that duty.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by what date port businesses are required to make (a) the first payment of part of their annual assessment and (b) the first payment towards their arrears from 2005. [256927]

John Healey: Local authorities are responsible for the billing and collection of business rates.

The regulations covering the procedures to be followed (Non Domestic Rating (Collection and Enforcement) (Local Lists) Regulations 1989)) are in the process of being amended to permit the payment of arrears in instalments over up to eight years where appropriate.

The Business Rates Information Letter (BRIL) 2009/02 providing guidance and information on the impact of the changes was issued 10 February to all English billing authorities. I have placed a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many port businesses in which ports have not yet been assessed for their liability for non-domestic rates. [256928]

John Healey: There are two port reviews, reflecting the circumstances at 1 April 2005, that are still outstanding. Only one, at Humber Sea Termina., is in England. The port businesses affected in these reviews are in discussion with the Valuation Office Agency and the delay in completing the reviews is at the request of the ratepayers affected.

There will be continuous amendments into and out of the port rating assessments as changes to and occupations of properties occur over time. Where a change is required, the Valuation Office Agency is consulting with the businesses affected prior to the rating lists being amended.

Non-Profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will simplify and speed up her Department's procurement procedures of in relation to social enterprise. [257061]

Mr. Khan: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 48W by my hon. Friend the Member for Gloucester (Mr. Dhanda).

All procurement is undertaken in line with the European Commission's procurement regulations and to obtain value for money. Communities and Local Government is committed to working with and promoting the role of social enterprise and has set up a social enterprise unit to co-ordinate this activity.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward proposals to improve procurement procedures operated by local authorities in relation to social enterprise. [257062]

Mr. Khan: Social enterprises can play an important role in supporting local authority objectives by bringing dynamism and innovation to the design and delivery of public services. They can also help local authorities achieve more with their money, engage local communities and stimulate new markets.

In December 2006, Communities and Local Government, alongside other Government Departments, launched "Partnership in Public Services", an action plan for social enterprise and wider third sector engagement with public bodies, including local authorities.

CLG also published statutory guidance to local government and its key partners earlier this year. "Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities" states local authorities should recognise and embrace diversity in the way services are provided, with the focus on desired outcomes and not whether the service is delivered by the public, private or third sectors.

On 9 February 2009, Communities and Local Government, alongside other Government Departments, launched "Real Help for Communities: Volunteers, Charities and Social Enterprises", an action plan to support the third sector and social enterprise during the economic downturn. This highlights measures to improve commissioning and procurement practice including the National Programme for Third Sector Commissioning, which provides training to public sector commissioners to improve their in practices when working with the third sector, including social enterprise, and a national campaign among public sector finance professionals to raise awareness of the Government's commitment to pay invoices within 10 days.

Parish Councils

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the new rules for parish councils on the procedures to be followed for the appointment of additional members will come into effect; and what guidance is available if these rules are not met. [255485]

John Healey: Provisions on the power to appoint additional councillors have been inserted into the Local Government Act 1972 by section 76 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007. We are aiming to bring the regulations into effect in the spring, and will publish the supporting guidance at the same time.

Racial Harassment

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to reduce racial discrimination in the workplace. [253125]

Mr. Khan: The Department leads on the development and implementation of the cross-Government strategy for race equality and community cohesion Improving Opportunity, Strengthening Society. We hope to announce shortly a further report on progress made in implementing the strategy, including in relation to the labour market.

The legislative and practical actions relating to discrimination, including in the workplace, are the responsibility of several Departments including the Government Equalities Office and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Regarding the employment position, the Department for Work and Pensions, whose Minister chairs the Ethnic Minority Employment Task Force, leads on public service agreement 8 (maximising employment opportunity for all) to close the ethnic minority employment rate gap. The labour force survey figures for quarter 4 2008, which were released on Wednesday, show that the gap between the ethnic minority employment rate and the overall British employment rate has narrowed to 12.9 percentage points, compared to 14.1 percentage points a year ago (Q4, 2007).

Regional Ministers

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what responsibilities Regional Ministers have in relation to regional finance allocations. [258175]

Mr. Khan: Regional Ministers have been tasked, within the guidance on the Regional Funding Advice exercise produced in July 2008, to work with regional partners to facilitate development of the regions' advice and broker agreement on the regions' priorities where necessary.

Regional Planning and Development: EC Grants and Loans

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much European regional aid structural funding was allocated to England between 2000 and 2006; how much of this funding had been spent by 31 December 2008; whether a request was made to the European Commission to extend the spending deadline beyond that date; and if she will make a statement. [255462]

John Healey: The 2000-06 round of European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) programmes in England were allocated €5793 million. Over 2,900 claims by projects for reimbursement of ERDF expenditure are being processed, more made up to 31 December 2008 are still being received and we do not yet have final figures for any of the 20 English programmes.

Government did not request extension of the spending deadline for any of the European Structural Funds programmes operating in England.

Regional Planning and Development: Finance

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects for which her Department is responsible are planned to be funded through the (a) New Ventures Fund, (b) New Deal for Communities and (c) European Regional Development Fund in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11; and how much is planned to be spent on each such project. [258241]

Mr. Khan: The information is as follows.

Funds/Year	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
(a) New Ventures Fund	0	0	0
(b) New Deal for Communities (£ million)	242	180	65
(c) European Regional Development Fund (Euros million)	385	439	402

Notes:
(a) New Ventures Fund (NVF). The NVF no longer exists as a funding stream.
(b) New deal for communities (NDCs). The NDC programme is a 10-year programme to regenerate 39 of the most deprived neighbourhoods across England.
(c) European Regional Development Fund. The ERDF for 2007 to 2013 is being managed by the nine regional development agencies (RDAs). The Department does not manage projects funded by ERDF. However, the Department remains the overall managing authority for the fund in England. The aim in devolving key functions and management to the RDAs was to bring the fund's programmes into line with regional economic strategies. England's ERDF allocation for 2007 to 2013 totals 3.2 billion Euros.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects for which her Department is responsible are planned to be funded by the (a) Government Offices for the Regions and (b) regional development agencies in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11; and how much is planned to be spent on each such project. [258242]

Mr. Khan: The Government offices for the regions have specific responsibility for an administration running cost budget and a capital budget.

Programme budgets administered by the Government offices are the responsibility of the Secretaries of State for the relevant sponsor Departments. The Departments delegate authority to the regional directors to spend against their programmes, though all expenditure incurred is recorded in the accounts of the Department concerned.

The Thames Gateway programme, now administered by the Homes and Communities Agency, includes some projects for which funding is provided to the three Greater South East regional development agencies. Funding for Invest in Thames Gateway and Parklands projects amounts to £0.827 million in 2008-09, £3.177 million in 2009-10, and £6.775 million in 2010-11. In addition, the regional development agencies' Thames Gateway Economic Development Investment Plan sets out how the £200 million joint Strategic Economic Investment Fund will be invested over the same period.

The Department does not otherwise fund projects directly through regional development agencies. Regional development agencies are funded through the Single Programme, which is administered by their sponsor Department, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. The Department is one of six contributing Departments to the Single Programme and is contributing £1.548 billion in 2008-09, £1.585 billion in 2009-10 and £1.098 billion in 2010-11 to the Single Programme. Spending priorities for each regional development agency are set out in their corporate plans, which are available on their websites.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1843W, on regional development and planning: South East, in which month she expects analysis of responses to the South East plan consultation to be made available; and by what date the regional spatial strategy for the South East will be published. [257495]

Mr. Khan: Our intention to publish an analysis of responses and the Regional Spatial Strategy for the South East remains as stated to the right hon. Member for Guildford, in the answer given on 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1843W, that is publication in the spring.

Repossession: Mortgages

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the (a) maximum proportion and (b) cash value is of mortgage interest payments that can be deferred under the mortgage rescue scheme announced on 3 December 2008; and whether capital repayments can be deferred under the scheme; [255219]

(2) what eligibility criteria will be applied to applicants to the Mortgage Rescue Scheme. [254856]

Margaret Beckett: The Government are determined to do everything possible to ensure stability and security for those affected by the downturn in the housing market.

For the most vulnerable home owners, who would be owed a statutory homelessness duty if repossessed, we opened the Mortgage Rescue Scheme in January 2009. This £200 million scheme will help up to 6,000 households remain in their homes. The scheme is targeted on families, the elderly and other vulnerable households.

On 3 December 2008, the Prime Minister announced additional support for home owners facing financial difficulties through a new Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme. The new scheme should enable households that experience a significant and temporary loss of income as a result of the economic downturn to defer a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years, providing they meet the scheme eligibility criteria. The Government will guarantee the lender against a proportion of any loss incurred on the deferred interest payments in case the borrower defaults. The guarantee will not apply to deferred payments of capital.

I wrote to lenders detailing the proposed key elements of the scheme in December. This letter is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/homeownersmortgagesupport and we will shortly publish confirmation of the final scheme description.

Legal authority to proceed with the scheme was obtained in the Banking Act, which received Royal Assent on 12 February 2009.

WALES

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales with reference to the answer of 9 July 2008, Official Report, column 1581W, on apprentices, what progress his Department has made towards meeting its share of the Government's commitment to employ over 1,000 apprentices in central Government departments and agencies in 2008-09; and how many apprentices his Department now employs. [256280]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office is unable to provide apprenticeships due to the small size of the Department and the nature of its work.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by his Department. [256056]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificate and associated advisory reports in respect of the Wales Office's London building.

In Cardiff, my Department leases space in a larger office building, whose owner assesses the energy efficiency of the building as a whole.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254247]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Following the devolution settlement in 1999, responsibility for the majority of public appointments that were made by the Secretary of State for Wales was transferred to the National Assembly for Wales.

The exception is appointments to the Boundary Commission Wales. More detailed information about individual appointments is set out in the Boundary Commission Wales' Annual Report. Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at:

www.publicappointments.gov.uk

The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication "Making and Managing Public Appointments". For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the "Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies".

Copies are in the Libraries of the House.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcohol Disorder Zones

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer to the right hon. Member for Beaconsfield of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1069W, on alcohol disorder zones, what assessment she has made of the reasons for no notice of the proposal to designate an alcohol disorder zone having been made to her Department by that date. [253520]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has been clear that an alcohol disorder zone (ADZ) should only be used as a measure of last resort, after all other tools and powers have been tried. ADZs only came into force in June 2008 and we have committed to report to Parliament in June 2009 on how many have been used.

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have taken place for the offence of selling alcohol to children on more than one occasion since 2003. [249934]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 21 January 2009]: For prosecution data for the offence of selling alcohol to children I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1025-34W.

The Ministry of Justice publishes statistics on reoffending, but figures are not available for individual offences.

For the offence of persistently selling alcohol to a person under 18 no data are currently available. Section 147A of the Licensing Act 2003 (as amended by the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006) came into effect in April 2007. Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in autumn 2009.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what data (a) her Department and (b) police forces collate on (i) knife crime, (ii) youth crime and (iii) crimes and incidents in which alcohol represents a characteristic or motivating factor. [254368]

Jacqui Smith: The police forces of England and Wales will collect data depending on their own operational needs and priorities. The extent of what is collected is likely to be greater than what is requested by the Home Office, and will differ between police forces.

The Home Office collects crime data in two main ways: crimes recorded by the police; and the British Crime Survey (BCS), a victimisation survey covering adults aged 16 and over, living in private households in England and Wales. In January 2009 the BCS was extended to include under-16s. Other data may be collected on an ad hoc basis; this is included where relevant.

Knife Crime

The Home Office receives aggregated recorded crime data from the police forces for a wide range of offences. Since April 2007, the Home Office began to collect data on the numbers of offences where a knife or sharp instrument has been involved for selected offences: attempted murder, robbery and GBH. This was in addition to homicide, where offences including a knife were already covered by the homicide index collection, a more detailed individual record collection from police forces. The knife crime collection was extended in April 2008 to cover the additional offences of threats to kill, ABH, rape and sexual assault.

In addition to these returns, a separate data collection has been established as part of the Tackling Knives Action Programme (TKAP). TKAP is a time limited initiative which aims to tackle the possession of knives and knife related serious violence among young people in 10 police force areas in England and Wales. The programme started in June 2008 and is planned to finish in March 2009. A programme of monitoring has been established to assess progress and recorded crime information on knife and sharp instrument related homicide, attempted murder, threats to kill, GBH, ABH, robbery and possession offences are collected from the ten forces. Other information such as the age of victim and suspect and whether the incident is counted as domestic violence are also collected.

Findings from the TKAP will be published after its completion.

The BCS collects information on weapons, including knives, used in incidents of violent crime. Figures on the proportion of violent incidents involving knives are published regularly in the annual Crime in England and Wales publication.

Copies of these publications are available in the House of Commons Library (the most recent publication is Crime in England and Wales 2007/08).

The Offending, Crime and Justice Survey (OCJS), which ran between 2003 and 2006 and focused on young people aged 10 to 25 living in private households in England and Wales, asked questions on knife carrying. Figures for the proportion of young people aged 10 to 25 who reported carrying a knife in the past year (and further details, including their motivations for doing so) were published regularly in the annual reports on the survey. Annual publications are available on the RDS website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/offending_survey.html

Youth crime

The BCS has covered only adults aged 16 and over until January 2009 when the BCS was extended to cover 10 to 15 year olds.

The Offending, Crime and Justice Survey (OCJS), which ran between 2003 and 2006 and focused on young people aged 10 to 25 living in private households in England and Wales, asked questions about the experience of young people as both offenders and victims of crime. The results from the surveys have been published in a series of annual publications available on the RDS website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/offending_survey.html

Police recorded crime does not specifically collect data on youth crime, although age of suspect is recorded in the homicide collection.

Alcohol-related crime

The BCS asks respondents who have been victims of violent crime whether they believed the offender to be under the influence of alcohol at the time of the incident. Figures on the proportion of violent incidents where the victim believed the offender to be under the influence of alcohol are regularly published in the annual Crime in England and Wales publication. Copies of these publications are available in the House of Commons Library (the most recent publication is Crime in England and Wales 2007-08).

Police recorded crime does not specifically collect data on alcohol related incidents, although whether the suspect has been drinking alcohol or not is included in the homicide collection. Furthermore, data on breath tests are collected including how many are positive or refused.

Jacqui Smith: The number of persons found guilty at all courts for being drunk and disorderly in England and Wales, from 1993 to 2007, the latest available, are given in table 1.

Additionally, penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) are available for issue for this offence. The number of PNDs issued to persons aged 16 and over for being drunk and disorderly from 2004, when the scheme was implemented in all 43 police forces in England and Wales, to 2007 are given in table 2.

Being found drunk in a highway or other Public place whether a building or not, or a licensed premises.

Any person who in any public place is guilty, while drunk, of disorderly behaviour.
Criminal Justice Act 1967 sec.91.

[4] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 713-4W, on alcoholic drinks: crime, how many of those found guilty of refusing to obey an instruction to stop drinking in a designated public place in each of the last five years received a fine of (a) up to £100, (b) £101 to £250 and (c) over £250. [254525]

Jacqui Smith: The number of people fined, and the level of fines received, for refusing to stop drinking and surrender alcohol in a designated public place can be found in the following table.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in the Chelmsford division of the Essex police force area were charged with alcohol-related offences in the year (a) before and (b) following the introduction of the Licensing Act 2003; and with which offences such people were charged. [254836]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Charging data are not held centrally.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received on the use of under 18 year olds by police forces for test purchases of alcohol in pubs. [247772]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has not received any recent representations on the use of under 18s in respect of test purchases. However, officials have regular discussions with both ACPO and, during campaigns, with individual police forces on a number of issues encompassing their enforcement work, including the use of test purchases.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the use of those aged under 18 in making test purchases of alcohol in public houses on behalf of the police. [248332]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 19 February 2009]: The Government encourage local areas to undertake test purchasing to ensure that alcohol is not sold to children, but the use of those aged under 18 in test purchase operations is a local operational matter, and as such is a matter for the chief constable. However, both ACPO and LACORS have produced guidance on this matter.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) individuals and (b) establishments have been prosecuted for selling alcohol to minors in (i) Mid Dorset and North Poole constituency, (ii) each local authority area and (iii) England in the last 12 months. [250752]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1025-34W. Information held on court proceedings cannot be broken down by constituency or local authority area. The table as referred to holds the data requested broken down by police force area and for England and Wales.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) individuals and (b) establishments have been prosecuted for selling alcohol to under age people in (i) Stroud District Council area, (ii) Gloucestershire and (iii) south west England in each of the last five years. [250788]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1025-1034W. Information held on court proceedings cannot be broken down by council area. The table as referred to holds the data requested broken down by police force area which includes Gloucestershire police force. Data for the south-west region include Devon and Cornwall constabulary, Dorset police, Avon and Somerset constabulary, Wiltshire constabulary, and Gloucestershire constabulary.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) individuals and (b) establishments have been prosecuted for selling alcohol to under-age people in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in each of the last five years. [251337]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1025-34W. Information held on court proceedings cannot be broken down by individual areas so data on Hemel Hempstead is not available. The table as referred to holds the data requested broken down by police force area which includes Hertfordshire police force.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to discourage the selling of alcohol to underage people in public houses. [253115]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government take the issue of selling alcohol to under-age people very seriously indeed. The Home Secretary announced in her speech on 6 February 2008, that a number of new measures and possible steps would be taken to crack down on crime and antisocial behaviour which is fuelled by alcohol. This includes highlighting the message that it is not acceptable for young people to drink in public places.

The Home Office co-ordinated enforcement campaigns have provided support to police and trading standard officers in the use of the extensive powers available under the Licensing Act 2003 in relation to children. Indeed successive Alcohol Misuse and Enforcement Campaigns (AMECs) from 2004 and Tackling Underage Sales of Alcohol Campaigns (TUSAC) since 2006 have reduced the test purchase failure rate from approximately 50 per cent. to approximately 15 per cent. Additionally, we have recently launched a new £4.5 million enforcement campaign in 190 areas, with a particular focus on the 50 areas of most concern to us from January to March 2009. The Home Office also supports the Proof of Age Standards Scheme (PASS), as well as initiatives which seek to reduce the number of under-age sales such as "Challenge 21".

The Government have also introduced legislation to create an enabling power to introduce a new mandatory code of practice for alcohol retailers and to take forward the legislative announcements as set out in the written ministerial statement following the Licensing Act review and the Youth Alcohol Action Plan, namely: the creation of a new offence of persistent possession of alcohol in a public place by a person aged under 18, and amending the 'persistent selling' offence from three sales to an under 18 in three months, to two sales in three months.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) quantity and (b) value of alcohol was confiscated under the Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act 1997 in each year since its implementation. [255635]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information collected centrally and held on the Ministry of Justice Court Proceedings Database does not identify the quantity or value of alcohol confiscated under the terms of the Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act 1997.

However an alcohol confiscation campaign took place in February 2008 following a pilot in October 2007. 165 out of the 227 basic command units (BCUs) took part in the campaign and the result was that over 21,000 litres of alcohol (70 per cent. beer) was confiscated in over 5,000 separate seizures from individuals and groups of more than 23,000 young people. Activity in both campaigns focussed on school holidays and weekends when young people were most likely to be engaged in this activity.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) larvae, (b) embryos and (c) foetuses were used in animal scientific procedures in each of the last three years. [255484]

Meg Hillier: The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 protects animals used for experimental and other scientific purposes. Protected animals include immature vertebrate animals, in the case of a mammal, bird or reptile from halfway through gestation or incubation and in any other case, including immature forms of Octopus vulgaris, when they become capable of independent feeding.

We have no reliable data from which to estimate the numbers of immature forms used during the period in question. For the purpose of the annual statistical report of animal use project licence holders are required to declare if immature forms have been used, but not to provide estimates of the numbers used. This is because, in the case of some immature forms, such as fish fry, it is impossible to count and record accurately the numbers used for work licensed under the Act.

I would refer the hon. Member to that document.

Assaults on Police

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sickness days were taken due to assault in each police force in 2007-08; how many days were lost per police officer on average due to assault in that year; and what the cost to each police force was. [256743]

Mr. Coaker: The data provided here on sickness days due to assault are a supplementary series collected on behalf and released with the approval of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC). These data are normally used for inspection purposes only.

The requested data for 2007-08 are given in the table.

The requested information on days lost per officer and costs to each force are not collected centrally within the police personnel statistics series.

Assaults on Police: Young People

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many assaults on police officers by people under the age of 16 have been recorded in each police force area in each of the last 10 years. [254595]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not collected centrally. Offences of assault without injury on a constable are available in the police recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office. However, no data are available on the alleged offender and we are not, therefore, able to provide any age breakdowns.

Asylum: Democratic Republic of Congo

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) nationals have been forcibly removed from the UK to the DRC in each of the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [257244]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information is not available; however the following table shows the number of Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) nationals who were removed or departed voluntarily from the United Kingdom to the DRC in each of the last 12 months for which published information is available (October 2007-September 2008).

Figures for the fourth quarter of 2008 will be published on 24 February 2009.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

[4] Due to a reclassification of removal categories, figures include asylum removals which have been performed by Enforcement Officers using port powers of removal and a small number of cases dealt with at juxtaposed controls.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Democratic Republic of Congo nationals have been refused asylum but have not left the UK whilst exercising a right of appeal to remain. [257245]

Mr. Woolas: Information on how many Democratic Republic of Congo nationals have been refused asylum is published annually and quarterly. Annual figures are available in Table 3.3 of Asylum Statistics United Kingdom.

Information on how many people have not left the UK while exercising a right of appeal is not available. This is due to the fact that an appellant may leave the UK voluntarily without informing the UK Border Agency. While an appellant is exercising their right of appeal they are not a failed asylum seeker and therefore are not removable until their appeal rights are exhausted.

Information on persons who it has been established left the UK without informing the immigration authorities in 2005-08 will be published in Tables 7 a-c of the "Control of Immigration: Quarterly Statistical Summary, United Kingdom—Q4 2008" bulletin on 24 February 2009. It is not possible to say what stage in the asylum process the returnees have reached at the time they have left the UK.

Copies of these publications are/will be available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Democratic Republic of Congo nationals are being held in detention pending possible deportation; and how many were being so held in each of the last 12 months. [257247]

Mr. Woolas: As at 11 February there were 33 Democratic Republic of Congo nationals being held in immigration detention pending their removal from the UK.

Numbers for those held in each of the last 12 months is not recorded centrally and could be provided only by checking individual records which would be at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Finance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) administrative cost of appraising entitlement to section 4 support, (b) administrative cost of running an appeals system for those refused support under section 4, (c) the cost of printing, distributing and operating the use of vouchers for asylum seekers and (d) total cost of administering the voucher scheme for asylum seekers was in the last year for which figures are available. [255866]

Jacqui Smith: The way that data on the costs of providing section 4 support are recorded does not enable the separate collation of the administrative costs of appraising entitlement to section 4 support, as distinct from other costs such as consultancy, travel, office services and training.

Responsibility for running the Asylum Support Tribunal, which hears appeals by those refused asylum support or for whom asylum support is discontinued, rests with the Ministry of Justice, not the Home Office. Appeals may relate to support under sections 4 or 95 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999.

The costs of printing section 4 vouchers and administering and distributing those vouchers is included within the unit costs paid to accommodation providers under the UK Border Agency's target contracts. It is not an additional cost. Consequently it is not possible to provide a figure for the overall costs of administering section 4 vouchers.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements she has made with local authorities in response to their representations about a shortfall in their funding for dealing with asylum seekers in the years before the 2008-07 financial year. [257214]

Mr. Woolas: All claims from authorities for support for adults and families and UASCs have now been agreed and paid in with the exception of two London authorities, where the agency has recently made a final settlement offer following discussions with the authorities.

UKBA has paid all standard grant payments for UASC for the financial years up to and including 2007-08. UKBA has also agreed and paid all UASC special circumstances claims up to and including 2007-08.

DCSF and UKBA reached agreement with the Local Government Association and London Councils on the settlement of claims for leaving care expenditure up to and including 2007-08. Payments have been made to individual local authorities covered by the agreement.

Asylum: Housing

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average weekly cost of accommodating an asylum seeker on (a) section 4 and (b) section 95 support was in the last 12 months. [255868]

Jacqui Smith: During 2007-08 the accommodation element of section 4 support was an average of £97 per person per week and the accommodation element of section 95 support was £96 per person per week.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what additional average unit cost per asylum seeker is paid to accommodation providers to administer the provision of vouchers for those eligible for section 4 support. [255871]

Jacqui Smith: The cost for the administration and provision of vouchers is included within the unit cost paid to accommodation providers under the target contracts; it is not an additional cost.

Borders: Illegal Immigrants

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what means her Department uses to monitor which points of entry to the UK are used most frequently by illegal immigrants. [254494]

Jacqui Smith: The UK Border Agency continually uses risk assessment processes to provide a national picture of the risks posed at points of entry to the UK, the risk assessment process uses up to date national and international intelligence. It also takes into account the numbers of immigrants prevented from gaining entry into the UK illegally through clandestine methods, as well as those arriving without adequate documentation.

These assessments inform the decision on the level of front line resources deployed to points of entry to the UK. It is longstanding policy not to divulge details of operational deployment, as this could provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent controls.

British Nationality

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 280W, on British nationality, under what circumstances a requirement to attend a citizenship ceremony would have national security implications sufficient to give grounds to exempt an applicant from attendance. [254349]

Jacqui Smith: Citizenship ceremonies are public events often attended by many people. Exemption may be considered appropriate where, for example, it is deemed necessary to protect the identity of the person becoming British and ensure his or her safety.

British Nationality: Overseas Students

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether time spent in the UK by a foreign national on a student visa counts towards the qualifying period for UK citizenship. [256883]

Mr. Woolas: The qualifying period of residence for naturalisation as a British citizen is five years (or three if married to a British citizen). Currently time spent in the UK on a student visa will count towards this qualifying period.

Cambridgeshire Constabulary

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much Cambridgeshire Constabulary spent on translation and interpretation services provided by Language Line Services Limited in each month since May 2004; and if she will make a statement. [250828]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 27 January 2009]: Figures are not held centrally by the Home Office. However, Cambridgeshire constabulary have advised that the annual spend on translation and interpretation services provided by Language Line Services Ltd was: £54,929.55 in 2004-05; £64,209.62 in 2005-06; £73,871.88 2006-07; and £42,698.40 in 2007-08.

Cannabis: Crime

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) were arrested and (b) received on-the-spot fines for possession of cannabis in 2008. [256675]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, police force area and age group, covering categories such as violence against the person, robbery and drug offences. From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

The offence of possession of cannabis was added to the penalty notice for disorder (PND) scheme on 28 January 2009. No PNDs were therefore issued in 2008; data for 2009 should be published by the Ministry of Justice in November 2010.

Cannabis: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what evidence her Department holds on the relationship between the use of cannabis and the level of criminal activity to fund such use within (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in the last five years. [253792]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Department does not hold evidence on the relationship between use of cannabis and the level of criminal activity to fund such use within Cumbria and Copeland.

Much of the research evidence on the links between acquisitive crime and drug use points to Class A or 'problem' drug use as having the strongest links and as such there is little evidence on the links between cannabis use and crime.

Specific data on cannabis possession are only available from 2004-05 onwards. This is because prior to this, possession offences did not distinguish between cannabis and non-cannabis offences.

The number of recorded offences for possession of cannabis for Copeland and Cumbria, for the period 2003-04 to 2007-08, are given in the following table.

Recorded offences of possession of controlled drugs (cannabis) for the Copeland Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) and Cumbria police force area, 2003-04 to 2007-08

Area	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Copeland CDRP		86	71	78	79
Cumbria PFA		729	659	603	675

Note:
Possession of controlled drugs offences were split with effect from April 2004 into (i) possession of cannabis and (ii) possession of drugs other than cannabis.

Children in Care: Missing Persons

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children have gone missing from local authority care in Southampton and the surrounding area in the last 12 months. [255850]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the number of looked-after-children that have gone missing from Southampton local authority in the year ending 31 March 2008 can be found in table LAB5, taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR 23/2008) entitled 'Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008'. This table shows the number of looked-after-children who went missing from local authority care during the years ending 31 March 2006 to 2008.

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000810/index.shtml

and table LAB5 can be found within the Excel link labelled third set of additional tables.

Community Relations: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1277W, on community relations: finance, to whom the £480,000 fee was paid for the copyright of the Kids Taskforce DVD, Watch Over Me. [257176]

Mr. Coaker: £480,000 was given to the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) to pay for the copyright of the Kids Taskforce Watch Over Me DVDs for three years supplemented by 60 training days for teachers and partners. ACPO, DCSF and the Home Office are working with the Kids Taskforce on the national roll out of the DVD.

Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to reduce levels of (a) extortion and (b) trade in counterfeit goods in England; and if she will make a statement. [255329]

Mr. Alan Campbell: An effective operational response from the law enforcement authorities is the principal means of reducing levels of extortion attempts. Recorded crime figures for blackmail—under which extortion offences are recorded—in 2007-08 were 1,197, their lowest recorded level for six years.

The national strategy for tackling intellectual property theft is being led by the Intellectual Property Office for which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible.

Credit Cards: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether credit card fraud reported to banks is included in the (a) British Crime Survey and (b) reported crime figures. [252118]

Jacqui Smith: The annual Home Office statistical bulletin, Crime in England and Wales, reports on the scale of credit card fraud from a variety of sources including questions in the British Crime Survey, categories of police recorded crime offences and counts from APACS, the UK Payments Association.

Crime

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes have been recorded in each (a) parliamentary constituency and (b) local authority area in each year since 1997. [254606]

Jacqui Smith: Statistics are not collected specifically on a parliamentary constituency basis. Statistics for total recorded crime at local authority level are available only from 2000-01 onwards and are given in the tables placed in the House Library.

Crime Prevention

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much each Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership cost to run in each of the last five years. [254479]

Jacqui Smith: The cost to run each Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership varies around the country according to local arrangements. The normal practice is for partners—most usually the local police and local authority but also other local agencies—to contribute staff time and other resources. This is not measured centrally.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library a copy of the 'How secure is your home?'; online score card. [255619]

Mr. Alan Campbell: A copy of the 'How secure is your home?' online score card has been placed in the Library.

Crime Prevention: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to support local anti-knife crime campaigns. [255390]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 9 February 2009]: The Home Office appointed an agency in October 2008 to support local organisations in the delivery of anti-knife crime campaigns. As part of this work, we have developed a website:

www.itdoesnthavetohappen.co.uk/stakeholders which acts as a hub of information and advice for running such campaigns as well as a platform to share good practice from around the country. We have also developed two toolkits, one for local stakeholders who want to run their own campaigns to tackle knife crime and a campaigning toolkit for young people themselves, to help them spread the message to their peers.

Crime: Statistics

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which criminal offences are included in the official crime figures but excluded from the British Crime Survey. [254509]

Jacqui Smith: The official crime figures are compiled from both police recorded crime and the British Crime Survey (BCS). The two are a complementary series and together these provide a more comprehensive picture of crime than could be obtained from either series alone.

Prior to January 2009 the BCS was restricted to adults living in the general household population in England and Wales. Since then the survey has been extended to children 10 years and over.

The BCS does not include offences committed against children under 10 years or those where the victim is not in the resident household population, such as private and public sector organisations, tourists, residents of institutions and the homeless. The survey also excludes drug offences and homicide because it is based on interviews with individual victims.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what changes she plans to make to the national crime recording standard. [255046]

Jacqui Smith: There are no current plans to change the national crime recording standard.

Crime: Young People

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of reported crime was committed by people under the age of 16 years in the last year for which figures are available. [254815]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not collected centrally. While the Home Office collects statistics on the number of offences recorded by the police, no information is collected on the age of the alleged offenders.

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were recorded by the British Crime Survey in each of the last 10 years where the offender was (a) under school age, (b) of school age, (c) between 16 and 24, (d) between 25 and 40 and (e) over 40 years old, broken down by offences committed (i) in the home, (ii) at work, (iii) in the street, (iv) in a public house or club, (v) on public transport and (vi) at another location. [255110]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Analyses of the circumstances of violent crime as described by victims interviewed by the British Crime Survey (BCS) are published annually by the Home Office. The most recent analysis for the 2006-07 BCS was published as part of Supplementary Volume 3 to Crime in England and Wales 2006-07, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library.

Tables from 1996 onwards are also available on-line as follows:

1996 to 2002-03: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs04/violent_crime_0203.xls

These include separate breakdowns of the age of offenders and the location of incidents. However, providing estimates for the combined breakdowns requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were recorded in each of the last 10 years where the victim was (a) under school age, (b) of school age, (c) between 16 and 24, (d) between 25 and 40 and (e) over 40 years old. [255111]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The requested information is not collected centrally. Police recorded crime statistics deal with aggregated data and do not give details of the victim unless defined by statute, e.g. rape of a female child under 16.

A list of all the offence classifications within the police recorded crime series are available in Table 2.04 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Crime in England and Wales 2007/08", a copy of which is placed in the House of Commons Library.

Crimes of Violence: Football

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times section 27 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 has been applied to remove football supporters from (a) Premier League, (b) Championship, (c) League One, (d) League Two and (e) Football Conference football grounds since the Act came into force. [254808]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Home Office does not collate statistics on the service of notices on football supporters under section 27 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many orders under section 27 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 have been served on football supporters; on how many such people those orders have been served; and if she will make a statement. [254974]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 9 February 2009]: Home Office does not collate statistics on the service of notices to football supporters under section 27 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. Discussions are underway with the Association of Chief Police Officers, the UK Football Policing Unit and local police forces about the appropriate use of section 27 notices in policing football.

Criminal Records: Teachers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many criminal record checks were carried out in relation to supply teachers in the last 12 months; what the annual cost of carrying out those checks was; and if she will make a statement. [256734]

Meg Hillier: From 1 January to 31 December 2008, the latest year for which data are available, the number of disclosure applications processed by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) for individuals who have stated on their application forms the position they have applied for is a supply teacher is 44,083. The overall cost of these disclosures, assuming they were at the enhanced level, is £1,585,302 and this cost is recovered by fees.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies. [256039]

Mr. Woolas: Copies of the Display Energy Certificates and Advisory Reports that have been obtained for Home Office buildings will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of the IT systems in (a) her Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245388]

Mr. Woolas: All business systems have been assessed for accreditation or are currently undergoing this process.

The Home Office's priority is to conform to the new standards as laid out in the data handling report by the Cabinet Secretary published on 25 June 2008. The new standards build on recognised good practice and international standards for information security and are tailored to the particular circumstances of UK central government.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by her Department. [256207]

Mr. Woolas: Information on the number of EU foreign nationals employed within the Home Office is not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. There are currently no non-EU foreign nationals employed within Home Office HQ.

The Criminal Records Bureau does not currently employ any EU or non-EU foreign nationals.

Departmental Offices

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in her Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252366]

Mr. Woolas: Nothing has been spent other than on routine minor maintenance.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 67WS, on the departmental expenditure limit 2008-09, what the reasons were for the reprofiling of £48 million expenditure for the Office for Security and Counter Terrorism programme from 2008-09 to 2009-10. [250388]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The reprofiling of the Office for Security and Counter Terrorism £48 million from 2008-09 ensures that the funds available matches its spending forecast for 2009-10.

Departmental Research

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures there are for independent peer review of research undertaken by her Department before its publication. [255321]

Jacqui Smith: All social research that is published by the Home Office is subject to an independent peer review process. Once the research is complete, our usual practice is to send the research report to be peer reviewed by two external experts. We choose peer reviewers for their knowledge of the subject and their expertise in the methodology used for the research. In a small number of cases, the Department instead gives permission for the research to be published by external contractors who completed the work. These cases are externally peer reviewed wherever possible.

Copies of our peer review proformas are available on the Home Office website at:

http://rds.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/aboutrds3.html

Home Office Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB) publications are subject to a peer review process appropriate to the nature of the publication before being made publicly available on our website, or where protectively marked before being delivered to our customers.

http://scienceandresearch.homeoffice.gov.uk/hosdb/publications/

The review process is tailored to the publication type and can include review by internal peers, review by qualified colleagues in other Government Departments, review by academic partners or where HOSDB do publish purely scientific results in peer reviewed international journals. HOSDB scientists and engineers also present results at academic conferences where this is appropriate in order to ensure that scrutiny of our science is as robust as possible.

Deportation: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 284W, on deportation: Peterborough, for what reasons information on the number of residents in Peterborough constituency is not available. [253803]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 4 February 2009]: Information on the number of appeals lodged is published quarterly and annually. However, this information does not show who is currently appealing, only the total number of appeals lodged in the particular period. The figures are also not broken down by geographical region. Copies of Asylum Statistics Publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research Development and Statistics website at:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

The Case Information Database records both appeals and applicant address details. However, it is completely reliant on the quality and timeliness of the information received and input onto the database. Since we cannot ensure that this information meets the rigorous standards applied to published statistics, it is for internal use only by UK Border Agency. Ensuring the information is of sufficient quality to be issued publicly would entail a manual cross checking of a number of individual case files against these figures, which could only be completed at disproportionate cost.

Detention Centres: Death

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people died while being held in an immigration removal centre in each of the last five years, broken down by cause of death. [256438]

Mr. Woolas: In the last five years there have been a total of seven deaths of detainees held in the UK Border Agency removal centres; there have been no deaths in 2009 to date.

	Number of deaths
2004	4

Note:
Six deaths were as a result of suicide and one, in 2004, from natural causes.

Detention Centres: Detainees

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men, (b) women and (c) children are held in each immigration removal centre. [256440]

Mr. Woolas: As at 12 February 2009, there were 1,984 men, 295 women and 36 children detained in the UK Border Agency removal centres. The following table provides a breakdown of these figures by centre.

The figures given are based on management information, this information has not been quality assured under National Statistics protocols.

Detention Centres: Families

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many families have members currently held in different immigration removal centres. [256436]

Mr. Woolas: We do not hold the data requested centrally and it could be provided only by checking and cross-referencing each case file individually, which would be at disproportionate cost.

However, it is the UK Border Agency's policy to keep family members together wherever possible.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many families have one or more of their members currently held in an immigration removal centre. [256437]

Mr. Woolas: As at 10 February 2008 there were 44 families detained in the UK Border Agency detention estate.

Detention Centres: Visits

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visitors each immigration removal centre has received in each of the previous 12 months. [256439]

Mr. Woolas: All those detained in a UK Border Agency Immigration Removal Centres may receive visits as they wish from family, friends and other associates. They may also receive visits from legal advisers and representatives, from ministers of religion, and from members of the Independent Monitoring Board (1MB) appointed to each centre. Records of the numbers of visitors to each removal centre are not held, either locally at the individual centres or centrally. Home Office policy is not to hold databases that are unnecessary.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded instances of (a) rape and (b) domestic violence there were in each police force area in 2007-08; and what the clean-up rate for each crime was in each force in that year. [256681]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of recorded offences of rape and the clear-up rate for these crimes in 2007-08 is given in the following table.

From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) between 17 to 25, (b) between 25 to 40 and (c) 40 and over were (i) stopped on suspicion of, (ii) arrested for and (iii) charged with drink-driving in (A) Ribble Valley, (B) Lancashire and (C) England and Wales in each of the last five years. [253225]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Data are not collected centrally on the number of people stopped on suspicion of an offence or those charged with an offence.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office is based on aggregate data and covers persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, by age group, gender, ethnicity, police force area and main offence group, for example, violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary and drugs offences.

Offences of driving while unfit through drink are summary offences and do not feature in the arrests statistics collected by the Home Office.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) between 17 and 25, (b) between 25 and 40 and (c) over 40 years old were (i) stopped on suspicion of, (ii) arrested for and (iii) charged with drink-driving in (A) Southend, (B) Essex and (C) England and Wales in each of the last five years. Drugs: Crime

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Answer of 1 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1538-9W, on crime: statistics, how many incidents were recorded by each police force where drugs represented a characteristic or motivating factor in each of the last five years. [254524]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested has been provided by the National Policing Improvement Agency. The data are only available for 2007-08 and are given in the table. Please note that not all forces were in a position to supply these data for 2007-08.

It should be noted that these figures relate to the number of (non-notifiable crime) incidents where drugs represented a characteristic or motivating factor i.e. these figures should exclude all incidents which resulted in crimes being notified to the Home Office as part of the recorded crime statistics.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) drug dealing, (b) drug possession and (c) unlawful production of drugs were recorded by police forces in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the classification of the drug involved. [254542]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office recorded crime statistics currently collect data on four specific drug offences. These are trafficking in controlled drugs, possession of controlled drugs (cannabis), possession of controlled drugs (other) and other drug offences.

Possession of cannabis offences have been recorded separately since 2004-05 and are published in Table 2.04 of 'Crime in England and Wales 2007/08', a copy of which can be accessed at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb0708chap2.xls

With the exception of cannabis possession, the type of drug or drug classification is not collected in the recorded crime statistics.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of those brought into a police station tested positive for Class A drugs in 2007-08; and what the level of voluntary treatment take-up was. [256692]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Drug testing of offenders for specified Class A drugs (heroin and cocaine/crack) in police custody takes place in 107 BCUs. Offenders arrested or charged with a "trigger offence"—largely acquisitive crime related offences—are required to provide a sample to be tested.

The average rate of positive tests for specified Class A drugs for offenders arrested or charged with a trigger offence in 2007-08 was 38.7 per cent.

The figure for number of offenders entering treatment through DIP includes individuals from both DIP intensive areas (i.e. the 107 BCUs operating drug testing and related interventions) and the non-intensive areas of the programme. Offenders from the DIP non-intensive BCUs are not drug tested.

The data on the proportion of those who test positive and voluntarily agree to treatment are not available in the format requested. The Drug Interventions Programme does not routinely hold data on those entering treatment only as a result of a positive drug test.

In 2007-08 the number of offenders entering treatment voluntarily through the Drug Interventions Programme was 43,903.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time taken by the UK visa clearance authorities in (a) India, (b) Pakistan, (c) Sri Lanka and (d) Zimbabwe to process each stage of visa applications was in the last 12 months. [254111]

Mr. Woolas: Public service agreement (PSA) target times for processing visa applications during FY 2004-05 to FY 2007-08 were as follows:

PSA 1—90 per cent. of straightforward non-settlement applications processed in 24 hours

PSA 2—90 per cent. of non-settlement applications requiring further inquires to be processed within 15 working days

PSA 3—90 per cent. of applicants for settlement visas to be assessed or interviewed within in 50 working days.

Our performance against these targets in the countries specified in FY 2007-08 was as follows:

Percentage

FY 2007-08	PSA1	PSA 2	PSA3
India	92	95	97
Pakistan	87	92	87
Sri Lanka	72	71	56

These are end-to-end processing times which include processing at Visa Application Centres (run by our commercial partners) as well as processing at Visa Sections.

Extradition: USA

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited from the United States to the United Kingdom since 2003. [250081]

Meg Hillier: 29 persons have been extradited from the United States to the United Kingdom since 2003. This figure does not include persons surrendered to Scotland and Northern Ireland pursuant to extradition requests made by those jurisdictions.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what administrative financial penalties may be levied by her Department and its agencies. [253603]

Mr. Woolas: The Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 has provided a series of new sanctions for employers who employ illegal migrant workers. This includes a system of civil penalties, under which an employer can be fined up to £10,000 per person he/she is found to be employing illegally.

Additionally, Bulgarian and Romanian nationals who work illegally commit a criminal offence and may be served with a fixed penalty fine of £1,000 under criminal law.

Part II of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 enables the Secretary of State to impose a £2,000 fixed charge on any air or sea carrier for each non-European Economic Area passenger they bring to the UK who fails to produce, on request, a valid travel document satisfactorily establishing their identity and nationality and, if required, a valid visa.

The Department can also impose a civil penalty on those responsible for carrying clandestine entrants. The maximum penalty is £2,000 per clandestine and the aggregated maximum per clandestine (applied where more than one person is responsible) is £4,000.

The UK Borders Act 2007 enables the Secretary of State to make regulations requiring foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control to apply for an Identity Card for Foreign Nationals. Failure to comply with such a requirement may result in the imposition of a sanction, which may include a civil financial penalty up to a maximum of £1,000.

The police forces in England and Wales have the power to issue fixed penalty notices as a sanction against a specified list of offences, mainly related to public order (Penalty Notices for Disorder) and motoring.

For the Department's agencies, no penalties are levied.

Genetics: Databases

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people resident in Northern Ireland have details registered on the National DNA Database. [254270]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of subject profiles on the National DNA Database (NDNAD) submitted by the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) was 65,082 as at 3 February 2009.

The NDNAD does not hold any information on the place of residence of a person whose DNA is sampled. This figure therefore includes residents of areas other than Northern Ireland who were sampled by the PSNI, and excludes residents of Northern Ireland who were sampled by other police forces.

The number of profiles held on the NDNAD is not the same as the number of individuals. As it is possible for a profile to be loaded onto the NDNAD on more than one occasion, some profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates. This can occur if, for example, a person provided different names, or different versions of their name, when arrested on different occasions. At present, the average replication rate on the whole NDNAD is estimated to be 13.3 per cent. However, this figure may vary between police forces.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 710W, on genetics: database, what steps she plans to take to comply with the S and Harper judgment in relation to retention of DNA information from people not convicted of a crime. [255016]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I refer to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 809W.

Human Trafficking: Females

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she has taken to reduce levels of trafficking of women for sexual exploitation. [255431]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We continue to make good progress towards the 85 action points contained in our Action Plan to combat trafficking and we shall publish the annual update to this plan later in the year.

On 17 December 2008, the UK ratified Council of Europe convention on trafficking in human beings. This represents a major milestone in the fight against human trafficking.

We have introduced proposed legislative changes under the Policing and Crime Bill to make it an offence to purchase sex from a woman controlled for gain or who has been trafficked, as part of our strategy to reduce demand for trafficked women.

In addition to this, the Serious Organised Crime Agency has programmes of activity to combat organised immigration crime including human trafficking focusing on source and transit countries and trafficking into and within the UK.

Identity Cards

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what categories of person required to apply for identity cards are required to obtain certification of any criminal convictions. [258103]

Meg Hillier: The Identity Cards Act 2006 establishes the concept of a designated document. When an individual applies for a designated document they will also be required to apply for an identity card.

Secondary legislation, due to come before Parliament shortly, proposes the designation of criminal conviction certificates that have been applied for by airside workers who would be expected to produce the criminal conviction certificate before they were issued with an airside pass.

The draft secondary legislation is included in the Identity Cards Act Secondary Legislation consultation document which is available at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/downloads/NIS_Legislation.pdf

I would refer the hon. Member to that document.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she plans to take to encourage the voluntary uptake of identity cards by British nationals in pilot areas. [258106]

Meg Hillier: It was announced in November that we wanted to find a way to give members of the public who already see the benefits of ID cards a chance to get one this year.

The Identity and Passport Service have been working hard to make this happen and will launch a website on DirectGov in the next few months. The site will give the public a wealth of information about how to best prove and protect their identity, as well as keeping people updated about how they can apply for an identity card.

Further work to publicise identity cards is being planned.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of non-enrolment biometric checks against (a) an identity card and (b) the National Identity Register which will be made during the lifetime of the temporary register. [258107]

Meg Hillier: When we begin to issue identity cards from the second half of this year we will issue real identity cards backed up by the National Identity Register. This will not be a temporary register.

The early rollout stages of the national identity scheme will involve a limited number of individuals and so we would expect that initially very few biometric checks will be made.

Illegal Immigrants: Deportation

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the 3,300 illegal immigrants identified by the UK Border Agency between April and November 2008 have been removed from the UK. [256430]

Mr. Woolas: Published information on removals is provided in the quarterly asylum statistics. These are available in the Library of the House, and can also be accessed at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/immiq308.pdf

Immigrants: Crime

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded crimes have been committed by people with indefinite leave to remain in each of the last three years. [254820]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not available from the police recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office. The series collects statistics on the number of offences recorded but no information is collected on the status of the alleged offender.

Immigration: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 283W, on deportation: Peterborough, what fixed datasets are used by the case information database to identify (a) individual names, (b) individual postal addresses and (c) other data; and if she will make a statement. [253646]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The case information database uses datasets covering people's biometric and biographical data to uniquely establish individual identity and a table of addresses using the post office address finder software, table of address links to specific individuals and a further table which describe why the link is in place. These tables help to check that address data are accurate and up to date as possible and reduce the likelihood of errors throughout the individual journey in the immigration process including deportation information.

The case information database stores multiple addresses against an applicant for a variety of different uses including correspondence, prison, place of abode, etc. These are then stored either in elements including house name, street name, county etc. or in one block if the address can not be verified against the post office finder software.

Information on any other data needs to be specific to aid response.

Licensing Act 2003

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect of the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003 on shift patterns of police officers in (a) Essex and (b) England and Wales. [254993]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The shift patterns of police officers is an operational matter, and as such is for the chief constable to determine. However, the Government published a review of the Licensing Act 2003 in March 2008 which revealed a mixed picture in terms of its impact. The change in opening hours has not led to the widespread problems some people feared. Overall, crime and alcohol consumption are down, but there has been a small increase in alcohol-related violence in the early hours of the morning and some communities have seen a rise in disorder. Our main conclusion is that people are using the freedoms, but people are not sufficiently using the considerable powers granted by the Act to tackle problems, and that there is a need to rebalance action towards enforcement and crack down on irresponsible behaviour.

Additionally, we have introduced legislation for a new, mandatory code of practice. This will contain some compulsory national conditions, banning the most irresponsible practices and promotions which encourage people to drink excessively, or promote a binge-drinking culture. This will not affect the majority of businesses, small or large, that behave responsibly - but will target those that do not.

Further, the Government are funding a £4.5 million enforcement campaign, in addition to existing resources from the police, local authorities, and others, focused on 40-50 priority areas and led by ACPO Commander Simon O'Brien. There is additional funding for the 20 priority PCT areas, and a £10 million investment in national awareness campaigns.

Members: Correspondence

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer Question 243530, on fees for identity cards and biometric passports, tabled on 9 December 2008. [250487]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 27 January 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member on 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1672W.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to reply to the letter of 29 October 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Ms S. Umak. [250859]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 21 January 2009.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects a reply to be sent to the letter of 8 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, to the UK Border Agency regarding Sainey Manneh, Home Office reference number M1300980/3, acknowledgement reference B463/9. [257521]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to my right hon. Friend on 27 January 2009.

Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) young offenders, (b) young people and (c) adults detained by the police were diverted into treatment for a mental disorder in each police force area in each year since 2000. [250938]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information is not held centrally.

National Identity Register

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether the biographical component of the National Identity Register will be held on the Department for Work and Pensions customer information systems; and what other legacy systems will be linked to it; [258111]

(2) what measures the Identity and Passport Service plans to put in place to prevent officials from the Department for Work and Pensions from accessing its information held on the National Identity Register. [258113]

Meg Hillier: In order to maintain a necessarily high level of security, the National Identity Register will not be directly linked to any other Government databases and no third party organisation will have direct access to the information held on the register.

Our suppliers are currently building the system that will store the biographic information that will be enrolled when we begin issuing identity cards from the second half of this year.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost to other Departments of (a) making and (b) servicing individual verifications of their data held on the National Identity Register. [258114]

Meg Hillier: Government Departments already require individuals to provide proof of identity in order to access many services. Identity cards will be more convenient and secure than the array of documents that are currently used to prove identity, thus making the process more efficient from the very beginning.

Linked to the National Identity Register, identity cards will provide a range of levels of identity verification the majority of which will be a basic visual check of the card and not all transactions will require a check against the Register.

It will be the responsibility of any Government Department to decide what level of identity verification they require and if they wish to invest in equipment, such as card readers, or identity verification services provided by the Identity and Passport Service.

National Identity Register: Data Protection

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether requests from other Departments for information held on the National Identity Register will be restricted to requests for confirmation or denial of data held. [258109]

Meg Hillier: The information that is provided to other Government Departments from the National Identity Register will vary depending on the purpose for which the Department makes the request. The majority of requests will be to confirm the validity of data held by the Department. In limited cases however, further information may be provided, such as in the prevention and detection of crime.

All requests will be subject to the strict regulations laid out in the Identity Cards Act and forthcoming secondary legislation. Furthermore, all disclosures will comply with the Data Protection and Human Rights Acts.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what forms of access control her Department proposes to use to keep data on the National Identity Register gathered from the information systems of other Departments separate. [258112]

Meg Hillier: The information that will be held on the National Identity Register will be collected during the application process. It will not be made up of an amalgam of existing Government data.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Identity and Passport Service plans to take to shield information for which it is responsible following delivery to systems held by other Departments. [258116]

Meg Hillier: Before an organisation may be provided with information from the National Identity Register it will undergo an accreditation process which will include ensuring there is a legitimate business need for the information and that the organisation will be responsible for ensuring that information it is provided with is handled in accordance with the Data Protection Act.

In addition, under the Identity Cards Act, it will be a criminal offence to make any unauthorised disclosure of information from the National Identity Register. Accreditation may be withdrawn if an organisation fails to comply with any requirements to look after the information and the National Identity Scheme Commissioner will provide independent oversight of the provision of information.

Offences Against Children

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under the age of 18 were the victims of sexual crimes in each of the last three years. [253854]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not available centrally.

The British crime survey (BCS) collects information on sexual offences experienced by adults aged 16 years and over, resident in England and Wales. However, due to the small number of sexual offences identified by the BCS it is not possible to provide robust estimates for children of 16 and 17 years of age.

Police recorded crime figures held by the Home Office are based on aggregate returns from police forces of the number of notifiable offences reported to and recorded by the police. These returns do not contain information on the characteristics of victims or their families.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many SCD5 child abuse investigation trained officers are stationed in (a) each London borough and (b) each police authority area outside London; and if she will make a statement. [254814]

Mr. Coaker: The requested figures are not available centrally.

Offensive Weapons

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on the use of catapults as offensive weapons; and if she will make a statement. [255843]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The Home Office has received both public and ministerial correspondence on the use of catapults as offensive weapons. The law is clear that if someone is carrying a catapult with intent to cause injury he may be liable to prosecution under section 1 of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 which makes it an offence to carry an offensive weapon in public without lawful authority or reasonable excuse.

Offensive Weapons: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) gun crimes and (b) arrests relating to gun crime there were in England in 2007-08. [256753]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Firearms (excluding air weapons) were reported to have been used in 9,656 crimes in England during 2007-08. Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument or used as a threat.

Data on arrests relating to gun crime cannot be provided by the Home Office since (a) the centrally held firearm offences database does not record detection or suspect data, and (b) offences involving firearms cannot be identified on the centrally held arrests database.

Offensive Weapons: Police Cautions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were cautioned for carrying a knife in the last year for which figures are available. [254497]

Jacqui Smith: The number of offenders cautioned for illegal knife possession in 2007 (the latest year available) in England and Wales was 7,404.

ACPO guidance issued on 22 July 2008 makes it clear that anyone over the age of 16 caught in possession of a knife can now expect to be prosecuted on the first offence. Those under 16 can expect a formal final warning coupled with a knife education scheme to help them understand the potentially devastating consequences of carrying knives.

Revised guidance issued by the Sentencing Guidelines Council on 1 August states that the starting point for sentencing a level one (i.e. least serious) first time adult offender caught in possession for a knife who pleads not guilty should be 12 weeks in custody. More information can be found at:

http://www.sentencing-guidelines.gov.uk

Illegal knife possession includes the following offences:

Having an article with blade or point in public place and having an article with blade or point on school premises.

From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the total.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Official Residences

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 719W, on official residences, for what reason a home condition report was not purchased. [256498]

Mr. Woolas: The selling agents did not advise procurement of a home condition report as they consider that the most likely potential purchaser will wish to carry out substantial works to the property and a home condition report would not be likely to materially assist such a purchaser.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 13 January 2009 Official Report, column 719W, on official residences: whether the property at 62 South Eaton Place was placed on the market before the home information pack was completed and finalised. [256775]

Mr. Woolas: No. Our agents have confirmed that the home information pack was finalised on 18 September which was the date that the property was made live by them for the purpose of placing it on the market.

Operation Cast Lead

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what contribution (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department made to the briefing note on Operation Cast Lead produced jointly by her Department's Research and Information Unit and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office; and if she will make a statement. [256538]

Mr. Coaker: Home Office officials and officials from other Government Departments contributed to the communications briefing note produced by the Research, Information and Communications Unit (RICU) on Operation Cast Lead. Contributions were made to press lines and to a list of ministerial and official media and community engagement. Ministers made no direct contributions to the note although their engagement activities were recorded.

Passports: Languages

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what language facilities other than English have been required to assist staff in dealing with non-English speaking passport applicants at the passport office in Belfast during 2008. [248423]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) Belfast does not keep records of all instances when language facilities other than English are required in dealing with non-English speaking passport applicants. All applications are made in English and when foreign documents support these and require translation, customers are asked to provide a translation from an independent and verifiable translator. Given the range of applications submitted from persons whose birth, marriage, divorce, or change of name may take place abroad, it is impossible to provide a definitive list of the number or type of translation services that may be required.

On the rare occasion when a caller making an application or inquiry at the public counter does not speak English, they may communicate through a friend or family member. Given the infrequency of the requirement for translation or interpreter services at Belfast, it would not be cost effective for IPS to make separate permanent provision for this.

The only exception arises in the case of interviews to authenticate identity at the regional office public counter at Hampton House High street Belfast or at the IPS Interview Office at Norwood House, Great Victoria street, Belfast. In such cases for security reasons IPS will provide an interpreter if required.

In 2008 no interpreter services were required at the Hampton House public counter. Eight cases arose at the Interview Office in Norwood House, comprising six cases interpreting Chinese Mandarin, one case interpreting Cantonese and one case interpreting Bengali.

Police

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average number of police response units on call at any one time. [254817]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not held centrally.

Police Authorities

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings (a) she and (b) her officials have had with (a) the Association of Chief Police Officers, (b) the Association of Police Authorities, (c) the Local Government Association and (d) Connect Public Affairs or consultants engaged by them or clients represented by them at which proposals for directly elected police authority representation to be contained in the Policing and Crime Bill were discussed. [247863]

Mr. Coaker: Home Office Ministers and officials have frequent meetings with the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities, and from time to time with the Local Government Association. These proposals were discussed at several of these meetings.

There have been no meetings with Connect Public Affairs itself, but the Association of Chief Police Officers, the Association of Police Authorities and a number of individual police authorities appear to be clients of this organisation.

Police Community Support Officers: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers serving in Hertfordshire constabulary have unspent criminal convictions. [256491]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold such information. This is a matter for the chief constable of Hertfordshire constabulary.

Police Patrolling

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average number of hours per day a police officer spent on patrol in 2007-08. [256745]

Mr. Coaker: It is not possible to calculate the number of hours per day spent on patrol, because different forces will have different shift patterns and hence different numbers of hours per day.

However, 13.8 per cent. of police officer time in England and Wales was spent on patrol in 2007-08.

Time spent on patrol is defined as the time when an officer is patrolling but engaged on no other duties. A fuller picture of the activities undertaken by a police officer will include not only time on patrol but also other core duties such as responding to 999 calls or community involvement activities. In 2007-08, 64.9 per cent. of police officer time in England and Wales was spent on such front-line duties.

All the figures quoted above exclude Staffordshire, for which data are not available.

Police Stations

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to require police authorities to publish the number of police stations in their area and their opening times. [256125]

Mr. Coaker: I do not intend to require police authorities to publish such information; this is a matter for individual police authorities.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations there are in England and Wales. [257073]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not held centrally. The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for the police authority and chief constable for each force, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Convictions

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) male and (b) female police officers of each rank in each police force were (i) arrested, (ii) prosecuted and (iii) convicted for drink-driving in each of the last three years for which information is available. [256721]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office and the data held by the Ministry of Justice on court proceedings do not include information on the individual circumstances of persons arrested, prosecuted or convicted. As a result the occupation of individuals arrested or brought before the courts cannot be separately identified.

Police: Demonstrations

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 167W, on police: demonstrations, how many (a) assaults by protesters were made and (b) police vehicles were damaged during the course of demonstrations in support of (i) Palestinians and (ii) Israel; and if she will make a statement. [256897]

Mr. Coaker: The assaults by protesters and damage to police vehicles took place at and around demonstrations against the invasion of Gaza.

Police: Driving Offences

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times police cars exceeding relevant speed limits have been detected by speed cameras in each police force area in each of the last five years; and how many and what proportion of such detections resulted in (a) a prosecution, (b) a caution, (c) no further action and (d) words of advice from a senior officer. [256536]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The law on speeding offences applies to police officers as it does to the general public. The police can however claim exemption from speed limits in the circumstances set out in section 87, Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.[1] This provides that speed limits do not apply to vehicles being used for an emergency service purpose if observing the limit on that specific occasion would hinder such use. In the event of dispute, it would be for the courts to decide if the exemption was properly claimed or a speeding offence committed.

Within the constraints of the legislation, the use of the speed limit exemption is an operational matter for the police. The police will take into account the need on each specific occasion to reach an emergency scene as quickly as possible and to preserve road safety. Police have been convicted or offered fixed penalties for speeding when on duty, but there is no evidence that they are routinely acting inappropriately.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers have been (a) prosecuted for and (b) convicted of driving offences which occurred while the officer (i) was and (ii) was not on duty which led to incidents where civilians have died in each year since 1997. [257804]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Data on prosecutions and convictions held by the Ministry of Justice do not include information on the individual circumstances of persons prosecuted or convicted. As a result the occupation of defendants cannot be separately identified.

Police: Finance

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the pay costs of (a) Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary, (b) the National Police Improvement Agency, (c) the Police Standards Unit and (d) the Independent Police Complaints Commission were in 2007-08; and how many staff worked in each organisation in that year. [256747]

Mr. Coaker: The available information is shown in the following tables:

(a) Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC)

	Total staff	Total pay (£ million)
2007-08	145	8.8

Note
Total staff numbers include HO and seconded staff.

(b) National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA)

	Total staff	Total pay (£ million)
2007-08	1,857	99.5

1. Staffing numbers are the average during the period 2007-08.
2. Staffing numbers and costs include permanent NPIA staff, police, civilian and other secondees, contractors and agency staff.

(c) Police Standards Unit (PSU)

2007-08	[1]	[1]

[1] In July 2007 the Police Standards Unit merged with the Partnership Performance Support Unit to form the Police and Partnership Standards Unit (PPSU). The rationale for the merger is explained in the PCSD Director's Report 2006-07. The complement for the PPSU in 2007-08 was 33 and the total pay costs were approximately £2.3 million.

d: Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC)

	Total staff	Total pay (£ million)
2007-08	398	19.1

Notes:
1. The figures are taken from the 2007-08 annual accounts to be laid before Parliament.
2. The figures for pay cost include pension and social security costs.
3. Staff costs and figures include agency staff, seconded staff and commissioners' staff.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the funding which would have been made available to each police force in England in each year from 2004-05 to 2009-10 had the damping mechanism not been applied. [256905]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following table.

The damping mechanism exists to protect all authorities against financial instability and ensures all authorities receive an increase in grant at least equal to the "floor" level on a like-for-like basis year-on-year.

Raw allocation (£ million)

Police authority	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10

1. All figures are rounded to the nearest £100,000. Grant as calculated using the Police Funding Formula (before Amending Reports).
2. From 2006-07 funding for pensions and security funding became specific grants, and no longer part of general grant.
3. Figures for the City of London are excluded because these are allocated to the Common Council of the City of London as a whole in respect of all its functions. The city is grouped with education authorities for floors and scaling purposes.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers (a) in each police force area and (b) at each rank have been employed in jobs other than the police force in each of the last three years for which information is available. [256537]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally.

Police: Pensions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the budget of each police force was used to fund pension payments in each of the last 10 years. [254503]

Jacqui Smith: The following table gives the proportion of the budget requirement of each police force used to fund pension payments for the first two completed years under the current system of police pensions financing, 2006-07 and 2007-08. The information given for pensions expenditure, both as a figure and as a percentage of the total budget requirement, consists in each case of the employer contributions made in that year. The current system of police pensions financing was introduced in April 2006, whereby each police authority pays employer and officer contributions into a separate account out of which pensions are paid. Where the income into the police authority pensions account from contributions (plus other payments such as inward transfer values) is insufficient to meet the cost of pensions payment, it is topped up by Home Office grant.

Figures for the years before 2006-07 relate to the previous pay-as-you-go system of financing, under which police pensions were paid out of forces' operating accounts. Information about the level of pensions expenditure net of officer contributions is included in the annual reports published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA). This information is gathered independently of the Home Office.

[1] Provisional management information data collected for planning purposes only. Data have not undergone usual quality assurance practices (including validation with individual police forces) and are therefore supplied for information purposes only.

[2] Does not include informal expressions of interest. Some forces no longer send out and receive paper application packs and instead receive electronic applications via the www.policecouldyou.co.uk website. Where forces receive application packs from other means it is not always possible to separately identify the number of paper application packs received, and in such cases forces have been instructed to return a zero response.

Police: Standards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) reports and (b) data sets each police force is required to submit to her Department each (i) month and (ii) year. [254816]

Jacqui Smith: The following table contains details of the 2009/10 Annual Data Requirement (ADR) from police forces in England and Wales. The ADR details the statutory requirements for data from police forces that are made under the Home Secretary's powers under the Police Act 1996.

The Policing Green Paper announced that Sir David Normington, Permanent Secretary to the Home Office, would lead a review of the data collection burden placed on police forces in England and Wales by the Home Office. The aim of the review is to reduce the burden by up to 50 per cent. The report of the review, 'Reducing the Data Burden on Police Forces in England and Wales', was published on 16 February 2009 and includes proposals for:

- cutting out altogether or significantly reducing 36 data streams;
- a two-year moratorium on requests for new data collection; and
- a new 'Gateway' process to limit requests for data which fall outside the statutory Annual Data Requirement.

The outcome of the review will have an immediate impact on the Annual Data Requirement made of police forces for 2009-10.

Police: Stun Guns

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of training provided to police officers for using the new taser stun guns in the (a) last and (b) next 12 months. [257656]

Mr. Coaker: Taser training, as with all other areas of police training, will need to be met from within force budgets. As such, the Home Office has not made an estimate of the cost of training officers to use taser.

Police: Vacancies

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officer vacancies at all ranks there were in (a) the Metropolitan Police Force and (b) all other forces in 2007-08. [256695]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Police: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many civilian staff of (a) North Wales Police, (b) Gwent Police, (c) South Wales Police and (d) Dyfed-Powys Police have unspent criminal convictions; [255884]

(2) how many serving policy community support officers with (a) North Wales Police, (b) Gwent Police, (c) South Wales Police and (d) Dyfed-Powys Police have unspent criminal convictions; [255885]

(3) how many serving officers of (a) North Wales Police, (b) Gwent Police, (c) South Wales Police and (d) Dyfed-Powys Police have unspent criminal convictions. [255887]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Ports

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how often yellow boxes at small ports are cleared; and how often their contents are analysed. [255383]

Jacqui Smith: Yellow boxes (or yacht boxes) used for depositing C1331 forms are emptied by UK Border Force staff working in flexible teams. They are emptied as and when staff are deployed to those locations where boxes are present.

When the forms have been collected from the yellow boxes, they are sent to a central point for processing and analysing.

The National Yachtline advises yachtsmen to send the C1331s to a single point in Dover where the data are checked and recorded. The information is then forwarded to direct taxes to follow up as appropriate.

HMRC are in the process of updating public Notice 8 Sailing Your Pleasure craft to and from the UK to reflect this current practice.

Powers of Entry: Parliamentary Estate

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Lord West's review of powers of entry will have powers of entry into the precincts of Parliament within its scope. [250573]

Mr. Coaker: The Review of Powers of Entry focuses on collating existing statutory powers available to investigating agencies and scoping the potential for a future statutory framework for the exercise of entry powers by non-police agencies. The review will consider all types of premises to which powers of entry apply.

Proceeds of Crime

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on managing and liquidating assets recovered by the Serious Organised Crime Agency under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 in the first nine months of 2008-09. [255273]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures relating to costs incurred for the financial year 2008-09 are subject to internal validation within the Serious Organised Crime Agency and will be available after the end of the financial year.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department takes to monitor the amount of criminal assets recovered under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 by (a) law enforcement agencies and (b) prosecuting authorities; and how often each such agency is required to report on the recovery of criminal assets. [255274]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office monitors the overall performance of all agencies involved in the recovery of criminal assets on a monthly basis. There is no requirement on law enforcement agencies to report to the Home Office on their performance in this area. The Department has no authority to monitor the performance of the prosecution agencies.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money recovered under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 was retained by her Department in the (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) first nine months of the 2008-09 financial year; to which projects such money was allocated in each year; how much money was allocated to each such project; and how much of the money allocated had not been spent at the latest date for which figures are available. [255676]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information available is as follows:

2006-07	58.13
2007-08	64.8

These sums contributed to core Home Office expenditure priorities, including policing and other asset recovery measures. Similar sums were allocated in those periods to the police and other agencies involved in the recovery of criminal assets, under the Asset Recovery Incentive Scheme. Police forces have invested most of their monies from the incentive scheme in further developing their asset recovery and financial investigation capacity, with the funding of financial investigator posts, anti-money laundering teams, and asset recovery operations. In addition some funds were used on local projects to tackle gun and knife crime. The Metropolitan Police Service also made a grant to the Safer London Foundation. Other forces supported a range of community initiatives, including youth projects, road shows, prevention of doorstep crime, over 60s club, and equipment for a faith based community centre. Other agencies have also reinvested their shares in asset recovery activity.

As at 31 August 2007, £18 million of the total sums allocated to local agencies for performance in 2006-07 had not been spent. As at 31 August 2008, £22 million of the sums allocated for performance in 2007-08 had not been spent. This is mainly due to the fact that allocations for performance in the fourth quarter of a financial year are not made to agencies until the first quarter of the following financial year. No data are available on unspent monies in 2008-09.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money was recovered under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 by each law enforcement agency in the first nine months of the 2008-09 financial year; how much of the money recovered was repaid to each such agency; and what steps she takes to monitor the purposes for which such money is allocated by law enforcement agencies. [255684]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information available relates to the first six months of the 2008-09 financial year and is set out in the following table. 50 per cent. of all recovered sums are returned to front-line agencies under the Asset Recovery Incentive Scheme. All agencies are required to submit to the Home Office a certified annual return on the use made of their allocations under the scheme.

Proceeds of Crime: Northern Ireland

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on the recent distribution of recovered criminal assets; and if she will make a statement. [255270]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There has been no need for discussions between Home Office and Northern Ireland Office Ministers on this matter. Under the Asset Recovery Incentive Scheme, 50 per cent. of all monies recovered are distributed among the front-line agencies involved, including agencies in Northern Ireland. The allocation of shares to individual agencies in Northern Ireland has been agreed with Northern Ireland Ministers.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money recovered under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 was allocated for expenditure in Northern Ireland in the (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) first nine months of the 2008-09 financial year. [255683]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The allocations to Northern Ireland agencies under the Asset Recovery Incentive Scheme were as follows:

	Amount (£)
2006-07	303,198.31
2007-08	1,820,228.17
2008-09[1]	265,758.10

Public Order

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she issues to police forces on the grounds on which they may seek cancellation of public events where a threat to public safety is thought to exist; whether such guidance includes provisions on the furnishing to events organisers of the evidence underlying the assessment of any threat to public safety; and if she will make a statement. [256224]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not issue guidance to police forces on this matter. However, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) inform us that under the Licensing Act 2003, the police may make objections to the granting of a premise's licence on the grounds of four licensing objectives. These include public safety and the prevention of crime and disorder. The police may also make objections to the granting of a temporary event notice solely on the grounds of the prevention of crime and disorder.

DCMS has issued guidance to licensing authorities under section 182 of the Act on relevant representations, and also guidance to police officers on the use of closure powers in the Act to deal with disorder or noise nuisance problems on premises. There are no provisions in the guidance for furnishing event organisers with the evidence underlying the assessment of any threat to public safety.

Rape

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number and percentage of reported rapes that were categorised by the police as no crime in each of the last five years. [255434]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is given in the following table.

The methods by which police can 'no crime' a recorded offence are governed by the Home Office Counting Rules for Recorded Crime, Section C. The relevant criteria are as follows:

(a) The crime was committed outside the jurisdiction of the police force in which it was recorded. (Crimes committed within the jurisdiction of another police force area should be referred to the respective force—see also section G of the Home Office Counting Rules.)

(b) Where following the report of an incident which has subsequently been recorded as a crime, additional verifiable information is available which determines that no notifiable crime has been committed.

(c) If the crime, as alleged, constitutes part of a crime already recorded.

Rashid Rauf

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any official in her Department had any contact with Mr. Rashid Rauf in (a) Pakistan and (b) Afghanistan during 2006. [245653]

Mr. Coaker: No official in the Department had any such contact.

Security: Olympic Games 2012

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated research into the use of high-powered microphones on closed circuit television cameras for security purposes at the 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [254794]

Mr. Coaker: No research has been commissioned or evaluated by the Home Department into the use of high-powered microphones on closed circuit television cameras for security purposes at the 2012 Olympics.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hornchurch of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 298W, on Olympic Games 2012: security, if she will break down the budget of £600 million by areas of spending. [256954]

Jacqui Smith: Work is continuing to finalise the strategy and plans for the security of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games. Decisions on funding will take account of the operational needs of the police and other agencies, affordability within the £600 million funding envelope and the need to secure value for money.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Cost Effectiveness

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to publish information on the assets recovery function of the Serious Organised Crime Agency to enable value for money assessments to be made. [245951]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the asset recovery function of the Serious Organised Crime Agency will be published as part of its 2008-09 annual report.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer given of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1239W, on the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA), when she expects SOCA to publish its report for the financial year 2008-09; and what assessment she has made of the performance of SOCA during the first six months of 2008-09. [254976]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Serious Organised Crime Agency expects to publish its Annual Report in May 2009.

Home Office ministers have regular meetings with the chair and the director general of the Serious Organised Crime Agency and SOCA provides the Department with a performance report quarterly.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Standards

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she has taken to monitor the systems used by the Serious Organised Crime Agency to (a) manage its cases and (b) produce (i) management and (ii) financial information on recovered assets; and if she will make a statement. [254943]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Home Office Ministers and senior officials have regular meetings with the Serious Organised Crime Agency to discuss performance against the strategic priorities and targets in their Annual Plan, including the recovery of criminal assets. The specific management information and other systems used by SOCA in relation to asset recovery are the responsibility of the director general.

Sexual Assault Referral Centres

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding her Department has allocated to sexual assault referral centres for 2009-10. [255362]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The 2009-10 funding round for new and existing Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs) was split into two tranches to enable partnerships to plan expenditure and ensure they were able to spend the full amount of funding awarded within the financial year. £1.6 million was made available in total.

Bids were initially invited in November 2008. £574,000 was awarded to 20 SARCs in that initial round. A further bidding round to spend the remainder of the funding will open in April 2009.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sexual assault referral centres will open in (a) the next 12 months and (b) the next five years. [255617]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There are currently 27 sexual assault referral centres (SARCs) open and a further 10 in development. Of those in development, the Government estimate that five will open within 12 months and an additional three will offer a partial service. By the end of 2010 those offering a partial service will open fully, as will the other two SARCs in development.

The Home Secretary has made a commitment to have at least one SARC in every police force area by 2011. A bidding round for funding for new and existing SARCs will be announced in April.

Sexual Offences

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she has taken to ensure that police forces have adequate resources to protect people in local communities from sex offenders. [255821]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Resources are essentially an operational issue for individual police forces. However, the Government grant on services for the police will have increased by over 60 per cent (or by over £3.7 billion) between 1997-98 and 2010-11.

Sexual Offences: Crime Prevention

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to reduce levels of sexual violence and abuse; and if she will make a statement. [255618]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government set out their plans to tackle this issue in the cross-Government Action Plan on Sexual Violence and Abuse published in 2007. This set out three aims: increasing access to health and support services for victims, improving the criminal justice response, and maximising prevention. Action has been taken to support each of these aims and an update will be available later in the year.

Speed Limits: Measuring Instruments

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what studies her Department has conducted to assess the potential for human error when using the VASCAR system of speed detection. [255896]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The VASCAR speed measurement device is approved by the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) as a device that is suitable for police use to support an officer's opinion that a vehicle was speeding. ACPO have issued guidance which requires officers to be trained and to pass a test of their performance. I am satisfied that when a trained and successfully tested operator uses a VASCAR device in line with the ACPO guidance, the device will be accurate and provide useful corroborative evidence.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what studies her Department has conducted to assess the impact of police radio waves on the VASCAR system of speed estimation. [255898]

Mr. Alan Campbell: When the police Airwave radio system was introduced, there were comprehensive tests as to the likelihood that it might interfere with other technological devices, such as VASCAR. Advice was issued on operational practice.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent guidance her Department has given police forces on use of the VASCAR system of speed estimation in the light of their withdrawal from use in Scotland; and if she will make a statement. [255901]

Mr. Alan Campbell: VASCAR is a device approved by the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) as a means of corroborating an officer's opinion that a vehicle was speeding. Guidance on its use is a matter for ACPO. I understand that use was suspended briefly in Scotland while existing guidance was clarified, but that it has now been reinstated. It is now clearly understood that VASCAR can always be used without the risk of Airwave radio interference if the radio is switched off or its transmit inhibit function has been activated, or if an active radio is outside a police vehicle and VASCAR inside, there is a distance of at least two metres between them.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces in England and Wales use the VASCAR system of speed estimation. [255902]

Mr. Alan Campbell: This information is not available centrally. The decision as to which devices to use in speed limit enforcement is a matter for individual chief officers of police.

Standing Advisory Committees

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what standing advisory committees her Department has; and what the membership is of each. [255318]

Jacqui Smith: Details of Home Office Public Bodies, including its advisory committees, are published annually on the Home Office website. The latest publication can be found using the following link:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/public-bodies-list-08?view=Binary.

The membership of each committee can be found on their individual websites.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of her Department's science advisory committee have (a) received and (b) applied for grants for research from her Department. [255319]

Jacqui Smith: No members of the Home Office Science Advisory Committee are currently funded as a project leader for research either from a grant or a research contract from the Home Office.

The Home Office does not keep lists of named, unsuccessful, grant or research contract applicants. The Home Office keeps the individual bids for a period of time, but an answer cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has paid in grants to research projects in which each member of the Department's science advisory committee has taken part in the last 12 months. [255320]

Jacqui Smith: No current members of the Home Office Science Advisory Committee have directly received funding either as a grant or a research contract, as a project leader, in the last 12 months. While we record the project leader and other key researchers on contracts or grants, we do not record the names of all scientists that may take part in the research. It is possible that some Home Office Science Advisory Committee members have taken part in projects in a lesser capacity than project leader or key researcher.

Stop and Account

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department by what date the stop and account form will have been withdrawn from use. [254818]

Jacqui Smith: The Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (Codes of Practice) (Revisions to Code A) (No. 2) Order 2008 (SI 2008/3146) came into effect on 1 January 2009. From that date, an officer conducting a stop and account has not been required to complete a record of the encounter other than to record ethnicity.

Stun Guns: Children

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times a Taser gun has been used (a) on a child and (b) within 10 metres of a child in each police authority area in England in each of the last two years. [256267]

Jacqui Smith: The number of times a Taser has been used on a person under 18 years of age in England and Wales in 2007 and 2008 is shown in the table. Information is not collected on the number of times Taser is deployed within 10 metres of a child.

The total number of subjects exposed to the use of Taser over both these periods totals 2,222 individuals. However only for 2,174 of these were ages reported, the remaining 48 had no reported age for the subjects.

Sparking of the Taser commonly known as "arcing".
Aiming of the Taser or placing the laser sight red dot onto a subject.
Firing of a Taser so that the barbs are discharged at a subject.
Application and Discharge of a Taser in "drive stun mode" to a subject.

Surveillance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer to Lord Stoddart of Swindon of 15 October 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column 56WA, on surveillance, what the terms of reference are of the review of public authorities' use of powers under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; who is conducting the review; and what evidence is being taken to inform the review. [256499]

Mr. Coaker: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced on 16 December that the Government would consult on a number of changes proposed to the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA), including which public authorities can use RIPA powers and for what purposes. The consultation is planned for early this year and the outcome of the consultation will also be made public.

Surveillance: Local Authorities

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 728W, on surveillance: local authorities, in respect of which public authorities the Investigatory Powers Tribunal made a determination in favour of the complainants; and whether copies of those determinations are held by her Department. [256774]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is not provided with and does not hold copies of Investigatory Powers Tribunal determinations or details of the public authorities concerned. The Investigatory Powers Tribunal is independent of Government. Under Rule 6(6) of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal Rules (Statutory Instrument 2000 No. 2665) the Tribunal may not, without the consent of the complainant, disclose to any person information or documents provided to it. The Tribunal's website: www.ipt-uk.com gives examples of anonymised rulings following some of its hearings.

Tackling Knives Action Programme

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the Tackling Knives Action Programme in each of the last six months; and how much is budgeted to be spent on the programme in each of the next 12 months. [252117]

Jacqui Smith: Between August 2008 and March 2009, a total of £2.37 million was disbursed to support the work of the Tackling Knives Action programme. See following table for monthly breakdown.

The budget for 2009-10 has not yet been finalised.

TKAP Funding August 2008 to January 2009

Breakdown by month	Funding (£)

September	1,068,667.50

Terrorism

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how she plans to ensure that Independent Advisory Groups are able to deal with the aftermath of local counter-terror operations; and if she will make a statement. [245693]

Mr. Coaker: The Association of Chief Police Officers has issued guidance to forces to assist them in managing concerns and tensions within local communities during and following a counter terrorist operation. The guidance suggests that the police include members of Independent Advisory Groups (IAG), as well as police authority members and locally elected members, in the group that is formed to deal with the operation.

At a strategic level, a National Independent Advisory Group has recently been formed to represent the local IAGs at a national level. This group will act as a central resource to forces in order to provide specific community expertise and advice in the event of a counter terrorist operation.

Separately, a two day table top exercise (Op Nicole) has been developed by the Association of Chief Police Officers Terrorism and Allied Matters (ACPO (TAM)), National Community Tension Team. It is designed to break down barriers between police and Muslim communities by promoting an understanding of how counter-terrorism operations work. At the same time, it provides police officers with an insight into Muslim community concerns and the impact that counter-terrorism operations can have upon those communities. It also addresses some of the myths that surround CT work.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government have taken to improve counter-terror policing in the West Midlands. [249478]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 22 January 2009]: We have worked with ACPO and West Midlands Police since 2004-05 to establish a counter-terrorism capacity and capability outside London. The Counter Terrorism Unit (CTU) in Birmingham developed from this pilot work to become, in early 2007, one of three strategically located units of national assets placed under the local control of a lead force. The CTUs enhance, complement and support the work of police forces by providing coordination and specialist support to deliver our counter-terrorism strategy. West Midlands CTU has a broad operational capability that incorporates intelligence, investigation and surveillance functions. Personnel working within the unit have been responsible for a number of arrests and prosecutions as well as more discrete day-to-day prevention and disruption activity to counter the threat posed by terrorism.

Terrorism Act 2000: Prosecutions

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there have been for offences under sections (i) 11, (ii) 12 and (iii) 13 of the Terrorism Act 2000 in each year since 2001. [256096]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not currently available.

The Home Office, Ministry of Justice and Attorney General's Office are currently working with the National Coordinator for Terrorist Investigations to improve the quality of data relating to those arrested, charged, convicted and imprisoned under terrorist legislation and under other legislation but considered terrorist related. As soon as this is complete a Statistical Bulletin covering this information will be published by the Home Office.

Vetting: Apprentices

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many Criminal Record Bureau checks have been processed in respect of employers taking on young apprentices in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement; [256089]

(2) if she will estimate the cost to the public purse of processing the Criminal Record Bureau checks required as a result of the planned expansion of youth apprenticeships; and if she will make a statement. [256910]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau does not hold this information. The Disclosure Service is only available for those positions and types of work included in the Exceptions Order (1975) to the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974. The standard and enhanced disclosure process includes checks against the Police National Computer (PNC) and, if applicable, a search against Section 142 of the Education Act 2002, the Protection of Children Act 1999 and Protection of Vulnerable Adults (PoCA and PoVA) lists. Enhanced disclosures also contain a further check conducted by police forces for any relevant non-conviction information.

All individuals who have received a successful offer of employment for a role which brings them into contact with children or vulnerable adults are subject to these checks.

Young People: Arrests

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of people aged 18 years or under who lived in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas in 2008, as determined by the income deprivation affecting children index, were arrested in 2008. [256432]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, police force area and age group, covering categories such as violence against the person and robbery. Information on the individual circumstances of persons arrested is not reported to the Home Office as a part of the arrests collection.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Admissions

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) adults and (b) children were admitted to accident and emergency departments as a result of attacks by dogs in each of the last five years, broken down by hospital trust. [256358]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. The following tables show the count of finished admission episodes (FAEs) where the external cause code is W54 (bitten or struck by dog) for the strategic health authority (SHA) of treatment, for adults and children admitted to hospital through accident and emergency, over the last five years. A direct comparison is not possible before and after 2006 when the SHAs were restructured, which is why there are two separate tables.

Notes:
1. FAE:
A FAE is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Data quality:
HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 national health service trusts, and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
3. Ungrossed data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (ie the data are ungrossed).
4. Low numbers:
Due to reasons of confidentiality, figures between one and five have been suppressed and replaced with "*" (an asterisk).

Action on Smoking and Health

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has paid to Action on Smoking and Health in each of the last five years. [257356]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's grants to Action on Smoking and Health are set out in the following table.

Financial year	Grants (£)
2003-04	164,000
2004-05	168,000
2005-06	180,000
2006-07	185,400
2007-08	191,000

Alcoholism: Health Services

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specialist training is available for general practitioners to ensure that primary care services respond to the health needs of patients presenting with severe alcohol dependency. [255316]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts to ensure that their existing health care staff are well trained and provided with the opportunity to receive continuing professional development.

However, the Government are committed to actively supporting the training of undergraduate doctors, some of whom will go on to become general practitioners, in helping to reduce the harms that are attributable to alcohol misuse.

This will include ensuring that around 60,000 new doctors leaving medical training in England, over a 10 year period, will be able to deliver competent practice in both drug and alcohol misuse, including a clear focus on the recognition and the management of risky and harmful alcohol consumption.

We allocated £650,000 in 2008 for the developmental work medical schools will need to carry out, to embed such an integrated substance misuse curriculum into their own core teaching and training programmes. This funding will enable the first major tranche of medical schools to make the changes needed; with full roll-out across all schools over the following three years.

Allergies: Medical Treatments

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the effective ban on desensitisation as a treatment for allergy; and if he will make a statement. [242399]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has received five written inquiries and three telephone inquiries, one of which related directly to one of the written inquiries, concerning sublingual immunotherapy (SLIT) products used for desensitisation to allergies.

These products are unlicensed medicinal products and importation from elsewhere in the European Economic Area requires prior notification to the MHRA by a licensed importer. Notifications are assessed for regulatory compliance and for known issues with safety and quality and the MHRA may object to importation. In 2005 the Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM, now the Commission on Human Medicines, (CHM) advised the MHRA that they should not object to the importation of unlicensed pollen based SLIT products, provided they were for use in non-asthmatic adults under the supervision of NHS specialists with access to resuscitation equipment. On this basis, the MHRA will object to importation of all non-pollen based SLIT products.

The MHRA has recently become aware that certain unlicensed SLIT products have been imported into the United Kingdom without prior notification to the Agency. The importer has been instructed to cease importation and distribution.

The MHRA is encouraging importers to make appropriate notifications. Some have been received and assessed in line with the CSM advice, with non-objections to import issued for pollen based SLIT products. Non-pollen based SLIT products continue to attract objections to import.

Arun Community Hospital

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on the rebuilding of the Arun Community Hospital in Littlehampton. [256914]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCTs) to plan, develop and improve health services for their local population. This is therefore a matter for West Sussex PCT, which is working to develop its business case in relation to the planned new facility in Littlehampton with the support of the South East Coast strategic health authority.

Autism: Essex

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each primary care trust in Essex has spent on services for (a) adults and (b) children with autism in the last three years. [256844]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally. However, it is the responsibility of primary care trusts to ensure that the services they commission meet the needs of the communities that they serve. This includes the commissioning of services for those people with autism.

Biobank Initiative

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have volunteered to participate in the Biobank initiative to date; and if he will make a statement. [257455]

Dawn Primarolo: As at 6pm on 17 February 2009, UK Biobank had recruited 258,542 people. It aims to recruit 500,000 people aged 40-69 who agree to be part of this important national resource for health research. It is on target to achieve this by mid-2010.

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) correspondence and (b) meetings his Department has with the inquiry team of the independent public inquiry into contaminated blood products (i) prior to and (ii) subsequent to the beginning of the inquiry; on which dates such meetings occurred; and if he will make a statement. [256698]

Dawn Primarolo: A search of departmental records shows approximately 50 items of correspondence between the Department and the Independent Inquiry into Contaminated Blood and Blood Products.

Only one piece of correspondence dates from before the start of the inquiry (27 March 2007). This was a letter from Lord Archer to the Secretary of State dated 16 February 2007.

Officials from the Department attended four meetings with the Inquiry. These took place on 25 April 2007, 19 September 2007, 18 February 2008 and 12 June 2008. No meetings were held prior to the start of the inquiry.

The following table shows the main correspondence between the Department and the Inquiry team. The remaining items consisted of e-mails discussing administrative arrangements relating to meetings and the delivery of documents.

Blood: Donation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of donated blood was used in each year since 1999. [256709]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available for the entire time period, as data for full 12 month periods have only been submitted and collated since 2005-06.

The Blood Stocks Management Scheme (BSMS) was established by NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) in 2001 with the aim of understanding and improving blood inventory management across the blood supply chain. Hospitals in England, Wales, and Northern Ireland currently submit data on blood usage to the scheme. However, it is important to note that participation is voluntary, and although the majority of hospitals now submit data to the scheme this has gradually increased since its inception.

The following table shows the number of hospitals in England and North Wales providing data to the BSMS; the percentage of units transfused; and the percentage of units not transfused in each year since 2005-06:

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Whole blood donations collected (thousand)	2,039	1,971	1,972
Red cells validated (thousand)[1]	1,939	1,876	1,858
Red cells expired	6	6	3
Red cells issuable	1,933	1,870	1,835
Percentage red cells issuable	94.8	94.9	95.2
Red cells issued (thousand)	1,941	1,873	1,825
Number of hospitals participating[2]	119	119	112
Percentage transfused[3]	97.1	99.8	100.4
Percentage not transfused	2.2	2.2	2.6

[1] A validated unit of red cells is one that has been processed, tested, and labelled/validated as fit for issue to hospitals.
[2] Participating hospitals have only been submitting data on units transfused for a full 12 months since 2005-06.
[3] Figures stated for the percentage of units transfused and not transfused are based on data submitted by hospitals compared against NHSBT figures for number of units issued. There is a small degree of duplication in submitted data due to the transfer of blood between hospitals, meaning some figures exceed 100.

Cancer: Fuel Poverty

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information on how to avoid fuel poverty is routinely provided to cancer patients (a) during and (b) following their treatment; and if he will make a statement. [247751]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Information on tackling fuel poverty is made available to all on a wide basis. This includes through the health sector who will have contact with patients including those being treated for cancer who may benefit from a range of measures, support and advice available.

The Department of Health produce a booklet annually as part of the cross-government Keep Warm Keep Well Campaign. The booklet is distributed free of charge to groups, organisations, GP surgeries, individuals and patients.

The booklet is complimented by the Keep Warm Keep Well pages on the Direct Gov website:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/keepwarmkeepwell

Chronically Sick

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the statement that the prevalence of long-term conditions across the country correlates with a range of factors that includes age and deprivation as referred to on page 24 of his Department's White Paper, Pharmacy in England, Cm 7341, with what other factors long-term conditions have been correlated; and if he will make a statement. [255444]

Phil Hope: Evidence that the relative prevalence of long-term conditions across England is linked to age and deprivation is available from the Healthcare Commission's local health services survey along with a number of other surveys. There is no single factor that explains prevalence, rather there are a number of factors correlated to variations in prevalence across England: age and deprivation are most significant and linked to this is socio-economic status and lifestyle choices.

Community Hospitals

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the funding made available under the community hospitals programme (a) had and (b) had not been allocated at the latest date for which figures are available; what timetable he has set for considering further applications for funding under the programme; and if he will make a statement. [255457]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have approved funding for 28 capital schemes, which brings our commitment to £243.5 million from the community hospitals and services fund that has a total value of up to £750 million. We have recently conducted a trawl for local plans for further schemes and are currently considering the results. As a consequence, we have not set a timetable.

Continuing Care

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were in receipt of NHS continuing care in each primary care trust in England per (a) 10,000 weighted heads and (b) 10,000 unweighted heads since 31 March 2007. [255335]

Phil Hope: The requested information for each primary care trust, by 10,000 unweighted population, has been placed in the Library. We are unable to supply information, weighted with respect to population aged over 18, as the population figures are collected in five year groupings.

National Dementia Strategy

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what dates (a) he, (b) his Ministers and (c) his officials met HM Treasury Ministers and officials to discuss his Department's national dementia strategy; [256785]

(2) what consideration he gave to announcing to Parliament the funding settlement for the national dementia strategy; [256789]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's funding proposal for the national dementia strategy. [256797]

Phil Hope: The Department and Her Majesty's Treasury had regular keep in touch meetings to discuss upcoming policies and discussions about the national dementia strategy which took place on an ongoing basis in the months prior to the launch of the Strategy.

Parliament was informed of the publication of the national dementia strategy on 3 February by means of a written parliamentary statement. Hon. Members were also informed that copies of the Strategy had been placed in the Vote Office, and in the Library. The Strategy itself did not refer to funding. However, the impact assessment, published on the Department's website alongside the strategy, set out in detail the potential costs associated with different implementation options.

The Department has announced funding of £150 million to support implementation of the national dementia strategy in 2009-10 and 2010-11. An outline of indicative costs for implementing the strategy are set out in the Impact Assessment for the strategy, available of the Department's website, although decisions on funding for future years will be made in the light of learning from the demonstrator sites and evidence gathering of the first two years. This information is contained with "Living well with dementia: A National Dementia Strategy" which has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what timetable he has set for establishing memory clinics; how many he plans to establish; in which towns; how much each will cost; how many staff each will need; when the rollout will start; and when it will be complete. [256790]

Phil Hope: Decisions about the nature, number and funding of memory services will be made locally by primary care trusts, depending on local circumstances.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how he plans to monitor the development of models of housing to meet the needs of people with dementia and their carers. [256793]

Phil Hope: Decisions about monitoring implementation of the national dementia strategy, including the housing elements, will be taken during 2009-10 by the Older People and Dementia Programme Board.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money has been set aside for the public information campaign on the national dementia strategy; and when this will be rolled out. [256798]

Phil Hope: The Department has allocated initial funding of £4.5 million to raise public awareness of dementia during 2009-10 and 2010-11. In addition to this, we will look to primary care trusts to raise awareness locally.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what changes he plans to make to the next operating framework for dementia. [256799]

Phil Hope: The Department will make decisions about the next operating framework later in 2009.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been allocated to the review of existing relevant information sets as part of his Department's work on dementia; and when he expects this work to be completed. [256800]

Phil Hope: The Department has allocated £1.5 million to the review of information sets. This work will be completed during 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Dementia: Care Homes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he plans to publish guidance for care home staff on best practice in dementia care; [256784]

(2) what timetable he has set for care homes to identify a senior staff member within the home to take the lead for quality improvement in its care of people with dementia; and what funding he has allocated for the purpose. [256794]

Phil Hope: The Department will develop guidance on best practice for care home staff during 2009-10.

We will look to care homes identifying a senior member of staff to lead on dementia care as soon as possible, taking account of the priority attached to implementation of the national dementia strategy. Guidance will be issued to care homes during the course of 2009-10 on best practice in dementia care.

Dementia: Elderly

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who sits on his Department's programme board for older people and dementia. [256791]

Phil Hope: Representatives from Age Concern, the Association of Directors of Adult Social Services, Help the Aged, the Local Government Association, the Alzheimer's Society, the Commission for Social Care Inspection, Better Government for Older People, the Department of Work and Pensions, the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Care Quality Commission have been invited to serve on the Board alongside departmental officials responsible for the implementation of the national dementia strategy.

Dementia: Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects hospitals to identify a senior clinician to take the lead for quality improvement in dementia; and what funding he is making available for that post; [256801]

(2) when he expects hospitals to develop an explicit care pathway for the management and care of people with dementia. [256802]

Phil Hope: We will look to hospitals to identify a senior clinician to commence work on quality improvement in dementia and also to develop a care pathway for people with dementia as soon as possible, taking account of the priority attached to implementation of the national dementia strategy.

The Department has made available £150 million to fund implementation of the national dementia strategy. Decisions on funding individual objectives of the strategy will be taken locally.

Dementia: Medicine

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department issues on the use of anti-psychotic medication for people with dementia. [256795]

Phil Hope: The Department is currently conducting a review of the use of anti-psychotic medication and will report on its findings in spring 2009.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254086]

Mr. Bradshaw: None of the Department's staff has been disciplined for either bullying or harassment in any of the last three years.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the National Programme for IT contracts is covered by the 50 per cent. growth limit set in public procurement legislation; and what price each contract would have to reach to exceed that limit. [256555]

Mr. Bradshaw: One of the exemptions allowing the growth of contracts under the public contracts regulations 2006 is a cap on the extended value of a contract to 50 per cent., of the value payable under the original contract. This cap is relevant where a contracting authority requires additional services which cannot for technical or economic reasons be provided separately from another source without major inconvenience, or where services are strictly necessary to the later stages of the performance of the contract.

Use of this exemption is assessed for each national programme contract as necessary, and monitoring is undertaken to ensure the relevant amounts are not exceeded.

www.nao.org.uk/publications/nao_reports/07-08/0708484i.pdf

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on press and public relations work related to the Connecting for Health programme in each year since its announcement. [252331]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information requested is shown in the following table.

Financial year	Expenditure (£)
2003-04	302,407
2004-05	121,737
2005-06	1,618
2006-07	455,782
2007-08	1,280,796
2008[1]	73,252

Note:
Figures relate to externally contracted services (exclusive of VAT) and exclude staff costs.

There was a peak in media activity, including stakeholder engagement exercises, in 2007-08 when external resources were procured to supplement in-house resources and to support local national health service organisations in press activity covering local deployments, particularly picture archiving and communications (digital imaging) systems, and to also help meet the Public Accounts Committee recommendation from June 2006 on increasing stakeholder engagement. These activities, in addition to supporting the public information programme in summary care record early adopter areas, accounted for an increase in costs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Department has spent on legal fees relating to the NHS IT programme in the last 12 months. [256711]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the calendar year 1 January-31 December 2008 £3.969 million, excluding VAT, was paid to lawyers for services received by NHS Connecting for Health in relation to its role in delivering the NHS IT programme, and maintaining the critical business systems previously provided to the national health service by the former NHS Information Authority.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether special advisers in his Department count time taken in answering calls from

hon. Members as part of their contracted hours of work; [256552]

(2) what briefings special advisers in his Department have prepared using IT systems provided by his Department in the last six months; and to whom the briefings were distributed. [256558]

Mr. Bradshaw: Special advisers carry out all elements of their role in accordance with the code of conduct for special advisers.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health from which budget his Department's £100 million Privacy and Dignity Fund will be provided; and upon what criteria such funding will be allocated. [255301]

Ann Keen: The £100 million Privacy and Dignity Fund is being made available from the Department's unallocated central contingency for 2009-10. It is expected that the funding will be allocated based on plans received from strategic health authorities.

Departmental Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1370W, on redundancy, what estimate he has made of the annual payroll savings resulting from staff exit schemes in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09 excluding the cost of severance packages; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for 2009-10. [254462]

Mr. Bradshaw: The actual cost of the salaries of staff leaving the Department through exit schemes is set out in the following table:

	Total actual salaries cost (£)
2005-06	1,658,281
2006-07	2,186,516
2007-08	2,880,630
2008-09	[1]674,372

No estimate has been made for 2009-10.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256326]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of staff on sick leave for the periods requested are presented in the following table.

Calendar year	31 to 50 days sick leave	51 to 100 days sick leave	Over 100 days sick leave
2008	54	35	41
2007	25	57	48
2006	43	42	56
2005	46	51	60
2004	51	57	112

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256628]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of employees in the Department recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years is presented in the following table:

	Number of employees on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many language translators are employed in (a) each of his Department's executive agencies and (b) its non-ministerial department; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257158]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department: and its agencies do not employ language translators. The Department and its agencies purchase translation services from the Central Office of Information and approved suppliers. These services are purchased locally by directorates where required.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of patient drug treatment programmes which had the capacity to treat (a) nationwide, (b) in each region and (c) in each of the five smallest geographical areas for which figures are available in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [251248]

Dawn Primarolo: We do not centrally collect information on the capacity of drug misuse treatment services.

However, as part of their remit to improve the availability and effectiveness of drug treatment, the national treatment agency for substance misuse through the annual drug treatment planning process ensures that all 149 local drug partnerships are commissioning and providing a comprehensive range of drug treatment services that meets the needs of their drug misusing populations.

General Practitioners

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what accountability provisions there are for GPs in the new contract; what requirements there are for GPs to provide explanations for instances where (a) misdiagnosis and (b) other forms of mistreatment have occurred; and who is responsible for ensuring that such requirements are met. [254217]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to ensure that those providing NHS primary medical services meet the terms of their contract. There are requirements for those contracts set out in the National Health Service (General Medical Services Contracts) Regulations 2004, the National Health Service (Personal Medical Services Agreements) Regulations 2004 and the National Health Service Act 2006: Alternative Provider Medical Services Directions 2008. Where a contractor fails to comply with the terms of their contract, the PCT may issue a remedial notice giving the contractor a specified time within which the concerns should be remedied. Where the contractor takes no steps to remedy the matter, the PCT may terminate the contract. In certain circumstances, the PCT may impose sanctions on the contractor.

There are no contractual requirements for general practitioners (GPs) or GP practices to provide explanation for instances where misdiagnosis and other forms of mistreatment have occurred.

Under the terms of their contract, GPs are obliged to operate a complaints procedure which allows patients to raise concerns about any matter connected to the provision of services under the contract. Under this procedure, all complaints must be properly investigated and the complainant given a written summary of the investigation and its conclusions. There are also requirements set out in the regulations and directions referred to regarding the qualification of persons who perform services, conditions for employment and engagement of those persons, training, level of skill, appraisal and assessment.

Professional guidance published by the General Medical Council (GMC) includes an obligation for doctors to share with patients, in a way they can understand, the information they want or need to know about their condition, its likely progression, and the treatment options available to them, including associated risks and uncertainties and to respond to patients' questions and keep them informed about the progress of their care.

The Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF), which rewards GP practices for achieving quality indicators, includes an indicator (Education 4) to reward practices for undertaking a minimum of 12 significant event reviews in the last three years. A significant event occurs when a patient may have been subjected to harm, had the circumstances/outcome been different (near miss). Each review case must consist of a short commentary setting out the relevant history, the circumstances of the episode and an analysis of the conclusions to be drawn. The practice is required to report to the PCT on its analysis and the PCT is expected to discuss the reviews as part of its QOF assessment visit.

The National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA) has developed a form to help health care staff report patient safety incidents. These are any unintended or unexpected incidents which could have or did lead to harm for one or more patients receiving NHS-funded health care. NPSA recommend that it should be used as soon as possible after the incident has happened.

Subject to the outcome of consultation, it is planned that the Care Quality Commission will register all GP practices to a consistent set of essential quality and safety criteria. Registration of primary care practices would help both to drive up the quality of practice-level clinical governance and to enable PCTs to concentrate on overseeing a small number of poor-quality practices.

General Practitioners: Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 144-45W, on general practitioners: finance, in which practices the minimum practice income guarantee comprises more than 25 per cent. of total NHS income. [254160]

Mr. Bradshaw: The list of all those practices with General Medical Services minimum practice income guarantee comprising more than 25 per cent. of their total income is as follows.

Note:

These practices listed whose minimum practice income guarantees comprises more than 25 per cent. of total NHS income have been calculated on a combination of: Global Sum, Correction Factor and Quality Outcomes Framework income and includes an estimate of their Enhanced Services income. It does not include income from other audited datastreams eg information management and technology, premises, seniority and locum payments.

General Practitioners: Pharmacy

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many responses his Department received to the Pharmacy White Paper consultation on dispensing GPs. [254278]

Phil Hope: The Pharmacy White Paper consultation, "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths - delivering the future. Options for legislative change", was launched on 27 August 2008 and closed on 20 November 2008.

The consultation included four options in relation to dispensing doctors.

Option 1: No change to existing criteria.

Option 2: Retain controlled localities and allow primary care trusts to determine dispensing rights based on local pharmaceutical needs assessments.

Option 3: Retain controlled localities and replace existing 'patient-to-pharmacy' distance criterion with 'practice-to-pharmacy' distance criterion, allowing dispensing practices to dispense to all patients on their list.

Option 4: As option 3 but also include a criterion that there is a second pharmacy in close proximity.

The Department received 62,733 responses relating to the options for dispensing by doctors. Of these, 62,675 were in favour of option 1; 21 were in favour of option 2; nine were in favour of option 3; 14 were in favour of option 3 and 4; and 14 were in favour of option 4. In addition, we received 18 miscellaneous letters and 13 petitions.

As a result of the responses to the consultation, and the views expressed at listening events, I announced on 16 December 2008 that there would be no change to the arrangements by which general practitioners may dispense to their patients.

Genetics: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the evidence of his Department's chief scientific adviser to the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee on 21 January 2009, what assessment has been made of the merits of withholding DNA information held on a care record from (a) the police and (b) the security services. [256705]

Mr. Bradshaw: All confidential personal patient information held by national health service organisations is subject to access rights set out in statute, most particularly the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Access to Health Records Act 1990.

Disclosure of any information to the police or other agencies is only considered in cases of serious crime or where there are significant risks to other people. The NHS will remain liable to comply with statutory obligations to disclose, but these are always for specific purposes agreed by Parliament, for example to protect public health. Disclosure in these cases is subject to long standing guidelines on the circumstances where the public interest outweighs obligations of confidentiality or to comply with a court order.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the evidence of his Department's chief scientific adviser to the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee on 21 January 2009, what assessment has been made of arrangements for the use of DNA information held on care records in (a) anonymised and (b) pseudonymised research. [256706]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government are developing plans for a health research support service that will provide an appropriate environment for greater use of anonymised and linked anonymised (or pseudonymised) data sets for research. They will also strengthen the arrangements to avoid any breach of confidentiality in types of research requiring the use of information that could identify individuals.

A programme of work in NHS Connecting for Health (the research capability programme) has been under way since 2007 to facilitate medical research using data derived from patient information, strictly within the bounds of confidentiality. The aim is to realise the research potential of electronic patient records, as described in the Government's health research strategy "Best Research for Best Health". Details of the programme are available on line at:

www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/systemsandservices/research and a copy has already been placed in the Library.

Research using patient information and DNA information is subject to several types of ethical and regulatory review. The health research support service must comply with the Data Protection Act 1998. The Human Tissue Authority regulates the use of human tissue for research, including analysis of DNA, under the Human Tissue Act 2004. The National Information Governance Board monitors uses of patient information under the NHS Act 2006.

The Department's evidence to the Select Committee drew attention to important opportunities for research that will open up if the ethical and regulatory framework can provide for appropriate research access to data sets derived from both patient information and genetic information. No decisions will be taken without proper debate about consent and confidentiality. The plans for a health research support service are being developed with close attention to protecting the confidentiality of sensitive personal information. Improving access to anonymised data sets suitable for research is an important part of these plans.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patient records contain DNA information. [256713]

Mr. Bradshaw: Clinicians are required by their professional bodies to keep clear, accurate, legible and contemporaneous patient records in recognition that review and audit of care is vital to patient safety and to maintaining and improving the quality of care. Decisions about the necessity and relevance of recording particular information, including data relating to the patient's DNA, is a matter for individual clinicians. The information requested is therefore not available.

Health Services: Advertising

Mr. Barron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what rules his Department has established to govern the advertising of allied health professional services following his announcement that patients may self-refer to those services; and if he will make a statement; [256766]

(2) whether his Department plans to issue guidance to primary care trusts on advertising allied health professional services to patients choosing to self-refer. [256772]

Ann Keen: No rules or guidance on advertising are planned or have been made centrally. It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders, including practice based commissioners, local government and the public to determine where self-referral is clinically appropriate and value to the system and local community, and to promote this route of access accordingly.

Health Services: Alcohol

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many regional alcohol managers and associated staff there are in each Government Office Region. [256416]

Dawn Primarolo: Every regional public health group has a lead officer within the group, at least part time for alcohol.

Last August the Department gave each of the regions funding to improve their alcohol response by the development of an alcohol office or the appointment of a regional alcohol manager.

The regions who have appointed staff to their new regional offices are as follows:

North East;

North West;

Yorkshire and the Humber;

West Midlands;

East of England (staff come into post in March).

The remaining regions current arrangements are as follows:

East Midlands are employing two part time consultants.

South East has a regional public health group lead official on alcohol who retains this role.

South West and London have not yet appointed someone into the permanent role.

In total, there are currently 10 people in post, either full or part-time.

Health Services: Procurement

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the provisions of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 apply to staff contracted under the national retail model for equipment services to provide (a) complex and (b) simple aids for daily living. [257485]

Mr. Bradshaw: The decision to implement the national retail model for equipment services is a matter for local authorities and their health partners.

Part of the decision-making process will involve a staff impact assessment to determine the impact of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) (TUPE) regulations on staff contracted under the national retail model.

Local authorities and their health partners will also need to take their own legal advice in relation to TUPE and other employment legislation that relates to their employees or to the terms of outsourced contracts.

Health Services: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions officials in his Department have had with the Irish Government on payments in respect of medical treatment delivered to UK pensioners in the Republic of Ireland; what estimate he has made of the annual sums overpaid to the Irish Government in respect of such treatment to date; and what assessment he has made of the reasons for such overpayments; [257516]

(2) what steps he has taken to recover overpayments to the Irish Government in respect of medical treatment delivered to UK pensioners in the Republic of Ireland; and what steps he plans to take to prevent future overpayments. [257517]

Dawn Primarolo: Departmental officials have been involved in discussions with Irish counterparts around the size of payments the United Kingdom makes to Ireland under a bilateral health agreement, in line with European Union regulations. As a result of new evidence around how much the UK and Ireland should pay each other under this agreement, it has been agreed that the payments the UK makes, will reduce in future years. Due to the nature of the claims process and the fact that bilateral discussions are ongoing, it is not possible to establish whether any previous payments the UK has made to Ireland represent overpayments.

Health Services: Waiting Lists

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many breaches of the 18-week maximum waiting time from GP referral to treatment there have been in each primary care trust since its introduction. [257370]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 18-week maximum referral to treatment standard comes into effect from 1 January 2009. Every primary care trust and trust must strive to achieve this standard across all services and specialties, and monitor waits so that patients do not wait more than 18 weeks for reasons other than choice or clinical exception.

Referral to treatment data for January will be published on the pre-announced date of 26 March 2009.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will list the exemptions to the 18-week maximum waiting time from GP referral to treatment; [257371]

(2) whether the 18-week target maximum waiting time between GP referral and treatment applies in respect of second appointments. [257406]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 18 week commitment covers consultant-led elective services. From 1 January 2009, the minimum expectation of consultant-led elective services will be that no one should wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred to the start of their hospital treatment, unless it is clinically appropriate to do so or they choose to wait longer. It includes all appointments including those for diagnostic tests between referral and first definitive treatment.

On completion of an 18 week referral to treatment period; a new 18 week clock starts when a clinical decision is made to start a substantively new or different treatment that does not already form part of that patient's agreed care plan.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the average number of days waiting time taken for an (a) in-patient and (b) out-patient appointment. [257407]

Mr. Bradshaw: Latest published figures for the end of December 2008 show the median waiting time for an in-patient admission stands at 32.4 days, compared to 92.4 days in March 1997. The median waiting time for a first out-patient appointment stands at 22 days, compared to 36.5 days in April 2004 when out-patient data were first published.

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how waiting times of more than 18 weeks from referral to treatment are recorded under the NHS's performance sharing regime. [258136]

Mr. Bradshaw: Guidance on the recording of performance sharing for 18 weeks is set out in a letter to strategic health authority chief executives sent on 21 August 2008. The letter (Gateway reference 10417) has been placed in the Library.

Health Services: Wales

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to finalise a long-term agreement to replace the interim protocol for cross-border treatment in England and Wales. [257337]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government expect to agree a protocol with the Welsh Assembly Government as part of the finalisation of NHS business plans for 2009-10.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 57 of the Government Response to the Welsh Affairs Committee's interim Report on the provision of cross-border health services for Wales, what research his Department has

(a) undertaken and (b) plans to undertake into potential disadvantage to cross-border patients in (i) England and (ii) Wales as a result of differences in the two healthcare systems. [257367]

Mr. Bradshaw: The core principles of the national health service apply across the United Kingdom and an inevitable and healthy consequence of devolution has been some divergence in health policy. Such divergence is entirely appropriate and provides an opportunity for each part of the NHS to innovate and experiment with different models for the provision and organisation of health care services within a common framework of NHS principles, and to learn from each other. NHS services in both England and Wales have seen significant improvement in recent years.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 62 of the Government Response to the Welsh Affairs Committee's interim Report on the provision of cross-border health services for Wales, what plans he has to consult (a) the public, (b) patients and (c) hon. Members on proposals for a long-term agreement on the treatment of cross-border patients. [257368]

Mr. Bradshaw: If a new cross-border protocol will impact on the range or availability of health services to users, then consultation will take place as appropriate.

Hospitals: Admissions

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1759-60W, on hospitals: admissions, what the five most common reasons for emergency admission to hospital for (a) children and (b) adults were in each year since 1997. [257408]

Independent Reconfiguration Panel

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS hospital re-organisations have been referred to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel since it was established; and how many of those were changed as a result. [255819]

Ann Keen: Since the Independent Reconfiguration Panel (IRP) was established in 2003, the IRP has competed 14 full reviews at the request of the Secretary of State for Health.

In general terms, three of the 14 reviews undertaken by the IRP have supported local national health service proposals, four have not supported them and seven supported them in principle, but placed conditions on their implementation.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many requests from overview and scrutiny committees for (a) proposed and (b) in progress NHS re-organisations to be referred to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel have been rejected since overview and scrutiny committees were established. [255820]

Ann Keen: Regulation 4 of the Local Authority (Overview and Scrutiny Committees Health Scrutiny Functions) Regulations 2002 allows overview and scrutiny committees the power to refer contested local national health service reconfigurations to the Secretary of State for Health.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health considers all referrals from overview and scrutiny committees.

Injuries: Firearms

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were (a) treated in accident and emergency departments and (b) admitted to hospital for (i) gunshot and (ii) knife wounds in each of the last five years. [249784]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on numbers treated in accident and emergency is not available as the information requested is not collected centrally. Information is available on patients who have been admitted to hospital for gunshot wounds and knife wounds—finished admission episodes.

The data for X99—assault by sharp object—has been included as it is the closest data code for intentional knife wounds. In order to enable comparison data for W26—contact with a knife, sword or dagger, has also been provided.

Reference should be made to all attached notes when reading this response.

Count of finished admission episodes with a gunshot wound or knife related injury by strategic health authority for period 2002-03 to 2006-07—national health service hospitals England and activity performed in the independent sector in England commissioned by English NHS

Notes:
1. Finished admission episodes—A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Cause Code—Gunshot* wounds and Knife related injuries. The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
3. Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) has used the following ICD-10 external cause codes when referring to gunshot wounds and knife related injuries.

*Gunshot wounds:
W32—Handgun discharge
W33—Rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
W34—Discharge from other and unspecified firearms
X72—Intentional self-harm by handgun discharge
X73—Intentional self-harm by rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
X74—Intentional self-harm by other and unspecified firearm discharge
X93—Assault by handgun discharge
X94—Assault by rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge

Data Quality:
HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts, and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of Independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ungrossed Data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1372-78W, on injuries: firearms, how many cases of incidents classified under the (a) X93, (b) X94 and (c) X95 code there were in each hospital in each year. [254107]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not available on the injuries at individual hospital level. The Hospital Episode Statistics collection does provide information by strategic health authority (SHA) of residence.

The following tables provide data for each of the requested codes for ten years. It should be noted that this list does not constitute the full set of codes used to identify gunshot wounds.

The structure of SHAs changed for data year 2006-07, with 28 SHAs merging to make just ten. The number of admissions does not represent the number of patients as a patient may have been admitted more than once.

Independent Reconfiguration Panel

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS hospital re-organisations have been referred to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel since it was established; and how many of those were changed as a result. [255819]

Ann Keen: Since the Independent Reconfiguration Panel (IRP) was established in 2003, the IRP has competed 14 full reviews at the request of the Secretary of State for Health.

In general terms, three of the 14 reviews undertaken by the IRP have supported local national health service proposals, four have not supported them and seven supported them in principle, but placed conditions on their implementation.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many requests from overview and scrutiny committees for (a) proposed and (b) in progress NHS re-organisations to be referred to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel have been rejected since overview and scrutiny committees were established. [255820]

Ann Keen: Regulation 4 of the Local Authority (Overview and Scrutiny Committees Health Scrutiny Functions) Regulations 2002 allows overview and scrutiny committees the power to refer contested local national health service reconfigurations to the Secretary of State for Health.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health considers all referrals from overview and scrutiny committees.

Injuries: Firearms

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were (a) treated in accident and emergency departments and (b) admitted to hospital for (i) gunshot and (ii) knife wounds in each of the last five years. [249784]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on numbers treated in accident and emergency is not available as the information requested is not collected centrally. Information is available on patients who have been admitted to hospital for gunshot wounds and knife wounds—finished admission episodes.

The data for X99—assault by sharp object—has been included as it is the closest data code for intentional knife wounds. In order to enable comparison data for W26—contact with a knife, sword or dagger, has also been provided.

Reference should be made to all attached notes when reading this response.

Count of finished admission episodes with a gunshot wound or knife related injury by strategic health authority for period 2002-03 to 2006-07—national health service hospitals England and activity performed in the independent sector in England commissioned by English NHS

Notes:
1. Finished admission episodes—A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Cause Code—Gunshot* wounds and Knife related injuries. The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
3. Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) has used the following ICD-10 external cause codes when referring to gunshot wounds and knife related injuries.
*Gunshot wounds
W32—Handgun discharge
W33—Rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
W34—Discharge from other and unspecified firearms
X72—Intentional self-harm by handgun discharge

Notes:
Ungrossed data Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (ie the data are ungrossed). Finished admission episodes A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year. Cause Code
[1] The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects. Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) has used the following ICD-10 external cause codes as requested for this parliamentary question. It should be noted that this is not the full list of codes used to identify gunshot wounds and so the data should not be used to illustrate this. X93—Assault by handgun discharge X94—Assault by rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge X95—Assault by other and unspecified firearm discharge.
Data quality HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain. PCT/SHA data quality PCT and SHA data was added to historic data years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of treatment and SHA of treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of general practitioner (GP) practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data. Assessing growth through time
HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.

Intensive Care: Isle of Wight

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions an excess of demand for intensive care unit beds on the Isle of Wight has resulted in patients being taken off the island for treatment in each week in the last 12 months. [257071]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Intermediate Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to revise his Department's 2001 guidance on intermediate care. [256786]

Phil Hope: The Department is currently exploring the possibility of publishing revised guidance on intermediate care as part of the work on a wider prevention package for older people to be published in spring 2009.

LinkAge Plus

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the LinkAge Plus Programme; and if he will make a statement. [245737]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I've been asked to reply.

The LinkAge Plus pilots have been testing the principles of joined-up working. Going beyond the traditional benefits and care agendas, they also provide access to a wide range of services encompassing housing, transport and volunteering opportunities to form aspects of a seamless service for older people.

Each pilot focuses on local needs, and how best to integrate services within those locations, being driven by the needs and aspirations of older people themselves, while also developing existing links between central Government, local authorities and other organisations The pilots finished in September 2008. They are currently being evaluated and a final summary report is scheduled for publication by March 2009.

Early findings from the pilots suggest that LinkAge Plus is successful in enabling older people to access multiple services through a single contact and reaches those who are socially excluded.

In Gloucestershire, for example, they have set up a network of Village Agents who work directly with isolated older people in rural areas. Their presence within the community enables older people to get access to information and advice about the entitlements and services available to them—direct from a friendly, local contact.

We are also starting to disseminate the learning and core principles for LinkAge Plus across local authorities. To help do so, toolkit has been developed jointly with the Department of Health Partnership for Older People Projects. This seeks to help local authorities to put in place similar services.

Local Public Health Laboratories

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the funding of Access Capacity Planning Guidance for the period 2006-07 to 2007-08 (1 May 2004); and ISTC Manual (9 February 2006).

Copies of the guidance have been placed in the Library.

The Department has stated that it has no plans to run a third wave of ISTC procurement and will instead move towards greater local determination.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether people may be recruited to work in independent sector treatment centres if they have been employed in the NHS during the previous six months; and if he will make a statement. [256870]

Ann Keen: All independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) providers can employ any clinician regardless of their previous national health service engagement with the exception of a six-month restriction on those occupations listed on the Shortage Professions List.

However, ISTC providers can employ NHS clinicians (including those on the Shortage Professions List) during their non-contracted hours, provided they obtain the agreement of the NHS employer body.

NHS: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which private sector companies have access to (a) NHS databases and (b) patient information. [256702]

Mr. Bradshaw: Access to national health service patient information is permitted, with patient consent, to approved private sector organisations involved in providing services to NHS patients. Companies which provide technical support and maintenance for NHS databases may be given controlled access to databases and information for essential work. In both cases, companies will operate under contractual terms that require NHS information governance standards covering confidentiality, security and record retention to be complied with in full.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of prescription items dispensed in the community have been dispensed by (a) community pharmacists, (b) dispensing GPs and (c) others in each year since 1997. [255455]

Phil Hope: The available information for the percentages of prescription items dispensed by dispenser type is provided in the following table.

Percentage of prescription items prescribed in the community in England and dispensed in the UK, by dispenser type, based on a 1 in 20 sample of all prescriptions dispensed 2001 to 2007

	Community pharmacists and appliance contractors	Dispensing doctors	Personally administered items
2001	90.8	7.0	2.2
2002	90.9	7.1	2.0
2003	90.8	7.2	2.0
2004	90.7	7.3	2.0
2005	90.5	7.4	2.1
2006	90.8	7.4	1.8
2007	90.8	7.5	1.7

1. Figures for community pharmacist dispensing are not available separately.
2. Figures for dispensing GPs are available only from 2001.

Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA)

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many medicines use reviews have been conducted by pharmacies in each year since 2005-06; what estimate he has made of the average cost of conducting a medicines use review; and if he will make a statement. [255670]

Phil Hope: The number of medicines use reviews (MURs) provided by accredited pharmacists are published in table 8 (table 10 in 1996-97 to 2005-06) of the annual bulletins "General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales" published by the Information Centre for health and social care.

Copies of the bulletins for 1996-97 to 2005-06, 1997-98 to 2006-07 and 1998-99 to 2007-08 have been placed in the Library.

Under the community pharmacy contractual framework, a fee per MUR is payable to contractors providing the service up to a maximum of 400 MURs per pharmacy in any financial year (except for pharmacies which have not made arrangements before 1 October, in which case payment will be made to a maximum of 200 MURs per pharmacy in the first year). The fee payable per MUR since the introduction of the service is as follows:

	Fee payable per MUR (£)
From April 2005	25
From October 2007	27
From October 2008	28

NHS: Energy

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans to reduce energy consumption in the NHS are in place; [256936]

(2) what target he has set for the reduction of energy consumption in the NHS. [256937]

Phil Hope: Under the requirements of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Climate Change Programme, the Department set mandatory energy/carbon efficiency targets on the national health service in England to:

reduce the level of primary energy consumption by 15 per cent. or 0.15 million tonnes carbon from March 2000 to March 2010; achieve a target of 35-55 GigaJoules/100 cubic metres (cu.m) energy efficiency performance for the health care estate for all new capital developments and major redevelopments or refurbishments; and achieve a target of 55-65 Gj/100 cubic metres (cu.m) for all existing facilities.

The Department monitors progress towards achievement using the Estates Returns Information Collection (ERIC) system and monitors progress towards the mandatory targets. Although significant progress was being made against the targets there remained scope for the NHS to maintain progress. To assist an Energy and Sustainability Capital Fund has been provided and is anticipated to generate significant carbon and revenue savings.

In January 2009, the newly formed NHS Sustainable Development Unit published their NHS Carbon Reduction Strategy, which supports the Government's Climate Change Act 2008 target of 80 per cent. greenhouse gas reduction by 2050 with 26 per cent. carbon dioxide reduction by 2020. It goes further by challenging the NHS to aim for an interim reduction of 10 per cent. from 2007 to 2015.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the total amount of energy used by (a) his Department and (b) the NHS in each of the last five years. [257578]

Phil Hope: The following table shows the total energy consumption for the Department in each of the last five years.

	Total energy consumption (MWh)
2003-04	19,121
2004-05	19,824
2005-06	18,090
2006-07	16,176
2007-08	16,241

The following table shows the total energy consumption reported by the national health service in each of the last five years. The data relating to total energy consumption and occupied floor area have been extracted from the Department's Estates Returns Information Collection (ERIC) system.

	Total energy consumption (MWh)	Occupied floor area (m^2)	Average Energy Consumption (KWh/m^2)
2003-04	12,765,382	25,813,941	494
2004-05	12,441,322	25,428,351	489
2005-06	12,566,507	25,529,693	492
2006-07	12,446,516	25,486,209	488
2007-08	12,702,494	26,331,121	482

The occupied floor area has increased by 517,180 m^2 over this time period while total energy consumption has decreased by 62,888 MWh indicating an improvement in how energy is utilised within the NHS.

NHS: Equality

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons he has established a working party to examine the implications of age discrimination legislation for the NHS; what the (a) remit, (b) membership and (c) timetable of the group is; and if he will make a statement. [257179]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement issued on 11 November 2008, Official Report, columns 46-48WS.

Radiology Reports

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of radiology investigation reports which include consultants advice that are returned to patients' GPs within (a) two, (b) three, (c) four, (d) six, (e) 10 and (f) 12 weeks of the test in (i) Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency, (ii) Morecambe Bay Primary Care Trust area and (iii) England. [258147]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect these data.

From 1 January 2009 no one should wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred to the start of their hospital treatment, unless this is clinically appropriate or they choose to wait longer. This commitment includes all appointments and diagnostic tests between referral and start of consultant led treatment.

NHS: Parking

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many parking spaces were available in each NHS trust in 2007-08; what average fee was charged per hour for patient or visitor parking; how many disabled parking spaces were available; how many parking spaces were available for patients or visitors; what average hourly fee was charged for staff parking; how many parking spaces were available for staff; and what income was received from (a) staff and (b) patient parking. [257736]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information available has been placed in the Library.

The information has been supplied by the national health service and had not been amended centrally. The accuracy and completeness of the information is the responsibility of the provider organisation.

The provision of hospital car parking and any associated charges are decided locally by individual NHS trusts to help cover the cost of running, maintaining and securing a car park. All trusts should have exemption and concessionary schemes in place to ensure that patients and carers who visit hospital regularly are not disadvantaged. They should also have sustainable public transport plans in place for staff and visitors.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many parking spaces for (a) staff and (b) patients were available in the NHS in England in each financial year since 1997-98; and how much was received from (i) staff and (ii) patients in parking charges in each such year. [257740]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested.

Since 2001-02, the Department has collected annual data from national health service trusts on car parking provision and any associated charges, through the Estates Returns Information Collection (ERIC). The available data for each year since 2001-02 have been placed in the Library.

The information provided has been supplied by the NHS and had not been amended centrally. The accuracy and completeness of the information is the responsibility of the provider organisation.

The provision of hospital car parking and any associated charges are decided locally by individual trusts to help cover the cost of running, maintaining and securing a car park. All NHS trusts should have exemption and concessionary schemes in place to ensure that patients and carers who visit hospital regularly are not disadvantaged. They should also have sustainable public transport plans in place for staff and visitors.

NHS: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which private contractors have withdrawn from NHS private finance initiative contracts in the last 12 months; what the contract was in each case; and what the monetary value of the contract was in each case; [255300]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the effects of the economic downturn on hospital private finance initiative projects; [255336]

(3) what hospital building projects are planned to be completed in each of the next 10 financial years; [255337]

(4) which hospital private finance initiative projects are waiting for approval from HM Treasury; and on what date each was first submitted to the Treasury for approval; [255338]

(5) what data his Department collects to monitor progress on hospital building projects; [255339]

(6) what new hospitals have been built since 1997; when each was opened; how each was funded; and what the current capital asset value of each is; [255340]

(7) how many of the 100 new hospitals referred to in the NHS Plan have opened; on what date each opened; and how much capital expenditure there was on each; [255342]

(8) how many of the 100 new hospitals referred to in the NHS Plan have not yet opened; when each is expected to be opened; and how much capital expenditure there will be on each. [255343]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the hospital schemes which have opened or begun construction (with their expected opening date) since 1997, with the capital construction cost of each, has been placed in the Library.

The private finance initiative (PFI) schemes in the list are currently accounted for as off balance sheet and are not therefore accounted as an asset by trusts. The national health service is in the process of determining the value these assets which will be disclosed in their 2009-10 accounts under the new international financial reporting standards (IFRS) which apply to public sector accounts with effect from 2009-10. In respect of the public capital funded schemes, the total asset value of land and buildings for each trust is held centrally, but these are aggregate values which do not separately identify individual capital investment projects.

The 2000 NHS Plan set a target of opening 100 new hospital schemes by 2010. At the time of the NHS Plan, 69 schemes had already been given the go ahead—all but three of these schemes have opened (these three are currently under construction). The NHS Plan identified another 18 schemes to go ahead in the next two years under the PFI, bringing the total at the time to 87 schemes; the target of 100 was set in anticipation of more schemes being given the go ahead in future years. For example in addition to the 18 future PFI schemes identified in the NHS Plan, another 11 PFI schemes were given the go ahead shortly afterwards. Since then a number of other PFI and public capital funded projects have also proceeded and opened, which means that the NHS Plan target of opening 100 new hospital schemes was achieved in October 2008.

The information placed in the Library identifies both PFI and public capital schemes currently under construction and which are due to be completed (open) in the next 10 years. Schemes developing PFI proposals and actively preparing an initial outline business case (OBC) or currently in procurement, are shown in the following table.

Commissioning body	OBC approved/ OBC to be submitted for approval	Estimated total capital value (£ million)
Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital NHS Trust	2009	143
North Bristol/South Gloucestershire PCTs	[1]	475
Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust	2009	61
Sandwell and West Birmingham Acute NHS Trust	2009	368
West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust	2010	280
East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust	2010	110
Papworth Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	2009	160
Royal Liverpool Children's Hospital NHS Trust	2009	235
Mersey Care NHS trust	2009	170
Royal Liverpool and Broadgreen University Hospitals NHS Trust	2009	477

[1] OBC approved May 2007 Financial close expected before the end of 2009

Proceeding to financial close and construction for these schemes is dependent on business cases being submitted and approved. It is too early to provide financial close and opening milestone dates for these schemes apart from the most advanced, North Bristol/South Gloucestershire primary care trusts (PCTs), where an expected financial close date is given.

The Government's policy continues to be that PFI and other public private partnerships should be used to deliver public services when this offers value for money. This is assessed on a case by case basis at the appropriate approval point for each scheme. The North Bristol/South Gloucestershire PCTs is the only health sector PFI scheme in the market at the moment and the two consortiums competing to be appointed preferred bidder have held discussions about current economic conditions and have factored this into their bids as part of the competitive process. No bidding consortium (which includes the prime contractor) has withdrawn from competition on an NHS PFI scheme in the last 12 months.

None of these schemes is awaiting approval from Treasury. The business case for the appointment of the preferred bidder at North Bristol/South Gloucestershire PCTs is expected to be submitted to the Department in April or May this year; it will need subsequent approval by Treasury.

There are a further four public capital hospital building schemes timetabled to begin construction in the next financial year (2009-10), subject to approval of their full business cases. No information is held centrally on the expected pipeline of public capital funded schemes for 2010-11 or later years.

The Department monitors the progress of all hospital building schemes (i.e. both PFI and public capital) in terms of the major project milestone dates (business case approval dates, financial close and opening) and collects and collates the appropriate information as it becomes available.

Nurses: Training

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the number of student nurses working 10 or more hours a week in addition to their placements and lectures; and what assessment he has made of the impact of external paid work on the performance of students of nursing and allied health professions in their studies. [253607]

Ann Keen: The Department is currently undertaking a review of NHS student support as part of Lord Darzi's NHS Next Stage Review. The information requested is not held centrally.

Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will reconstitute the Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board as one of the Department's standing advisory bodies, with a remit covering all age groups and all care settings; and if he will make a statement; [257074]

(2) what plans he has to evaluate the implementation of the nutrition action plan. [257180]

Phil Hope: I expect to receive the report of the Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board by the end of spring 2009. Decisions on these issues will be made in light of that report.

Nutrition: Screening

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will include the conduct of nutritional screening in the next version of the Quality and Outcomes Framework; and if he will make a statement. [257182]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to oversee a new independent and transparent process for developing and reviewing Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) clinical and health improvement indicators for England from 1 April 2009 as part of their role in providing guidance for the NHS based on evidence of clinical effectiveness and cost effectiveness. We launched a public consultation on the proposed new process on 30 October 2008. The consultation ended on 2 February. Subject to the outcome of that consultation, any proposal for further changes to QOF indicators would need to be considered under that new process. The Department has no current plans to ask NICE to consider the conduct of nutritional screening by general practice within the QOF.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department last issued guidance to health and social care organisations on the details of weight and height measuring equipment used for nutritional screening. [257183]

Dawn Primarolo: On 4 August 2008, the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families published "The National Child Measurement Programme Guidance for PCTs: 2008/09 school year". This guidance included information on measuring the height and weight of children in reception (aged four to five years) and year 6 (aged 10 to 11 years). Guidance was also issued in July 2008 on "Weighing Scales for the National Child Measurement Programme".

Both documents are available at:

http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publichealth/Healthimprovement/Healthyliving/DH_073787

Copies have been placed in the Library.

The National Child Measurement Programme is one element of the Government's work programme on childhood obesity. The data collected are used to inform local planning and delivery of services for children; and gather population-level surveillance data to allow analysis of trends in growth patterns and obesity.

Patient Choice Schemes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1938W, on patient choice schemes, how many people were referred to first outpatient appointments in each primary care trust area in January 2009; and what the equivalent figures were for January 2008. [257787]

Mr. Bradshaw: The figures for the number of patients referred to a first consultant-led outpatient appointment following a referral by their general practitioner (GP) in each primary care trust (PCT) from January 2009 have not been published yet. The pre-announced date for publication is 27 February 2009. However, the following table shows figures for January 2008 and December 2007 and December 2008.

Pharmacy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many community pharmacies there were (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 population in (i) England (ii) each primary care trust; [255430]

(2) how many community pharmacies were under contract with their local primary care trust on (a) 31 March 2006, (b) 31 March 2007 and (c) 31 March 2008 to provide local enhanced services (i) in England and (ii) in each primary care trust area, and how many in each category provided (A) all local enhanced services, (B) anti-coagulant monitoring, (C) diseases specific medicines management, (D) gluten-free food, (E) home delivery, (F) language access, (G) medication reviews, (H) medications assessment and compliance support, (I) minor ailment schemes, (J) needle and syringe exchanges, (K) on-demand availability of specialist drugs, (L) out-of-hours services, (M) patient group direction, (N) prescriber support, (O) screening, (P) stop smoking services, (Q) supervised administration and (R) supplementary prescribing. [255690]

Phil Hope: Details of the number of pharmacies in contract with primary care trusts (PCTs) at 31 March 2008 are contained in table 2 of the annual bulletins 'General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales' published by the Information Centre for health and social care. Breakdowns by PCT are in the online appendices.

The number of community pharmacies in contract with PCTs to provide local enhanced services is not collected centrally. Table 6 of the bulletins (table 9 in 1996-97 to 2005-06) lists the total number of local enhanced services provided by pharmacy contractors in contract with PCTs. An individual pharmacy contractor may offer more than one locally enhanced service. Again, breakdowns by PCT are in the online appendices.

Copies of the 'General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales' bulletins and associated online appendices for 1996-97 to 2005-06, 1997-98 to 2006-07 and 1998-99 to 2007-08 have been placed in the Library.

Copies are also available on the NHS Information Centre website:

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reasons he has identified for the decline in the net ingredient cost of items dispensed by pharmacies over the last three years, referred to in the General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales 1998-99 to 2007-08 bulletin. [255526]

Phil Hope: A number of factors have contributed to the decrease in the average net ingredient cost (NIC) per prescription item since April 2005. These include:

the introduction in April 2005 of the category M scheme for calculating the reimbursement prices of selected generic medicines, which has lowered overall generic medicine prices in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08;

the introduction of the 2005 pharmaceutical price regulation scheme (PPRS) which required all companies that sold more than £1 million worth of branded medicines to the national health service to reduce prices by 7 per cent. This lowered overall branded medicine prices in 2005-06; and more effective prescribing with high generic prescribing rates (83 per cent. of all prescription items were written generically in 2006). For example, the quarterly better care, better value indicator on statins has encouraged more systematic prescribing by general practitioners of therapeutically equivalent low cost generic statins in place of higher cost branded statins.

Pharmacy: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultant pharmacists worked in the NHS in each year since 2003. [255569]

Phil Hope: Since "A Vision for Pharmacy in the New NHS" first identified this important role in 2003, there has been a steady increase in the number of approved consultant pharmacist posts in England. The number of consultant pharmacists in national health service hospital and community health services, as at 30 September is shown in the following table.

	Number of consultant pharmacists
2003	6
2004	8
2005	9
2006	12
2007	14

Source:
NHS Information Centre for health and social care non-medical workforce census.

Informal sources relating to 2008 indicate that there may now be as many as 30 strategic health authority approved consultant pharmacist posts.

Pregnancy: Smoking

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the guidance on smoking and pregnancy provided to pregnant women by his Department, if he will make it his Department's policy to use the phrase 'there's two of you now' in all advice it provides to pregnant women; and if he will make a statement. [256533]

Dawn Primarolo: In February 2009, the Department launched a new campaign to motivate and support pregnant smokers to stop smoking. The campaign includes information and materials for midwives, and new resources for pregnant smokers.

The phrase 'there's two of you now' is not an integral element of the overall messaging of the smoking and pregnancy campaign. It has been used in communication aimed directly at pregnant mothers who smoke and who are seeking information on ways to improve their health and the health of their baby.

Prescriptions: Over-60s

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of providing free prescriptions to those aged over 60. [257655]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of dispensing free prescriptions to those aged 60 and over in England in the community is estimated at between £300 and £350 million for the year 2008-09, where cost is assumed to be prescription charge revenue.

This estimate is based on Office for National Statistics mid-year population estimates and on an assumption that approximately 70 per cent. of those aged 60 or over would be exempt via another route due to, for example, being a recipient of a qualifying mean-tested benefit or having a medical exemption certificate. The cost is calculated by estimating that 50 per cent. of those having to pay would purchase a prepayment certificate and the balance would pay a charge per item.

R. Channing Wheeler

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the value for money of the employment of Mr R Channing Wheeler as Commercial Director in his Department. [256239]

Mr. Bradshaw: As the Department's Commercial Director-General, Mr. Channing Wheeler secured the independent sector's further contribution to the national health service bringing to financial close eight Independent Sector Treatment Centre (ISTC) schemes providing extra capacity and greater choice for NHS patients. Mr. Wheeler oversaw the revalidation of ISTC schemes that resulted in nine schemes not going forward where value for money for the taxpayer could not be demonstrated.

Mr. Wheeler also led the Department's team in renegotiation of the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme and continued to take forward the embedding of commercial expertise within the Department and the NHS.

Rapid Review Panel

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many products the Rapid Review Panel has reviewed in the last 12 months. [257308]

Mr. Bradshaw: The panel has undertaken 51 reviews in the last 12 months.

Slaughterhouses

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the costs incurred by abattoir owners of employment of an on-site veterinarian in each year since the creation of the Meat Hygiene Service. [257424]

Dawn Primarolo: The costs attributable to operators of approved fresh meat establishments (including abattoirs) for the employment of Official Veterinarians (OV) and Meat Hygiene Inspectors (MHI) and the actual charge levied on operators are shown in the following table. Under the present charging system, in place since April 2001, it is not possible to separate out the charge to operators for Official Veterinarians.

Social Care: Research

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what academic studies he has commissioned as part of the drafting of the Green Paper on Social Care; [256703]

(2) when he plans to publish the Green Paper on Social Care. [256704]

Phil Hope: The Department has commissioned two academic studies to inform the Green Paper process. The purpose of one piece of work, being undertaken by the personal social services research unit, is to make projections of likely future demand for long-term care and associated expenditure under a range of different funding scenarios. The other piece of work, undertaken by Les Mayhew of Cass Business School, concerns the financial products that could potentially support private contributions in a new care and support system.

The Government intend to publish the Green Paper on care and support reform in spring 2009.

Teenage Pregnancy: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the teenage pregnancy rate was in each of the principal seaside towns of England at (a) town, (b) ward and (c) lower level super output area level, for the most recent year for which figures are available. [257373]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the teenage pregnancy rate was in each of the principal seaside towns of England at (a) town, (b) ward and (c) lower level super output area level, for the most recent year for which figures are available. (257373)

Figures on teenage conceptions are not routinely published by principal seaside towns of England at (a) town, (b) ward and (c) lower layer super output areas due to concerns in maintaining confidentiality of individuals.

However, ONS routinely publishes number of conceptions to girls aged under 18 by local authorities in England and the latest figures for 2006 are provided in the table, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

Available figures are estimates of the number of conceptions that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or legal termination.

Transplant Surgery: Foreigners

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 826-7W, on transplant surgery: foreigners, (1) how many of those receiving organs survived beyond the point of their three month check-up; [257492]

(2) whether the transplantations listed were fully funded by the NHS. [257494]

Ann Keen: The following tables show overseas residents transplanted in UK NHS hospitals who (a) died within three months; (b) survived beyond three months; and (c) no three month follow-up information available:

Information as to whether the transplantations listed were fully funded by the NHS is not collated centrally.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 826-27W, on transplant surgery: foreigners, how many transplants of each type or organ have taken place in (a) private hospitals and (b) private units within NHS trusts and foundation trusts in each of the last 10 years. Pursuant to the answer given on 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 826-27W, information is not collated centrally on whether the transplants took place in private units within national health service and foundation trusts.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what co-operation his Department undertakes with its counterparts in Scotland and Wales to combat tuberculosis in Great Britain. [256098]

Dawn Primarolo: Health policies for England, Scotland and Wales are determined by each country individually. However, each health department maintains regular contact and sharing of policies on tuberculosis (TB) through a number of formal routes, such as the UK Health Protection Oversight Group, which meets regularly to maintain good communication between the four nations (including Northern Ireland), and informally as needed.

Through these meetings, key publications such as the Department's TB Action Plan, the NICE TB Prevention and Control Guidance and the awareness raising work are shared with Scotland and Wales, who consider England's actions when formulating their own policies.

The Health Protection Agency in England has close links with each health department, and collects and publishes annual data on TB rates for each country.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to improve general practitioners' ability to detect tuberculosis at an early stage. [256105]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2006, the Department has supported the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) in development of guidance "Clinical Diagnosis and Management of Tuberculosis, and Measures for its Prevention and Control" to increase awareness of tuberculosis (TB) among general practitioners to improve referrals for TB testing, diagnosis and treatment in specialised facilities.

Currently, the Department is sponsoring TB Alert to develop TB awareness raising messages for people at risk of TB to increase referrals for TB testing and effective treatment as well as with primary care workers to increase awareness of TB.

Tuberculosis: HIV Infection

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of patients diagnosed with tuberculosis (TB) are subsequently tested for HIV infection; and what proportion of those diagnosed with HIV are subsequently tested for TB. [256090]

Dawn Primarolo: To protect identity of patients with HIV/AIDS, the national HIV/AIDS database is anonymised. For this reason, it is not possible to identify the sequence in which the diagnosis of tuberculosis (TB)/HIV co-infection was established. It is only possible to identify an overall proportion of patients with TB/HIV co-infection.

The most recent data from the Health Protection Agency indicate that approximately 8 per cent. of TB cases in England are co-infected with HIV (2005).

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of tuberculosis (TB) patients in England are co-infected with HIV; and what plans there are to reduce HIV-TB co-infection rates. [256091]

Dawn Primarolo: The most recent data from the Health Protection Agency indicate that approximately 8 per cent. of tuberculosis (TB) cases in England are co-infected with HIV (2005).

The Department supported development of the following guidance that recommends shared case management between TB and HIV professions:

'Clinical Diagnosis and Management of Tuberculosis, and Measures for its Prevention and Control' (National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE), 2006)

'Tuberculosis Prevention and Treatment: A Toolkit for Planning, Commissioning and Delivering High-Quality Services in England' (2007);

'Recommended Standards for NHS HIV Services' (2003);

'HIV in Primary Care' (2004); and

'HIV for non- HIV Specialists' (2008).

Copies have been placed in the Library.

Tuberculosis: Medical Treatments

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of tuberculosis (TB) patients received directly observed therapy in the last five years; what proportion of those had a treatment outcome of lost to follow up; and what steps NHS trusts take to encourage patients to complete the course of their treatment for TB. [256088]

Dawn Primarolo: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) does not collect these data. The HPA has recently redeveloped its surveillance system to collect this information about risk factors and whether patients started on treatment are under direct observation, and the new system is currently being rolled out nationally.

In 2007, the Department initiated a 'Find and Treat' (F&T) project to actively look for cases of tuberculosis (TB) among the homeless and other vulnerable groups in London, and to promote the use of directly observed treatment (DOT), which provides supervised medication and support to patients to improve adherence to treatment. Currently, the F&T team is helping over 300 people with TB who have challenging lifestyles to complete their treatment.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to prevent the spread of multi-drug resistant tuberculosis. [256089]

Dawn Primarolo: Prevention of the emergence and spread of any type of drug-resistant tuberculosis (TB) is being addressed through the Chief Medical Officer's (CMO) TB Action Plan. The Plan provides guidelines to primary care trusts on improving the public health surveillance system, fast and comprehensive detection of cases, rapid identification of drug resistance if it exists, and good clinical management, including measures to ensure treatment is both appropriate and completed by the patient.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) Guidelines on the Treatment and Diagnosis of TB (2006) include specific guidance on treatment and rapid contact tracing of people in contact with any type of drug resistant TB.

The key step in preventing development of drug-resistant TB is improving adherence to treatment among those TB patients who have already started their treatment.

In 2007, the Department has initiated a 'Find and Treat' project to actively look for cases of TB among the homeless and other vulnerable groups in London, and to promote the use of directly observed therapy, which provides supervised medication and support to patients to improve adherence to treatment.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of those diagnosed with tuberculosis complete treatment; and what steps are being taken to increase treatment completion rates. [256092]

Dawn Primarolo: Information from the Health Protection Agency (HPA) Enhanced Tuberculosis Surveillance System shows that of the 93 per cent. of tuberculosis (TB) cases reported in 2006 in England for which the outcome is known, 79 per cent. completed treatment within 12 months of starting treatment.

The Department of Health has issued the following guidance which supports primary care trusts (PCTs) in improving treatment completion:

'Clinical Diagnosis and Management of Tuberculosis, and Measures for its Prevention and Control' (National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE), 2006); and

'Tuberculosis Prevention and Treatment: A Toolkit for Planning, Commissioning and Delivering High-Quality Services in England' (2007).

In 2007, the Department has initiated a 'Find and Treat' project to actively look for cases of TB among the homeless and other vulnerable groups in London, and to promote the use of directly observed therapy, which provides supervised medication and support to patients to improve adherence to treatment.

Currently, the Department is sponsoring an awareness campaign by TB Alert to raise awareness of TB among groups vulnerable to TB, including the importance of TB treatment completion.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on treating drug-resistant tuberculosis (TB) patients in the last five years; and if he will estimate the cost of treating those patients as if they had drug-susceptible TB. [256097]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the costs associated with treatment of multi-drug resistant tuberculosis (MRD-TB), either by case or in total, are not routinely collected. The National Institute for Clinical Excellence have undertaken analysis of TB treatment costs as part of the development of guidance 'Tuberculosis—National clinical guideline for diagnosis, management, prevention, and control'.

An estimated average cost of treating one patient with MDR-TB is £60,000, compared to an £6,000 for an average case of drug-susceptible TB.

The number (and proportion) of confirmed tuberculosis cases with MDR-TB in England by year 2002-07 is as follows:

	Number	Proportion (percentage)
2002	33	0.9
2003	49	1.3
2004	44	1.1
2005	40	0.9
2006	49	1.1
2007	47	1.1

Note:
The proportions are among culture confirmed cases reported to ETS that had drug susceptibility testing results for at least isoniazid and rifampicin.

Health Protection Agency Enhanced Tuberculosis Surveillance System (ETS)

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the threat from extensive drug resistant tuberculosis (XDR-TB) to public health; and what capacity the NHS has to treat multiple XDR-TB patients. [256104]

Dawn Primarolo: In the United Kingdom, less than 1 per cent. of tuberculosis (TB) cases are multi drug resistant (MDR-TB), that is, less than 50 TB cases per year. A very small proportion of the UK MDR cases might now be classed as extensive drug resistant tuberculosis (XDR-TB). The Health Protection Agency (HPA) maintains monitoring of all types of TB, and since 1993, a total of eight cases would fall into the definition of XDR-TB.

Drug-resistant TB cases need to be treated in airflow controlled isolation. In 2003, the National Audit Office carried out an audit of the national health service (NHS) isolation facilities. A total of 176 trusts were surveyed. Out of these, 63 had at least one airflow controlled room, with a total of about 300 (this figure includes paediatric facilities). It is for the NHS to determine the local level of provision of isolation facilities.

Tuberculosis: Schools

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many outbreaks of tuberculosis have occurred in schools in (a) London and (b) England in the last five years. [256099]

Dawn Primarolo: The data for tuberculosis (TB) outbreaks are shown in the following table.

	Number of school outbreaks in England[1]	Number of school outbreaks in London
2008[2]	58	34
2007	56	25

Vaccinations: Pensioners

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pensioners in York received influenza inoculations in each of the last five years. [257839]

Dawn Primarolo: Flu vaccine is given free of charge on the national health service to those aged 65 years and over. This influenza vaccine uptake is reported to the Department by primary care trusts (PCTs) and strategic health authorities and is based on the number of patients registered at reporting general practitioner practices who were vaccinated between 1 September and 31 January of the given year. Data are not collected by constituency.

The city of York is currently covered by North Yorkshire and York PCT and prior to 2006 was covered by Selby and York PCT.

	Primary Care Trust	Number of registered patients 65 years and over	Number of patients 65 years and over vaccinated	% uptake (to 1 decimal point)

Vioxx

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials in his Department have had since June 2008 with the US Administration on the drug Vioxx; and if he will make a statement. [256528]

Phil Hope: Neither Ministers nor officials in the Department have held any discussions with the United States Administration on this matter.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of treating those with health impairments resulting from the use of Vioxx in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [256531]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has made no such estimate.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people who have experienced strokes related to their use of the drug Vioxx. [256532]

Dawn Primarolo: Vioxx (rofecoxib) was one of a relatively new group of anti-inflammatory medicines known as COX-2 selective inhibitors. It was licensed in the United Kingdom and many other countries for the treatment of arthritic conditions - osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis—and also for the short-term treatment of some painful conditions. COX-2 selective inhibitors are effective anti-inflammatory, pain-relieving medicines that are thought to have less risk of gastrointestinal side effects, for example stomach ulcers, than conventional anti-inflammatory medicines.

Since 2000, evidence from clinical trials had raised concerns about a possible increased risk of heart attacks and other cardiovascular conditions associated with Vioxx, and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA)/Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM) had continually reviewed the cardiovascular safety of this drug since it was first licensed. The product information for healthcare professionals and patients, which lists all the known side effects of the medicine, was updated on a number of occasions on the basis of emerging evidence, and in accordance with CSM's advice.

Data are not available on which to base a valid estimate of the number of heart attacks, strokes and other adverse effects that may have been caused by Vioxx and other COX-2 inhibitors. The underlying medical condition of many patients treated with COX-2 inhibitors means that they are already at higher risk of heart attack and stroke than the rest of the population, and the impact of the COX-2 inhibitor on this risk is not possible to calculate.

Since Vioxx was voluntarily withdrawn by the manufacturer in 2004, the safety of other COX-2 inhibitors and traditional anti-inflammatory drugs—non-selective non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs)—has been under continual and intense assessment in the UK and Europe. The latest evidence suggests that both NSAIDs and COX-2 inhibitors might pose a small increased risk of heart attacks or strokes, although the exact level of risk may vary between medicines. The MHRA has widely communicated the latest information and advice for healthcare professionals in letters and bulletins, and other publications through liaison with the British National Formulary and National Prescribing Centre. In addition, product information (including patient information leaflets) has been updated in order to support informed decision-making in relation to the choice of anti-inflammatory medicine.

Vioxx: Compensation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Legal Services Commission since June 2008 on the award of legal aid for actions involving damage to health caused to individuals by the drug Vioxx; and if he will make a statement. [257581]

Dawn Primarolo: We have had no such discussions. It would be inappropriate for either Ministers or Government officials to intervene in or comment on decisions made about the grant of funding by the independent Legal Services Commission in individual cases. It is important that these decisions are, and are seen to be, free from political and Government influence.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid his Department provided to Afghanistan in 2008; what the projected figure is for 2009; and if he will make a statement. [255333]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on the Department for International Development's (DFID) expenditure in 2008-09 are not yet available but will be published in the 2009 Annual Report in July. The most recent data can be found in 'Statistics on International Development 2008', which was published in November 2008 and is available online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Details of DFID's annual allocation of resources are available in Annex 2 of DFID's 2008 Annual Report. This publication is available online at:

or from the Library. The allocation for DFID's programme in Afghanistan in 2009-10 is £115 million.

Agriculture: Research

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1614W, on agriculture: research, which nations have received funding for agricultural research and development from his Department in the last five years. [258195]

Mr. Michael Foster: The majority of DFID's centrally funded expenditure on agricultural research is directed through international agricultural research organisations. These funds are used to benefit the lives of poor people in all developing countries, especially in Africa and Asia. DFID also supports regional programmes in the Andes, East Africa and West Africa. Regional programmes are planned for Southern Africa and South Asia. A table of organisations and programmes supported by DFID is attached with information on the countries/regions they cover.

DFID is contributing £5 million over five years through a strategic partnership with the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC) under the programme on Sustainable Agriculture Research for International Development to fund 12 research grants in crop science. These grants were announced in January 2008 and have been made to consortia which include one UK partner and at least one partner from a developing country. In 2008-09, partners from Bangladesh, China, Ghana, India, Kenya, Peru, Philippines, Senegal, South Africa, Tanzania and Uganda, have directly benefited from this programme.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256206]

Mr. Michael Foster: Declaration of nationality by staff within the Department for International Development (DFID) is voluntary. Where details are known, the numbers of our Home Civil Service (HCS) staff who are:

(a) EU foreign nationals and;

	Number of home civil service staff
EU foreign nationals	29
non-EU foreign nationals	6

DFID also employs 787 staff appointed in country (SAIC), engaged in our overseas offices on local terms and conditions. Most SAIC are non-EU nationals.

Islamic Development Bank

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the Islamic Development Bank on development finance; and if he will make a statement. [256598]

Mr. Michael Foster: I signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Islamic Development Bank during my visit to Saudi Arabia in January 2009 with the aim of increasing co-operation in countries and sectors of mutual interest. This was the first agreement of its kind between the Department for International Development (DFID) and an Arab or Islamic development institution.

DFID has been increasing its engagement with the Islamic Development Bank over the last two years building a partnership around common aims. The Islamic Development Bank's 'Vision 1440H' supports the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals.

In November 2008 DFID and the Bank launched a first joint project to deliver access to clean water and improved sanitation for 36,000 people in Al Howta City in Yemen. DFID and Bank officials are currently exploring new areas for co-operation.

Morphine: Developing Countries

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to provide morphine supplies to developing countries for medical purposes; and if he will make a statement. [255481]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is working with the Foreign Office, the Home Office, and the International Narcotics Control Board (INCB), to press for greater recognition of the importance of access to controlled medicines, including oral morphine, at the forthcoming Commission on Narcotic Drugs in March 2009. This is being supported through a DFID-funded post in the UK Mission in Vienna. We are also working with the US Government to identify pilot countries in which we can support greater access to oral opiates for pain relief and for use in harm reduction interventions for injecting drug users.

Major legal and regulatory barriers to access for strong analgesics, such as oral morphine, have been identified in many countries in DFID commissioned research studies. We have discussed these barriers with experts from multilateral agencies and national governments, and developed a programme of work aimed at overcoming them. Further information on DFID funded research is available on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/

Overseas Aid

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how much aid his Department has provided to Zimbabwe in the last 12 months; [256648]

(2) how much aid his Department has provided to (a) Bangladesh, (b) Sri Lanka, (c) Lebanon and (d) Somalia in the last 12 months; [256587]

(3) how much aid his Department has provided to the Democratic Republic of Congo in the last 12 months; [256582]

(4) how much aid his Department has provided to Somaliland in the last 12 months; [256581]

(5) how much aid his Department has provided to Gaza in the last 12 months. [256579]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on the Department for International Development (DFID) bilateral expenditure and imputed share of multilateral Official Development Assistance (ODA) are contained in the DFID publication 'Statistics on International Development'. This publication is available from in the Library and online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Relevant figures are produced in the following table.

It is difficult to give precise figures for Gaza, as some of our aid is earmarked for activities in both Gaza and the west bank. Figures for both Gaza and the west bank are presented below. Similarly, it is not possible to give separate figures for Somaliland, as it is part of the Somalia programme. Figures for Somalia are produced in the following table.

	Total DFID bilateral expenditure	DFID imputed multilateral share
Zimbabwe	43,266	7,427
Bangladesh	129,392	42,927
Sri Lanka	1,817	6,290
Lebanon	169	7,111
Somalia	25,724	8,812
Democratic Republic of Congo	82,711	34,297
West Bank and Gaza	45,031	36,316

St. Helena: Economic Growth

Meg Munn: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with businesses on the development of the economy of St Helena. [257951]

Mr. Michael Foster: I met representatives of Impregilo on 10 February in regard to their tender for the St. Helena airport project. I intend to meet representatives of the St. Helena Leisure Corporation (Shelco) shortly.

Through our support to the St. Helena Development Agency, we maintain regular contact with the private sector in St. Helena, including the St. Helena Chamber of Commerce, the Tourism Association and other local businesses. The Agency also maintains dialogue with inward investors and provides assistance to those seeking to invest in St. Helena.

Tax Havens: Developing Countries

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the level of tax revenue lost in developing countries from the use by multinational companies operating in those countries of tax havens. [255729]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

There is no official estimate of the level of tax revenues lost in developing countries by these means. DFID, in consultation with HMT and HMRC, has commissioned research into this subject which it is hoped will be completed by the end of the year.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, what proportion of tuberculosis (TB) patients being cared for in programmes funded by his Department are tested for HIV; and what proportion of HIV patients in such programmes are tested for TB. [256131]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) funds TB and HIV programmes through support to global partnerships, such as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM) and UNITAID, multilateral organisations such as the World Health Organisation, support to countries and support for research. Our funds are often pooled with that of other donors and partner countries. We also support the broader health sector plans of developing country governments through sector wide programming and poverty reduction budget support.

It is difficult to attribute the proportion of TB patients who are also tested for HIV and the proportion of HIV patients tested for TB. However, in a number of countries supported by DFID, the co-ordination of TB and HIV programmes is continuing to improve. The World Health Organisation reports that there has been a substantial improvement in TB-HIV collaboration activities. The provision of HIV testing for TB patients between 2002 and 2006 increased from 21,806 across nine countries in 2002 to 687,174 patients across 112 countries in 2006. Screening for TB among HIV positive people attending HIV care services grew from 194,718 in 2005 to 314,394 people in 2006.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department provides to organisations developing tuberculosis diagnostics for use in developing countries. [256133]

Mr. Michael Foster: Between 2005 and 2008 the Department for International Development (DFID) provided £5.5 million for the Special Programme for Research and Training on Tropical Diseases (TDR; UNICEF/UNDP/World Bank/WHO) between 2005 and 2008. TDR focuses on accelerating the development of new diagnostics, including for tuberculosis, and identifying those which may be appropriate and useful for developing countries. We are in the first stage of a competition, inviting expressions of interest from organisations involved in product development, which will lead to bids for our research funding. We expect groups working on diagnostics to be among the applicants.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with which organisations his Department is working to develop a new vaccine against tuberculosis for use in developing countries. [256134]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID), along with other donors, supports the Advanced Market Commitment (AMC). This is an innovative funding mechanism, which commits governments to fund an agreed volume of doses at an agreed price if a product is successfully developed. This AMC will be formally implemented in the first half of 2009, and accelerate the introduction and distribution in developing countries of pneumococcal vaccine.

There is significant expectation around the launch of a second AMC. This would potentially be targeted at developing a vaccine for tuberculosis (TB), but there are other critical diseases (such as malaria) that also need to be addressed.

The UK is focused on completing the implementation of the pneumococcal vaccine AMC. Following completion, we plan to reconvene the group of independent international experts (that recommended that the first AMC address pneumococcus) and request that they to make a recommendation for the next AMC.

We are in the first stage of a competition, inviting expressions of interest from organisations involved in product development, which will lead to bids for our research funding. We expect groups working on vaccines to be among the applicants.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to ensure that all tuberculosis (TB) patients in developing countries have access to quality TB diagnostic services and treatment. [256218]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports access to quality TB diagnostic services and treatment through: international organisations and partnerships, countries' TB programmes, and health systems strengthening. We provide core funding to the World Health Organisation (WHO) and to the Stop TB Partnership. We pledged up to £1 billion for 2008-15 to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, and made a long-term commitment to the international drug purchase facility UNITAID starting with €20 million in 2007.

Examples of DFID support to countries' TB programmes include:

In China, funding from DFID and other donors has contributed to increasing detection rates from 30 per cent. in 2002 to over 70 per cent. in 2007; cure rates are now well above 85 per cent. and 1.5 million patients are being successfully treated.

In India, we support the national TB programme which has treated 6.3 million patients and saved 1.1 million lives since 1997.

DFID provides budget support to Pakistan, where case detection rates increased from 13 per cent. in 2002 to 51 per cent. in 2006 and to 69 per cent. in 2007.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assessment his Department has made of the effect of extensively drug-resistant strains of tuberculosis in developing countries on the prospects of fulfilment of the Global Plan to Stop TB; [256219]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to prevent the spread of drug-resistant tuberculosis globally. [256132]

Mr. Michael Foster: The emergence of drug resistant strains of tuberculosis (TB) pose a serious threat to achieving the goals of the Global Plan to Stop TB. The response to drug resistant TB falls far short of what is needed. Much more needs to be done to ensure prompt quality diagnosis and effective treatment.

The Department for International Development (DFID) funds research into new TB drugs, through the Global Alliance for TB Drugs, and also operational research. In 2006 DFID provided an additional £1.6 million to the Stop TB Partnership to address extensively drug-resistant TB (XDR-TB) in South Africa. This was in response to an urgent request from the World Health Organisation (WHO).

Prompt diagnosis and effective treatment is essential to prevent the emergence of drug resistance. DFID supports actions to strengthen TB programmes through international organisations such as the World Health Organisation, global partnerships such as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria and UNITAID, our support to countries' health systems and our funding for research. By 1 December 2008, global fund-supported programmes had detected and treated 4.6 million additional cases of infectious tuberculosis.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he plans to answer Question 246213, tabled by the hon. Member for Stroud on 17 December 2008, on UK National Action Plan on UN Security Council Resolution 1325 and Afghanistan. [255640]

Mr. Michael Foster: The parliamentary question referred to by my hon. Friend was transferred to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and answered on 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2308-09W.

[253391]

Mr. Thomas: UK companies' attendance at overseas defence exhibitions is a matter for those companies and the exhibition organisers. Guidance on the impact of the UK's trade controls on exhibitions is available on the BERR website. Further guidance may be given to companies as appropriate by export control advisers in BERR so that their attendance at an exhibition may comply with UK law on the export of defence goods, including in respect of embargoed destinations such as Zimbabwe, and Sudan. UKTI Defence and Security Organisation offers support and advice to defence and security companies to assist them succeed internationally. That organisation attended the recent defence exhibition and seminar in Karachi and displayed a range of equipment in accordance with UK law on exports.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the monetary value of trade between the UK and (a) Queensland, (b) New South Wales and (c) Western Australia was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [256590]

Mr. Thomas: The United Kingdom does not produce statistics on trade with sub-national parts of other countries. The Australian Government publishes some data on trade between the UK and individual Australian states and territories, for example at:

http://www.dfat.gov.au/publications/stats-pubs/trade_state_and_territory.html

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the monetary value of (a) exports from the UK to Australia and (b) imports from Australia to the UK was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [256591]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 8 December 2008, Official Report, column 23W.

On 10 February 2009, the Office for National Statistics published its first estimates of trade in goods for 2008: UK exports of goods to Australia were worth £3,091 million and UK imports of goods were worth £2,378 million. Figures for UK trade in services with Australia in 2008 are due to be published in the late summer.

Bed and Breakfast Accommodation

Mr. Paice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of bed and breakfast establishments in (a) rural areas and (b) urban areas in each year since 1997. [255743]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what estimate has been made of the number of bed and breakfast establishments in (a) rural areas and (b) urban areas in each year since 1997 (255743).

The main source of business count estimates is the Inter-Departmental Business Register (IDBR). The IDBR comprises of VAT and/or PAYE registered businesses, however most bed and breakfast establishments will fall below the threshold for VAT and PAYE registration and so will be excluded.

The table below covers those enterprises registered for VAT and/or PAYE held on the IDBR and classified, using the Standard Industrial Classification (2003), to subclass 5523/9 "other tourist or short stay accommodation". This subclass includes guest houses, farmhouses, inns with letting rooms and other facilities not elsewhere classified. Statistics on urban and rural geography are only available for England and Wales and from 2005 onwards.

Count of VAT and/or PAYE based Enterprises in England and Wales by SIC'2003 subclass 5523/9 and Urban/Rural split

Data as at March of the year specified	Rural	Urban	Total
2005	515	840	1,355
2006	560	870	1,430
2007	600	890	1,490
2008	665	950	1,615

Note:
All figures have been rounded to avoid disclosure.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to encourage investment in the biotechnology industry. [250423]

Ian Pearson: The Review and Refresh of Bioscience 2015 was published on 22 January 2009 and its recommendations are currently being considered by the Government. A formal response will issue in the spring.

Businesses, including firms in the biotechnology sector, can find out about eligibility for a range of Government support schemes from the 'Real help for businesses now' web page hosted by Business Link at http://www.businesslink.gov.uk

Borrowing: Elderly

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to inform older people of the risks they incur through borrowing too much. [255764]

Mr. Thomas: The Government fully recognise the risks for older people of borrowing too much, particularly for those on low incomes. The vast majority of older people have no debts and are able to manage their finances. However, we are aware that many older people struggle to meet the cost of day to day living, and that some have been borrowing to finance these costs.

The Government have invested considerable resource in debt advice over recent years. It has allocated £130 million to expand the provision of free debt advice for the financially excluded through the Financial Inclusion Fund. A further £15.85 million was allocated to support the National Debt Line and Citizen's Advice in the last Pre-Budget Report. These services are targeted at the financially excluded, including older people in financial difficulty.

The Government have also undertaken a number of measures to strengthen signposting to debt advice services, including a Direct.Gov campaign. The Direct.Gov website provides links to Help the Aged, Age Concern and other organisations able to provide financial information to this vulnerable group.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assistance his Department provides to businesses to assist them with export activities. [253322]

Mr. Thomas: UK Trade and Investment is the joint BERR/FCO organisation that helps UK-based companies succeed in the global economy and assists overseas companies to bring high quality investment to the UK.

UKTI's trade development services for UK-based companies help them to develop their international trade potential, and to access international markets. Further details on these services can be found in UKTI's Autumn Performance Report 2008 (Cm 7520) and on UKTI's website www.uktradeinvest.gov.uk.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the proposal from the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts for a fund to support early stage companies. [255645]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are aware of the difficulties small companies are facing in raising venture capital funding and the risk that this poses to the UK's economic future. We are currently working with the venture capital sector, businesses and investors to discuss possible solutions. This includes discussions with NESTA about their proposal, but no decisions have yet been made.

Car Industry: Redundancy

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many redundancies from positions in the car manufacturing industries have been notified to his Department in the last 12 months: [254442]

(2) how many redundancies in the commercial vehicle manufacturing industry have been notified to his Department in the last 12 months. [255050]

Mr. McFadden: Employers who propose to make 20 or more redundancies at one establishment are required to notify the Secretary of State of the proposal under provisions contained in the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992. Records are held using the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) system. In the period 1 January 2008 to 31 December 2008 this Department was notified of the following proposed redundancies:

Mr. McFadden: At the current time, 12 Consumer Focus staff work primarily on postal services issues, including postal and post office network activity. A further five staff work directly on postal services issues, as part of their wider responsibilities.

Of the 17 staff who work directly on postal services issues, 11 staff work on a Great Britain wide basis, there are three staff in Consumer Focus Northern Ireland post, two staff in Consumer Focus Scotland and a staff member in Consumer Focus Wales.

Consumer Focus formed on 1 October 2008 as a result of the merger between the National Consumer Council, Postwatch and energywatch.

Credit Cards: Interest Rates

Jessica Morden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to ensure that credit card companies do not charge exorbitant interest rates. [256259]

Mr. Thomas: The Government fully understand the recent concerns over high interest rates charged by some credit card lenders. We secured agreement from credit card lenders to develop fair principles for any interest rate increase they introduce on reviewing an individual's account. These came into force in January 2009 and provide extra protections when a customer or group of customers' interest rate is changed as a result of a perceived change in their ability to repay their debts.

Where a lender increases their rates, customers will be given the option to close down their account and repay their remaining balance at the existing rate of interest. Lenders also agreed not to increase rates for customers who have failed to make two or more consecutive minimum payments, where an agreed repayment plan is in place for the account, or where lenders have been notified by a not-for-profit debt advice agency that the customer is in serious discussion with it.

Credit card lenders will also give a breathing space of up to 60 days to borrowers in difficulty. During this time lenders will not commence debt collection proceedings, giving borrowers time to agree a repayment plan with the help of a not-for-profit debt advice agency.

We have also implemented a number of measures to provide vulnerable and low-income consumers with access to affordable credit and free debt advice. £80 million has been invested in the Growth Fund scheme to support loans to low-income families, and £130 million has been allocated to expand the provision of free debt advice for the financially excluded through the Financial Inclusion Fund. The Government will continue to monitor the credit market closely through the new Consumer Finance Forum, bringing together representatives from the financial services industry, consumer groupssand Government. This Forum will meet regularly to address issues facing borrowers during the downturn.

Credit Reference Agencies: Regulation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what statutory requirements there are on credit reference agencies to provide information to his Department and its agencies; and if he will make a statement. [255346]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 10 February 2009]: Under the Consumer Credit Act 1974, credit reference agencies must be licensed by the Office of Fair Trading. Certain essential information about the firm must be provided to OFT as part of the application process for a licence. Credit reference agencies may also be required or permitted to supply information to relevant investigating authorities for the purposes of criminal investigations under the Social Security Fraud Act and the Data Protection Act. There are no specific statutory requirements for the provision of information to BERR or its agencies by credit reference agencies.

The Government are in discussion with the credit industry with regard to agreeing the voluntary provision by lenders of data on the performance of credit markets. This may involve the release of data held by credit reference agencies on behalf of credit providers. Any such data sharing will be compliant with data protection principles.

Credit: EU Action

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of whether personal reserves on bank accounts should be brought within regulations under the European Consumer Credit Directive. [252764]

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many expert advisers, excluding special advisers, have been commissioned by his Department since June 2007; and on which topics they have advised. [254740]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not define the term expert advisers (excluding special advisers) or hold a central list of such advisers. Details could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, which ICT projects his Department and its predecessors initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [251387]

Mr. McFadden: Since 1997 the Department and its predecessors have not abandoned any ICT projects initiated during this period. The Department has a main information technology contract which is a private finance initiative (PFI) agreement with Fujitsu Services and this has been in place for more almost 10 years as well an alternative IT framework agreement with a number of other suppliers to enable competition.

The Department does not hold central information regarding ICT projects initiated by its agencies.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253269]

Mr. McFadden: Members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of their pension on retirement if they continue in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement prompts the member to consider boosting their pension and provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions and a calculator to work out costs for added pension (previously added years).

New entrants are informed of pension options in the employment offer and are provided with a pension information pack.

Cabinet Office provides leaflets that explain added pension and additional voluntary contributions for members. The information is also available in scheme booklets. These are available on the Civil Service Pensions website or on request from the member's pensions administrator.

The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) uses an internal HR Intranet to communicate with staff on a range of issues. This includes comprehensive information on how staff can boost their pension through added pension and additional voluntary contributions (AVCs).

Mr. Thomas: UK Trade & Investment is a joint department of the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), working also in close partnership with the Ministry of Defence (MOD).

UK Trade & Investment has three main funding streams. UKTI Programme for front line delivery, BERR administration, which is mainly for staff based in the UK, and FCO programme and administration, which pays for the operation of the overseas network.

UKTI's budgets are agreed as part of the spending review process with HM Treasury. The current spending review period covers the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. Our estimate of expenditure for 2009-10 and 2010-11 is:

	2009-10	£ million 2010-11
UKTI Programme	91.4	91.2
BERR Admin	52.7	52.1
FCO Resource	166.4	165.4

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 462-3W, on redundancy, what estimate has he made of the annual payroll savings accruing to his Department as a result of staff exit schemes in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09 excluding the cost of severance packages; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for 2009-10. [254471]

Mr. McFadden: The estimate[1] of the annual payroll savings resulting from staff exit schemes in each of the following financial years are:

	£ million
2005-06	5.5
2006-07	6.4
2007-08	6.4
2008-09 (YTD)	0.7

With respect to an estimate for the year 2009-10, this will be dependant on the results of BERR's annual business planning process.

[1] This estimate is based on median base pay at 2008 pay levels and represents the full year effect of any exits.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254068]

Mr. McFadden: As one would expect, the Department has regular engagements with outside organisations including relevant Government Departments on a range of issues relating to the economy.

Economic Situation: Pharmaceuticals

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make an assessment of the effect of the recession on the financial ability of pharmaceutical companies to undertake pre-market research and development work. [256606]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

There are no plans to undertake an assessment. The Government recognise that in the current economic climate the bio-pharmaceutical industry is facing challenges. The Prime Minister held a summit with global leaders from the industry on 27 January 2009 to discuss the main issues facing the industry in the United Kingdom. He reinforced the message that the Government are committed to working with the industry to ensure that the UK maintains its position as a world leader in this sector, and to this end, he announced the creation of an Office for Life Sciences, to be led by Lord Drayson, the Science and Innovation Minister. The Office will be tasked with undertaking work in the short-term to address some of the issues facing the industry, and to develop a longer-term life sciences industrial strategy.

Environment Protection

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the international competitiveness of the UK's environmental industries. [256467]

Mr. Thomas: According to data from a forthcoming, independent report by Innovas, commissioned by BERR, the global market value of the Low Carbon and Environmental Goods and Services (LCEGS) sector is £3,046 billion, the UK (LCEGS) market (combined home market and export) accounts for 3.5 per cent. of this at £107 billion. UK exports of (LCEGS) are currently at only £10.5 billion or just around 10 per cent. of the UK market value, and there is a real opportunity for the UK to increase its global market share.

The UK market is well positioned to develop and gain comparative advantage in key areas of the environmental supply chain, such as Water and Wastewater Treatment, through exporting to developing nations looking to upgrade their current infrastructure.

Analysis shows that there are significant opportunities for the UK to export its goods and services across all areas of the (LCEGS) sector.

An analysis of the competitive advantages of the UK environmental goods and services (EGS) industry is set out in the UKTI publication entitled "The UK—a world leader in environmental solutions" (URN 08/558). Examples of the advantages differentiating the UK from our main competitors in the international EGS sector include leading the way in environmental improvements through progress in the waste management and water sectors, setting standards in professional services such as world class environmental consultancies, and investing in innovative approaches.

EU Internal Trade

Mr. Cash: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions the Secretary of State has had with his EU counterparts on (a) the application of the EU Posted Workers Directive in respect of the rulings of the European Court of Justice on cases C-438/05, C-346/06 and C-319/06 and (b) proposals for new legislation related to EU Directive 96/71/EC and Article 49 of the EC Treaty. [255664]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 9 February 2009]: My noble Friend, the Secretary of State is in regular discussions with his EU counterparts on a range of issues.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253604]

Ian Pearson: The National Minimum Wage Act 1998 provides for penalties to be levied on an employer for non-compliance with an enforcement notice which requires them to pay the NMW and repay arrears to workers who have been underpaid the NMW. The enforcement is carried out by HM Revenue and Customs and by DEFRA in relation to the agricultural minimum wage. The Employment Act 2008 includes provisions to strengthen the enforcement regime of the NMW. These provisions, which will come into force on 6 April 2009, will replace the current enforcement and penalty notices with a single notice of underpayment imposing automatic penalties of between £100 and up to £5,000 for employers for non-compliance with the requirement to pay workers the NMW.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House agencies and they will respond to you directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 23 February 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question, reference 253604, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Since 1992 Companies House has levied penalties on companies registered that file their accounts late.

From 1 October 2009, the Companies Act 2006 introduces a new penalty of £200 where a company amends its articles of association and fails to send a copy of the amended articles to Companies House within 15 days. The penalty will only be triggered if a company receives notice from the Registrar requiring it to deliver a copy of its amended articles and it does not comply within 28 days.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 23 February 2009:

I refer to your question (2008/858), to ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies.

I have been asked to reply for The Insolvency Service, which is an executive agency of that department.

I can confirm that we levy no such penalties.

Internet: Security

Margaret Moran: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many companies that produce internet filtering products have applied to the British Standards Institute for certification of their products. [253402]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

BSI Group consists of three divisions: BSI British Standards, BSI Management Systems and BSI Product Services. It is the Management Systems division that provides independent third-party certification of management systems. These activities are conducted on a purely commercial basis and are outside of the scope of the relationship with the UK Government. As such we are unable to comment on private certification agreements. Queries of this nature should be directed to the certification body.

The Government have a relationship with the British Standards division as its designated national standards body and in that capacity, fulfils the UK Government's international obligations in the field of standardisation.

Iran: Overseas Investment

Mr. Hague: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representation UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) has in Iran; and what services UKTI offers in that country. [253950]

Mr. Thomas: UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) does not deliver services in support of British companies wishing to trade with or invest in Iran. UKTI shut down its representative office in the British embassy in Tehran in July 2008

Mobile Phones: Contracts

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions the Government has had with Ofcom on a reduction in mobile termination rates. [250685]

Mr. McFadden: Ministers and officials have regular meetings with the Office of Communications (Ofcom) on a wide range of issues. Ofcom's progress on regulating mobile termination rates has been discussed on several occasions.

Motor Vehicles: Government Assistance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what steps the Government are taking to support the car industry; [251255]

(2) what recent steps the Government have taken to ensure confidence in the car market; [251256]

(3) what recent steps the Government have taken to ensure the availability of credit to businesses to enable the purchase of motor vehicles; [251257]

(4) what recent steps the Government have taken to ensure job security for those employed by the UK automotive industry; [251258]

(5) what recent steps the Government have taken to facilitate the sale of UK-manufactured cars abroad. [251259]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 26 January 2009]: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made in the House on 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 165-67, on the automotive sector.

In addition, UK Trade and Investment supports the UK automotive sector in overseas markets and will continue to do so. For example, during his recent trip to India, the Business Secretary used his keynote address to the Symposium on International Automotive Technology to promote UK automotive excellence. UKTI senior staff, including our ambassadors, regularly promote UK automotive excellence by hosting high profile events around the overseas launch of UK-manufactured cars.

In March, UKTI will launch the UK Advanced Engineering Marketing Strategy, to promote the UK as international partner of choice in the automotive, aerospace and engineering sectors. This is in line with other UK marketing strategies, such as those for energy, ICT and life sciences.

Ofcom: Fines

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what arrangements Ofcom makes for payments from organisations it has fined; and within what period of time penalised parties are required to make payment; [254379]

(2) how many organisations Ofcom has fined in each year since its inception; how much it has imposed in fines in each such year; and how much it has imposed in fines in 2009 to date; [254383]

(3) what estimate Ofcom has made of the monetary value of fines it expects to (a) recoup and (b) remit in the next 12 months; [254387]

(4) within what period and upon what terms organisations fined by Ofcom are required to make payment. [254786]

Mr. McFadden: The matters raised are the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Offices: Public Houses

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many sub-post offices now operate, either full or part-time, from the premises of public houses. [257306]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Public Houses: Closures

Mr. Leech: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of public house closures. [241808]

Mr. Thomas: The Government are taking a range of steps to help businesses through the current economic downturn to boost capital and liquidity in the market. This is across all sectors of the economy. Key measures include the introduction of a new Enterprise Finance Guarantee to support up to £1.3 billion of bank lending, a separate £10 billion guarantee facility to support further working capital bank lending, a £75 million Capital for Enterprise Fund to convert businesses' debt into equity, and £25 million of regional funds. Public houses are able to access the package of help on offer, including a Business Link "Health Check", via:

www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

Public Telephones

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many coin-operated telephone boxes in each parliamentary constituency have been converted to card operation in each of the last 10 years. [242170]

Mr. McFadden: This information is not held by the Department. Neither BT nor Ofcom hold these data broken down by constituency of location. The cost of generating the data on this basis would incur disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) coin-operated and (b) card-operated public telephone boxes in each parliamentary constituency have been removed from operation in each of the last 10 years. [242171]

Mr. McFadden: This information is not held by the department. However, after a review by Ofcom, BT consulted with the local authorities on its national rationalisation programme of removing up to 8,700 telephone boxes. That process has now ended and BT has taken steps to remove those telephone boxes that are cash operated or cashless only where there has been no objection from the local authority. These data are not available in each of the last 10 years at constituency level but BT could provide more recent data by geographic area on request subject to their discretion.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) coin-operated and (b) card-operated public telephone boxes there were in each constituency in each of the last 10 years. [242206]

Mr. McFadden: This information is not held by the Department. Neither BT nor Ofcom hold this data for each parliamentary constituency in the last 10 years. The cost of generating the data on this basis would incur disproportionate cost.

Regional Development Agencies: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much each regional development agency has budgeted to pay in empty property business rates in 2008-09. [253778]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows how much each regional development agency has budgeted to pay business rates on empty properties in 2008-09.

Budgeted business rates on empty properties in 2008-09

RDA	£000
AWM	35
EEDA	109

YF	[2]1,026

[2] The economic regeneration of Yorkshire and Humber's main urban centres is a Regional Economic Strategy Priority. To support delivery of this priority, YF has acquired strategic properties and sites. The economic downturn is lengthening the delivery of re-uses and new uses for these sites which impacts on rates and empty rates costs.

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps UK Trade and Investment is taking to support the renewable energy industry. [255209]

Mr. Thomas: UK Trade & Investment has an ongoing and active programme of support for the UK renewable energy industries, in partnership with UK Renewables. This includes such activities as organising UK groups at overseas trade shows and bringing potential buyers and decision makers to the UK to see our renewables capability first-hand.

UKTI is implementing the delivery of a UK Energy Excellence Marketing Strategy, to promote the UK as international partner of choice across all the energy industries including renewables. This is a major Government campaign, operating alongside other UK marketing strategies, such as those for ICT and life sciences.

UKTI is also developing a UK Low-Carbon International Marketing Strategy, which will assist UK suppliers of renewable and other clean energy equipment and services.

Sri Lanka: Arms Trade

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cash value of defence equipment sales to Sri Lanka was in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [257299]

Mr. Thomas: The Government publish detailed information on export licences issued, refused and revoked, by destination, including the overall value and a summary of the items covered by these licences, in its annual and quarterly reports on Strategic Export Controls.

The Government's annual reports, published since 1997, and quarterly reports, published since 2004, are available from the Libraries of the House and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website at http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/about-the-fco/publications/publications/annual-reports/export-controls1.

The Government do not approve any defence related exports if it judges that there is a clear risk that they will be used in contravention of the Consolidated Criteria, including for external aggression or internal repression. We routinely refuse export licences where we believe there is a risk of this, and have refused a number of licences to Sri Lanka on this basis.

Telecommunications: Hearing Impaired

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will direct Ofcom to take steps to ensure that deaf and hard-of-hearing people have (a) equal access to mobile and internet telecommunication services and (b) access to modernised relay services. [254297]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 9 February 2009]: Within its existing remit in this area, Ofcom has stated that it would like to see the introduction of additional relay services and have commissioned a study into the social and economic benefits of such services. It is important that the approach reflects current and emerging technology and this study is examining the gap between services that are currently available (including the existing relay service, SMS, instant messaging and email) and potential services. The study will consider the existing relay service Text direct (also known as Type Talk which allows two way telephone conversations between deaf or speech impaired people), captioned telephony (where the relay assistant re-voices one end of the call into captions using speech recognition technology), Video relay (which enables sign language users to communicate with hearing people in real time, using a sign language interpreter based remotely) and internet protocol access to text relay (which would enable people to have fixed and mobile access to text relay via a PC with an internet connection, removing the need for specialist terminal equipment).

The European legislation that establishes the objectives of member state regulation in this area is currently being reviewed. The Government have supported efforts to strengthen the obligations on member states in this area to achieve results that are practical use to disabled users. Our response to the public consultation on the review of the EU legislation noted

"There was universal recognition that disabled users should not be excluded from being able to enjoy the benefits of a modern telecommunications sector where economic technical solutions existed."

Temporary Loans Fund

Tony Baldry: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform by what means businesses in Banbury constituency may access the Temporary Loans Fund. [240396]

Mr. McFadden: The South East Development Agency has established a Loan Fund for companies in the south-east. The Agency will provide up to £3 million in transition loan funds, available through the Bridging Mezzanine Debt Fund Managed by Finance South East Ltd. The fund will help high-growth businesses having difficulty obtaining finance from the commercial sector. Unsecured loans of up to £150,000 will be available in the form of commercial loans to bridge the gap between the amount the banks are able to offer businesses and the amount these businesses need to survive and grow. Companies in the south-east can apply for funds by contacting Finance South East Ltd. through their website:

www.financesoutheast.com

Trade Promotion

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many overseas visits have been made by each of the business ambassadors since 3 October 2008; and what the cost of (a) flights, (b) accommodation, (c) gifts and (d) other expenses was for each such visit. [254631]

Mr. Thomas: The following table sets out the overseas visits undertaken by business ambassadors since 3 October 2008, as at 6 February 2009, and also details related direct costs:

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost of running the business ambassadors' secretariat within UK Trade and Investment has been since 3 October 2008; and what proportion of that cost has been for (a) secretariat staff salaries and (b) other expenses. [254632]

Mr. Thomas: UKTI has resourced the business ambassador secretariat from within its overall internal resources. The estimated salary cost for the period since 3 October 2008 is approximately £24,000; this includes set-up costs. No other expenses have been incurred.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Biofuels

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the levels of carbon dioxide emissions resulting from producing electricity from used cooking oil as compared to (a) fossil fuels and (b) other biofuels. [253283]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

I am not aware of any research that is focused specifically on deriving the levels of carbon emissions from producing electricity from used cooking oil specifically. However as part of our ongoing review of our 'National Calculation Methodologies', building performance assessment tools the standard assessment procedure for dwellings and the simplified buildings energy method for non-dwellings, Government are working with OFTEC (Oil Firing Technical Association) to establish the carbon emission factors for the bio-liquids that are being developed as a low carbon alternative for kerosene. While it is expected that these liquids, which are likely to include some used cooking oil as well as other liquids produced from biomass, will mainly be used in plant to produce space heating and hot water they could equally be used to generate electricity. Nonetheless, through this work we will be able to estimate the carbon impact of using such bio-liquids compared with other fuels.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into the generation of hydrogen from biomass. [255152]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for funding research through the UK Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board.

British Energy: EDF Energy

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change by what date he expects EDF's purchase of British Energy to be completed. [255991]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: EDF's offer for British Energy was declared unconditional on 5 January, 2009.

Christmas

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment since the formation of his Department. [243730]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change has made no expenditure on Christmas parties. The only expenditure on staff entertainment (that is, for a celebration, or where there is no clear and justifiable reason for expenditure) since the Department's formation on 3 October 2008 has been £1,733 on a cross-government event on 3 December 2008 as a celebration to mark the passing of the Climate Change and Energy Acts.

Climate Change

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment his Department has made of its capacity to adapt to climate change; and what plans he has to publish a climate change adaptation strategy. [241179]

Joan Ruddock: In July 2008, the cross-Government adapting to climate change programme published adapting to climate change in England—a framework for action which set out the Government's strategy for adaptation and the work-plan for the cross-Government programme for the next three years. This programme increases Government's capacity to adapt by ensuring a coordinated approach across all Departments and the public sector, and overall responsibility for it rests with DEFRA. Information about the programme and its work can be found at:

www.defra.gov/adaptation

This includes taking forward work flowing from the Climate Change Act—including a national climate change risk assessment and cost benefit analysis which will inform future priorities for the statutory adaptation programme that will then begin in 2012.

The Government's longer term strategy on adapting to a changing climate will be set out in this statutory national adaptation programme, which will be reviewed and updated on a five year rolling basis in response to updated risk assessments, and report to Parliament.

In addition, DECC has established governance structures to ensure that there is proper read-across from DEFRA's adaptation strategy both into the policy areas for which DECC has responsibility, and into its corporate decision-making process.

Climate Change: Arctic

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into the scale of polar icepack melting in the Northwest Passage. [255188]

Joan Ruddock: My Department funds the Met Office Hadley Centre (MOHC), through its Integrated Climate Programme with joint funding from the MOD and DEFRA, to monitor, understand and predict climate change; this research includes incorporating sea ice into global climate models to ensure best possible predictions on melting of Arctic sea ice. We also liaise with other research groups in the U.K. and internationally on this topic.

The Northwest Passage temporarily became fully open and navigable in summer 2007, for first time in recorded history, due to the record low extent (September average area: 4.28 million sq km) of Arctic sea ice melt. The same situation occurred in summer 2008, when the sea ice area (4.67 million sq km) was at its second lowest on record. Satellite monitoring data since 1979, available from the US National Snow and ice Data Centre (NSIDC) shows there has been a long-term decline in the extent of summer Arctic sea ice and that this decline has accelerated over the last decade; the long-term downward trend of around 10 per cent. per decade can be linked to human emissions of greenhouse gases and aerosols. It is not yet clear if the much larger summer ice melt in the last two years is an acceleration of this long term trend or a short term variation around it. Recent analysis by the MOHC suggests that changes as large as the observed record low in 2007 can indeed result from natural year-to-year variability around the longer term downward trend; this provides confidence in the ability of the MOHC's climate model to simulate changes in the area of Arctic sea ice and its continuing decline. However, it is evident that climate models show a wide range of future predicted rates of sea ice decline. Whilst the IPCC's Fourth Assessment Report suggested the Arctic would be largely free of summer ice by 2100, many more recent models predict this will happen much sooner—by the middle of this century or even earlier; several experts suggest there may possibly be no summer sea ice by the mid 2010s.

Satellite and other records also show a long-term decline in the average thickness and age of Arctic sea ice over recent decades. For example, scientists from University College London recently reported that the thickness of the ice was significantly lower (by an average of 10 per cent.) during the winter of 2007-08 than during the previous five winters, indicating that the total volume of sea ice has decreased significantly. Though based only on satellite data (which are not ideal for measuring sea ice thickness), this result confirms previous evidence of decreasing sea ice thickness over the past three decades from US and UK submarine sonar measurements.

The retreat of Arctic sea ice has geo-political implications, with the Northwest Passage becoming increasingly ice free and fully open to shipping. There are other important implications; by reducing the reflectivity (albedo) of the Earth's surface, it increases the amount of solar radiation that the surface absorbs, thereby accelerating warming. Temperatures have already risen almost twice as quickly in the Arctic as in the rest of the world over the past 100 years. Sea ice retreat also has significant impacts on Arctic ecosystems, as many organisms (including certain species of fish) depend on its presence for survival. DECC is continuing to seek updated assessments of Arctic sea ice conditions and impacts from UK and international experts.

Climate Change: EU Presidency

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent meetings Ministers and officials from his Department have had with their Czech counterparts to discuss the energy and climate change priorities of the Czech Presidency of the European Union. [255172]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met Martin Bursik, the Czech Environment Minister, on 7 November 2008 to discuss the 2020 Energy and Climate Package. He also plans to meet the Czech ambassador in London later this month to discuss the energy and climate change priorities of the Czech presidency.

On 18 December 2008 DECC officials visited Prague for meetings with officials from the Environment Ministry and the Ministry of Industry and Trade to discuss preparations and priorities for the Czech presidency. DECC officials also attended the first informal workshop on climate change of the Czech presidency in Prague on 18-20 January, which outlined the priorities of the Czech presidency.

The UK strongly supports the Czech presidency's focus on taking forward the Commission's Second Strategic Energy Review, in particular on energy security and on preparing the EU for the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change meeting in Copenhagen in December 2009.

Coal: Pollution Control

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy to allocate funds to the development of clean coal technology in order to reduce levels of coal imports; and if he will make a statement. [254398]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Government's policy on clean coal technologies was set out in the "Strategy for Developing Carbon Abatement Technologies for Fossil Fuel Use" in 2005 and more recently in the Energy White Paper, 2007. Clean coal technologies include: higher efficiency conversion processes; fuel switching to lower carbon alternative such as biomass co-firing; and CO_2 capture and storage (CCS). Some of these approaches will result in increased efficiency of the operation of the generation plant, but some such as CCS will require additional energy to operate.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) supports demonstration of carbon abatement technologies through the Environmental Transformation Fund (ETF). To date DECC has committed £2.2 million to an oxy-fuel combustion CCS project.

In addition the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) support R & D on clean coal technologies via the Technology Strategy Board (TSB) and the research councils. The TSB has identified carbon abatement technologies as a priority area in its energy generation and supply strategy and currently supports around 11 projects with a total value of around £ 13.4 million.

The research councils also support a wide range of underpinning research and training in carbon abatement technologies through their research councils' energy programme and through their individual programmes. In the last five years some 25 projects covering CCS totalling over £23 million have been funded.

Sourcing of coal is a matter for generators and other coal users, but the Government believe that making the best use of UK energy resources, including coal reserves, contributes to our security of supply goals, and that this reflects a value in maintaining access to economically viable reserves of coal.

Coal: Prices

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effects of increases in energy prices on levels of fuel poverty among pensioners who use coal as their main source of domestic heating. [255599]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 9 February 2009]: The Department does not carry out separate analysis to quantify the effect of rising energy prices on coal users. The total number of fuel poor households in England that rely on coal and other solid fuels as their primary source for central heating fell from 106,000 to 101,000 households between 2005 and 2006, however, the actual proportion of households reliant on solid fuels that were fuel poor rose slightly, from 45 per cent. in 2005 to around 46 per cent. in 2006.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what cost savings his Department has made since its creation. [255206]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As for all Departments, the Department for Energy and Climate Change will be required by HM Treasury under the terms of its Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 settlement to deliver 5 per cent. per annum real savings in 2009-10 and 2010-11 compared to the baseline budget set for 2008-09. The administration budget for 2008-09 will be set in the upcoming spring supplementary estimate.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of the IT systems in his Department is fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245375]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was formed on 3 October 2008, bringing together policy responsibility for energy (formerly with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR)) and climate change (formerly with the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (Defra)). The Department does not at present have its own IT systems, but instead makes use of BERR's and Defra's existing IT systems. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 322W and by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs for the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 423W.

Departmental E-mail

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many people have a decc.gsi.gov.uk email account. [255167]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: 923 people have a decc.gsi.gov.uk e-mail accounts as of 5 February 2009.

Departmental ICT

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what IT projects (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are undertaking; what his most recent estimate of the total cost of each project is; and what the projected completion date of each is. [255958]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The IT projects which are being undertaken within DECC are:

North Sea Licensing — establishing an off-shore register equivalent to the onshore Land Registry. Cost is £250-300,000 and will be finished in summer 2009.

Electricity Portal for electricity consents. Cost approximately £350,000 and will be live by summer 2009.

Environmental emissions monitoring database, as joint project with oil industry, to capture data and report for Kyoto. The cost is expected to be £250,000 and will be complete by spring 2010.

DECC has no executive agencies.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248410]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1431W.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on (a) pot plants and (b) flowers since it was established. [254875]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There is no central record of this so it is not possible to answer this question without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost has been of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies since it was established. [251266]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: According to the most recent records, DECC has spent £23,966.93 on contracts with public relations consultancies since its establishment on 3 October 2009.

Departmental Publications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his Department publishes a staff magazine. [255990]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change has not published a staff magazine.

Departmental Responsibilities

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when his Department will undertake a capability review. [255162]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As a newly formed Department, the first action in the capability review process for DECC will be to undertake a baseline assessment. DECC will discuss when might be appropriate to conduct this baseline assessment with the Capability Reviews Team in Cabinet Office.

District Heating

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what work his Department has undertaken on heat markets and district heating; and what further work is planned. [255146]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Heat markets and district heating were both considered in the Heat Call for Evidence published in January 2008

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file43609.pdf

127 organisations and individuals responded to the Call for Evidence. These responses have been analysed and have informed further policy development in this area. The Government are now consulting on their heat and energy saving strategy, which was published on 12 February and which contains further proposals on heat markets and district heating http://hes.decc.gov.uk/

Electricity Generation

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into highly distributed power systems. [255159]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Research into distributed power systems has been carried out by the DECC funded Centre for Sustainable Electricity and Distributed Generation and the Electricity Networks Strategy Group. Copies of final reports can be found on their respective websites:

www.sedg.ac.uk

and

www.ensg.gov.uk

Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what work the (a) Energy Markets Unit, (b) Energy Development Unit, (c) Renewable Energy and Innovation Unit and (d) Cleaner Fossil Fuels Unit (i) has undertaken and (ii) plans to undertake. [255119]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: These teams—formerly as part of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and now in the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC)—contribute to delivering the Government's policy goals of reliable supplies of energy, lower carbon emissions, competitive energy prices, fewer people in fuel poverty and effective management of the coal health and nuclear liabilities from the past.

The teams have been subject to some restructuring as part of the creation of DECC. The detail of their forward work plans is subject to the Department's current business planning for future years and to the further development of DECC's overarching strategy to address energy and climate change challenges.

Energy Strategy Unit

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what work the Energy Strategy and International (a) 1 and (b) 2 Unit has undertaken; and what further work is planned for each. [255120]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: These teams—formerly as part of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and now in the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC)—contribute to delivering the Government's policy goals of reliable supplies of energy, lower carbon emissions and competitive energy prices.

The teams have been subject to some restructuring as part of the creation of DECC. The detail of their forward work plans is subject to the Department's current business planning for future years and to the further development of DECC's overarching strategy to address energy and climate change challenges.

Energy Supply

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the number of households in each (a) Government region, (b) local authority area and (c) Parliamentary constituency who have not switched their electricity supplier since taking up residence in their property in each of the last three years. [255981]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC holds information on customer switching relating to the total number of households which have switched supplier in each PES (public electricity supplier) area since the electricity market was deregulated.

Data on the total number of domestic electricity consumers who have switched supplier are available in section 2 of "Quarterly Energy Prices", the latest edition of which was published in December 2008 and is available online at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file49203.pdf.

Table 2.4.1 on page 23 shows the percentage of consumers who have switched supplier in each region, split by payment method.

However, the Department holds no information on customer switching relating to the length of residence in a property, and information is not available by Government region, local authority area or parliamentary constituency.

Energy: Finance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the availability of debt finance for investment in energy infrastructure projects. [255192]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Large energy companies continue to be able to access both bond and commercial paper markets for investment purposes, with several utilities launching successful debt issues in recent months. The cost of new debt in relation to the risk-free rate has risen relative to the pre-credit crunch situation, but the risk-free rate itself has fallen in recent months. The Government and Ofgem continue to monitor levels of energy investment closely.

Smaller energy firms have found debt financing harder to come by due to the financial crisis, in common with firms in other sectors of the economy. However, many of these firms will be eligible for the Government's recently-announced schemes to restore the flow of credit to businesses (Working Capital Scheme, Enterprise Finance Guarantee Scheme).

Energy: Hydrogen

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into new hydrogen storage materials. [255153]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for funding research through the UK Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board.

Energy: Meters

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress his Department has made (1) in co-ordinating arrangements to oversee the roll-out of smart meters; [254806]

(2) in developing a model for the roll-out of smart meters; [254807]

(3) in determining a standard specification for smart meters. [254808]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government announced on 28 October last year that we will mandate the provision of smart meters to all households. We are currently considering a range of policy issues which need to be developed further in preparation for the roll out of smart meters, including the delivery model, meter functionality and programme management. We will make further announcements on such matters when we are able to do so.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent estimate is of the number of smart meters installed in domestic properties. [255862]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Whilst definitions of "smart meters" vary, the Department's estimate is that less than one per cent. of meters installed in domestic properties could be described as "smart meters".

Energy: Prices

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to increase liquidity in wholesale gas and electricity markets. [255211]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government aim to maintain and where necessary to improve regulatory conditions to ensure effective wholesale energy markets, in the UK and the EU, with sufficient liquidity to send effective price signals to market participants. We welcome Ofgem's current work on wholesale market liquidity, and look forward to its findings.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent estimate is of the effect of changes in domestic energy prices in the last 12 months on the number of people in fuel poverty. [255857]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The most recent fuel poverty estimates are available for 2006 in the Sixth Annual Progress report on the Fuel Poverty Strategy:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file48036.pdf

These show that in the UK, there were around 3.5 million households living in fuel poverty in 2006 and around 2.4 million in England. The statistical annex to this report gives indicative projections for fuel poverty in England. These show an estimated further 1.2 million households moving into fuel poverty between 2006 and 2008, largely due to fuel price increases. However, these estimates were based on information known at the time and therefore have clearly been overtaken by a more complex price increase and so should not be regarded as representing the Government's view about what the current figures are.

Fuel Cells

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into enzymatic fuel cells. [255155]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for funding research through the UK Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into microbial fuel cells. [255156]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for funding research through the UK Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into fuel cell integrity. [255158]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for funding research through the UK Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board.

Fuel Poverty

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent assessment is of the number of people in fuel poverty in (a) St Albans constituency, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England and Wales. [254223]

Joan Ruddock: The most recently available sub-regional split of fuel poverty relates to 2003, and shows that there were around 1,900 fuel-poor households in the St. Albans constituency and around 22,200 fuel-poor households in Hertfordshire.

More recent figures are available for England and Wales. These show that in 2006, there were around 2.7 million fuel-poor households in England and Wales.

Fuel poverty is not measured at an individual level.

Housing: Insulation

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much has been spent insulating the homes of pensioners in each of the last 10 years. [250665]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Figures for the amounts spent on insulating pensioners' homes are set out in the following table:

Spend on insulation for the over 60s under the warm front scheme in England and the home energy efficiency scheme (HEES) in Wales

	Number of households assisted	Spend (£ million)
Warm Front
2005-2006	21,291	8.6
2006-2007	59,104	23.9
2007-2008	57,142	23.0
2008-2009	38,416	15.9
HEES (Wales)
2005-2006	n/a	n/a
2006-2007	4,695	1.8
2007-2008	7,541	3.1
2008-2009	3,360	1.4

n/a = No figures available

The supplier obligation, which began in 2002, led to an estimated investment of almost £2 billion between 2002 and 2008 in household energy efficiency measures. We estimate that energy suppliers invested around £800 million of this in a priority group of vulnerable and low-income households, including pensioners. Under the current three year phase of the obligation to 2011, known as the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT), we estimate suppliers alone will need to invest over £3.2 billion in household energy efficiency measures, £1.8 billion of which will be delivered to the priority group. However, Government have not made specific estimates for what proportion of the priority group spend by suppliers might be attributed to pensioners.

Industrial Injuries: Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on medical testing of miners under the coal health compensation scheme since the introduction of the scheme; and how much has been paid to each provider of such tests in that period. [252776]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The total medical costs for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease is £404.64 million; and for Vibration White Finger is £34.95 million as at December 2008. In the time available we are unable to breakdown these figures by provider.

International Renewable Energy Agency

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the UK's contribution to the International Renewable Energy Agency. [255175]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We have been in close contact with the German government on the development of IRENA. We participated in the preparatory meetings last year and at both the Founding Conference on 26 January and the first session of the Preparatory Commission of IRENA on 27 January.

We have been talking to Germany about:

(i) how IRENA can make a stronger contribution to the roll-out and deployment of renewables;

(ii) how we can broaden the membership to include key Asia-Pacific countries (e.g. Canada, China, Japan, India and the US) to ensure that the Agency has true global reach; and

(iii) how we can make sure that IRENA works closely with, and avoids overlap and duplication with, other international bodies and organisations, such as the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership (REEEP), of which the UK is already a member.

We will continue to participate in the further preparatory meetings this year with a view to joining shortly. We plan to reach a final decision on UK membership of IRENA once we have satisfactorily concluded our discussions with the German government.

IRENA is expected to start full operations in 2010.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consideration his Department gave to extending the availability of Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants to commercial and public sector applicants to mid-2010. [254102]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2 has been open since January 2007 and has committed £27 million to public sector and not for profit organisations' projects. The programme is due to close to new applications in June 2009 but a significant amount of work will be ongoing for installers through to mid 2010. We would like to see as many eligible organisations such as public sector organisations making maximum use of the grants programme up to June 2009.

We are currently considering the transition from grant funding and other incentives to the proposed small scale electricity feed in tariff and renewable heat incentive support mechanisms.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much of the £50 million allocated to the Low Carbon Buildings Programme phase 2 has been committed to projects. [254103]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date, £27.1million has been allocated to projects under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effect on the renewables sector of the planned closure of phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in June 2009. [254104]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Low Carbon Buildings programme Phase 2 has been open since January 2007 and has so far committed over £27 million to 1,433 projects. Although the money will be committed up to June 2009 a significant amount of work will be completed for the period through to mid 2010. We would like to see framework suppliers and eligible organisations making maximum use of the grants programme up to June 2009. We are considering the next steps post June 2009.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he plans to take to encourage community groups to install low-carbon energy and energy efficiency technologies in their buildings after the end of phase two of the Low Carbon Buildings programme; what steps he is taking to assist community groups to use such technologies; and if he will make a statement. [255456]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 9 February 2009]: To date, we have committed £576,158 to 32 community groups under phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings programme.

We would like eligible organisations to make maximum use of the grants programme up to June 2009. Although the money will be committed up to June 2009 a significant amount of work will be completed for the period through to mid 2010.

We are currently considering the options open to us to ensure that as many of these organisations can benefit from installing their own energy generating equipment.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many grant applications the low carbon buildings programme has received from households in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire since the programme was established. [253784]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date, household applications received by the Low Carbon Buildings programme in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire were as follows:

Hemel Hempstead

Technology	Householder grant applications received
Solar photovoltaic	4

My hon. Friend's letter on behalf of Mr. S. Turner has been transferred to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department will respond shortly.

Natural Gas: Prices

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what data his Department (a) collects and (b) compiles on (i) spot and (ii) future wholesale gas prices. [255863]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC collects and compiles data on wholesale gas spot and forward prices, as well as other relevant price indicators, from a range of sources, including proprietary information providers, media, and organisations in the sector for internal analysis. These data include the UK system average price and prices for gas for the day-ahead, working days next week, monthly, quarterly, half yearly and yearly. Similar data for trading hubs in Belgium, the Netherlands and the US are also collected.

DECC produces assumptions for future trends in fossil fuel wholesale prices (including gas) up to 2030 which are used for modelling and other analytical work. This information is available on the following website:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file46071.pdf.

Nuclear Power Stations: Construction

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) project managers and (b) administration managers have been recruited to the generic design assessment (GDA) team for new nuclear build; and what the cost has been to date of conducting the nuclear GDA. [253965]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

Generic Design Assessment (GDA) of potential new nuclear power stations is being undertaken by both the Nuclear Directorate of the Health and Safety Executive (HSE), and by the Environment Agency. From the start of this work in 2007 up to the end of 2008, the costs recovered from the companies requesting the assessment was £5.84 million for work undertaken by HSE and I am informed by the Environment Agency that their recovered costs for the same period were £1.72 million. Both regulators' costs will continue to be fully recovered for work assessing the two designs which are being taken through the final stages of GDA.

To help with the management of the GDA project, HSE's Nuclear Directorate employs four staff on project management activities. Three are on contract: two from an external agency, one from the Health and Safety Laboratory, and one was appointed from existing HSE resource. The head of the Environment Agency's GDA team was appointed from within the Agency's existing cadre, and acts as project manager for his team's work. One administration manager has been seconded into the HSE GDA team from another Government Department.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246347]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change has been formed by bringing together work previously covered by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. The final details of staff transferring from these Departments are yet to be confirmed. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column reference 332W and by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Services for the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column reference 565W.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250148]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not own, lease, hire or otherwise regularly use any cars, apart from those provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Plutonium

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the (a) asset and (b) liability value of the UK's plutonium holdings. [255993]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK's plutonium holdings are considered as a zero value asset.

Power Stations: Peterhead

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what funding the Government has provided for BP's proposed carbon capture and storage power plant in Peterhead, Scotland. [255121]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

Recycling: Oils

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to encourage the recycling of used cooking oil to produce carbon-neutral electricity. [251151]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Renewables Obligation provides specific support for the use of biodiesel derived from cooking oil in the generation of carbon-neutral electricity. The level of support is dependent on the proportion of cooking oil within the biodiesel.

Renewable Energy

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he plans to have with his US counterpart on renewable energy policy. [253098]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State plans to discuss renewable energy, among other issues, when he visits the UK in the coming months. This issue is of particular importance in view of the renewable energy aspects of the President's American recovery and investment plan.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the proposed timetable for the establishment of a financial support mechanism for renewable heat is. [255210]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We expect the Renewable Heat Incentive to be in place by April 2011. This will allow the necessary work to take place to consult on the design of the scheme and draft the regulations which will establish the RHI.

Renewable Energy: EC Action

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Southampton, Test (Dr. Whitehead) of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 886, on a European supergrid, what recent assessment he has made of the merits of a pan-European supergrid; what estimate he has made of the likely annual cost of such a supergrid; and what assessment he has made of its likely effects on security of supply. [253797]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding reply 4 February 2009]: DECC officials are currently in discussion with the European Commission and other European countries on proposals for a supergrid linking offshore wind projects in the North Sea. This would be a major, long term but expensive project.

We are currently putting in place a new regulatory regime to connect to the GB Grid up to 33GW of renewable offshore generation needed in to meet our renewable energy targets. The cost of offshore connections for these projects alone is estimated to be up to around £15 billion - more than twice the value of the onshore grid.

A cost-benefit analysis DECC has undertaken on the optimal design of offshore transmission systems:

www.sedg.ac.uk

shows that the most economic connections for those offshore wind farms are direct connections to the nearest shore involving little extra cable capacity. This was supported by the recent study prepared by National Grid for the Crown Estate, on grid connections for round three offshore wind projects:

www.thecrownestate.co.uk//newscontent/92-round3-grid-study.htm

The UK supports further energy market integration by enabling greater cross-border electricity trade, which should also increase security of supply. However, it should be for the market to decide, based on the most economically efficient solutions.

Warm Front Scheme

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what mechanisms are in place to ensure that Warm Front contractors are providing value for money. [242477]

Joan Ruddock: The prices for Warm Front measures have been set through a competitive Official Journal of European Union tendering process. Installers in each region provided independent quotations for each installation type-service available on the scheme and the most economically advantageous quotes were selected. Prices are harmonised at a regional level to reflect regional price variations and to ensure fairness.

In 2007 the Government commissioned an independent audit looking at whether Warm Front prices provided value for money, this is available on the DEFRA website. The report found that Warm Front delivers heating systems at significantly below the wider market rate.

Warm Front is currently undergoing a new round of installer retendering, to select contractors who will work on the scheme from June 2009. As in the previous tendering exercise, the price offered by applicants will be a key determinate in whether their bid is successful.

Warm Front Scheme: Wansbeck

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many Warm Front scheme grants were awarded to applicants from Wansbeck constituency in each of the last five years. [254213]

Joan Ruddock: The following table illustrates the number of households who received Warm Front grants in Wansbeck constituency over the last five years.

Wansbeck constituency	Assisted households
2003-04	1,023
2004-05	714

Wansbeck constituency	Assisted households
2005-06	207
2006-07	561

TREASURY

Bank Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people in the UK without a bank or building society account, broken down by (a) age and (b) sex. [254148]

Ian Pearson: The Government are committed to reducing financial exclusion and increasing the number of people who can manage their money by using a bank account.

The Family Resources Survey data for 2006-07, published in June this year, shows that the number of adults living without access to a bank account fell from 2.8 million in 2002-03 to 2.1 million in 2006-07. The Financial Inclusion Taskforce recently published their third annual report on access to banking. The report contains profiles of the number of people in the UK without access to a bank account, including breakdowns by age and sex. You can find the report on the Taskforce's website:

http://www.financialinclusion-taskforce.org.uk

Bank Services: Elderly

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on the needs of older people in the development of new payment methods and banking technology by banks; and if he will make a statement. [256268]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury has received recent representation on this issue.

Decisions relating to the development of new payment methods and banking technologies are commercial ones. However, the Payments Council (the organisation that sets strategy for UK payments) is tasked to ensure that payment systems meet the needs of users, payment service providers and the wider economy.

The Government recognise that some groups still value certain methods of payments and continues to support customer choice, competition and efficiency in the payments market.

Bank Services: Fraud

Jessica Morden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what provision the EU Payment Services Directive makes for persons who have been the subject of internet fraud to have access to the (a) time, (b) date and (c) location of money transfer agency money collections. [256265]

Ian Pearson: The Payment Services Directive requires payment service providers to provide their customers with information before, during and immediately after a payment transaction. However, there are no provisions requiring the provider to disclose specific information about the recipient in the event of internet fraud.

The UK implementation of the Directive will bring money remitters under the Financial Ombudsman Service's (FOS) remit. If a customer is not satisfied with the transactional information provided and had complained to the provider without success, he or she could refer the matter to the FOS.

Banks

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the (a) domestic assets and (b) foreign assets of (i) the UK banks in which UK Financial Investments has taken a significant stake and (ii) the regulated banking sector are non-performing. [255384]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments Limited (UKFI), which is wholly owned by the Government, manages the Government's investments in the recapitalised banks but ownership of the shares of the recapitalised banks still lies with HM Treasury. Neither HM Treasury nor UKFI collect or hold such information relating to non-performance of assets. However, information on non-performing assets is reported by each bank in their annual accounts.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who he has appointed as members to the independent review of the corporate performance of the UK banking industry; on what basis he appointed Sir David Walker as Chair of the review; when he expects the review to report; and if he will make a statement. [256723]

Ian Pearson: The Chancellor of the Exchequer has appointed Sir David Walker to conduct a review of corporate governance of UK banks.

The review will examine board management of risk (including the effectiveness of risk and audit committees), incentives to manage risk in bank remuneration policies, the competences needed on bank boards, board practices and structures, and the role played by institutional shareholders.

As a former regulator, director and banker, Sir David has a strong understanding of the issues of corporate governance, board practices, financial markets and relationships with institutional shareholders.

The review will report jointly to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Financial Services Secretary to the Treasury with preliminary conclusions by the autumn and final recommendations by the end of the year.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the prospects for the banking industry in the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [256891]

Ian Pearson: The comprehensive package announced last October was designed to ensure the stability of the financial system and to protect ordinary savers, depositors, businesses and borrowers. The action we took including the recapitalisation scheme prevented the collapse of the banking system.

On 19 January 2009 the Government announced further measures designed to reinforce the financial system, to increase confidence and capacity to lend, and in turn to support the recovery of the economy. The tripartite authorities are now working on the implementation of these measures and will monitor the impact of these schemes. The Government will publish further details of the asset protection scheme shortly.

Banks: Accountancy

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish his Department's analysis of the 2007 accounts published by banks regulated by the Financial Services Authority. [255260]

Ian Pearson: As a matter of course, HM Treasury does not comment on individual financial institutions.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much in (a) assets and (b) liabilities is being held off-balance sheet by each of the banks regulated by the Financial Services Authority. [256998]

Ian Pearson: Information on off balance sheet assets and liabilities is reported by banks in their annual accounts under international financial reporting standards.

Banks: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much the Government has spent on support for the banking industry in the last 12 months; [251655]

(2) what estimate he has made of the monetary value of the Government's holdings in banks. [251656]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 13 October 2008, Official Report, columns 23-25WS, 6 November 2008, Official Report, column 26WS, and on 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1495-1496.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps UK Financial Investments Ltd. is taking to monitor the use to which the recapitalisation funds provided by the Government to the banking industry are being put. [253482]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments Ltd. (UKFI) is actively engaged with the banks in order to monitor and work to secure compliance with the conditions agreed as part of the Government's recapitalisation scheme announced last October.

More details can be found in the letter dated on 3 November from the Chancellor of the Exchequer, which is available in the House of Commons' Library.

Banks: Government Assistance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government has spent on (a) equity, (b) preference shares, (c) loans, (d) guarantees and (e) other financial support to each bank for which it has provided support. [254946]

Ian Pearson: Under the recapitalisation scheme announced on 8 October 2008, the Government have invested £19.97 billion in RBS and £16.96 billion in Lloyds TSB/HBOS. These banks are also eligible to use the Government's Credit Guarantee Scheme (CGS), under which up to £250 billion of bank lending will be guaranteed. Participating banks have accessed some £100 billion of funding under the CGS so far. Figures for individual banks are confidential.

On 19 January, the Government announced a comprehensive package designed to reinforce the stability of the financial system, to increase confidence and capacity to lend, and in turn to support the recovery of the economy. The liabilities taken on will be backed by financial assets and fees will be charged for guarantees, safeguarding the taxpayers' interests. For more details, I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Chancellor on 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 483-86.

As set out in written ministerial statements dated 13 October and 6 November, the Government have made payments totalling £5.4 billion to retail depositors in Bradford and Bingley (B and B) and UK subsidiaries of Icelandic banks covering deposits above Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) limits. These written statements and a Treasury Minute dated 21 October 2008 gave details of the short-term loan facilities provided by the Bank of England to the FSCS to cover their share of payouts to retail depositors in these banks. As set out in the pre-Budget report, the Government are refinancing £21 billion of these Bank of England loans to the FSCS in 2008-09.

In addition the gross amount outstanding on the Government loan to Northern Rock is projected to be £12.2 billion at 31 March 2009.

Banks: Pay

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received opposing the payment of bonuses to employees of banks in receipt of funds from the public purse. [256835]

Ian Pearson: The Chancellor receives a wide range of representations on issues relating to banks in receipt of public funds.

As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the effect of Government policy and banking practices on lending standards; and if he will make a statement. [252996]

Ian Pearson: Following consultation and legislation, the Government put in place statutory regulation of first charge mortgages in 2004. The Financial Services Authority has published the findings of a review of its rules at:

Other consumer credit business is regulated by the Office of Fair Trading under consumer credit legislation. The regime is strengthened by the 2006 Consumer Credit Act, which has been fully implemented as of October 2008. The Government are committed to review the changes to the framework of consumer protection introduced as a result of this Act after a period of three years.

As announced in the pre-Budget report, the Government have established a new Lending Panel, which will improve monitoring of lending to households and businesses.

Capital Gains Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of taxing capital gains at the same marginal rates as income tax, with indexation for each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257948]

Mr. Timms: It would be very difficult to provide a reliable estimate because of the difficulties of assessing the large behavioural responses which would result from a change of this kind.

Capital Investment

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether all of the re-profiled capital expenditure from 2010-11 has been allocated to specific projects in 2008-09 and 2009-10. [256186]

Yvette Cooper: The re-profiled capital spending brought forward from 2010-11 to 2008-09 has been allocated to specific projects and Departments are on track to deliver the investments.

Departments are on track to allocate the re-profile capital spending brought forward from 2010-11 into 2009-10 and in some cases the capital expenditure has already been allocated to specific projects.

Capital Investment: Venture Capital

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the sums invested in venture capital trusts in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09, to date; and if he will make a statement. [258215]

Mr. Timms: The estimated amount of funds invested in Venture Capital Trusts in each tax-year up to and including 2007-08 is published on the HM Revenue and Customs website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/venture/table8.6.pdf

The estimates for 2008-09 will be published in September 2009.

Car Allowances: Voluntary Work

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce tax relief on the travel expenses of pensioners who work as volunteers for charities. [258048]

Mr. Timms: There are no plans to introduce such a tax relief which would introduce administrative burdens for charities and volunteers. Many organisations demonstrate good practice by reimbursing their volunteers' travel expenses.

Child Tax Credit: Overpayments

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in Tendring in receipt of child tax credit have been asked to repay overpayments. [256414]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) code of practice 26 'What happens if we've paid you too much tax credit?' explains the ways the department collect back an overpayment, and is available at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop26.pdf

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate his Department has made of the proportion of families in Tendring in receipt of child tax credits currently receiving the incorrect amount. [256415]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the format requested. Estimates of the number of families with tax credit awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments by constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes, for the years 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 are available in the HMRC publications 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Supplement on Payments. Geographical Analysis', for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

End of year adjustments are not incorrect payments: they are a consequence of the flexible system of tax credits that means that families can get extra support when their needs are greatest.

Child Trust Fund

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average payment has been made by parents into Child Trust Fund accounts in (a) Darlington constituency, (b) County Durham, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since the scheme's inception. [258257]

Ian Pearson: The Detailed Distributional Analysis, including details of contributions made by parents and others was published on 6 November 2008. These data are only available at Government office region level and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_trust_funds/dda-oct08.pdf

Constituency level data, including the number of vouchers issued and parental account opening figures, on child trust fund accounts were published on 6 November 2008 and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/cons-stats-oct08.pdf

Child Trust Fund: Finance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of the Child Trust Fund in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [258254]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 933W.

Child Trust Fund: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children in City of York constituency have received child trust fund payments of (a) £250 and (b) £500 at birth. [257971]

Ian Pearson: We are unable to supply this information as it would be possible to do so only at a disproportionate cost. However, information on the number of child trust fund vouchers issued and the number of accounts opened in each constituency are published on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/cons-stats-oct08.pdf

All children eligible for the child trust fund receive a £250 voucher. Children from low income families receive an additional £250 paid directly into their child trust fund account when the family's child tax credit award has been finalised.

The latest set of figures was published on 6 November 2008.

Contingency Reserve

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what allocations have been made from the contingency reserve for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [255003]

Yvette Cooper: Allocations from the DEL Reserve to departments are presented to Parliament through the estimates process.

The details of changes that were made to departmental budgets for 2008-09 budgets at winter supplementary estimates (November 2008) can be found on the HM Treasury website using the following link:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/psr_pse_winter08_09.htm

A further update to 2008-09 departmental budgets will be provided at spring supplementary estimate, which will be published later this month. Allocations from the DEL Reserves for 2009-10 will be presented to Parliament through the estimates process during 2009-10. The main estimates for 2009-10 will be published following the Budget.

Debts

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average level of unsecured personal debt per head of population was in the UK in each year since 1979. [245258]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question on what the average level of unsecured personal debt per head of population was in the UK in each year since 1979. (245258)

Statistics for this are available back to 1982 and are shown in the table. The time series in the table below has been derived by linking two different vintages of data together. This is explained in the footnote.

Currently the UK National Accounts are calculated in accordance with the international guidelines set out in the European System of Accounts 1995 (ESA95). In this framework the personal sector equates to the household sector which is combined with the non-profit institutions serving households sector (NPISH), and it is not possible to separate the two. Examples of institutions included within the NPISH sector are: charities; trade unions; universities; churches and political parties. Data on this basis are available back to 1987.

Table 1 – Average level of unsecured personal debt per head of population in the UK

	Personal debt per head of population (£)
1982	469
1983	552
1984	630
1985	746
1986	837
1987	989
1988	1,176
1989	1,354
1990	1,466
1991	1,478
1992	1,460
1993	1,420
1994	1,491
1995	1,584
1996	1,588
1997	1,781
1998	1,954
1999	2,145
2000	2,360
2001	2,679
2002	3,009
2003	3,156
2004	3,579
2005	3,767
2006	4,036
2007	4,176

Notes:

1. Estimates of household and NPISH unsecured debt are on an ESA95 basis. Similar statistics based on the European System of Accounts 1979 (ESA79) for the personal sector are on a slightly different definitional basis and are available back to 1982. A single series has been obtained by linking the two series together. The series based on ESA79 has been linked onto the series based on ESA95 using the growth rate between 1986 and 1987.
2. Mid year UK resident population estimates have been used to estimate the average unsecured personal debt per head of the population.

Debts: Developing Countries

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) low income and (b) lower-middle income countries owe the UK. [253422]

Ian Pearson: The UK is owed a total of £349 million by low-income countries and £1,254 million by lower-middle income countries, using the World Bank's classification of low and lower-middle income countries[1].

The UK has cancelled or is due to cancel 100 per cent. of bilateral sovereign claims on all Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPCs) at Completion Point under the HIPC Initiative. To date, 24 out of 41 HIPCs have reached Completion Point, with a further 10 having reached Decision Point. The UK also provides 100 per cent. cancellation of debt service payments between Decision Point and Completion Point and holds in trust any payments received from HIPCs before they become eligible for debt relief.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256040]

Angela Eagle: My Department will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of HM Treasury's London and Norwich offices. The Debt Management Office is currently working with their advisers and their Landlords' managing agents towards gathering the required information and will display an energy performance certificate in due course.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257233]

Angela Eagle: Information about accessibility is available on our departmental website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/accessibility_index.htm

Departmental Pay

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's policy is on placing a pay cap on (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers. [254906]

Yvette Cooper: The Government's objective for civil service pay are to recruit and retain the necessary levels of staff needed to support service delivery, to be affordable within the overall fiscal environment, to offer value for money and to be consistent with the achievement of the Bank of England's inflation target.

Annual pay arrangements for special advisers are decided by the Special Advisers' Remuneration Committee, reporting to the Prime Minister, based on the general economic and pay context including pay settlements elsewhere including the senior civil service and wider public sector.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average number of days sick leave per staff member in his Department was in each of the last five years. [256390]

Angela Eagle: This information is published data and can be found on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256637]

Angela Eagle: In 2004 there were six employees having been on sick leave for over 12 months, and in each of the years 2005, 2006 and 2008 there were under five employees having been on sick leave for over 12 months. In 2007 no employees were reported having been on sick leave for over 12 months.

Departmental Television

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 310W, on departmental television, what premium television channels (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) the Valuation Office Agency subscribe to; and at what cost. [250472]

Mr. Timms: Data systems show a total spend of £8,521 across HMRC in the year April 2007 to March 2008 with British Sky Broadcasting Ltd and Sky Business.

The system does not have the level of detail to show the channels subscribed to and would involve disproportionate cost to provide the information requested.

The Valuation Office Agency does not subscribe to any premium television channels.

Employment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of the jobs summit held on 12 January 2009 at the Science Museum. [254106]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The global economic downturn has far-reaching consequences and requires a coordinated response from across Government and businesses. We have been working hard to promote closer working between employers and Jobcentre Plus. On 12 January, for example, we hosted an Employment Summit, bringing together around 120 employers, representative groups and training providers to discuss how businesses can play their part in the response to rising unemployment. The total cost of the event was £162,076.18.

Building on this, the Secretary of State jointly hosted the first meeting of the National Employment Partnership on 11 February. This event was attended by 22 key employers from across a number of sectors to discuss the implementation of the Government's new package of support for those who are still unemployed six months into a jobseeker's allowance claim, and to discuss the role and importance of Local Employment Partnerships.

In addition to these events, Ministers and senior officials continue to meet with outside organisations on a regular basis to discuss specific issues arising from the recession across the whole spectrum of the Department's work.

Financial Inclusion Fund

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate his Department's expenditure on the financial inclusion fund in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257652]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Inclusion Fund is worth £130 million in 2008-11. The allocations over this time are:

Financial Inclusion Fund allocation

	£ million
2008-09	42.996
2009-10	43.457
2010-11	43.547
Total	130

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions the Chairman of the Financial Services Authority has been consulted about a notice served under section 49 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 prior to it being served on a regulated financial institution. [252196]

Ian Pearson: The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act Code of Practice stipulates that a requirement to disclose a key to protected information from a provider of financial services shall not be imposed upon any company or firm authorised by the Financial Services Authority without prior notification to the Chief Executive of the Authority or a person designated by him for that purpose. I understand that the FSA has not received notification that any such requirement has been issued to a company or firm authorised by them.

Financial Services: Crown Dependencies

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps are being taken to encourage co-operation between the Financial Services Authority and the Crown Dependencies' financial regulators. [255486]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Financial Services Authority already has regular contact with the Crown dependencies' financial regulators.

The FSA has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with each other of the Crown dependencies' regulators to provide a formal basis for cooperation, including the exchange of information and investigate assistance.

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/Pages/Library/corporate/Memorandums/International/index.shtml

Financial Stability Forum

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what reports he has received from the Chairman of the Financial Services Authority following the latter's attendance at the Financial Stability Forum in Hong Kong. [256840]

Ian Pearson: As the memorandum of understanding between HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the FSA sets out, the tripartite authorities have regular meetings and discussions to work together towards the common objective of financial stability in the UK. In particular, the memorandum of understanding provides that the FSA and the Bank will keep the Treasury informed of relevant developments in the international regulatory community.

High Level Group on the City

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when Sir Fred Goodwin ceased to be a member of the High Level Group on the City; and for what reasons he ceased to be a member of the group. [254951]

Ian Pearson: The Chancellor's High-Level Group last met in June 2008. The membership of the Group will be reviewed before it next meets later this year, to reflect changes to senior management positions among the Group's institutional members.

Income Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of raising the income tax personal allowance to (a) £8,000, (b) £9,000 and (c) £10,000 and lowering the higher rate of income tax by (i) one per cent., (ii) two per cent., (iii) three per cent., (iv) four per cent. and (v) five per cent. in 2009-10. [256223]

Mr. Timms: The estimates of increasing the personal allowance and lowering the higher rate of income tax can be approximated from table 1.6 'Direct effects of illustrative tax changes' on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-6.pdf

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of raising the personal allowance for all people to £10,000 and (a) restricting the personal allowance by half from a £100,000 and to zero by £140,000 at a marginal deduction rate of 20 per cent., (b) restricting the personal allowance to zero from a £100,000 at a marginal deduction rate of 20 per cent. and (c) restricting the personal allowance to zero from the upper earning rates threshold at a marginal deduction rate of 20 per cent. in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257648]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. The particular estimates cannot be derived from information available on the Exchequer effect of changes to personal allowances.

Insolvency

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effects on the economy of the insolvency, of (a) large and (b) medium-sized businesses in 2008-09. [257950]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer the Financial Secretary gave to the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1624-25W.

Landfill Communities Fund

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what funding has been provided to waste reduction schemes under the Landfill Communities Fund and its predecessor in each of the last three years. [256968]

Angela Eagle: Figures supplied by the fund's regulator, Entrust, show that expenditure provided for on sustainable waste management projects under the landfill communities fund (formerly the landfill tax credit scheme) is as follows:

Financial year, 1 April to 31 March	£ million
2005-06	23.0
2006-07	17.9
2007-08	6.8

Prior to Budget 2003, there were additional objects which covered sustainable waste management projects, which this question concerns. The fund was reformed in Budget 2003 following discussion with stakeholders. As well as extending the scope of the scheme from 1 October 2003 to include habitat creation projects on land that need not have public access, in order to support biodiversity, the objects relating to sustainable waste management were removed from 1 April 2003 and a proportion of the funding for the scheme was redirected to public spending on a new sustainable waste delivery programme.

Lehman Brothers

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) his Department and (b) another of the tri-partite authorities has raised with the US authorities the issue of the return to the UK of the funds transferred from Lehman Brothers UK to Lehman Brothers USA on the evening the insolvency of Lehman Brothers was announced. [258125]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations and international partners. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 29 December 2008, (1) on Bradford and Bingley, PO Ref: 1/65517/2009; [256921]

(2) on licensing of banks for Financial Services Authority compensation scheme regulations, PO Ref: 1/65525/2009. [256922]

Ian Pearson: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member for PO Ref: 1/65517/2009.

For PO Ref: 1/65525/2009, due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Services Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when he plans to respond to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire's letter of 21 November 2008 on Derbyshire Building Society; [257958]

(2) when the Financial Secretary plans to respond to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire's letter of November 2008 concerning the failure of Kaupthing Bank; [257960]

(3) when the Economic Secretary plans to respond to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire's letter of 23 October 2008 on inclusion of non-bank building societies in the financial support package for the banking industry; [257961]

(4) when the Economic Secretary plans to reply to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire's letter of 23 October 2008 on the Government's decision to implement a financial support package for the banking industry; [257962]

(5) when the Economic Secretary plans to respond to the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire's letter of 23 October 2008 on the merger between the Derbyshire and Nationwide Building Societies. [257963]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Services Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the right hon. Member shortly.

Mortgages

Willie Rennie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of households with shared appreciation mortgage products in negative equity; and if he will make a statement. [256272]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Government have made no assessment of the number of households with shared appreciation mortgages which are presently in negative equity.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Hazel Grove (Andrew Stunell) on 4 July 2005, Official Report, column 90W. Treasury Ministers have received written representations on shared appreciation mortgages from a number of individuals and from the Shared Appreciation Mortgage Action Group.

The Government understand the concerns of people who purchased shared appreciation mortgages in the mid-1990s. However, to date no evidence of mis-selling has been found by the Financial Ombudsman Service.

Mortgages: Arrears

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for the Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1625W, on mortgages: arrears, if he will make it his policy to (a) collect and (b) lay before the House figures on mortgage arrears on a monthly basis. [257344]

Ian Pearson: The Council of Mortgage Lenders publishes the number of mortgages in arrears, available at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

The Ministry of Justice publishes figures for the numbers of possession orders made by county courts, available at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/statistics.htm

Both these sets of figures are published on a quarterly basis.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which 10 financial providers made the highest number of repossessions of homes for reasons of mortgage arrears in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [256350]

Ian Pearson: The Government do not hold these data. The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) publishes the total numbers of properties taken into possession in the UK, available at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

As announced in the pre-Budget report, the Government have established a new lending panel, which will improve monitoring of lending to households and businesses, as well as drive up best practice across the mortgage market and promote awareness of initiatives to support households against repossessions.

The major mortgage lenders on the panel have agreed to a moratorium on repossessions—committing not to repossess for at least three months after an owner-occupier falls into arrears. Some mortgage lenders have now gone further, and committed not to repossess for at least six months after an owner-occupier is in arrears. The Government welcome such moves.

Non-domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations his Department has received on the abolition of empty property tax relief for commercial premises in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [258075]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of such representations.

Non-domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much port businesses in the statutory ports owe in arrears of non-domestic rates; and what the cost to the public purse will be of his proposal to allow them to pay this over eight years without interest. [257040]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

Local authorities are responsible for the billing and collection of business rates and the Department does not hold the information on individual arrears. The impact of the policy is set out in the Impact Assessment which was laid before this House on the 10 February accompanying The Non-Domestic Rating (Collection and Enforcement) (Local Lists) (Amendment) (England) Regulations 2009 (SI 204).

Non-domestic Rates: Sports

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many sports clubs received mandatory business rates relief in each year since its inception. [258152]

Mr. Timms: By the end of 2008, over 5,000 Community Amateur Sports Clubs were registered with HMRC, and entitled to receive 80 per cent. business rates relief. Information is not available centrally on how many have taken up this relief, or on how many of these have received the additional 20 per cent. relief which local authorities have discretion to provide.

Premium Bonds

Mr. Breed: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many premium bonds with what monetary value have been purchased in each of the last 12 months. [253432]

Ian Pearson: The following table contains the value of premium bond sales for the period January 2008 to December 2008:

Total sales	Value (£)
2008
January	478,367,451
February	423,566,785
March	461,970,631
April	531,465,300
May	421,230,240
June	425,737,360
July	484,071,670
August	424,526,830
September	895,707,050
October	1,424,850,770
November	636,302,120
December	464,942,550
Total	7,072,738,846

These figures are un-audited and the December 2008 figure is provisional. With regard to the number of premium bonds sold, as each bond has a value of £1, the volume of premium bonds sold and the value of those sales are identical.

Presbyterian Mutual Society

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings officials in his Department have had on the Presbyterian Mutual Society in Northern Ireland entering into administration; and if he will make a statement. [253580]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 3 February 2009]: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery.

As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Presbyterian Mutual Society (PMS) is an industrial and provident society registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act (Northern Ireland) 1969. The Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment in Northern Ireland is the registrar.

The Government announced at PBR 2008 that it would carry out a review of the regulatory framework for credit unions and industrial and provident societies in Northern Ireland, in association with the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment in Northern Ireland, which is the Department with responsibility for these matters within the devolved Administration. The review has now started and work is ongoing.

Public Expenditure

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by what criteria he has assessed the required level of modernisation funding for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11, referred to in table B18, page 214 of the Pre-Budget Report 2008; and what the level of modernisation funding was in each of the last four years. [244467]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The Modernisation Fund provides support to Departments to meet the transitional costs associated with releasing savings over the CSR period and embedding ongoing efficiencies over the longer-term. The level of modernisation funding over 2007-08, 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 was agreed with Departments as part of the comprehensive spending review process when budgets were set for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Modernisation funding in table B18 of the PBR represents an estimate of the profile of modernisation funding required by Departments. The exact amount of drawdown of modernisation funding in each year is discussed and agreed between Departments and the Treasury.

The Modernisation Fund has only been in operation since 2007-08. Drawdown in 2007-08 was £141.4 million. All Departments are also expected to improve services and deliver improved value for money from within their spending review settlements.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent steps his Department has taken to reduce unnecessary expenditure across Government departments. [255838]

Yvette Cooper: The 2004 spending review set stretching efficiency targets for all Departments to release resources for reinvestment in key front line services to deliver public services that represent value for money for the taxpayer. During the 2004 spending review period Departments delivered over £26.5 billion of savings, substantially over-delivering against the £21.5 billion set in 2004.

In the 2007 comprehensive spending review the Government agreed to deliver a further £30 billion of savings by 2010-11, all gains to be cash-releasing and net of costs. Departments are in the progress of delivering these savings and will report on progress in their departmental reports. In addition to the £30 billion value for money target, Budget 2008 launched the Operational Efficiency programme and the Public Value programme to explore whether further efficiency savings could be achieved. The 2008 pre-Budget report announced an increase of the existing cross-Government value for money target for 2010-11, releasing £5 billion of additional efficiency savings in 2010-11.

Public Sector: Investment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to facilitate public sector capital investment projects facing delays due to the recent problems in the financial markets; and if he will make a statement. [255280]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are on track to deliver total investment of over £50 billion in 2008-09. In addition, new arrangements have been put in place to make sure that the additional spending brought forward as part of the fiscal stimulus announced in November goes ahead.

PFI deals are still going ahead, but like all private sector investment projects, the global credit crunch is having an effect. The Government have been working for some time with individual projects to help them close and the measures the Treasury has already announced to support bank lending are intended to help anyone seeking finance.

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which public sector pension schemes have a standard retirement age of less than 65 years of age. [250588]

Yvette Cooper: Normal pension ages for major public sector occupational pension schemes are given in table 3.23 on page 23 of the Occupational Pension Schemes Annual Report, 2007 edition, published by the Office for National Statistics on 23 September 2008.

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/OccPensions2007/OPSS_Annual_Report_2007.pdf

This table reflects the position in 2007 and since then the NHS scheme has introduced a normal pension age of 65 for new entrants from April 2008 and, in due course, for other members who wish to transfer to the revised terms.

Research and Development Tax Credit

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) of 3 November 2008, Official Report, column 100W on research and development tax credit, how many companies used Business Link's interactive tool to calculate their eligibility for research and development tax credits in each month since March 2006. [256062]

Angela Eagle: No monthly breakdown is available of the previous answer. In total, since its launch, the tool has now been successfully used in around 9,400 instances.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) of 3 November 2008, Official Report, columns 101-2W, on research and development tax credit, what figures for the (a) number and (b) value of research and development tax credits claimed in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08 will be available. [258065]

Angela Eagle: Statistics on the number and cost of claims for research and development tax credits are published in December each year as national statistics on the HM Revenue and Customs website.

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/corporate_tax/randdtcmenu.htm

Figures for years up to and including 2006-07 were published on 19 December 2008. Those for 2007-08 are scheduled for publication in December 2009.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the level of accuracy of the quotes provided to companies using Business Link's interactive tool to calculate their eligibility for research and development tax credits. [258086]

Angela Eagle: The interactive tool was developed with HMRC. Since launch the content of this tool has been reviewed by HMRC in March 2007, July 2007 and January 2008 with the aim of ensuring that the tool continues to meet the purpose of allowing companies to check whether they may be likely to be eligible for R and D tax credits. HMRC is currently in the process of undertaking a further routine review of the tool.

Revenue and Customs: ICT

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) original projected cost and (b) implementation milestones of HM Revenue and Customs' new IT system were; how much has been spent on the system; what milestones have been met; how much remains to be spent; and what the remaining implementation milestones are. [258011]

Mr. Timms: The contract with Capgemini is not for a single new IT system. It is for the maintenance of a wide range of existing IT services (including application maintenance, automated data capture, data centre services, desktop service, printed output, Wide Area Network (WAN) and telecoms services) and the development and enhancement of new systems that arise from ministerial and other business requirements.

The cost of the IT services contract with Capgemini (Aspire) when it was signed was £3.3 billion but it has subsequently been significantly expanded to take account of additional demands and changing business requirements. For example, HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC) contract with Capgemini now incorporates the IT services provided to the former HM Customs and Excise by Fujitsu as well as the delivery of additional projects to implement the Carter Review recommendations, modernise the Pay-As-You-Earn (PAYE) system and improve HMRC's internal Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system as part of the Department's Transformation Programme.

From July 2004 to December 2008 HMRC has spent £3.2 billion for all IT services provided including a substantial portfolio of change and legislative initiatives. The balance to be spent over the remaining years of the contract is estimated to be £4.5 billion.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the original contract completion date was for HM Revenue and Customs' IT system being implemented by Capgemini; and whether the completion date has since been extended. [258127]

Mr. Timms: The original contract with Capgemini was scheduled to be completed in June 2014 but at the end of 2007 it was agreed with Capgemini that the contract would be extended for a further three years to June 2017.

Revenue and Customs: North West

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people work at the HM Revenue and Customs offices at (a) Regian House, Liverpool, (b) Dukes House, Southport and (c) Birchen House, Birkenhead; how many people in each age band there are in each; and how many (i) men and (ii) women there are in each office. [256519]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The following number of people (headcount) work in these buildings as at 1 February 2009:

(a) Regian House, Liverpool—445, of which 193 are men and 252 are women

(b) Duke's House, Southport—67, of which 19 are men and 48 are women

Revenue and Customs: Northern Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1273W, on Revenue and Customs: Northern Ireland, if he will take steps to ensure that appointments to HM Revenue and Customs offices in Northern Ireland more closely reflect the proportions of the working age population. [256818]

Mr. Timms: HMRC is committed to equality of opportunity and is taking the following steps to ensure that appointments reflect the economically active population of Northern Ireland and that any perceived barriers are minimised.

All recruitment processes within HMRC are designed to be fair and equitable and selection is based solely on merit.

HMRC is taking positive action by ensuring that all HMRC vacancy advertisements carry a 'welcome' message. This states that 'we welcome applications from all sections of the community but, as members of the Protestant community are currently underrepresented, applications from this community are particularly welcome'.

HMRC Work Experience Programmes have been targeted to promote HMRC positively to the Protestant community. We anticipate that this will increase awareness of the opportunities that exist within HMRC and in turn lead to an increase in applications from the Protestant community.

HMRC has met with the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland (ECNI) and is currently working with the ECNI to agree an affirmative action plan to ensure fair participation of all sections of the community in its work force.

Royal Bank of Scotland: Directors

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many directors of the board of the Royal Bank of Scotland have left the board since the arrangements were made for UK Financial Investments to acquire a majority stake in the bank. [251619]

Ian Pearson: Since 13 October 2008, the date on which HMT's proposed investment in RBS was announced, four directors of the board have stepped down or retired and two directors have indicated their plans to leave the board in due course.

Schools: Uniforms

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 668W, on schools: uniforms, what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on the introduction of a reduced value added tax (VAT) rate for items of school uniform that are not already VAT zero-rated since March 2008. [257483]

Mr. Timms: The Government have not discussed this issue further with European counterparts since this question was raised on 31 March 2008. There is currently no scope within EU VAT law to introduce a reduced rate for items of school uniform not already VAT zero-rated.

The European Commission published a legislative proposal on reduced VAT rates in July 2008 in order to provide greater flexibility for member states to apply reduced rates. This proposal did not include children's clothing.

Sports: Concessions

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on value added tax charges on concessionary admissions to sports centres. [257809]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the Exchequer receipts for stamp duty land tax for (a) residential and (b) commercial property for the period September 2008 to February 2009. [258176]

Ian Pearson: Receipts for stamp duties as a whole are published monthly at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_receipts/table1-3.pdf

Receipts for stamp duties as a whole for January and February will be published at the end of February and March respectively. Receipts for stamp duty land tax for 2008-09, with separate estimates given for the residential and commercial components, will be published in September.

Tax Allowances: Pensions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of tax relief on pension contributions for both (a) employees and (b) employers in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257647]

Mr. Timms: Estimates on the costs of tax reliefs on pension contributions beyond 2008-09 are not available.

The estimate for the costs of tax reliefs on pension contributions for 2008-09 can be found at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-5.pdf

The latest information on the previous costs of tax relief on pension contributions to 2007-08 can be found at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/table7-9.pdf

Tax Avoidance

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to counter the practice of offshoring legal ownership of company trademarks to low-tax locations; and if he will estimate the loss to the Exchequer as a result of this practice in each of the last 10 years. [256623]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The detailed figures requested are not available. The Government have measures in place to counter tax avoidance and to protect the UK tax base, for example the controlled foreign company rules.

The UK is working with other countries to increase transparency and clamp down on harmful tax practices. Anti-avoidance measures are kept under review to ensure that tax loopholes that provide avoidance opportunities are legislated on.

Tax Yields: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of UK tax receipts raised in Wales in 2008. [258169]

Mr. Timms: Figures for total tax receipts at regional level are not available.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) publish estimates of income tax, council taxes and vehicle taxes paid by households by region, which is available on:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_economy/Regional Disposable Household Income 1995-2006.xls

The relevant data can be found under "D.5 Current taxes on income, wealth etc" in Table NUTS 2:8.

Regional stamp duty receipts attributable to residential property are published by HMRC, available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table15-2.pdf

Valuation Office: Manpower

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff have been employed in the Valuation Office Agency in each year since 2003. [256929]

Mr. Timms: The numbers of full-time equivalent staff employed by the Valuation Office Agency as at the end of March each year are shown in the following table:

	Number
2003	4,000
2004	3,803
2005	4,812

Mr. Timms: The estimated cost of the temporary reduction in the standard rate of VAT was published in Table B5 of the 2008 pre-Budget report. The value for 2009-10 relates to the specified period.

Welfare Tax Credits

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1639W, on tax credit, how many current recipients of tax credits would see their entitlement reduced to zero in each scenario. [257092]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not currently available.

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of tax credit payments were made to (a) working claimants and (b) claimants who were not working in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [257188]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the format requested.

Estimates of the average number of in-work and out-of-work families benefiting from tax credits in 2006-07, as well as their total tax credit entitlements are available in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Annual Awards 2006-07". This publication is available on the HMRC website at:

Finalised

Annual Awards. Supplement on Payments. Geographical Analyses", for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Estimates for 2007-08 are not yet available.

Welfare Tax Credits: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the working population in Wales was in receipt of tax credits in 2008. [258093]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available.

However, estimates of the number of in-work families benefiting from Tax Credits, by country and government office region, as at December 2008, are available in table 1 of the HMRC snapshot publication, "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Geographical Analyses. December 2008", on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltaxcredits/cwtcgeogstats.htm

The latest published estimates of take-up rates of in-work families by country and government office regions are reported in table 9 of the HMRC publication, "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit Take-up Rates 2005-06" which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltaxcredits/cwtctakeup.htm

(2) how many people in the Portsmouth travel-to-work area were underpaid working tax credit in the last two years; how many of these have had their payments corrected to date; and how much his Department has spent on making correction payments to date; [256547]

(3) how much has been recovered from overpayments of working tax credit from residents in the Portsmouth travel-to-work area to date. [256548]

Mr. Timms: Information is not available in the format requested. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) Code of Practice 26 'What happens if we've paid you too much tax credit?' explains the ways the Department collect back an overpayment.

HMRC publish information on the number and value of tax credits overpaid and underpaid by local authority and parliamentary constituency on its website at www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-supp-06-07.pdf

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will publish a copy of the Government Equalities Office's website accessibility plan. [257232]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office will publish its website accessibility plan in June 2009.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality whether she received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255237]

Maria Eagle: The Minister for Women and Equality has not received any representations from Lords Moonie, Taylor, Snape and Truscott in the last seven months.

Females: Public Appointments

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what progress she has made in increasing the proportion of women appointed to public bodies. [253343]

Maria Eagle: The latest figures, published by Cabinet Office show that, as at 31 March 2008, 33.3 per cent. of all public appointments were held by women. This is a decrease from the previous year. The Government remain committed to ensuring equal representation of women and men on the boards of our public bodies. The latest figures demonstrate more action is needed.

Government are strengthening legislation to support this agenda. The forthcoming Equality Bill will include a broad range of positive action provisions that will allow political parties and public bodies to take a range of steps to encourage involvement among under-represented groups.

The Commissioner for Public Appointments now has the power to take steps to promote diversity in the procedures for making public appointments within her remit. This came into force on 9 October 2008.

OLYMPICS

Construction: Olympic Games 2012

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many young people who have completed further education construction courses have undertaken job placements as part of the Olympic construction process. [256093]

Tessa Jowell: At the end of December 2008, there were 26 graduate trainees working for contractors on the Olympic Park. In addition, the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) runs a work placement programme which allows undergraduates or recent graduates to obtain paid work within the ODA for up to 11 months.

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many undergraduates are being sponsored to obtain a construction-related degree as part of the Olympic construction process. [256094]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) does not specifically sponsor construction-related degrees but there are two other relevant programmes in place.

The ODA runs a work placement programme which enables undergraduates and recent graduates to obtain paid work within the organisation for up to 11 months in functions such as planning, legal and procurement. Of the six people currently on this scheme, five are recent graduates, and one is an undergraduate. In addition, to the end of December 2008, there were 26 graduate trainees working for contractors on the Olympic Park.

Contracts: Olympic Games 2012

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what penalties are payable under the contract with Lend Lease on early cancellation of the contract to construct and manage the Olympic Village contract. [256115]

Tessa Jowell: The agreement with Lend Lease is structured in such a way that early termination would be a last resort option. Early termination is possible only under certain circumstances and, in the event that termination does occur, there are no specific penalties payable to Lend Lease. However, any costs and expenses necessarily incurred or contracted by Lend Lease for delivery of the services would have to be met by the Olympic Delivery Authority to the extent that they cannot be mitigated. The details of the contract terms remain commercially confidential.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent discussions her Office has had with outside organisations to discuss policies on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within her Office's responsibility. [254062]

Tessa Jowell: Officials of the Government Olympic Executive and I meet a wide variety of stakeholders to discuss all aspects of the London 2012 games programme. These discussions frequently cover both the effects of the current economic downturn and the many economic benefits associated with the preparations for, and the legacy of, the 2012 games.

London 2012 is bringing a wide range of business and economic benefits including £6 billion worth of contracts, over 75,000 supply chain opportunities and many jobs, skills training and apprenticeship opportunities. These include 30,000 people helping to build the Olympic Park and Olympic Village; 2,500 people directly employed on the staging of the games with a contractor work force of some 100,000; and 50,000 new permanent jobs in the Park and the wider Lower Lea Valley after the Olympics are over. As well as further jobs in the supply chain, the games will also create 6,700 jobs in the wider visitor economy. Visit Britain estimates the tourism benefits at £2.1 billion. In terms of skills, at least 350 apprentices will gain valuable skills on the construction of Park and Village.

The economic downturn has reduced the amount of private sector investment available to the Olympic Village and the International Broadcast Centre/Main Press Centre projects. However, these projects remain on track; and to the extent that additional public sector funds are required, these can be delivered within the £9.325 billion public sector funding package.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps she is taking to contain the cost increases of Olympic venues; and if she will make a statement. [256482]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: It is part of the Olympic Delivery Authority's (ODA) normal business to bear down on costs across the programme. As reported in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Annual Report, published January 2009, the forecast of potential final costs of the ODA programme includes estimated savings of £193 million, offsetting forecast increases. There are a range of controls in place to manage risks and budgets, control changes and control access to contingency. The forecast in potential cost increases in venues is offset by potential savings in other parts of the project. So far, the powerlines tunnelling project, Orient Way railway sidings project and the Weymouth and Portland sailing venue have all been delivered on time and budget.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans there are for the use of the (a) basketball arena, (b) white water course centre and (c) hockey centre after the end of the London 2012 Olympic Games. [256570]

Tessa Jowell: Business plans are currently being developed for the legacy use of all permanent London 2012 sporting venues.

The basketball arena is a temporary venue. The venue will be dismantled after the Games, and as many component parts as possible will be relocated and reused. The site will be available for development as part of the Legacy Masterplan Framework, the spatial development plan for the legacy of the Olympic Park.

The Whitewater course centre will operate as a Whitewater Canoe and Rafting Centre in legacy, with two courses (300 m and 100 m) for elite and community use.

The hockey venue for the Games is a temporary venue, and will therefore be dismantled after the Games to provide parkland and public domain within the Olympic Park. On the Olympic Park in legacy, Eton Manor will provide hockey, tennis and five-a-side football facilities for community and high performance uses. The site will also accommodate allotments, a war memorial and a wind turbine. Eton Manor will be operated in legacy by the Lee Valley Regional Park Authority.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans there are for the use of the (a) international broadcast centre and (b) main press centre after the end of the London 2012 Olympic games. [256571]

Tessa Jowell: The Government are working closely with the Mayor, the London Development Agency, London borough of Hackney and other partners to explore a number of proposals for the legacy use of both the international broadcast centre and main press centre. Our vision is for permanent facilities, focussed on the creative and media industries and on high quality employment for local communities, together with higher education uses. This work will be taken forward by the Olympic Park Legacy Company as part of its work programme to deliver a sustainable physical and socio-economic legacy from the games for the Olympic park and surrounding areas.

Olympic Games 2012: Expenditure

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much had been spent on the Broxbourne white water canoe centre at the latest date for which figures are available; and what the estimated final cost of the centre is. [256592]

Tessa Jowell: The contractor that will build the Broxbourne white water centre has not yet been selected and so it is not appropriate to announce budget or cost details while the procurement process is continuing.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the reasons are for the potential increase in (a) taxation and interest and (b) programme delivery costs referred to in Table 2 in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games annual report, January 2009. [256369]

Tessa Jowell: The potential increase in taxation, as reported in Table 2 of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games annual report published January 2009, was the amount of corporation tax estimated to be payable on an anticipated receipt for the sale of the assets post-games. As a consequence of the decision, announced on 6 February 2009, to establish a dedicated 2012 Olympic Park Legacy Company, it is now more likely that the Company will benefit from that anticipated receipt and the corporation tax is now unlikely to be payable by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA).

The increase in programme delivery costs is a result of CLM (ODA's Delivery Partner—and incentivised to deliver to programme and against cost targets) achieving a higher level of key performance indicators than anticipated in the original budget leading to a consequential increase in performance related payments. This reflects good progress in respect of the delivery of the project—to time and within budget—and in the achievement of savings which are outlined in the 2009 annual report.

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what costs had been incurred on (a) the 2012 Media Centre and (b) the 2012 Olympic Village as at 1 February 2009; and if she will make a statement. [256370]

Tessa Jowell: Olympic Delivery Authority figures at the end of January 2009 show expenditure of £24.28 million on the International Business Centre/Main Press Centre project and expenditure of £71.6 million on the vertical build of the Olympic Village. Both these figures are in line with expected levels of expenditure.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics for what reason the £326 million recently released from the Olympic contingency fund for the athletes village was drawn from the funders; why the £135 million for the International Broadcast Centre/Main Press Centre was drawn from funders and contingency reserves; and if she will make a statement. [256483]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Funders Group contingency is principally for risks that fall outside of the control of the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA). The recent allocation of Funders Group contingency was to help fund the Olympic village and the international broadcast centre (IBC)/main press centre (MPC) projects, both of which had been affected by the global economic situation, particularly the downturn in the housing and banking markets. This downturn was outside of the ODA's control and therefore Funders' Group contingency is the appropriate source of funding.

A proportion of the funding for the IBC/MPC project (£67 million) was funded from programme contingency. This is because, as part of the restructure of the IBC/MPC project, elements of new scope—including to ensure that the buildings left in legacy have the flexibility to be adapted to a wide range of uses to maximise potential future employment opportunities—and additional project contingency were included.

Olympic Games 2012: Gun Sports

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many .22 pistols have been made available for use by the British Olympic pistol team out of public funds. [256871]

Tessa Jowell: UK Sport have advised that an award of £5,056,000 made by UK Sport to British Shooting for the period 2005-09 included an amount that the sport can set aside for the purchase of equipment. However, the nature of shooting is that athletes will usually buy their own equipment, specifically the guns used to train and compete, or these are provided by sponsors.

Individual athletes on the World Class Performance programme are awarded an athlete personal award (APA) which includes funding for living costs and sporting costs. The latter enables athletes to travel, attend training sessions and enter relevant competitions. Athletes in all sports are entitled to use this award to fund the purchase of equipment or as a contribution to the financing of equipment.

This expenditure is for the athlete themselves to decide and UK Sport and the governing body do not monitor this, preferring to focus solely on the outcomes that APAs provide. These outcomes include such things as full attendance at training and events, use of high performance services and the athlete's commitment to self improvement that ultimately leads to improved performance.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what representations she has received requesting that the London 2012 Olympics shooting events be staged at Bisley. [256872]

Tessa Jowell: I have received representations from hon. Members, the National Rifle Association, Southern Counties Shooting Ltd, various members of shooting groups and other members of the public requesting the shooting events for the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games be staged at Bisley.

KPMG were commissioned by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) last year to test and challenge the plans for a number of 2012 temporary venues, including shooting, to ensure they remain viable venues for competition in 2012 as well as offering the best possible value for money. In December the Olympic Board published the findings of the KPMG report. The Olympic Board agreed at the time of publication that further work to assess the venue for shooting would be carried out by the ODA and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games (LOCOG) in the new year. This work is ongoing, and includes an evaluation of Bisley which will be considered by the Olympic Board.

Olympic Games 2012: Haringey

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what existing sporting facilities in Haringey will be used for the London 2012 Olympic Games; and if she will make a statement. [257277]

Tessa Jowell: There are two routes by which the existing sporting facilities in Haringey could be used for the London 2012 Olympic Games. Firstly as a Pre-Games Training Camp venue; Haringey has one designated training facility in the LOCOG Pre-Games Training Camp Guide offering athletics training facilities at the White Hart Lane Community Sports Centre in Wood Green. A National Olympic Committee or National Paralympic Committee is yet to make arrangements to use this facility for this purpose.

Secondly, the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) has begun the process of identifying Games-time Training Venues and there is the possibility that this same facility could provide valuable training opportunities for athletes while competing at the London 2012 Games. The venue owner and operators have been asked to express their interest to LOCOG if they wish to be considered for this programme.

In addition, 371 businesses in Haringey have signed up for CompeteFor (London 2012's website for publishing Games related contract opportunities) and 14 Haringey schools are registered as part of Get Set (LOCOG's domestic education programme).

Paralympic Games 2012: Transport

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions her Office has had with transport providers serving the Olympic venue on access to their services by paralympians; and what funding is being made to these transport providers to ensure that paralympians can use these services to access the venue; and if she will make a statement. [257279]

Tessa Jowell: Provision of accessible transport was one of the major strengths in London's bid to host the Games—not just for athletes but also for spectators, with a fully-accessible network of buses, black cabs and the DLR to the heart of the Games in Stratford.

The Accessible Transport Strategy (appendix 2), published in June 2008, lists those organisations that worked with the ODA to produce this document, and who will help deliver our commitment to accessible transport provision.

The ODA is also making financial contributions, alongside existing TfL funding plans, to a wide range of transport upgrade works which include improved accessibility works. Five London underground stations have been identified as serving Olympic venues—Stratford, West Ham, Southfields, Baker Street, Green Park—and works are under way to make all of these accessible by the summer of 2012. Already, all DLR stations, buses (excluding heritage routes), and black cabs are accessible.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) will deliver accessible transport for athletes, officials and the Paralympic Family from their accommodation to competition venues in 2012. LOCOG is entering a phase of detailed operational planning, and has already started talking to specialist operators with experience in the provision of transport for disabled athletes.

JUSTICE

Approved Premises: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has to establish bail hostels in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [256492]

Mr. Hanson: I take the hon. Gentleman to be referring to the accommodation and support service for bail and home detention curfew provided to NOMS by ClearSprings. The service does not provide hostels. There are no plans to have a property in Hemel Hempstead. There is one property in Cheshunt and one property is to be provided in Stevenage.

Civil Servants: Codes of Practice

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) with reference to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2632W, on trade unions, if he will place in the Library a copy of the section of his Department's staff handbook which outlines the rules for civil servants applying for (a) paid and (b) unpaid time off to engage in political activities; [250544]

(2) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie) of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1673W, on trades unions, if he will place in the Library a copy of the agreement with trades unions under which trades unions officers in his Department may take time off for trades' unions duties. [250100]

Mr. Straw: The rules for civil servants in the Ministry of Justice (Mo J) applying for (a) paid and (b) unpaid time off to engage in political activities is contained within the respective Special Leave policies for National Offender Management Service (NOMS) and the MoJ.

The rules as to whether civil servants are allowed to take part in political activities is contained within the respective conduct policies for NOMS and the MoJ.

The agreements with the trade unions under which trade union officers may take time off for trade union duties is contained in a number of facility time agreements which are currently under review.

These documents have been placed in the Library of the House.

Civil Partnerships

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in respect of which countries are registers of (a) same-sex marriages and (b) legal partnerships recognised in the UK. [255825]

Maria Eagle: Overseas same sex legal partnerships can also be recognised as UK civil partnerships if they meet the 'general conditions' outlined in section 212 of the Civil Partnership Act 2004.

In addition:

(a) Same sex marriages from the following countries are 'automatically' recognised as civil partnerships in the UK:

Belgium
Canada
Netherlands
Spain
USA (Massachusetts)

(b) The following other kinds of overseas legal partnership are also 'automatically' recognised as civil partnerships:

Andorra: unió estable de parella
Australia (Tasmania): significant relationship
Belgium: cohabitation légale (statutory cohabitation)
Canada (Nova Scotia): domestic partnership
Canada (Quebec): civil union
Denmark: registreret partnerskab (registered partnership)
Finland: rekisteröity parisuhde (registered partnership)
France: pacte civile de solidarité (civil solidarity pact)
Germany: Lebenspartnerschaft (life partnership)
Iceland: stadfesta samvist (confirmed cohabitation)
Luxembourg: the relationship referred to as partenariat enregistré or eingetragene partnerschaft
Netherlands: geregistreerde partnerschap (registered partnership)
New Zealand: civil union
Norway: registrert partnerskap (registered partnership)
Sweden: registrerat partnerskap (registered partnership)
USA (California): domestic partnership
USA (Connecticut): civil union
USA (Maine): domestic partnership
USA (New Jersey): domestic partnership
USA (Vermont): civil union

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in which overseas countries civil partnerships entered into in the UK are recognised. [255826]

Maria Eagle: The Government do not hold definitive information on which overseas countries recognise UK civil partnerships, or under what terms. The laws of other countries are subject to change without notice, and in some cases can be ambiguous.

We are aware of the difficulties UK civil partners living in countries where their legal relationship status is not recognised can face, and where appropriate, we are working with those countries to achieve recognition.

Constituencies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 150W, on constituencies, what progress has been made on the review of legislation on boundary rules; and what the timetable for consultation with political parties is. [258057]

Mr. Wills: It remains our intention that the current legislation in relation to the conduct of parliamentary boundary reviews will be the subject of an independent review. The arrangements for the conduct of the review are still under consideration. Consultation with interested bodies will be a matter for the review once it is established.

Coroners: Oxfordshire

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the (a) average and (b) longest time it took for a coroner to hold a treasure inquest once requested for finds from Oxfordshire in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [257254]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice collects statistics on the number of finds under the Treasure Act 1996 reported to coroners in England and Wales during each calendar year, the number of treasure inquests concluded during the year and, of these, the number of verdicts of treasure returned. Information is not collected on the time taken to conduct treasure inquests.

Informal figures are, however, collated by the British Museum, which records the time between the inquest being requested by the British Museum and a verdict being returned. These show that in 2007, the British Museum requested that the Oxfordshire coroner hold seven treasure inquests. The longest time between an inquest being requested and a verdict being returned was 525 days, while the other six ranged in duration from 77 days to 423 days. A statistical average based on such a small number of cases would be very volatile and heavily dependent on the particular circumstances of each case.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256043]

Mr. Wills: Display energy certificates (DECs) and advisory reports issued for public buildings are not held centrally in respect of Ministry of Justice (MOJ) and all its agencies. To commission copies of (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports, to be placed in the Library for over 500 buildings, with the associated costs of copying, postage and staff time to complete the work could be done only at disproportionate cost. Accordingly, MOJ will not be placing these in the Library.

The DEC ratings for MOJ buildings completed as at October 2008 can be found in the OGC Sustainable Procurement and Operations on the Government Estate—Government Delivery Plan Update, published on 18 December 2008, a copy of which can be found at:

http://www.ogc.gov.uk/documents/Delivery_Plan_Update_Dec08.pdf

Annex B of the plan provides the relevant information on MOJ DECs.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many members of staff have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones in each year since 1997. [247960]

Mr. Straw: The Ministry has taken decisive action to improve data handling including minimising the amount of data put on removable media, encryption programmes for data and mobile devices that carry personal protected data and the introduction of training and education programmes to improve staff awareness of information risks.

Government take data security very seriously, which is why a report into data handling procedures across Government was commissioned and new measures to improve and strengthen controls in the protection of personal data were introduced.

Under paragraph 2.8 of the Data Handling Report published in June 2008, all Departments are required to amend HR processes where necessary to make clear that failing to apply controls in handling personal data could amount to gross misconduct, and this has been reflected in the Ministry's revised Discipline Policy issued in July 2008.

In the Ministry of Justice, excluding the National Offender Management Service, details of the number of staff investigated for losing memory sticks, laptops, desktop computers and mobile telephones are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information on suspensions is not held to include the level of detail requested by this question. Central records only exist from 2003 and indicate that no members of staff have been dismissed for losing IT equipment. The central records from 2003 to 2005 do not include details of dismissals from the Magistrates Courts Committees, and these records are not held centrally.

In the Ministry of Justice National Offender Management Service, details of the numbers of staff investigated or suspended for losing memory sticks, laptops, desktop computers and mobile telephones are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information regarding the outcome of disciplinary proceedings shows that no members of staff have been dismissed since January 2005 for the aforementioned offences. However, formal disciplinary action was taken against one member of staff during 2005 following the loss of a laptop.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256153]

Mr. Wills: The Department has more than 70 major database systems, as well as other smaller database systems supporting local business areas.

Responsibility for maintaining the accuracy of data held in individual databases rests with the appropriate business area. As this is not a centrally managed function, the information required to answer this question fully could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254079]

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff in his Department and its predecessors were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [257752]

Mr. Wills: Harassment is defined in the MOJ conduct policy as:

"unwanted behaviour which affects a person's dignity. It can relate to age, sex, race, disability, religion, nationality or any other personal characteristic of the individual and may be continuous or a one-off incident."

Bullying is not specifically defined by law, but may be seen as a form of harassment. Bullying could consist of:

offensive, intimidating, malicious or insulting behaviour;

persistent unwarranted criticism; and exclusion and ostracising.

In the Ministry of Justice there are three levels of sanction in disciplinary cases. They are first written warning, final written warning and dismissal.

The Ministry of Justice, HMPS and NOMS do not hold the information centrally in the format requested and can be provided only at a disproportionate cost. However, validated records of dismissals for the MOJ (excluding HMPS and NOMS) are held centrally. The following table details the number of dismissals in the last three years.

	Bullying	Harassment

Departmental Fixed Penalties

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253587]

Mr. Straw: Administrative financial penalties arise where a department has the authority to charge a financial penalty without the need to resort to court proceedings. They exclude interest charged on late payment of invoices.

The Legal Services Complaints Commissioner has the power under section 52 of the Access to Justice Act 1999 to levy a financial penalty on the Law Society.

All other penalties levied by the department or its agencies are through the courts.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b)

non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256205]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice has an obligation under the civil service commissioners recruitment code to ensure its recruitment processes are operating under open and fair principles.

The Ministry of Justice only employs applicants who have the right to work in the UK, and an individual's nationality is verified before an offer of employment is made. Civil service rules enable EEA nationals and certain non-EEA family members to be employed as civil servants. The Ministry of Justice does not hold central data in respect of the number of EU foreign national employed and they could only be collected at disproportionate costs.

There is also a provision that, in exceptional circumstances, foreign nationals, other than EEA nationals and certain non-EEA family members, may be employed by means of an aliens' certificate under the Aliens' Employment Act 1955. This Act empowers the employing Department's Minister, with the approval of the Minister for the civil service, to issue a certificate of employment in certain circumstances. Information on the number of staff employed under the Aliens' Employment Act 1955 is collected. The Prison Service currently employs one person under the Act. This was approved by the then Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Sutcliffe), with the consent of the Minister responsible for the civil service.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [251139]

Maria Eagle: The Department was established in May 2007 and prior to that, responsibility for ICT rested with its predecessors.

The National Enforcement Tracker System (NETS) project was cancelled in August 2007 following a detailed review which highlighted that the cost and scope of the project no longer provided value for money or met current business requirements. Expenditure to closure of the project was £4.328 million, this sum was reported in accordance with HMT accounting rules. The contractors were Steria, followed by IBM.

In November 2008, following a review by Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) Board, the Electronic Filing and Document Management programme, which included plans for future investment in ICT, was cancelled. The review concluded that the Electronic Filing and Document Management programme was not affordable. The costs incurred by the programme from commencement of the programme in August 2005 to its closure in November 2008 were £5.922 million. The main contractors were PA Consulting (August 2005-December 2007); Logica and Atos Origin (February 2008-November 2008). The programme was formally closed and documented for future reference.

Available records have not identified further abandoned ICT projects initiated by the Department for this period.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; what estimate he has made of the (A) outturn cost and (B) completion date of each such project which is ongoing; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251373]

Maria Eagle: The Department was established in May 2007, and prior to that, responsibility for ICT was spread across the former Department for Constitutional Affairs, parts of the Home Office and the technology unit of the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The information required to answer this question is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257221]

Mr. Wills: The Department's website accessibility plan is set out in the website accessibility policy published on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/accessibilityandhelp.htm

A copy of this web page has been placed in the Library of the House.

The objective is to ensure that the Ministry of Justice website continues to achieve the standard required for compliance with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 1.0 level AA, using working practice recommended by the Guide to good practice in commissioning accessible websites (PAS 78), published by the Equality and Human Rights Commission, and Guidance for Government web teams issued by the Central Office of Information.

Departmental Lost Property

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) equipment and (b) data his Department has lost in the last 12 months. [256279]

Mr. Straw: Reported equipment losses for the last full year 2007-08, from creation of the Ministry of Justice in May 2007, included 11 laptop computers, one memory stick and 15 mobile telephones. In addition to lost equipment 12 laptops, two desktop computers and 14 mobile phones were reported as stolen. Four of the 11 laptops reported lost were subsequently recovered. Another one of those lost went missing in delivery and was never used. Records of mobile telephone losses are not held centrally and the numbers reported here have been taken from available records.

The Ministry recorded nine significant personal data related incidents for 2007-08, of which three involved loss of laptops (one from within secure Government premises and two outside) and two involved electronic storage devices (discs). Details are published in the resource accounts, laid before the House on 21 July 2008.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonus payments were made in 2007-08 to (a) senior civil servants and (b) other staff working in (i) the Judicial Appointments Commission and (b) the Office of the Public Guardian; and how much was paid in such bonuses to people in each category. [254140]

Mr. Straw: The information is as follows:

(i) Judicial Appointments Commission

Three Senior Civil Servants (SCS) working in the Judicial Appointments Commission were awarded non-consolidated performance pay during the financial year 2007-08. The total paid was £22,000.

There were 43 'in year' payments of non consolidated performance pay to staff below the SCS working in the Judicial Appointments Commission during the financial year 2007-08 and the total amount paid was £19,650.

(ii) Office of the Public Guardian

No payments of non-consolidated performance pay were made to any members of the SCS at the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) during the financial year 2007-08.

In grades below the SCS, fifty-four staff working at the OPG were paid 'end of year' payments of non-consolidated performance pay and the amount paid was £21,600. Twenty six members of staff were paid 'in year' payments with a total value of £6,825.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department plans to spend on public relations in 2009-10. [252351]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice currently has no plans for spend on public relations in 2009-10.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff his Department recruited as (a) permanent, (b) temporary and (c) agency staff in each year since it was established. [257631]

Mr. Wills: The following table provides the information on the number of directly employed staff recruited since the formation of the Ministry of Justice.

The Ministry of Justice does not hold central data in respect of the number of agency staff recruited and therefore they could be collected only at disproportionate costs.

	9 May 2007 to 31 March 2008	1 April 2008 to 31 January 2009
Permanent	5,062	5,471
Fixed Term Contract	3,113	2,459

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which local authorities have initiated proceedings to fine households who have not submitted an electoral registration form in response to the annual canvass since the sanction was brought into force; [257465]

(2) when the sanctions in relation to voter non-registration will be brought into force; and if he will make a statement. [257547]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Bridget Prentice), Under-Secretary of State for Justice explained in her answer on 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 244W, to a similar question relating to which local authorities have initiated proceedings to levy fines on households failing to return the canvass form, this information is not collected centrally. Electoral registration officers (EROs) have a duty to compile and maintain an accurate register and they have a number of mechanisms available to them in achieving this. It is a decision for independent EROs whether they initiate proceedings for non-completion of the annual canvass form.

Sanctions have recently been brought into force to create a new offence of supplying false information of any kind to a registration officer in connection with electoral registration. This sanction came into force in time for the 2006 annual canvass and anyone found guilty of supplying false information at registration can now be fined up to £5,000 or sentenced to up to six months imprisonment.

Electoral Register: Ethnic Groups

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) white, (b) African, (c) Bangladeshi, (d) Pakistani and (e) African-Caribbean people eligible to vote who are registered to vote. [257486]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to a similar question from the hon. Gentleman on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 900W, the Government have not made any estimate of the percentage of (a) White, (b) African, (c) Bangladeshi, (d) Pakistani and (e) African-Caribbean people registered to vote. In addition, it is not known what percentage of eligible people from these groups are registered to vote, as such information is not available.

The Electoral Commission found in their report, 'Understanding Electoral Registration', published in September 2005, that the groups least likely to be registered to vote included young people, those residing in private rented accommodation and those belonging to certain minority ethnic groups. Registration rates among White, Asian (those from Indian, Pakistani and Bangladeshi communities) and Black Caribbean groups were similar.

Section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 placed a new duty on electoral registration officers (ERO) to take all necessary steps to register eligible electors. These steps include sending the annual canvass form more than once, making house to house enquiries and inspecting records that the ERO is permitted to inspect. The Government believe that these steps should help to tackle under-registration.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff in his Department are employed on the management of freedom of information requests submitted to his Department. [257630]

Mr. Wills: All freedom of information requests made to my Department are handled by the Data Access and Compliance Unit. Of the 27 staff employed in the Unit, 17 deal with the management of freedom of information requests. The remainder are responsible for handling requests under the Data Protection Act 1998, or have administrative or managerial duties.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department (a) fulfilled and (b) refused in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [257753]

Mr. Wills: My Department has published annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2006 and 2007.

These reports include statistics on the number of non-routine requests received by this Department and the initial outcomes of these requests.

The reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

In addition, copies of each report have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Friction Dynamex: Asbestos

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what account he took of the cost of remediation of asbestos contamination on the Dynamex Friction site, Caernarfon, when selecting it as the preferred location for a new prison in Wales. [257824]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice was aware that there would be remediation contamination costs in selecting the Dynamex site at Caernarfon and when such costs are fully quantified they will be taken into account in negotiations with the owner.

Inspections: Public Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which organisations have the statutory right of access to Government Departments to inspect the delivery of a public service. [257584]

Mr. Malik: In the Ministry of Justice, the following organisations have a statutory right of access to inspect the delivery of a public service:

HM Inspectorate of Court Administration (HMICA) was created in 2005 by the Courts Act 2003. The Act gives HMICA the duty to inspect courts and HM Courts Service Board, and to report to the Lord Chancellor on the system that supports the carrying on of the business of the Crown, county and magistrates courts, and the services provided for those courts.

Independent Monitoring Boards have a right of access to monitor prisons under Section 6 of the Prison Act 1952. IMBs, legally known in this context as Visiting Committees, have a right of access to monitor immigration removal centres under Section 152 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999.

HM Inspectorate of Prisons staff have a right of access to Secure Training Centres for the purpose of inspection under Section 43 of the Secure Training Centre Rules 1998, when accompanying a person who is authorised under the Children's Act 1989 and has been charged by the Secretary of State to conduct an inspection.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251352]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice was established on 9 May 2007 as a merger between the former Department for Constitutional Affairs and parts of the Home Office, namely the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) and the Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR).

Some of the legacy systems inherited by the Department do not separately distinguish expenditure on external legal expenses from other types of legal expenditure. This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For activities relating to the former Department for Constitutional Affairs (comprising the core Department and its agencies, HM Courts Service, Tribunal Service and Office of the Public Guardian) accounting records indicate that expenditure over the last five years on external legal services was as follows:

2004-05	1,827,261
2005-06	968,636
2006-07	1,914,155
2007-08	2,297,348
2008-09 (to 31 December)	1,537,176

Offenders: Personal Records

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1536W, on offenders: personal records, what his Department plans to do with the data once it completes its analysis of the final cohort; [257003]

(2) how many offenders there were on the Offenders Index when it was last updated. [257160]

Mr. Hanson: There were about 8 million offenders on the Offenders Index database in December 2006. The Department no longer uses the Offender Index to provide routine data on reoffending and criminal history. We are currently analysing the final cohort of offenders extracted from the Offenders Index which are based on data up to December 2006. The Department has no plans for a further update but will retain the data after completion and publication of the analysis.

Since 2005, the Ministry of Justice has been using data extracted from its Police National Computer database to provide the published figures on reoffending.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1536W, on offenders: personal records, whether his Department plans to delete any of the data which are not being used. [258229]

Mr. Hanson: The Department no longer uses the Offenders Index to provide routine data on reoffending and criminal history; we now use data extracted from the Police National Computer to provide the published figures on reoffending. We are currently analysing the final cohort of offenders extracted from the Offenders Index. Although we do not plan to use the Offenders Index in future we have no plans to delete any of the data as there is a range of possible future uses for them.

Open Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many places in semi-open prisons for adult women prisoners (a) there are in England and Wales and (b) there will be in England and Wales after 2 March 2009 following the re-designation of HM Prison/Young Offender Institution Drake Hall and HM Prison Morton Hall. [258091]

Mr. Hanson: Following the recent announcement from the National Offender Management Service to re-designate HM Prison and Young Offender Institution Drake Hall and HM Prison and Young Offender Institution Morton Hall, there will be no semi-open prisons for adult women in England and Wales after 2 March 2009.

Police Stations: Prison Accommodation

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many nights have been spent by prisoners in police cells in each police force under Operation Safeguard (a) in total and (b) in each month since April 2008; and if he will make a statement. [254948]

Mr. Hanson: Operation Safeguard was activated between 12 October and 22 December 2006 and again from 16 January 2007 to 31 October 2008. Police cells have not been used since 22 September 2008 and no police cells have been on stand by since the end of October 2008.

The following table details usage between 12 October 2006 and 22 September 2008 and gives the aggregate total of the number of prisoner nights in which a police cell was used. It is not possible to ascertain how many individual prisoners these totals cover.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 552W, on prisoners: release, how long on average it took a prisoner eligible for jobseeker's allowance upon release to receive that benefit after release in the last 12 months. [251164]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how long on average it took a prisoner eligible for Jobseeker's Allowance upon release to receive that benefit after release in the last 12 months. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

In answer to your specific question, I regret that this type of information is not routinely collected and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Whilst information about prisoners' claims is not collected specifically, they are included in the overall Jobseeker's Allowance claim processing target. At the end of December 2008, our Jobseeker's Allowance claims clearance rate was an average of 10.4 days, against a target of 11.5 days. Whilst January figures have not yet been confirmed, we expect them to be at a similar level.

All prisoners being released who wish to claim Jobseeker's Allowance are also able to use the Freshstart process. Freshstart involves pre-arranging a New Jobseeker Interview to claim Jobseeker's Allowance at the prisoner's home Jobcentre Plus office for as soon as possible after they are released. The customer normally has an appointment with a Jobcentre Plus Adviser within 3 days of leaving prison. The process helps to speed up the receipt of benefit and aims to ensure that the offender engages with the Jobcentre at the earliest opportunity to allow them to gain appropriate support.

In addition, those serving shorter term sentences can also take advantage of the Rapid Reclaim Process. This service is available if a prisoner reclaims benefits within 26 weeks of their last claim and their circumstances have not changed. There are simpler and shorter forms to complete and processing the benefit is eased.

Prisoners Transfers: Jamaica

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of the prisoner transfer agreement signed with the Government of Jamaica in June 2007. [252839]

Mr. Hanson: The prisoner transfer agreement between the United Kingdom and Jamaica was signed in London on 26 June 2007. It will enter into force when ratified by both the United Kingdom and Jamaica. Changes to Jamaican law are necessary before it can ratify the agreement. Once these changes have been made and Jamaica can proceed with ratification, the agreement will be laid before Parliament in accordance with the Ponsonby Rule in the normal way.

Prisoners: Elderly

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoners aged 60 years or over there were on average in each of the last 10 years; [257569]

(2) how many prisoners aged 60 or over were serving a sentence for a sexual offence on average in each of the last 10 years. [257570]

Mr. Hanson: Figures showing the total number of prisoners aged 60 and over detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales and the total number of those within the same age group serving a sentence for a sexual offence from June 1998 to June 2007 (latest available) can be found in the table.

These figures are taken from tables within the publications "Prison statistics, England and Wales" and the "Offender Management Caseload Statistics", copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which can also be found at the following website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

2. Data sources and quality: These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Females

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) convicted, (b) unconvicted and (c) convicted but unsentenced (i) adult and (ii) 18 to 21 year old female foreign national prisoners are in custody in England and Wales; and how many such people are being held in custody beyond the end of their custodial sentences. [258092]

Mr. Hanson: Figures showing the numbers of female foreign national prisoners (a) untried, (b) convicted unsentenced and (c) sentenced, separately for (i) adults and (ii) young adults, detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales at 31 December 2008, can be found in the following table:

	Young adults	Adults
Untried	15	141
Convicted unsentenced	0	37
Sentenced	46	522

Young adults are those aged 18 to 20 and those 21-year-olds who were aged 20 or under at conviction who have not been reclassified as part of the adult population.

Information relating to the number of foreign national female prisoners who are detained beyond their custodial sentence is not available. The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly updated the Home Affairs Select Committee with all of the most robust and accurate information available on the deportation of foreign national prisoners. Copies of her letters to the Committee are available in the Library of the House. She will continue to update the Committee as required.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: Construction

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any land has been acquired for the construction of Titan prisons. [257471]

Mr. Hanson: The work to identify suitable sites for prison clusters is currently under way, but we have yet to confirm or purchase any sites.

Prisons: Manpower

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average length of service was for (a) a prison guard and (b) other staff in (i) all prisons in England and Wales and (ii) HM Prison Winchester in each of the last five years. [258029]

Mr. Hanson: The average length of service for a prison officer and other staff in all public sector establishments in England and Wales and in HM Prison Winchester in each of the last five years are detailed in the tables. Information for public and private sector prisons are shown separately.

Private prisons contribution

Information on staffing figures in the contracted estate is not collated centrally and has been requested from each contractor, derived from their own human resources databases. Information has been provided from each contractor Kalyx which manages Bronzefield, Forest Bank and Peterborough; G4S which manages Parc, Altcourse, Rye Hill and Wolds; and Serco which manages Ashfield, Doncaster, Dovegate and Lowdham Grange. Information in the following tables is provided for the contracted sector equivalent of Prison Service prison officers and other staff (non-operational). The data are provided for each year since 2004.

Prisons: Wind Power

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will commission research on the effect on (a) prison security, (b) the well-being and health of prisoners and (c) the safety and health of prison staff from (i) noise from, (ii) vibration from and (iii) movement of wind turbines sited close to prisons. [257075]

Mr. Hanson: As I said in my answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1403W, the Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, are responsible for Government policy on wind turbines and therefore for research about their impact on residential property and businesses in close proximity to them. The National Offender Management Service already reviews the security implications of wind turbines sited close to prisons and will conduct appropriate health and safety risk assessments on wind turbines that are already in place.

Welsh Language

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many members of staff at each grade in his Department identify themselves as Welsh speakers. [257794]

Mr. Malik: In an informal survey of 1,350 staff in Her Majesty's Courts Service in 2007, staff indicated a range of ability, from being able to meet and greet in Welsh to those who are fluent both verbally and in writing. This informal exercise did not ascertain proficiency levels on a grade basis; such analysis is not available.

Her Majesty's Courts Service has not carried out a subsequent survey and there has been no Ministry of Justice wide data gathering exercise in this regard.

All Tribunals Service staff at hearing centres in Wales are trained to meet and greet in Welsh, including answering the telephone. The Tribunals Service has not undertaken a formal survey of staff to indicate the range of ability from being able to meet and greet in Welsh to those who are fluent in the language, both verbally and in writing.

Information on which languages are spoken by staff in the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) is not held centrally. To collect the information would incur disproportionate cost. However, there was a voluntary survey undertaken in NOMS Cymru HQ and public sector prisons in Wales last year. Out of 1,035 surveyed, 247 responded on Welsh language of which 11 per cent. (27) indicated that they could speak Welsh and 4 per cent. (10) that it was their first language.

The two probation trusts in Wales each have their own Welsh Language scheme approved by the Welsh Language Board.

Winchester Prison: Drugs

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners at HM Prison Winchester were serving sentences for drug-related offences in each of the last five years; and how many incidents of drug use in the prison were recorded in each of those years. [258031]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the numbers of sentenced drugs offenders in Winchester as at 30 June each year since 2004:

Number of prisoners serving sentences for drugs offences at Winchester prison 2004-08

	Number as at 30 June
2008	31
2007	44
2006	84
2005	49
2004	44

The increase in 2006 was as a result of a local police operation.

These numbers relate to specific drugs offences only (including the possession and supply of drugs) and not to other offences (such as those involving acquisitive crime) which may be related to drugs issues of the offender.

Drug misuse in prisons is measured by mandatory drug testing. The table details the number of positive random and targeted mandatory drug tests occurring at HMP Winchester in each of the last five complete financial years.

Mandatory drug tests at HMP Winchester

Financial year	Number of positive tests
2003-04	129
2004-05	132
2005-06	74
2006-07	55
2007-08	65

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Winchester Prison: Finance

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget for Winchester Prison was in each of the last five years. [258028]

Mr. Hanson: The budgets for HM Prison Winchester for the last five years were:

2004-05	15,905,573
2005-06	15,132,176
2006-07	15,020,041
2007-08	14,543,161
2008-09	14,891,331

The reduction in budgets for 2007-08 and 2008-09 reflects the fact that a wing was taken out of use for refurbishment during this time. The wing was brought back into use in November 2008.

Winchester Prison: Suicide

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners at HM Prison Winchester (a) committed suicide and (b) self-harmed in each of the last five years. [258030]

Mr. Hanson: The number of prisoner self-inflicted deaths and self harm at HM Prison Winchester are summarised in the table. To avoid any potential ambiguity both self harm incidents and numbers of individual self harmers are shown.

Self-inflicted deaths and self harm[1] at HMP Winchester

	Self-inflicted death[2]	Self harm incidents	Individual self harmers
2004	0	260	119
2005	1	153	102
2006	0	155	81
2007	0	83	38
2008	3	106	54

[1] Information on self harm is derived from a high volume administrative system. The numbers have limited accuracy and should be treated as approximate.
[2] One further self-inflicted has occurred at HM Prison Winchester so far in 2009.

Young Offender Institutions

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the redesignation of HM Prison/Young Offender Institution (HMP/YOI) Drake Hall and HM Prison Morton Hall will have on (a) the distance from home, (b) resettlement programmes, (c) community links and (d) re-offending rates of those female prisoners held in (i) HMP/YOI Drake Hall who have been assessed as suitable for semi-open conditions, (ii) HM Prison Morton Hall who have been assessed as suitable for semi-open conditions, (iii) closed conditions in the female estate and (iv) open conditions in the female estate; and if he will make a statement. [258688]

Mr. Hanson: The re-designation of HM Prison and Young Offender Institution Drake Hall and HM Prison and Young Offender Institution Morton Hall as closed prisons will allow the Prison Service to more properly provide for the needs of women suitable for each of the prisons. The effect of the change will allow for greater flexibility in the use of the estate; improving closeness to home and families for some women, allowing appropriate lifer and indeterminate sentenced women to be placed so as to better meet their needs, and in general enable more women to access the resettlement regimes available at the two prisons. There are no plans to move any of the women out of Drake Hall and Morton Hall as a result of the change. The change is essentially an administrative one, both establishments will retain their current levels of internal and perimeter security and their current resettlement regimes, including their roles as specialist, foreign national centres. Women suitable for "open" or "closed" conditions will be able to go these prisons if such a move meets their resettlement needs.

The changes are compatible with Baroness Corston's recommendation.

Young Offender Institutions: Nationality

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders held in (a) HM Prison/Young Offender Institution Drake Hall and (b) HM Prison Morton Hall are (i) UK and (ii) foreign nationals. [258087]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the numbers of foreign national and British national prisoners held in Drake Hall and Morton Hall as at the end of December 2008.

	Establishment
	Drake Hall	Morton Hall
Total population	224	332
Foreign nationals	45	225
British nationals	177	107
Nationality unrecorded	1	0

These figures have been taken from the Ministry of Justice published monthly briefing which can be accessed at the following website, where the foreign national prisoner statistics are updated quarterly:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

The population breakdowns by nationality have been scaled and also rounded to the nearest whole number; individual components may not sum to the totals.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Young People: Police Custody

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many juveniles were detained in police cells overnight in the last year for which figures are available. [256364]

Mr. Hanson: It is the Government's policy that young people should only be held overnight in police cells in the most exceptional circumstances. Our records indicate that in the last 12 months, seven young people under 18 were held overnight in police cells pending transfer to a secure establishment. That includes four young people who were accommodated in police cells on the night of 2 February 2009 owing to adverse weather conditions.

Young People: Remand in Custody

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of detaining juveniles (a) under court-ordered secure remand and (b) remanded in custody in the last year for which figures are available. [256363]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board have calculated that in 2007-08 the total cost of detaining young people under a court ordered secure remand was £19,218,653. This includes contributions from both local authorities and the Youth Justice Board.

In respect of those young people remanded into custody there is no distinction made in the Youth Justice Board's Service Level Agreement with the Prison Service between the cost of remands to custody and the cost of custodial sentences. However, based on the average costs of a bed in a young offenders institution and the average number of young people remanded to custody, the Youth Justice Board have estimated that the total cost of remands to custody in 2007-08 was £26,982,000.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Detainees

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the United States administration on allegations of torture at Guantanamo Bay. [250458]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office maintains an active bilateral dialogue on a range of human rights and international legal issues with the US Government, including on the prohibition of the use of torture. We have raised with the US allegations of mistreatment put to us by our nationals or residents currently or formerly detained at Guantanamo Bay. In the last year we have asked the US Administration to investigate allegations of mistreatment raised by UK residents Omar Deghayes, Abdennour Sameur and Binyam Mohamed including in relation to periods of detention prior to their transfer to Guantanamo Bay.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to instigate quarterly reports to Parliament of (a) UK strategy and objectives in Afghanistan and (b) UK performance against those objectives. [256063]

David Miliband: The Government have no plans to establish a system of quarterly reports to Parliament on UK strategy and performance in Afghanistan. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister set out the UK's long-term and comprehensive framework for security, political, social and economic development for Afghanistan on 12 December 2007. Ministers will continue to provide frequent reports to the House on UK policy in Afghanistan and progress in pursuit of our objectives.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date the 2008 periodic review of British strategy in Afghanistan was completed. [256067]

David Miliband: An internal stock-take of progress in Afghanistan in the 12 months to November 2008 was completed in December 2008. During the Queen's Speech debate on 3 December 2008, Official Report, column 28, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister noted that the Government were conducting a review of Afghanistan policy. That review is ongoing, drawing on the findings of the stock take and discussions with partners. The implications and findings of the review will be communicated to Parliament.

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [248119]

Bill Rammell: Afghanistan remains one of the Government's top foreign policy priorities. Developments are kept under constant review. Since 2001 there has been considerable political progress in Afghanistan. Notable achievements include the first nationwide democratic presidential and parliamentary elections and ratification of a new constitution.

With international support, Afghan-led presidential, parliamentary, provincial and district council elections are due to take place this year and in 2010. Voter registration is well under way and the third phase of this has now been completed.

We and our international partners continue to provide development assistance and work with the Afghan National Security Forces (ANSF) to ensure the political space exists for Afghanistan to continue to develop democratically. Building capacity in the ANSF remains key for Afghanistan to take responsibility for its own security. In 2008 the Afghan National Army participated in 70 per cent. of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation's International Security Assistance Force operations.

Africa: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the joint Rwanda-Democratic Republic of Congo initiative against FDLR forces. [256559]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Long-term peace and stability in the Great Lakes region of Africa depends on good relations between the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and Rwanda. The presence of the Democratic Liberation Forces of Rwanda (FDLR) militia in eastern DRC is one of the fundamental causes of the conflict there. We support the decision of the two Governments to co-operate in efforts to disband the group, and urge that they involve UN peace keepers fully in any military planning, and that any action undertaken minimises the risks to the civilian population.

Anglo Leasing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the Kenyan authorities on the Serious Fraud Office inquiry into the Anglo Leasing affair; and whether any future discussions are planned. [256221]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 11 February 2009]: Officials at our high commission in Nairobi have made repeated representations to the Kenyan Attorney General, the Kenyan Anti-Corruption Commission and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on behalf of the Serious Fraud Office (SFO), to encourage co-operation with the inquiry into the Anglo Leasing matter. We will continue to raise this matter with the Kenyan Government and look forward to hearing how the Kenyan Government plans to progress the case. We welcome the assurance from the SFO that they are willing to look at reopening the case should evidence be received from Kenya.

Asia: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what terms of reference Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles has been given in relation to his role as Special Representative to Afghanistan and Pakistan. [256611]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan will work closely with our ambassador in Kabul and our high commissioner in Islamabad, as well as co-ordinating with the other key Government Departments working on Afghanistan and Pakistan. He will focus on the cross-cutting issues facing both Governments, such as counter-extremism. He will work closely with his US counterpart, ambassador Richard Holbrooke, and will consult with other international partners to help build consensus and support for the Afghan and Pakistani Governments.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with the Governments of Afghanistan and Pakistan on the appointment of a Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan before Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles was appointed to that post. [256612]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Ministers and senior officials spoke to their Afghan and Pakistani counterparts to discuss the appointment of Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles on 6 and 7 February 2009. Our embassy in Kabul and high commission in Islamabad also discussed the appointment of the Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan with their host Governments before its announcement on 9 February 2009.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what staff will be allocated from his Department to Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles to support him in his role as Special Representative to Afghanistan and Pakistan. [256613]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan will have two members of staff allocated to support him. The Special Representative will also be able to draw on the expertise of Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff working on Afghanistan and Pakistan as well as several other Government Departments, and our missions in Kabul, Lashkar Gah, Islamabad, Karachi, and the wider region.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the post of Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan is additional to his Department's establishment; and whether the appointment has been made for a fixed period. [256615]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The position of Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan comes from the reallocation of existing resources within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The appointment has no fixed term but will be kept under periodic review.

Australia: Foreign Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a presentation to the Britain-Australia Society on his policy for UK-Australian relations. [248353]

Gillian Merron: The UK's close relationship with Australia is extremely important. It is based on a shared history, common values and vibrant people-to-people links. We remain in close and regular contact with the Australian Government at all levels, as we continue to work together to address the global challenges that we both face.

Binyam Mohamed

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions officers of the UK security services have interviewed Mr. Binyam Mohamed since April 2002. [257001]

Bill Rammell: As stated in official evidence in the recent High Court proceedings, Mr. Binyam Mohamed was interviewed on one occasion only, in May 2002, by the Security Service.

Bosco Ntaganda

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on (a) Bosco Ntaganda's indictment by the International Criminal Court and (b) Bosco Ntaganda's recent dealings with the authorities in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [256523]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The warrant unsealed by the International Criminal Court in 2008 for the arrest of Bosco Ntaganda remains outstanding. Mr. Ntaganda has been the de facto leader of the rebel National Congress for the Defence of the People (CNDP) militia in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) since the arrest of Laurent Nkunda in January 2009. We understand the DRC Government is co-operating with Ntaganda as part of the process to integrate CNDP members into the Congolese armed forces.

Bosnia: Overseas Investment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage foreign direct investment in Bosnia and Herzegovina. [244537]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) have a small team, based at the British embassy in Sarajevo, providing tailored support to UK companies wishing to expand their operations in Bosnia and Herzegovina through international trade or investment.

UKTI also provides information and links to useful sources of information, on investing in Bosnia and Herzegovina via the UKTI website www.uktradeinvest.gov.uk.

The Foreign Investment Promotion Agency (FIPA) of Bosnia and Herzegovina is a state agency whose aim is to attract and maximise foreign direct investment into Bosnia and Herzegovina, and to encourage existing foreign investors to expand and develop their business in the country.

The FIPA offer a range of services to foreign investors and the UKTI team are able to provide appropriate contacts in FIPA for UK companies interested in investing there.

The UK has also been supporting Bosnia and Herzegovina's progress towards the EU. In June 2008 Bosnia and Herzegovina signed a stabilisation and association agreement, an important step on the path to EU accession. Its aim is to a process which promotes stability and transition to a market economy.

China: Arms Control

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many meetings of the UK-China Bilateral Group on arms control and disarmament have been held since its inception; what (a) matters have been discussed and (b) decisions have been taken by the group; and if he will publish (i) each paper discussed by the group and (ii) the minutes of each meeting on his Department's website. [255773]

Bill Rammell: There is no formal bilateral working group between the UK and China on arms control and disarmament. However, we maintain a high level dialogue between senior officials to discuss counter-proliferation issues. The most recent of these exchanges took place in September 2008 between the FCO Director-General for Defence and Intelligence and her Chinese counterpart. I recently raised matters of counter-proliferation with my Chinese counterpart during my visit to Beijing last month. In addition, embassy officials in Beijing regularly meet officials from the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs to discuss these issues.

Climate Change: Developing Countries

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what activities the UK Climate Security Envoy for Vulnerable Countries has undertaken since his appointment. [255171]

Gillian Merron: Since his appointment in October 2008, the UK Climate Security Envoy has been working closely with Department for International Development (DFID) to devise an engagement strategy for the countries most vulnerable to climate change worldwide, which are often the poorest. The aim is to help their voice be heard more clearly by the major economies. This is being taken forward by direct contacts with the countries concerned, including by the envoy and through the network of Foreign and Commonwealth Office posts and DFID offices.

Conflict Resolution

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which dates the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms met representatives of (a) the United Nations, (b) the EU, (c) the African Union and (d) others; and where each meeting took place. [256826]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Jack McConnell MSP, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms, is based in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He met officials from the European Council, European Commission and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation on 9-10 December 2008 in Brussels, and from the UN on 15-16 December 2008 in New York. Mr. McConnell also met EU officials on 2-3 February 2009 in Bosnia. He plans to meet officials from the African Union shortly.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what communications the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms has had with (a) the United Nations, (b) the EU, (c) the African Union and (d) others, broken down by type of communication; and on which dates such communications took place. [256827]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Jack McConnell MSP, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms, is based in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He met officials from the European Council, European Commission and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation on 9-10 December 2008 in Brussels, and from the UN on 15-16 December 2008 in New York. Mr. McConnell also met EU officials on 2-3 February 2009 in Bosnia. He plans to meet officials from the African Union shortly.

Defence: Expert Capability

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recommendations the Cabinet Office review of the UK's civilian expert capability made in relation to the operation of his Department; and what steps are being taken to implement them. [253957]

David Miliband: The Cabinet Office Review of the UK's civilian expert capacity, agreed by National Security, International Relations and Development Overseas and Defence sub-committee Ministers on 21 January 2009, recommended enhancing the role of the Cross-Departmental Stabilisation Unit jointly managed by the Department for International Development (DFID), the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD), to allow it to become the primary Government delivery unit for deploying high quality civilian experts, as part of improving the overall effectiveness of our deployable civilian capability. An implementation team, drawn from the FCO, DFID and the MOD is being established to take forward the review's recommendations, including the proposal to transfer the management of secondments to multilateral missions, such as the EU and the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe, from the FCO to the Stabilisation Unit.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1519W, on armed conflict: reconstruction, if he will place a copy of the Cabinet Office review of the UK's civilian expert capability in the Library. [253964]

David Miliband: The recommendations of the Cabinet Office Review into Stabilisation and Civil Effect were presented to Ministers as a Cabinet Sub-Committee Paper. The Cabinet Office has advised that this paper should not be placed in the Library. Information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet Committees, including Cabinet Committee papers, is generally not disclosed as to do so could be prejudicial to the formulation of policy through full and frank discussion.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many letters received by his Department more than (a) one month and (b) three months ago have not been answered. [255495]

	£ million
2007-08	114.643
2006-07	78.959
2005-06	109.797

These figures include expenditure by the FCO's two agencies (FCO Services and Wilton Park), and covers all non-capital costs, including communications, incurred in the provision of data to staff worldwide.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to his Department of replying to requests made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) January to July 2008 was. [255680]

Gillian Merron: A report prepared for the Ministry of Justice by Frontier Economics Ltd., in October 2006, entitled "Independent Review of the impact of the Freedom of Information Act" estimated a figure of £254 for a central Government body to deal with an initial freedom of information request. Based on this figure, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has spent an estimated £805,434 since 2006.

The report is available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 1043W, which gives details on the costs of maintaining these sites. The cost of maintaining our 232 departmental websites on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO)'s previous web platform in 2007-08 was approximately £870,000. The cost of maintaining the 240 departmental websites on the FCO's new web platform in 2008-09 is expected to be £1,386,000. These figures cover hosting and support costs, but are not directly comparable because of the extensive changes in the way the web platform is managed in 2008-09, compared to 2007-08. The costs do not include staff time spent updating the website.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255229]

Gillian Merron: No.

Departmental Reorganisation

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 1399W, on departmental reorganisation, what decisions have been made about the level of his Department's funding for science and innovation in financial years (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [246281]

David Miliband: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills have agreed funding arrangements for the next two years on science and innovation work. This will see an increase from £9.85 million in 2008-09 to £10.15 million in 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Departmental Secondment

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1773-77W, on departmental secondment, how many officials are on secondment from his Department, broken down by (a) job title, (b) grade and (c) department or institution to which they are seconded. [257091]

Gillian Merron: As at 1 February 2009 there were 136 officials seconded from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) to a wide range of other Government Departments, non-governmental organisations and the private sector. The 136 officials comprise 40 senior management level, 17 at D7, 34 at D6, 11 at C5, 15 at C4, 14 at B3 and five at A2 level. For security reasons it is not possible to provide a breakdown by job title and Department or institution.

These figures do not include FCO staff working for UK Trade & Investment or the UK Borders Agency.

EU Foreign Policy

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what foreign policy objectives the EU has established, ranked in order of priority assigned by the Council of Ministers; and if he will make a statement. [254456]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 5 February 2009]: The European Council sets the direction for the EU through a process of negotiation between the 27 member states, and makes its decisions known through Council conclusions. Every six months the rotating EU presidency publishes a plan of action which is reported to the Council and contains a section on foreign policy. However, these papers do not rank foreign policy objectives in priority order.

The 2003 European Security Strategy (ESS) provides the framework for the EU's external action. In December 2008 the European Council endorsed the High Representatives Review of the implementation of the ESS. The ESS and the review suggest that Europe needs to be more active, more capable and more coherent in the external sphere and to work with partners in achieving its objectives. These include tackling distant threats such as terrorism and proliferation, with a focus on Iran and North Korea; building security in our neighbourhood including in the Balkans, the Middle East and the Mediterranean; and contributing to a well functioning international institutional system that is rule-based. The documents set out the need for the EU to tackle concerns over "frozen conflicts", to push towards a settlement in the Middle East and to focus on ensuring energy security, including greater diversification of energy sources and a more unified energy market within the EU.

The review makes clear the principle that states have a shared responsibility to protect populations, and that there is a link between security and development leading to the need for a comprehensive approach to conflict prevention and resolution combining all of the tools at the EU's disposal. The review also acknowledges the role that the EU has to play in conflicts further afield such as stabilising Afghanistan, and supporting UN objectives in the Democratic Republic of Congo, Sudan/Darfur, Chad and Somalia. It also recognises the need for the EU to expand relationships with China and India and maintain close ties with Canada and Japan, and build on relations with Brazil and South Africa.

EU Satellite Centre

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the funding of the European Union Satellite Centre in Torrejón, Spain came from the United Kingdom in 2008. [257067]

Caroline Flint: The UK paid 16.90 per cent. to the EU Satellite Centre's budgets last year, in accordance with the gross national income key rate for 2008. This represented £1.4 million towards the centre's budget.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to the public purse was of requests by the UK for information from the European Union Satellite Centre in Torrejón, Spain in 2008. [257068]

Caroline Flint: There was no additional cost to the public purse of requests by the UK for information from the EU Satellite Centre (EUSC) in Torrejón, Spain in 2008.

Although the UK did submit some tasks in 2008, these were assessed to be of interest to other member states as well, and were adopted as Council tasks. There was therefore no additional charge to the UK, beyond our mandatory annual contribution towards the costs of the EUSC.

The EUSC board approves a new budget annually, and the UK's annual contribution therefore changes each year according to the size of the uplift and any changes to the gross national income key rate applied. In 2008, the UK's contribution was £1.4 million.

Falkland Islands: Air Routes

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on the British Antarctic Survey of recent increases in fares on the Falkland Islands airbridge. [257812]

Gillian Merron: It is understood that the impact of recent fare increases remains manageable within the British Antarctic Survey budget.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253594]

Gillian Merron: Neither the Foreign and Commonwealth Office nor its agencies can levy administrative financial penalties.

Guantanamo Bay

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the Government plans to provide the US administration in closing the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay. [255561]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 10 February 2009]: We welcome President Obama's Executive Order to close Guantanamo Bay within one year, and further Orders on detainee treatment and interrogation techniques. The UK has long called for the closure of the Guantanamo Bay detention facility and we recognise that the US Government will require help from its allies to achieve this. We have already secured the release and return of 13 UK nationals and residents from Guantanamo Bay. We will continue to share our experience in accepting the transfer of former Guantanamo detainees with our European partners and others to help support the closure of the detention facility.

Horn of Africa: Politics and Government

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the current political situation in (a) Somalia, (b) Ethiopia and (c) the surrounding region; and if he will make a statement. [254116]

Gillian Merron: The Somali Parliament expanded its number of seats by 275 during the latest round of talks in Djibouti in the last week of January. Over 150 new Members of Parliament (MPs) were sworn in. The MPs elected a new President, Sheikh Sharif Ahmed, on 31 January 2009, who will lead the Somali Government. It is too early to assess whether this development will help to produce the broad-based Government Somalia needs, although the expansion of Parliament is in itself a positive development.

We are working with the Ethiopian Government to ensure political space is maintained ahead of the Ethiopian national elections next year. Our current concerns focus around the passing of a law regulating non-governmental organisation social advocacy, and the re-arrest of the opposition politician Birtukan Midekssa.

We welcomed the completion of Ethiopia's mission in Somalia, and its withdrawal.

The UN Security Council (UNSC) recently passed a resolution condemning Eritrea for its incursion into Djibouti in June 2008. We will continue to monitor the dispute, paying particular attention to the deadline set by the UNSC for Eritrea to take action to engage on and resolve the dispute with Djibouti.

In relation to the Ethiopia-Eritrea border dispute, while there has been no recent fighting, a resolution of the underlying problem currently appears unlikely.

India: Terrorism

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Indian counterpart about international terrorism. [254683]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited India on 13-15 January 2009. During his visit he met his Indian counterpart, External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee, where they discussed the challenge that both the UK and India face from international terrorism, and the importance of strengthening bilateral counter terrorism co-operation.

Following his subsequent visit to Islamabad on 16-17 January 2009, the Foreign Secretary outlined in a letter to External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee the messages he gave to the government of Pakistan. He highlighted the need for Pakistan to take rapid, concrete action to bring the perpetrators of the Mumbai attacks to justice and to dismantle terror networks operating on Pakistani soil.

International Relations

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on the observance in the UK of the Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories pursuant to UN General Assembly Resolution A/RES/63/110; and if he will make a statement. [254098]

Gillian Merron: No such representations have been received. The UK remains committed to modernising its relationship with the Overseas Territories, whilst taking fully into account the views of the peoples of the Territories.

Iran: International Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next expects the foreign ministers of the P5+1 to meet to discuss a new UN Security Council Resolution on Iran; and if he will make a statement. [253953]

David Miliband: Senior officials from the E3+3 met on 4 February 2009. They reaffirmed their commitment to achieving a diplomatic resolution to the Iran nuclear issue based on the dual track strategy embodied in a series of UN Security Council Resolutions. They agreed to consult on next steps. At present, a date has not been set for a meeting of E3+3 Foreign Ministers.

Iran: Proscribed Organisations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the Government of Iran on the decision to de-proscribe the People's Mojahedin Organisation of Iran as a terrorist organisation within the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [253954]

David Miliband: The status of the Mujaheddin-e-Khalq (MEK, also known as the People's Mujahedeen Organisation of Iran or PMOI) has been regularly discussed by Ministers and officials in meetings with their Iranian counterparts, most recently, on 7 February 2009, when the Speaker of the Iranian Parliament, Ali Larijani, raised the issue with me.

On 26 January 2009 the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council adopted a new list of proscribed organisations and individuals, which did not include the PMOI.

Iraq: Asylum

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to seek to ensure the recognition of international humanitarian requirements in respect of the inhabitants of Ashraf city. [256110]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 10 February 2009]: Responsibility for the camp was handed to the Iraqi authorities from 1 January 2009 by the US. The US will retain a presence at the camp in an advisory/monitoring capacity. We understand that the International Committee of the Red Cross is following developments at the camp closely and that the Iraqi authorities have undertaken to continue to provide access to such bodies as well as to the US authorities.

The US received assurances from the Iraqi authorities making clear their commitment to the humane treatment and continued wellbeing of the camp residents. We understand the Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights also visited the camp and delivered these assurances to a representative body of the residents.

We are naturally concerned that the rights of all those involved are observed and that they continue to be treated humanely and their human rights respected. We understand that the US remains satisfied that the Iraqi authorities are fully aware of their responsibilities with regard to Camp Ashraf and its residents.

Israel: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions since January 2008 (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department have discussed with their Israeli counterparts Israel's possession of nuclear weapons. [255772]

Bill Rammell: Ministers have had no discussions, since January 2008, with our Israeli counterparts regarding their possession of nuclear weapons.

We have on a number of occasions called on Israel to accede to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation treaty as a non-nuclear weapon state and also to the Chemical Weapons Convention, and will continue to do so.

Kashmir

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his counterparts in India and Pakistan on the situation in Kashmir; what steps his Department is taking in support of a bilateral resolution between India and Pakistan; and if he will make a statement. [255558]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 9 February 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last discussed the situation in Kashmir with Indian External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee on 14 January 2009 and with Pakistani Foreign Minister Qureshi on 26 November 2008. Our policy towards Kashmir has not changed—we continue to encourage both Pakistan and India to seek a lasting resolution to the issue of Kashmir, which takes into account the wishes of the Kashmiri people.

Through the Conflict Prevention Programme, the Government fund a number of projects designed to support efforts to facilitate dialogue, address the causes and impact of conflict and create improvements in the quality of life experienced by Kashmiris. We are supporting capacity-building and skills training for non-governmental organisations on both sides of the Line of Control, funding media projects that bring Indian and Pakistani journalists together, and helping with curriculum design that promotes a modern approach to education.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Kosovo; and if he will make a statement. [257509]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has written to Prime Minister Thaçi warmly congratulating him on the first anniversary of Kosovo's independence, and has made a statement to the press.

In its first year, Kosovo's leaders have made significant progress in demonstrating their commitment to implementing Ahtisaari's Comprehensive Settlement Proposal. Since the largely peaceful transition to independence last February, a new constitution has been brought into force, important legislation has been created to protect communities within Kosovo, the EU's Rule of Law Mission in Kosovo (EULEX), has deployed across Kosovo and the Kosovo security force has been created. Throughout this, Kosovo's Government have tackled obstacles and worked constructively with international partners.

Prime Minister Thaçi has announced the Kosovo Government's priorities for 2009: creating opportunities for capital investment and jobs, modernising Kosovo's infrastructure, improving education and the health service and creating a cleaner environment. These are key goals, and there is other important work to do too: improving outreach to communities, for which a successful outcome of the programme to devolve competences to representative local government is important, and working together with EULEX to tackle rule of law issues.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251350]

Gillian Merron: The amount spent by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) on legal fees in respect of counsel and solicitors in private practice by way of disbursements via the Treasury Solicitor (the bulk of our external legal costs) in each of the past five years is as follows:

2003-04	237,273.32
2004-05	331,731.68
2005-06	350,693.31
2006-07	409,173.17
2007-08	223,028.63

The FCO does not hold information on aggregate amounts of other external fees.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government has received on war crimes allegedly committed by Hamas during Operation Cast Lead; and if he will make a statement. [255107]

Bill Rammell: We know that Hamas deliberately targets Israeli civilians. We have repeatedly condemned such attacks and for years we have classed the military wing of Hamas as a terrorist group.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of civilians who were allegedly (a) killed and (b) injured (i) in booby-trapped houses and (ii) by bombs placed by Hamas in the Gaza Strip during the recent hostilities; and if he will make a statement. [255108]

Bill Rammell: According to the Palestinian Ministry of Health (as at 5 February 2009) between 27 December 2008 and 18 January 2009 1,440 Palestinians were killed during the recent conflict in Gaza, of whom 431 were children and 114 were women.

The number of injuries stands at 5,380, of whom 1,872 are children and 800 are women.

We are unable to verify these figures or who was responsible when these deaths or injuries occurred.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of (a) rockets and (b) mortar shells fired at Israel since 18 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [255109]

Bill Rammell: As at 9 February 2009, according to the Israeli Foreign Ministry, over 30 rockets, mortar shells and Grad missiles have been fired at Israel since the 18 January 2009.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the presence in the Gaza Strip of Iranian-made weapons; what assessment he has made of such reports; and what assessment he has made of the extent of the (a) cognisance of and (b) involvement in such activity by the Iranian Government. [256062]

David Miliband: Due to the sensitive nature of the reporting concerned we are unable to comment on this matter in detail.

However, we have long had serious concerns about the support that Iran provides in the form of funding, training and arms supplies to groups which are undermining peace in the Middle East through violence, including Hamas. Such support is unacceptable and only serves to undermine regional security. We hope that Iran will instead give political and diplomatic support to the Palestinian Authority in its attempts to build institutions and improve security.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made a recent assessment of the references to Jewish people in the Hamas Charter in relation to the political situation in Gaza. [256156]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 10 February 2009]: We have made no recent assessment of the Hamas Charter. We have long been clear that there are significant aspects of the Hamas Charter, its policy and its action which we completely deplore.

The Government condemn all acts of racism, anti-Semitism and religious intolerance. We are fully committed to tackling these manifestations of hatred. That is why we extended the scope of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 to cover religiously as well as racially aggravated offences.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the grade and salary range was of each member of his Department's staff seconded to support the Quartet Middle East Envoy in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; how many such staff will each grade and salary range will be so seconded in 2009; how much his Department spent on such staff in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [248749]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has seconded: one higher executive officer equivalent (salary range £23,157 to £31,495); one Grade 7 equivalent (salary range £38,852 to £53,783); and one senior civil servant (salary range £57,300 to £116,000) to work in Tony Blair's office between 2007-08. This is not set to change in 2009. The FCO is funding their salaries.

A locally engaged secondee to the Office of the Quartet Representative in Jerusalem from October 2007 to August 2008 was also funded through the Conflict Prevention Pool at a cost of £30,874. The Department for International Development also funds a secondee to provide expert governance analysis.

Middle East: Women

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps he has taken to promote the inclusion of women in conflict resolution and peace building in Israel and Palestine as provided for under UN Security Council Resolution 1325; and if he will make a statement. [257295]

Bill Rammell: In both international organisations and at local levels, the UK remains a leading supporter of women's roles in delivering sustainable peace and security. We led the call for the adoption of both UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1325 and the follow on resolution UNSCR 1820 and continue to support the inclusion of language that reaffirms the importance of UNSCR 1325 in UN peacekeeping mandates.

In Israel and Palestine, we have supported organisations working to promote women's roles in political processes and their ability to influence public policy.

Pakistan: Foreign Relations

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of Pakistan on the death of Major General Amir Faisal Alavi (Ret'd); and if he will make a statement. [252075]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has received a letter dated 23 January 2009 from a member of Major General Alavi's family, asking the FCO to register an interest in this case with the Pakistani authorities. We are seeking further information and will follow up on that basis.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what safeguards are in place to ensure that financial aid provided by the Government to Gaza is not used by Hamas (a) to procure weapons and (b) for any other military purpose. [254267]

Bill Rammell: It is vital that aid reaches the people in Gaza who need it and we take any diversion of aid very seriously. There are well developed international mechanisms for the delivery of aid in Gaza, principally through the UN Relief and Works Agency and the World Food Programme. The UK ensures, when deciding which humanitarian agencies to fund, that robust monitoring and evaluation frameworks are in place and that the organisations have experience of operating in Gaza to minimise any misappropriation of aid.

Persian Gulf: Politics and Government

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the sovereignty of the three islands of Greater Tunb, Lesser Tunb and Abu Musa in the Persian Gulf. [254482]

Bill Rammell: The UK regards this dispute as a matter for resolution between the countries concerned.

Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1208-09W, on redundancy, what estimate he has made of the annual payroll savings resulting from staff exit schemes in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09, excluding the cost of severance packages; and what estimate he has made of such savings to be accrued by his Department in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [254396]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 5 February 2009]: The annual payroll savings resulting from departures under staff exit schemes in 2007-08 were £5.7 million and in 2008-09 £3.5 million. Complete records are not held centrally for 2005-06 or 2006-07 and to obtain them would incur disproportionate cost.

The figures given for severance commitments in my answer of 25 November 2008 represented the total cost to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (to be paid out over periods of up to 10 years following the departure date) of all the severance packages agreed each year.

Reliable estimates of the balance between cost and savings of these departures would require calculating the annual payments and foregone salary up to age 60 for each member of staff who left under the schemes between 2005 and 2009. This would incur disproportionate cost.

All severance packages authorised under our early retirement schemes were calculated in strict accordance with the Civil Service Compensation Scheme.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not plan any large-scale exit schemes for the years 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the security situation in the Somali capital in the light of reports that Islamist forces have entered the city. [253955]

David Miliband: Although still fragile, security in the Somali capital appears to have improved since Ethiopia withdrew its troops and some displaced people are returning to the city. Some of the forces now in Mogadishu have been described as Islamist, but only a small number are extremist anti-Government fighters, some of whom are known as the Shabaab.

South Africa: Entry Clearances

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has received from the South African Government on proposed visa requirements for South African citizens visiting the UK. [256673]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received no representations from the South African Government on the proposed visa requirements for South African citizens visiting the UK. In response to the decision to impose a visa regime on South Africa, the South African Government have noted their respect for the UK's sovereign right to make this decision and its commitment to continued co-operation on migration issues of mutual concern.

Spain: Overseas Residence

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens were registered as resident in Spain in each of the last 10 years. [257699]

Caroline Flint: The following figures are official figures obtained from the Spanish National Institute of Statistics for the number of British nationals registered with their local council. A large number of British residents, both full-time and part-time, do not register with either their local consulate or with the Spanish authorities. However, we estimate that there are currently in the region of one million British nationals living in Spain for all or part of the year.

	Number
1998	69,818
1999	76,874
2000	86,043
2001	99,803
2002	119,859
2003	161,507
2004	174,810
2005	227,187
2006	274,722
2007	314,951

Sri Lanka

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) meetings and (b) other contacts he has had with representatives of the Sri Lankan Government in 2009. [254628]

Bill Rammell: On 30 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary telephoned President Rajapakse to discuss the current situation in Sri Lanka and to reiterate his call for a humanitarian ceasefire. Officials from our High Commission hold regular talks with the Sri Lankan Government.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to his Sri Lankan counterpart regarding the reports of high civilian casualties in the ongoing operations in the north of the country. [253348]

David Miliband: I made it clear in my written ministerial statement of 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 29WS, that the Government are deeply concerned about the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka and the growing number of internally displaced persons.

In that statement, and in subsequent discussions with the Sri Lankan President and Foreign Minister, I have urged repeatedly for the Sri Lankan Government to call an immediate humanitarian ceasefire so that civilians have the opportunity to move away from the conflict area and humanitarian assistance can be safely delivered.

Sri Lanka: Storms

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his UN Security Council counterparts on a full UN needs assessment of the Vanni area in Sri Lanka following Cyclone Nisha in November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [253349]

David Miliband: The UK supports a full independent needs assessment mission to northern Sri Lanka. We are pressing the Sri Lankan Government at the highest level to allow this. We also regularly discuss the situation in Sri Lanka with other members of the UN Security Council.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to monitor the political situation in the Nuba Mountains; and what steps his Department is taking to support the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in the region. [255534]

Gillian Merron: Our embassy in Khartoum monitors the situation in the Nuba Mountains through its contacts with the UN Mission in Sudan (UNMIS), the Government of Sudan and both parties to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), the National Congress Party and the Sudanese Peoples Liberation Movement, and other contacts within Sudan including the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC).

We are supporting implementation of the CPA in the region through active participation in the Three Areas Working Group of the AEC, which visited South Kordofan, including the Nuba Mountains, in November 2008. We and other donors are providing funding for community based peace building efforts in the region.

Tony Blair

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 893W, on Tony Blair, how much expenditure has been (a) incurred by and (b) reimbursed to the Quartet Representative in each year since his appointment. [255378]

Bill Rammell: We do not directly oversee or reimburse expenses incurred by the Quartet Representative.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has seconded: one higher executive officer equivalent (salary range £23,157 to £31, 495); one Grade 7 equivalent (salary range £38,852 to £53,783); and one senior civil servant (salary range £57,300 to £116,000) to work in Tony Blair's office between 2007-2008. This is not set to change in 2009. The FCO is funding their salaries.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent proposals the UK has put forward to resolve the political situation in Zimbabwe; and what plans he has to place the situation in Zimbabwe on the formal agenda of the UN Security Council. [253951]

David Miliband: On 30 January, the MDC announced the acceptance of the power sharing accord brokered at the SADC summit on 26 January. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement in response on 30 January.

We have always said that we can not see how a Government who include Mugabe can work. But we have also been clear that it is up to Zimbabweans to decide their own future. Our hope is that the parties can make the agreed work. We will judge the new Government on their actions. In common with other members of the international community, we will be looking for the Government to demonstrate, through their actions, a commitment to reform.

We would expect, in the coming days and weeks, to see the release of political prisoners, an immediate end to political violence and intimidation, the repeal of repressive legislation, the appointment of a credible finance team, and a clear roadmap to the next national elections. Our formal engagement, including the provision of donor support and the continuation of our efforts to encourage increased UN engagement, will depend on how the Government meet these expectations.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government have had with the new unity government of Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [255651]

Gillian Merron: The new unity Government were sworn in on 13 February 2009. Our engagement with the new Government, including the provision of donor support, will be dependent on the how the new Government demonstrate, through their actions, a commitment to change and reform.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Death: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) males and (b) females in each age group in each region died from an alcohol-related illness in 2007. [255200]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

Death: Clostridium Difficile

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many deaths of (a) males and (b) females in each age group where clostridium difficile was recorded as a cause of death took place in each of the last five years. [257178]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many deaths of (a) males and (b) females in each age group where Clostridium difficile was recorded as a cause of death took place in each of the last five years. (257178)

The attached tables provide the number of deaths where Clostridium difficile was mentioned on the death certificate, either as the underlying cause (table 7) or as a contributing factor, (table 2) for (a) males and (b) females, by age group for 2003 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Death: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many death certificates were issued in respect of deceased (a) men and (b) women which cited healthcare-associated infections as the underlying cause of death in each year since 2003, broken down by (i) age group and (ii) type of infection. [257555]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many death certificates were issued in respect of deceased (a) men and (b) women which cited (i) healthcare-associated infections as the underlying cause of death in each year since 2003, broken down by (i) age group and (ii) type of infection. (257555)

There is currently no official definition of deaths from healthcare associated infection. The attached tables provide the number of deaths where Clostridium difficile (table 1) and Meticillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) (table 2), two specific types of healthcare associated infection, were mentioned on the death certificate as the underlying cause for (a) men and (b) women, by age group for 2003 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Death: Weather

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many excess winter deaths occurred in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each of the last 10 years. [257087]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many excess winter deaths occurred in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each of the last 10 years. (257087)

Estimates of excess winter deaths are based on the difference between the number of deaths during the four winter months (December to March) and the average number of deaths during the preceding four months (August to November) and the following four months (April to July). The table attached provides the number of excess winter deaths that occurred in (a) Eastbourne local authority district and (b) East Sussex county for the years 1997/98 to 2006/07 (the latest figures available).

Table 1: Excess winter deaths,[1] Eastbourne local authority district and East Sussex county,[2] 1997-98 to 2006-07[3]

Deaths (persons)

Winter	Eastbourne	East Sussex
1997-98	80	260
1998-99	90	410
1999-2000	180	740
2000-01	40	320
2001-02	70	300
2002-03	90	220
2003-04	80	480
2004-05	100	360
2005-06	70	480
2006-07	70	250

[1] The estimated number of excess winter deaths is the difference between the number of deaths during the four winter months (December to March) and the average number of deaths during the preceding four months (August to November) and the following four months (April to July). Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
[2] Based on boundaries as of 2008.

Debts

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much household debt there was in each (a) parliamentary constituency, (b) county and (c) Government office region in September (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007 and (iv) 2008. [255852]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question on how much household debt there was in each (a) parliamentary constituency, (b) county and (c) Government region in September (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007 and (iv) 2008. (255852)

In the UK National Accounts the most appropriate measure of household debt is the total financial liabilities of the Household and Non Profit Institutions Serving Households (NPISH) combined sector. It is not possible to split the sectors, NPISH includes for example, charities, trade unions and churches, their liabilities are small in relation to the total.

Data for the total financial liabilities of the Household and NPISH sector only exists at a UK national level. There is no breakdown available at a (a) parliamentary constituency, (b) county, or a (c) Government region level.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) the Cabinet Office and (ii) its agency. [256059]

Mr. Watson: Copies of the display energy certificate and advisory reports have been placed in the Library.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed in No. 10 Downing Street; [256202]

(2) how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256216]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office. Checks on nationality are carried out on recruitment to the Cabinet Office. The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by the Cabinet Office in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251374]

Mr. Watson: The following table lists the major ICT projects that have been undertaken by my Department.

Project	Start year	Estimated cost (£ million)	Estimated delivery date	Outturn cost (£ million)	Outturn delivery date	Main contractor
Flex transformation	2007	3.16	July 2008	Not yet complete	Not yet complete	Fujitsu

On SCOPE, I refer you to the answer given to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield (Mr. Grieve) on 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 360W.

We have only included major projects in our response whose value exceeds £1 million. There are many other smaller lower cost projects, for example, to cover software development, hardware updates, infrastructure changes, but to collect all the requisite data would be at disproportionate cost.

Responsibility for the Government Gateway was transferred to DWP with effect from 1 April 2008.

Prior to 2005, the information requested is not readily available from the Department's accounting systems. Also payment to individual contractors is not readily available from the Department's accounting systems. This information is therefore available only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255080]

Mr. Watson: EIAs are an integral part of the policy making process, not an additional or separate exercise and so the number of EIAs is not available. A cost estimate would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people the Cabinet Office employs. [255678]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet office staff numbers are published quarterly and can be found on the Office for National Statistics website here:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_labour/Table6AllDepts.xls

The most recent quarterly publication has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 154W, on departmental telephones, how many Cabinet Office mobile telephones procured for official use through the Vodafone contracts have been replaced due to (a) loss, (b) theft or (c) damage in the last 18 months. [249941]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office has recorded that of the mobile phones procured for official use under the Vodafone contracts, 11 have been reported lost, two stolen and 14 damaged during the past 18 months.

Departmental Planning Permission

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what planning applications the Cabinet Office has made in the last 18 months. [249906]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office to him on 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1186W.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how much his Department has spent on potted plants in each of the last three years; [254430]

(2) how much the Cabinet Office has spent on flowers in each of the last three years; [254871]

(3) how much has been spent on (a) pot plants and (b) cut flowers for No. 10 Downing Street in each of the last three years. [256171]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) by my hon. Friend the then Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 17 October 2007, Official Report, column 1131W and to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 324W.

Departmental Procurement

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his Department's (a) procurement and (b) tendering policy is in respect of social enterprises. [255693]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to her by the then Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office (Phil Hope) on 4 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2483-84W.

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of (a) UK nationals, (b) people born in the UK, (c) foreign nationals, (d) non-UK EU nationals, (e) EU A8 nationals and (f) non-EU nationals of working age in the UK were in employment in the fourth quarter of 2008. [254174]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many and what proportion of (a) UK nationals, (b) people born in the UK, (c) foreign nationals, (d) non-UK EU nationals, (e) EU A8 nationals and (f) non-EU nationals of working age in the UK were in employment in the fourth quarter of 2008. (254174)

The information requested is shown in the attached table. The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures in the table are derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. They are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, or the migrant worker figures published every quarter, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

Foreign Workers: EU Countries

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many migrant workers from each EU member state have (a) entered and (b) left the UK in each (i) month, (ii) quarter and (iii) year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [250931]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many migrant workers from each EU Member State have (a) entered and (b) left the UK in each (i) month, (ii) quarter and (in) year since 1997. (250931)

The International Passenger Survey (IPS) is the only source of information on people entering and leaving the UK. The sample size of the IPS means that we cannot provide the level of detail requested; however the attached table provides estimates of migration by EU citizens, which is stated as being for work purposes, for each year since 1997. Figures for A8 citizens are identified separately in the table.

Please note that the migration estimates provided only cover those visiting or leaving the UK for periods of twelve months or more. They do not include short-term migrants (i.e. those entering or leaving the UK for less than twelve months). Also note that not all those travelling for work related reasons will become migrant workers since they may not find work in the UK. Similarly, those who travel for other purposes may subsequently work and therefore become migrant workers.

Government Departments: Disclosure of Information

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many unauthorised disclosures of information for each Government Department have been reported to the Cabinet Office in each of the last 10 years; in each case, (a) what the nature of the information disclosed was, (b) to whom the information was disclosed and (c) what the post was of the person who disclosed the information; and if he will make a statement. [249762]

Mr. Watson: The total number of leaks recorded by Cabinet Office each year since 2005, when a central record was begun, is as follows:

	Total number of leaks
2005	78
2006	98
2007	50

Information for 2008 is currently being assessed. These numbers do not necessarily capture all instances of unauthorised disclosure across Government.

It is for departmental permanent secretaries to take decisions on whether leak investigations into the unauthorised disclosure of information originating in their Departments should be carried out. It has been the policy of successive Administrations not to comment on security matters other than in exceptional circumstances when it is in the public interest to do so.

Government Information Services: Public Consultation

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the set-up costs of the website www.showusabetterway.co.uk were; what the (a) operating and (b) maintenance costs of the website were in the last 12 months; and how many hits the site received during the last 12 months. [257000]

Mr. Watson: The Show Us A Better Way competition sought ideas from the public on how to reuse public information to better deliver public services—the best ones would get developed 'to the next level'. It was hosted online through:

http://typepad.com

The platform supported both:

www.showusabetterway.com

and

www.buildingdemocracy.co.uk

www.showusabetterway.com

received 224,421 page views and

received 25,405 over their lifetime.

The overall cost for developing the backend and designing the two sites was £9,223.75 (including COI fees of £650 and VAT at 17.5 per cent.). Operation and maintenance is done by existing civil servants within existing budgets: it takes very little time due to the blog structure. A years hosting cost $149.50.

Senior Civil Servants: Retirement

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of members of the Senior Civil Service will reach standard retirement age in the next five years. [255041]

Mr. Watson: Of all SCS members in post as at 31 March 2008, 285 (6.8 per cent.) will reach the age of 65 (statutory retirement age) on or before 6 February 2014.

Job Vacancies

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his latest estimate is of the number of job vacancies in the economy; and what forecast he has made of the number of vacancies in the economy in October 2009. [258247]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the latest estimate is of the number of job vacancies in the British economy and what forecast has been made of the number of vacancies in the economy in October 2009. (258247)

The latest, seasonally adjusted estimate of the number of vacancies in the United Kingdom was 504,000, for the 3 month period November 2008 to January 2009. The Office for National Statistics estimates the number of vacancies from the UK Vacancy Survey. No forecasts are made of future vacancy levels.

New Businesses

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many new businesses were registered in (a) Braintree and (b) England in the last five years. [256845]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what estimate has been made of the number of new businesses registered in (a) Braintree and (b) England in the last five years (256845).

Annual statistics on births, deaths and survivals of businesses are available from the ONS release on Business Demography. The table below contains the latest annual estimates.

Business Births

	Braintree	England
2003	720	236,220
2004	810	248,450
2005	750	241,410
2006	700	225,120
2007	830	266,165

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many non-departmental public bodies there have been in each year since 1980. [255681]

Mr. Watson: This information is published in the annual Cabinet Office Public Bodies report. Copies are available from the Libraries of the House.

Non-profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will update the "Think Smart: think voluntary sector" good practice guidance on procurement to include social enterprise. [257063]

Kevin Brennan: I have no plans to update the "Think Smart: Think Voluntary Sector" guidance. Although the title refers to the voluntary sector, the key messages embedded in the document of improving the participation of third sector organisations in public service contracting are relevant for all third sector organisations including social enterprises.

Public Sector: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 468W, on central government manpower, which public sector bodies which were classified as central government for the purpose of employee headcounts were not included within the Civil Service as of (a) April 1997 and (b) the most recent date for which data are available. [257012]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning which public sector bodies were classified as central government for the purpose of employee headcounts, but were not included within the Civil Service as of (a) April 1997 and (b) the most recent date for which data is available.

Detailed information about the public bodies surveyed as part of the 1997 data collection which were classified as central government for the purpose of employee headcounts, but not included within the Civil Service is not available.

The most recent date for which estimates are available is September 2008. A full breakdown of public sector bodies not included within the Civil Service employee headcount is attached at Annex A.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 468-73W, on central government: manpower, what changes have been made to the methodology for calculating the Civil Service headcount since May 1997. [257013]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question concerning what changes have been made to the methodology for calculating the Civil Service headcount since May 1997.

Estimates for the home civil service from Q3 2004 onwards are taken from the Civil Service element of the Quarterly Public Sector Employment Survey (QPSES). Estimates prior to this date are based on results from the Civil Service Statistics publication (Mandate collection) available for 1 April and 1 October. A quarterly path back to 1991 was estimated by Office for National Statistics (ONS) using standard procedures.

In 2005, ONS, in collaboration with other departments and the devolved administrations, implemented major improvements to public sector employment estimates. Standard definitions for public sector employment across all departmental statistics were agreed and a single definitive set of quarterly public sector employment estimates introduced.

The following are changes in definition that were implemented as part of the transition to QPSES. To maintain consistency with Cabinet Office no revisions were made to previously published statistics.

Self-employed, contract workers and agency temporary workers should be excluded from estimates.

Workers who only work part of the year (for example, those on casual or annualised hours contracts) should be counted at the time they are being paid for — if they are not working but are still being paid they should be included. If they are not working and not being paid at the reference point they should be excluded from the statistics.

Employees on different types of leave should be treated in the following way in headcounts:

All those on paid maternity leave should be included.

All those on paid sick leave (being paid either in full or part) should be included.

All those on paid special leave should be included.

Those employees on short-term unpaid leave should be included if they are on leave for a period for less than their pay period — they should be included even if they are absent on the reference date. If they are off for a period longer than their pay period then they should be excluded (for example, someone on a career break).

Unemployed people aged 16-24, by region Quarter 3 1997 to 2008, all calendar quarters from quarter 4 2006 to quarter 4 2008 United Kingdom, not seasonally adjusted

[illegible] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described below.
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV — for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) [illegible] Statistical robustness
* 0 < CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 < CV < 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 < CV <20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV > 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes and have not been provided.
It should be noted that the above estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc).

Suicide: Young People

Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people aged 16 years or under have committed suicide in each of the last 10 years. [252666]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people aged 16 or under have committed suicide in each of the last 10 years. (252666)

The table below provides the number of deaths where suicide was the underlying cause of death for people aged 16 years and under, from 1998 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Deaths where suicide was the underlying cause of death[1], persons aged 16 years and under, England and Wales[2], 1998 to 2007[3]

	Number
1998	39
1999	26
2000	34
2001	23
2002	38
2003	30
2004	29
2005	32
2006	25
2007	39

[1] For persons aged 10 to 14 years, the cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959 for the years 1998 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84 for the years 2001 to 2007. For persons aged 15 years and over, the definition of suicide also includes deaths caused through undetermined intent, defined using the ICD-9 codes E980 -E989 excluding E988.8 for the years 1998 to 2000, and the ICD-10 codes Y10-Y34 (excluding where the coroners verdict was pending) for the years 2001 to 2007. Verdicts of suicide are not returned for children under the age of 10 years.

Unemployment: Essex

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many unemployed people there were in (a) Braintree and (b) Essex in (i) 1997 and (ii) the most recent period for which figures are available. [256843]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 23 February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many unemployed people there were in (a) Braintree and (b) Essex in (i) 1997 and (ii) the most recent period for which figures are available. (256843)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles unemployment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

Table 1 shows the number of people aged 16 and over, resident in (a) Braintree parliamentary constituency and (b) Essex who were unemployed in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2008.

Estimates are provided for the 12 months ending in February 1997, from annual LFS, which is the only period covered by the survey in 1997, and for the 12 months ending in June 2008, from APS. The July 2007 to June 2008 APS dataset is the most recent for which figures are available.

As the estimates for Essex are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. Reliable estimates for the Braintree parliamentary constituency are not available.

[2] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See Guide to Quality as follows.
[3] Figures are disclosive or statistically unreliable.
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256050]

Mr. Simon: The Department will place in the Libraries a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by the Department and its agencies that is required to have them.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of his Department's contracts with management consultants has been since it was established. [251354]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created by machinery of government changes at the end of June 2007. Information on the cost of the Department's contracts with management consultants before that date is available from the predecessor departments of DIUS—the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The Department does not identify management consultancy separately from other consultancy and to disaggregate this information would incur a disproportionate cost.

Departmental expenditure on total external consultancy is as follows:

	£ million

2008-09	[1]2.521

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255231]

Mr. Simon: None of the Ministers in the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills received representations from Lord Moonie, Lord Taylor of Blackburn, Lord Snape or Lord Truscott in the last seven months.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252270]

Mr. Simon: There is an in-house programme of training and coaching staff in the uses of digital media to improve working methods and communicate more effectively. No training has to date been delivered through the Internet Advertising Bureau.

All internet advertising is commissioned and delivered through COI who are employed for their training and expertise in targeted internet advertising and government propriety issues.

Further Education: Health Education

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will take steps to encourage the dissemination of diet, lifestyle and health information through the further education sector. [256832]

Mr. Simon: The Further Education sector has a key role to play in improving the health and well-being of their learners, staff and their communities. In July 2008, we announced cross-government support for a new 'National Healthy FE' initiative. This is now being taken forward through the development of a Healthy FE Framework by a sector-led Steering Group.

The Framework will provide a range of materials and guidance to support the sector in promoting all aspects of health and well-being, including guidance on healthy eating; physical activity; emotional well-being; sexual health; drugs, alcohol and tobacco. It will build upon what a number of colleges and providers have already been actively encouraging, by providing them with more tools and support.

We plan to have the Framework infrastructure in place by September 2009.

Further Education: Religious Practice

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to improve pastoral care in the further education sector. [256834]

Mr. Simon: We are helping the Further Education system deliver a more personalised learning experience for each learner, in ways that help learners acquire the skills and ability they need to succeed and thrive—personally and economically. That includes guidance titled 'Supporting Learners to Succeed' which is available through the Learning and Skills Improvement Service Excellence Gateway. The guidance helps providers develop their pastoral support systems and processes to improve the emotional, social and economic well-being of all learners.

In addition, the White Paper "Further Education: Raising Skills Improving Life Chances" (March 2006) recognised that when learners participate in decisions affecting their learning they are likely to play a more active part in improving the quality of provision. All providers are expected to have in place a Learner Involvement Strategy. The pastoral support guidance includes examples of how providers can encourage and motivate learners which in turn will help providers to further develop their strategies for engaging learners.

Graduates: Architecture

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the availability of jobs for UK graduates in architecture. [257341]

Mr. Lammy: Typically, architecture graduates have high employment rates with the latest available data from the 'Destination of Leavers from Higher Education 2006-07' showing 93 per cent. of those with degrees in 'architecture, building and planning' in employment or further study six months after graduating. However, we recognise that the graduate labour market will not be immune from the effects of the economic downturn. Although indications suggest that overall vacancies are likely to fall, there will still be growth areas. Graduates will need to consider a wide range of jobs; look for jobs earlier; and do research on potential employers to maximise their chances of success. We are also considering a number of ways to provide real help and support for new graduates including new opportunities for internships; promoting volunteering; the development of entrepreneurial skills; and increasing the availability over the next two years of Professional and Career Development Loans.

Higher Education: Admissions

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) male and (b) female students attend a higher education institution to study on a (i) full-time and (ii) part-time course. [257613]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available figures are shown in the table. Comparable figures for the 2008-09 academic year will be available in January 2010.

Enrolments[1] by Gender and mode of study English higher education institutions Academic year 2007-08

Higher Education: Women

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many and what proportion of female students with children attending a higher education institution are part-time students; [257614]

(2) how many and what proportion of students attending a higher education institution are women with children. [257615]

Mr. Lammy: The information asked in both questions is not held centrally.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what research his Department has undertaken on women who wish to study for part-time degrees. [257616]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has not commissioned research which is focused solely on women who wish to study for part-time degrees. However, the Department has commissioned the following projects which contain substantial information on this group:

"University is Not Just for Young People: Working Adults' Perceptions of and Orientation to Higher Education", (DIUS Research Report 08 06), published in April 2008, which studied the attitudes and intentions towards HE of working adults (aged 22 to 55 with no university level qualification).

"Alternative Routes Into and Pathways Through HE", publication expected early spring, which studied people who had entered HE through routes other than direct entry from school with A levels, or who were studying in modes other than full-time for a first degree in an HE institution. This included a substantial number of women studying part-time for a degree.

Note:

"Futuretrack: Part-time Students", a project jointly funded with Higher Education Careers Service Unit (HECSU) which is a longitudinal study tracking people studying part-time. The work has also involved a literature review of part-time study and analysis of HESA records. The final report will not be published until 2011, though an interim report is expected in spring this year.

Post Study Work Scheme

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Post Study Work Scheme in achieving its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [254505]

Jacqui Smith: I have been asked to reply.

As with all new policy, the Tier 1 post-study route is subject to ongoing review and consideration. Any changes to be made as a result of that consideration will be set out in the usual way.

Postgraduate Education: Finance

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the merits of increasing funding for research councils to provide financial support to postgraduates unable to secure funding in the current economic situation. [254956]

Mr. Lammy: Funding is allocated to the Research Councils for the duration of each spending review period. The Research Councils and the research community are best placed to decide how funding is distributed, in accordance with the Haldane Principle.

On 18 November 2008, Research Councils UK, with support from the Science Minister, announced a package of measures in response to the economic downturn. As part of this, the Economic and Social Research Council will bring forward funding for around 30 studentships. In addition, BBSRC will advance funding for an additional 20 four-year studentships in four key priority areas of ageing research, bioenergy, bioprocessing and environmental change.

Regent College, Leicester

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent progress has been made on his Department's plans to assist the modernisation of the buildings of Regent College, Leicester. [256593]

Mr. Simon: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges. In addition we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years.

In total, since the programme began, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed.

But the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. Projects and the scale of Government funding that they require are becoming increasingly ambitious. In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the last few weeks the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) has been working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions. As a result of this the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

As your question relates to an operational matter for the LSC, Mark Haysom will write to my hon. Friend with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Libraries.

Renewable Energy: Finance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to support clean energy research and development. [255173]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS is stepping up efforts on energy research and development through a range of commitments from Science and Innovation Budget investments through the Research Councils and Technology Strategy Board and, more recently with the establishment of the Energy Technologies Institute.

Research Council expenditure on energy related basic, strategic and applied research and postgraduate training is expected to approach £300 million during this CSR period, and the Technology Strategy Board currently has a portfolio of collaborative projects on emerging low carbon energy technologies worth £90 million, with further competitions planned for later this year. The Technology Strategy Board is also expanding its portfolio in areas relating to the low carbon agenda through a range of initiatives including innovation platforms—the one focused on low carbon vehicles is coordinating over £100 million of public sector support to accelerate the market introduction of ultra low carbon vehicles.

Research Councils

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent allocation letter to each research council. [254366]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has published a booklet entitled 'The Allocations of the Science Budget 2008/09 to 2010/11' in December 2007. This sets out in some detail the overall strategic priorities for the research base and the related funding decisions, together with the rationale behind them. This is available at:

At the same time the seven research councils published their own delivery plans for the same period. These delivery plans set out each council's approach to research priorities, sustainability, economic impact, international aspects, specific financial commitments and targets for efficiency and effectiveness. These are available at:

www.rcuk.ac.uk/aboutrcuk/deliveryplan

The Government explained in their response to the IUSS Select Committee in June 2008 that they did not intend to publish their specific interactions with councils on the allocations process, not least because these relate to commercially confidential negotiations with international partners and suppliers.

Research: Intellectual Property

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent representations he has received on the obligations placed on researchers supported by research council grants to enter into research collaboration agreements to incorporate their intellectual property with companies. [256839]

Mr. Lammy: I am not aware of any direct representations received by the Department. However, there may have been such representations to the Research Councils.

Research Councils have recently clarified their position on intellectual property through a revision to the common grant condition (GC21) on Exploitation and Impact (formerly Commercial Exploitation). This states that the ownership of intellectual property, and responsibility for its exploitation, rests with the organisation that generates it.

Skilled Workers: Nuclear Power

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department has a strategy for skills in the nuclear industry. [255943]

Mr. Simon: There will be real challenges in responding to the skill needs of the nuclear industry over the next few years. These include managing the decommissioning programme and balancing the potential requirements for a new civil nuclear power programme with defence skill requirements.

The National Skills Academy for Nuclear (NSAN) has a clear remit to develop and promote skills and career pathways within the UK nuclear industry and to ensure that the capacity exists to deliver skills to meet the different skill needs across the civil and defence programmes. It is employer-led, reflecting the breadth of its industry through its board and associate membership.

The NSAN and Cogent, the Sector Skills Council responsible for nuclear, are currently leading on a detailed review and analysis of the future skills challenges and issues facing the sector. This will inform the NSAN's five year plan. This will ensure that the NSAN is absolutely focused on addressing both current and future strategic skill needs across the nuclear sector and ensuring that there is capacity available to deliver it.

The Office for Nuclear Development (OND) located within the Department for Energy and Climate Change (DECC) will work to build excellence in the UK's nuclear industry by working with skills bodies, industry employers, other government departments and academia which will ensure a strategic and effective approach to skills development alongside wider policy and decision making.

Students: Loans

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average time taken to repay student loans by university graduates has been. [255022]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The two types of student loan have different repayment terms. Borrowers with income-contingent loans introduced in 1998 repay 9 per cent. of earnings above £15,000.

Repayments are usually collected through the tax system via employers, alongside income tax and national insurance contributions. Borrowers with the older mortgage-style loans repay instalments, usually by direct debit, when their annual income exceeds the repayment threshold, currently £25,936.

With both types of loan, repayment is due to start in the April after borrowers graduate or otherwise leave their course, if their income is above the relevant repayment threshold. This point is known as the Statutory Repayment Due Date (SRDD). Some borrowers fully repay before they are required to commence repayments.

The average time taken to fully repay mortgage-style loans is six years after SRDD, according to data at 31 March 2008. It is not yet possible to give a meaningful average time taken to repay income-contingent loans, because in terms of repayments the income-contingent loans scheme is still relatively young. The longest and shortest time taken to repay a loan cannot be disclosed as this could potentially identify an individual.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what the (a) highest and (b) average monthly repayment to the Student Loans Company has been for students graduating in (i) 2002 and (ii) 2008; [255023]

(2) what the (a) highest and (b) average amount owed to the Student Loans Company was by students graduating from UK universities in 2008. [255025]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 10 February 2009]: Borrowers who graduated in 2002 with income-contingent loans would generally be included in the 2003 repayment cohort, i.e. those required to begin repaying loans from April 2003 if their income was high enough. The average annual repayment for this cohort was £600 in tax year 2006-07, equivalent to a monthly repayment of £50. Repayments are linked to income; borrowers repay 9 per cent. of earnings over £15,000.

Students who graduated in 2008 will generally be required to start repaying student loans from April 2009, if their income is above the £15,000 threshold.

Data are not yet available for the average amount owed by students who graduated in 2008. The average amount owed for the cohort of students who were liable to repay from April 2008 was £9,580.

The highest monthly repayment and highest amount owed cannot be disclosed as this could potentially identify an individual.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people earning (a) between £15,000 and £34,800 and (b) more than £34,800 are repaying their student loans. [257064]

Mr. Lammy: Borrowers repaying income-contingent loans via the tax system in tax year 2006-07 with known earnings are shown in the following table.

English domiciled borrowers

Earnings band	Borrowers
£15,000 to £34,799.99	356,200
£34,800 and over	26,900

Source:
Student Loans Company

In addition there may be other borrowers who have made repayments that have not yet been recorded at SLC. HMRC receive annual P14 returns from employers, setting out the deductions they have made in the past year. This information is passed to SLC to update borrowers' accounts. There will also be some whose earnings have fluctuated during the year and who have therefore made repayments in some months but have earnings below the threshold at the end of the financial year. Such borrowers may apply for a refund of their repayments if they wish to do so.

Borrowers are required to begin repaying their loans in the April after they graduate or otherwise leave their course, if their income is above the repayment threshold. Those below the threshold will include borrowers who have gone on to further study.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of the Student Loan Book has been sold in accordance with the provisions of the Sale of Student Loans Act 2008. [258056]

Mr. Lammy: To date, no sales of student loans have been made under the 2008 Act.

Trading Standards: Weights and Measures

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the timetable is for the next issue of revised guidance to local authority trading standards departments on weights and measures legislation. [258060]

Mr. Lammy: Weights and measures legislation is the responsibility of the Department for Innovation, Universities and skills, acting through its executive agency, the National Weights and Measures Laboratory.

Neither the Department nor NWML publish comprehensive guidance to local authority trading standards departments on weights and measures legislation. Rather, the practice is to publish draft guidance on any new or amended weights and measures legislation in advance of the legislation coming into force to ensure both business and local authority trading standards departments have an opportunity to familiarise themselves with any changes before they take effect. Final guidance is then normally published when the new or amended regulations come into effect.

Most recently, the National Weights and Measures Laboratory has published draft guidance on changes to specified quantities for pre-packages. Those changes are expected to come into effect in April. NWML will also shortly publish revised guidance on non-automatic weighing instruments.

The following list shows the changes to weights and measures legislation which are expected to be made over the next year, and which will be accompanied by corresponding guidance, with an estimate of the likely timescale:

(i) Changes to specified quantities for non pre-packaged alcohol and unwrapped bread in October 2009;

(ii) Changes to the Measuring Instruments (Intoxicating Liquor) Regulations to allow statistical testing of fixed capacity spirit measuring instruments in October 2009;

(iii) Changes to UK legislation to update it as a result of the changes to the Units of Measurement Directive 80/181/EEC as amended, by December 2009.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Young People

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what projects his Department funds to encourage participation in the arts by young people; and what the cost of those projects was in the last 12 months, broken down by region. [253080]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport provides financial support for the arts through Arts Council England, which makes funding decisions independently of Government. Children and young people are one of the four priorities Arts Council England will be focusing on over the next three years. Much of the support given by Arts Council England through its Grants for the Arts and Regularly Funded Organisation schemes will encourage participation in the arts by young people.

As well as these general grants, Arts Council England is currently involved with six specific projects and organisations which aim to encourage the participation of young people in the arts. The funding allocated for the last 12 months is set out as follows. A breakdown of funding by region is not possible for projects which are funded on a national basis.

Broadband

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make it his policy to ensure that consumers seeking to purchase home broadband services have the option of purchasing such services without voice services; and if he will make a statement. [253209]

Mr. McFadden: [holding answer 2 February 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

There are no regulatory barriers preventing the development of broadband services without a voice service ('naked DSL') and nothing therefore preventing a commercial operator offering the service, indeed Virgin Media offer a broadband only service ('naked cable').

While some ADSL broadband customers may not want a traditional voice telephone service, they may still require the telephone line to deliver their broadband. Although a subscriber may no longer require a traditional voice telephone service there remains a cost to be met for the provision, maintenance and operation of the line. The majority of the line rental charge covers these costs.

Ofcom reports that over the past five years several operators have considered offering a broadband-only service. However, such a service has never been launched. Given the level of competition in this market and the fact that several operators have considered offering a broadband-only service it would appear that no operator has identified a commercial case for such a product.

Crown Lands and Estates

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his policy is on the upkeep from the public purse of properties owned by the royal family. [248136]

Barbara Follett: Grant in aid is not provided by the Department for the upkeep of properties owned by members of the royal family in a private capacity. Grant in aid is provided to the royal household annually only to meet the costs of property maintenance, and of utilities telephones and related services at the Occupied Royal Palaces in England, as these are held in trust for the nation by the Queen as sovereign and are used in fulfilling the role and functions of the Head of State. The Occupied Royal Palaces are Buckingham Palace, St. James's Palace, Clarence House, Marlborough House Mews, the residential and office areas of Kensington Palace, the Royal Mews and Royal Paddocks at Hampton Court, and Windsor Castle and buildings in the Home and Great Parks at Windsor.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257237]

Andy Burnham: The Department has not produced a separate website accessibility plan. This has been incorporated into our Equality Scheme 2007-10 which is published on the Department website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/3596.aspx

In addition we have published an accessibility statement on our website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/4912.aspx

This specified our commitment to high standards of website accessibility and the methodology used to achieve our targets.

Digital Broadcasting: Elderly

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance his Department is giving to the elderly to help them with the digital television switchover; and if he will make a statement. [257079]

Andy Burnham: The Government and the BBC have set up a digital switchover help scheme. The scheme covers households where one person is aged 75 or over, or has a severe disability, or is registered blind or partially sighted and anyone who is normally resident in a care home.

The scheme provides easy-to-use equipment that suits a person's needs and help with installing the equipment, including where necessary a new dish or aerial and an easy-to-understand demonstration of how everything works. The scheme also ensures that there will be someone that people can call for help while they are getting used to digital television.

English Heritage: Grants

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much English Heritage has spent per capita for each region in each of the last five years. [255193]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage advises that approximately half its expenditure is allocated directly, to its regions. The following table sets out the spend per capita for regionally managed expenditure.

English Heritage per capita spend

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

2. Population: Office for National Statistics, mid-year population estimates, 2003-07.

These figures do not include centrally managed expenditure although a considerable proportion delivers activities in the regions, for example, education, outreach, the Property Investment Programme and some grants programmes. The proportion of centrally managed expenditure allocated to each region cannot be established without disproportionate cost. This is because many activities are categorised thematically rather than geographically, for example, research into seaside towns, aerial survey programmes or spend on interpretation at English Heritage properties.

Exercise

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of (a) men, (b) women and (c) those over the age of 16 years who have participated in at least 30 minutes a day of moderate intensity physical activity on five or more days of the week in each of the last three years (i) in total and (ii) broken down by region. [256362]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The 'Taking Part' survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport.

The following table shows the percentage of men and women aged 16 and over who have participated in at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity level sport on at least five separate days in the past week. The data are presented by region for each of the last three years. Data are also provided for the total adult population.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether any administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agency. [253598]

Barbara Follett: I am not aware that there are any administrative financial penalties that may be levied by my Department or its agency, the Royal Parks.

Hotels: Fire Prevention

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) whether he has made an assessment of the effects of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 on the bed and breakfast industry; and if he will make a statement; [258179]

(2) whether he has made an assessment of the effects of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 on the tourism industry; and if he will make a statement. [258180]

Barbara Follett: Since the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 took effect in October 2006 there has been no specific assessment made of the impact on the sustainability of either bed and breakfast businesses or the tourism industry. However, Communities and Local Government (CLG), in consultation with both the industry and this Department, recently published a guide for small accommodation providers to help them comply with the new regulations. CLG will be monitoring the effects of the booklet and will be sharing this information with my Department in due course.

Legacy Trust UK: Grants

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1889W, on Legacy Trust UK, if he will place in the Library a copy of the list of the grants Legacy Trust UK has made to date. [257513]

Andy Burnham: I am arranging for copies of the list of grants Legacy Trust UK has made to date to be placed in the House Libraries.

Leisure: Urban Areas

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding his Department is providing for recreational activity for inner-city children in 2008-09. [253120]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS channels its funding mainly via our family of non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs). NDPBs are tasked with delivery of our overall strategies, including delivery of many bespoke programmes and projects.

At headline level DCMS does not target inner-city areas for special funding arrangements although NDPBs occasionally do target similar demographics via particular programmes or work streams.

Some of the key DCMS initiatives schemes, aimed at providing access and opportunity for all, will have particular beneficial effects on inner-city children. This list is certainly not exhaustive and further details of individual work strands can be found on the website of the DCMS family at.

http://www.culture.gov.uk/about_us/our_sponsored_bodies/default.aspx

Sport

Through our PE and Sport Strategy for Young People, delivered jointly with DCSF, the Government are investing at least £783 million over 2008-11 to offer five hours of quality PE and sport to all pupils in England. This includes £22.8 million from my Department in 2008-09.

The strategy reaches into every maintained school, and so provides a wide range of recreational sporting opportunities for children living in inner-city areas.

Our key delivery partners, the Youth Sport Trust and Sport England, work with a wide range of national, regional and local partners including schools, sports clubs and youth and community organisations to attract more young people into sport across the country, including inner-city areas.

Sport England which is an NDPB and National Lottery distributor, focuses on ensuring quality sporting opportunities exist beyond the school gates, enabling children and young people to migrate from the school environment to community sport. Reaching out to diverse communities is a vital part of their work.

Free Swimming

Local authorities across the country have signed up to the Government's initiative to offer free swimming to both those aged 16 and under and over 60. The local authorities that have opted in to offer the scheme to both age groups have also received a share of a £10 million capital fund to spend on modernising or improving pool provision in time for the start of the two-year scheme in 2009. Those local authorities that will offer free swimming to both age groups also stand to benefit from a further £25 million capital challenge fund in both 2009-10 and 2010-11 to spend on improving pool provision. Many inner-city local authorities have taken up this opportunity. Details of participating authorities can be found at:

Culture

Through Arts Council England DCMS provided funding of almost £8.5 million between January 2008 and December 2008. This provided recreational activity for inner city children aged 0-15 years in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Newcastle, Sheffield, Liverpool, Leeds, Bristol, Nottingham, and Portsmouth. These cities are top ten (by population) primary urban areas as defined by DCLG State of the Cities database 2007.

Find Your Talent

In February last year the Government announced the new £25 million Find Your Talent (FYT) Pathfinder programme to trial different ways of delivering a five hour cultural offer for children and young people aged 0-19. The Pathfinders, running for three years were launched in September last year.

Our ambition is to offer all children high quality cultural experiences no matter where they live or what their background and the Find Your Talent programme is part of the Government's drive to unlock the creative talent of all young people.

This is on top of the investment the Government already put into cultural education programme. This means we fund cultural opportunities on a national scale and these funds are distributed to regions and localities via our funded bodies who fund projects in inner city areas and beyond.

The ten Find Your Talent Pathfinder projects are listed and include inner-city areas:

Bolton Borough Council

The Creative Foundation (serving Shepway District and including Folkestone, Hythe and Romney Marsh)

Customs House (North and South Tyneside)

Hampshire County Council

Leeds Children's Services

Leicestershire County Council

'Liverpool City Region' Partnership (serving three Merseyside neighbourhoods)

North Somerset

Telford and Wrekin Council

Tower Hamlets

Museums

In addition to the above initiatives and schemes, inner-city areas are well serviced by Museums offering free admission. A list of museums that form part of the DCMS family of NDPBs can be found at the above link. In 2007-08 there were eight million visits by children (aged 15 and under) to the DCMS sponsored museums.

Licensed Premises

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many alcohol licence applications have been rejected on grounds of (a) protection of children from harm, (b) public safety, (c) prevention of public nuisance and (d) prevention of crime and disorder since the Licensing Act 2003 came into force. [257986]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's statistical data do not identify the reasons for rejected applications for premises licences and club premises certificates, nor do they show which of the rejected applications relate to the sale of alcohol. In some cases, applications will relate solely to the provision of regulated entertainment or late night refreshment. The first published statistical bulletin since the implementation of the Act, which covers the period April 2006 to March 2007, reported the number of Premises Licence and Club Premises Certificate applications that went to a committee hearing was 6,408 (based on 81 per cent. of Licensing Authority responses).

In the second published statistical bulletin since the implementation of the Act, which covers the period April 2007 to March 2008, there were 5,194 Premises Licence and Club Premises Certificate applications that went to a committee hearing (based on 95 per cent. of Licensing Authority responses). This statistical bulletin also reports reasons for completed reviews based upon each of the four licensing objectives, for this same period; these can be found in Tables 8a and 8b online:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/images/research/AE-Statistics-bulletin-2008.pdf

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what information his Department holds on the number of complaints received by local authorities from residents about noise and nuisance in areas (a) with and (b) without premises with late alcohol licences. [257993]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The requested information is not held centrally.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what monitoring his Department is undertaking of the number of late alcohol licences granted in or near residential areas. [257994]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We do not centrally hold information on the proximity of licensed premises to residential areas. Parliament has delegated responsibility for licensing decisions to local authorities who are best placed to consider licensing issues in relation to residential and other areas.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of alcohol licence applications were (a) granted and (b) refused by local authorities in England in each year since 2000. [257996]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003, DCMS has been collecting alcohol, entertainment and late night refreshment statistics for England and Wales on an annual basis by financial year from licensing authorities. The first bulletin covers the period April 2006 to March 2007; the second bulletin covers the period April 2007 to March 2008.

For the period ending March 2008, 94 per cent. of new premises licence applications were granted, 2 per cent. were refused and 3 per cent. were unknown or undecided at the time the data were collected. For the same period, 95 per cent. of new club premises certificates were granted, 2 per cent. refused and 3 per cent. unknown or undecided (based on around 95 per cent. of Licensing Authority responses). We do not know how many of the rejected applications were for the sale of alcohol as licences and certificates also cover the provision of regulated entertainment and late night refreshment. However, generally we can say that 84 per cent. of premises licences and 98 per cent. of club premises certificates permitted the sale of alcohol.

For the period ending March 2007, 96 per cent. of new premises licences were granted, 1 per cent. were refused and 3 per cent. were unknown or undecided at the time the data were collected. For the same period, 92 per cent. of new club premises certificates were granted, 2 per cent. were refused and 6 per cent. were unknown or undecided (based on around 82 per cent. of Licensing Authority responses).

Prior to the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003, data on the number of alcohol licences revoked in England and Wales were collected by petty sessional division (magistrates court areas), on a triennial basis. In the year to 30 June 2004, 97 per cent. of new on- and off-licensed premises were granted, and 3 per cent. were refused/undecided. Also 79 per cent. of applications for registered clubs were granted with 21 per cent. refused/undecided.

In the year to 30 June 2001, 88 per cent. of new on- and off-licensed premises were granted, and 12 per cent. were refused/undecided. Also 93 per cent. of applications for registered clubs were granted with seven per cent. refused/undecided.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many complaints his Department has received from (a) members of the public, (b) police authorities and (c) local authorities on the operation of the Licensing Act 2003. [257997]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's first evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 in March 2008 showed that the police have welcomed their new powers and provided evidence that local people are much better engaged than they were under the old licensing regime. Also, information and case studies we gathered from scrutiny councils as part of the review suggested that initial benefits were developing into longer term trends and that the Act is having a real impact on key issues such as crime and disorder and sales of alcohol to children. The Department does receive a number of letters, mainly from the public, where concerns are raised but it is not possible to state categorically which of these could be classified as complaints. We have always maintained that licensing is not the only solution to problems related to crime and disorder and nuisance and we continue to liaise with local authority representatives, police representatives, and other Government Departments (notably, the Home Office and the Department of Health, which have overall responsibility for the Government's renewed alcohol strategy) to develop new measures for combating these social problems.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many 24-hour late licences have been granted by local authorities in England and Wales since the Licensing Act 2003 came into force. [257998]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The latest Alcohol Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment Licensing Bulletin reports that as of 31 March 2008 there were an estimated 6,700 premises licences with 24 hour alcohol permissions under the Licensing Act 2003. This figure is comprised of 700 pubs, bars and nightclubs; 1,300 supermarkets and stores; 4,100 hotel bars; and 600 other types of premises. Together they account for under 4 per cent. of all premises licensed for the sale of alcohol. Most 24 hour licences are held by hotels, making alcohol available to guests round the clock, which would have existed under the previous regime.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many late licences to open until (a) midnight, (b) 1.00 am, (c) 2.00 am, (d) 3.00 am and (e) 4.00 am have been granted by local authorities in England and Wales since the Licensing Act 2003 came into force. [257999]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We do not hold the requested information centrally. It should be noted that the times on a licence do not show the actual opening hours which will often be less as the licence provides flexibility. However, we did commission work for the evaluation of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 (available from the House Library) which shows actual closing times on a Saturday night, provided by licensees. The summary shows, for example, that pub closures have increased by up to 27 minutes to a 11.30 pm average closing time and that bar closures are up 28 minutes to a midnight average closing time.

Music: Licensing

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to undertake a public consultation on exemptions from licensing requirements for low-risk live music performances. [256545]

Andy Burnham: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is currently exploring options to exempt low impact licensing activities, including small scale live music, from the scope of the Licensing Act 2003. No decision has yet been taken on timing of the consultation that would be necessary in respect of any proposals.

New Opportunities Physical Education and Sports Fund

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the policy directions issued by his Department for the administration of the New Opportunities Physical Education and Sports Fund. [257795]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We understood that a copy of these policy directions had been deposited in the Library of the House on 25 April 2001, but I believe that the Library does not hold a copy of these directions. I shall arrange for a further copy to be redeposited in the Library of the House.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 57W, on non-departmental public bodies, what the 19 requests were received by his Department for approval to incur expenditure over the delegated limits set out in the financial memoranda of his Department's non-departmental public bodies; and whether each request was accepted. [254337]

Andy Burnham: The 19 requests mentioned in my reply of 26 January are listed as follows:

British Museum: request for approval of North-West Development project—currently under consideration;

English Heritage: request to make grant—currently under consideration;

English Heritage: request to grant compensation following a refusal of Scheduled Ancient Monument Consent—approved;

English Heritage: request to grant compensation following a refusal of Scheduled Ancient Monument Consent—approved;

English Heritage: request for approval of contract at Chiswick House—approved;

English Heritage: request for approval of a contract at Chapter House, Westminster Abbey—approved;

Sir John Soane's Museum: request for approval of Soane Masterplan project—approved;

Tate: request for approval of National Art Collections Centre project—currently under consideration;

Visit Britain: request for approval of a contract—currently under consideration.

In addition to these, my reply included 10 requests from the Olympic Delivery Authority to incur expenditure. These were made under the standard procedure whereby the Olympic Projects Review Group examines and makes recommendations on the budget of each Olympic project where the value is in excess of £20 million. These requests were as follows:

Security Project III—currently under consideration;

Landscape and Public Realm—approved;

Olympic Route Network—approved;

Olympic Village—approved;

Security Project II—approved;

International Broadcast Centre/Media Press Centre—approved;

Velodrome—approved;

Gas, Water and Duct Networks—approved;

Primary Sewer and Pumping Station—approved;

Security Project I—approved.

Ofcom: Public Appointments

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether Colette Bowe's role in the Westland affair was taken into account in the procedure for appointing her as Chair of Ofcom. [255996]

Andy Burnham: The appointment of Colette Bowe was made following a process regulated by the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA) and was also subject to pre-appointment scrutiny by a joint session of the Business and Culture Select Committees. All applicants were considered against published selection criteria which set out the qualities, skills and experience required for the position and the decision on who to appoint was based on merit. While it is not appropriate to comment on specific details of selection processes or individual applications, appointments are always made following proper consideration of matters such as conflict of interest and probity.

Olympic Games 2012

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had on the promotion of (a) handball and (b) boccia to coincide with the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [256575]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that they recently awarded £645,300 to the British Handball Association and £812,041 to CP Sport to develop the sport of boccia, during the period 2009-13. Sport England will shortly be holding discussions with the two bodies regarding how they will utilise this funding but will be looking to the sports to strengthen the governance arrangements (including the formation of a new English governing body for boccia), develop the club and coaching structures at grass roots level and to develop talent support systems to ensure more talented players can move on to elite programmes and achieve international success.

CP Sport is also in receipt of an award of £56,532 as part of the Playground to Podium programme to develop disability talent pathways in boccia for one year up to October 2009. Sport England will review further Playground to Podium funding to boccia following the formation of the new governing body.

Olympic Games 2012: Gun Sports

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had on the promotion of shooting as a sport to coincide with the London 2012 Olympic Games. [256576]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that they recently awarded £750,000 to the Great Britain Target Shooting Federation for the period 2009-13. Sport England will shortly be holding discussions with the federation regarding how it will utilise this funding but will be looking to the sport to develop a talent support system to ensure more talented shooters can move on to the sport's elite programmes and achieve international success.

Shooting will also be expected to further develop its club and coaching structure, as well as continuing its work forming a single, unified governing body for the sport.

Sport England is also providing £343,000 of funding for the English Target Shooting Federation over 2007-10 to support the English target shooting team's preparations for the Commonwealth Games to be held in Delhi, India, in October 2010.

Olympic Games 2012: Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in his Department deal with tourism issues related to the Olympic legacy. [256879]

Barbara Follett: The Department currently employs 7.6 full-time equivalent (FTE) members of staff on these issues. This figure excludes staff in Press Office, Private Office, Corporate Services, Public Engagement and Communications.

Public Houses: Rural Areas

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will commission research into the number of rural public houses which are due to close; whether he has made an estimate of the number of rural public houses which closed in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [257307]

Andy Burnham: DCMS does not collect statistics specifically on public house closures. The Department's Statistical Bulletin on Alcohol, Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment counts the number of premises authorising the sale or supply of alcohol by means of a premises licence or a club premises certificate. These figures apply not only to public houses, but also to other licensed premises such as hotels, off licences and convenience stores. Figures on closures of licensed premises relate to the specific exercise of powers under the Licensing Act 2003 and not to closures for other reasons.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will commission research into the social benefits provided by rural public houses. [257310]

Andy Burnham: There are currently no plans to undertake research into the social benefits provided by rural pubs. However the Government are fully aware of the valuable role pubs can play at the heart of rural communities and my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, announced on 5 February a number of new initiatives to support rural businesses, including pubs. These new schemes will complement existing initiatives such as 'Pub is the Hub' which was set up in 2001, through the Rural Action Programme of Business in the Community, to encourage breweries, pub owners, licensees and local communities to work together to help retain and enhance rural services in isolated rural areas.

Regional Cultural Consortia

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for South West Surrey of 16 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1390-91W, on regional cultural consortia: finance, what assessment has been made of the extent to which regional cultural consortia have provided value for money since their establishment. [256468]

Barbara Follett: Since their establishment, the performance of the Regional Cultural Consortiums (RCCs) has been monitored on an ongoing basis through regular feedback to my officials, and reported on each year through their annual reports and accounts.

In early 2002, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport conducted a review of the consortiums to assess the effectiveness of their operations. The review found that the consortiums were performing a key role in the regions.

Following further consideration of the collaborative working of the Department's regional agencies, the Secretary of State decided in July 2008 that the consortiums should be replaced with new regional arrangements led jointly by Arts Council England, English Heritage, Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and Sport England.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for South West Surrey of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1391W, on regional cultural consortiums: finance, what the administrative cost of each consortium was in each year from its establishment to its dissolution. [256497]

Barbara Follett: My Department has provided the following grant in aid to each of the Regional Cultural Consortiums, in each financial year since 2003-04.

Regional cultural consortiums: culture

We expect all the consortiums to be wound up by the end of 2008-09, at which point accounts for this period will be prepared.

Sports: Training

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) registered and (b) active sports coaches there were in each of the last five years. [258151]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Currently National Governing Bodies (NGBs) control their own sports coach data which are based on various recruitment measures. Collated NGB data could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, a report done in 2006 by sportscoach UK (scUK) indicated there were 1.7 million active coaches in the UK. We are currently working with scUK to look at how we can improve the routine collation of information in this area.

Swimming Teachers' Association

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will consult the Swimming Teachers Association when drawing up the new Whole Sport Plans; and if he will make a statement. [256192]

Andy Burnham: The Amateur Swimming Association (ASA), as the National Governing Body of swimming, has been responsible for drawing up a plan in the best interests of swimming as a whole. Sport England have worked in close conjunction with the ASA throughout this process to ensure the plan serves the whole sport.

My officials recently met the Swimming Teachers' Association to discuss future work and policy initiatives concerning the Free Swimming programme, and took this opportunity to discuss their role more widely.

Television

Mr. Elwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance his Department provides for television broadcasters on the use of bad language after the nine o'clock watershed. [255366]

Andy Burnham: Responsibility for what is broadcast on television and radio rests with the broadcasters and the organisations which regulate broadcasting—the Office of Communications (Ofcom), the BBC Trust and the Welsh Fourth Channel Authority (S4C)—within the overall framework set by the Communications Act 2003 and the BBC Charter and Agreement.

In relation to broadcasting, Parliament has charged Ofcom with maintaining standards, notably to protect children and to protect the general public from harmful and offensive material, including bad language. The Ofcom Broadcasting Code therefore sets out the rules with which broadcasters must comply. Ofcom also produces guidance notes to assist broadcasters in interpreting and applying the Broadcasting Code. In addition, the BBC's editorial guidelines, under the sovereignty of the BBC Trust, provide clear advice on the standards expected of all BBC content on television and radio. The S4C Compliance Guidelines also provide guidance on the standards expected of all content broadcast on S4C.

Within this framework, it is the broadcasters' job to make judgements about what individual programmes should contain and the time at which they are broadcast.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on arrangements to increase the consistency of regulation of content on television and on the internet; and if he will make a statement. [255478]

Andy Burnham: The Departments for Culture, Media and Sport and Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform considered the issue jointly when negotiating the Audio-Visual Media Services Directive, which maintains a distinction between the regulation of linear television and television on demand. I believe that such distinctions remain valid for the present, but we recognise that this may not always be the case and keep the matter under review.

Concerns about internet content were considered as part of Tanya Byron's review of Child Safety on the Internet and fall within the remit of the UK Council for Child Internet Safety which we have established and are also being considered as part of the Digital Britain Report.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of people (a) evading payment of the television licence fee and (b) discovered with a television but without a television licence in each of the last five years. [257026]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the BBC. I have, therefore, asked the BBC's Head of Revenue Management to consider the question raised by the hon. Member and to write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1556W on tourism, when VisitBritain will provide the final submission on the wish list requested by his Department to assist British tourism during the economic downturn. [257021]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain have provided their final submission on the wish list to assist British tourism during the economic downturn, the contents of which are being considered.

Tourism: Coastal Areas

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have had discussions with (i) the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) and (ii) Visit Britain on CABE's Sea Change programme. [255775]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment manages the Sea Change programme on behalf of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. Ministers have had discussions with the Commission about the Sea Change programme on several occasions. Ministers have not directly discussed Sea Change with VisitBritain.

Tourism: EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1418W, on tourism: EU grants and loans, which regional development agencies have submitted a bid for (a) European Regional Development Fund Objective 2 for Tourism and (b) European Social Fund for Tourism funds in 2008-09; and how many did so in 2007-08. [256522]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 12 February 2009]: Regional development agencies have advised that there were no bids submitted for (a) European Regional Development Fund Objective 2 for tourism and (b) European Social Fund for tourism funds in 2007-2008 or 2008-09.

Tourism: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 60W, on tourism: Olympic Games 2012, on what date VisitBritain was informed that he had no plans to provide additional funding for tourism in respect of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympics Games in the present comprehensive spending round. [256161]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 10 February 2009]: In respect of additional or special funding for the marketing of the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games for tourism purposes, VisitBritain were first informed that nothing would be added to their baseline funding for the period 2008-11 in October 2007 on disclosure of the outcome of the current comprehensive spending review. We have subsequently informed VisitBritain that the matter cannot be reconsidered until the next spending round.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to submit progress reports to the World Heritage Committee for examination at its 2009 session on the world heritage sites of (a) the Palace of Westminster, (b) the Tower of London and (c) the Liverpool Maritime Mercantile City; and for what reasons they were not submitted in accordance with the originally planned timetable. [257798]

Barbara Follett: The State of Conservation report for Liverpool Maritime Mercantile City World Heritage Site was submitted to UNESCO on 9 February 2009; the report for the Tower of London World Heritage Site was submitted on 18 February 2009. The report for the Palace of Westminster World Heritage Site will be submitted by 28 February 2009.

UNESCO requests that State of Conservation reports are submitted by 1 February. However, in consultation with UNESCO we have negotiated an extension to the deadline to ensure that stakeholders can be properly consulted.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Advanced Extension Award

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were entered for advanced extension award examinations in (a) maintained schools and (b) independent schools in each of the last five years. [257168]

Jim Knight: Advanced extension awards were first introduced in 2002. However, the Department has only held comprehensive data on these qualifications since 2006.

The number of advanced extension awards taken in maintained and independent schools in each of the last three years is given as follows:

	Maintained schools	Independent schools
2007/08	4,985	3,515
2006/07	5,240	3,846
2005/06	4,955	3,807

Note:
These figures relate to 16-18 year olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31st August)

Apprentices

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many 16 to 19 year-olds have been recruited into apprenticeships in each of the last three years. [252902]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Table 1 shows the number of apprenticeship starts for 16 to 19-year-olds (based on age at start of course), in each of the last three academic years. This information was published in a statistical first release on 18 December 2008.

Table 1: Number of apprenticeship starts for 16 to 19-year-olds

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08

18	32,300	36,200	37,300
19	22,100	25,400	26,100
Total 16 to 19-year-old apprenticeship starts	121,000	128,500	133,100
All apprenticeship starts	175,000	198,600	224,500

Notes: 1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100. 2. Age is based on age at the start of the course.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps Partnerships for Schools is taking to support the Schools Capital programme in the current economic situation; and if he will make a statement. [255279]

Jim Knight: Partnerships for Schools is working closely with the Department and HM Treasury to ensure that the programme continues to deliver on time and on budget.

Despite what continue to be challenging economic conditions, 2009 has begun on a more positive note for BSF than anticipated, with a number of banks indicating they are in the market to finance senior debt in BSF schemes. In addition, companies from beyond the banking sector are showing an interest in entering the market. Discussions are also ongoing with the European Investment Bank.

PfS is also exploring with the Department and HM Treasury the option of accessing the shorter term debt market to support PFI schemes. This would involve refinancing schemes at seven or 10 years.

Against this backdrop, BSF continues to deliver. Deals have closed throughout the autumn and now into 2009, with the latest deal to close in Tameside, bringing the total to twenty-nine. Nearly a third of all secondary schools in England are now engaged in BSF, with the 50th school having now opened.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of the budget for the Building Schools for the Future programme; and when he expects the budget for 2009-10 to be allocated. [256874]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: As an outcome of the comprehensive spending review 2007, the Department announced new capital resources of £9.3 billion, including £3.4 billion of PFI credits, for the Building Schools for the Future and Academies programmes for the current period 2008-09 to 2010-11. These resources, together with BSF resources of some £6 billion made available in the last spending period, are being allocated to BSF projects in the first six waves of the programme. This Government are committed to the continuation of these programmes to renew the secondary schools' estate to provide 21st century facilities for all of our young people, and we will continue to review future requirements in the light of the next spending review exercise for 2011-12 and beyond.

Children in Care

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children have been taken into care in each local authority area in each (a) month, (b) quarter and (c) year since 1 January 2003; and if he will make a statement. [256997]

Beverley Hughes: Figures on the number of children that have been taken into care in each local authority in each month and quarter for the years 2003-04, 2005-06 and 2007-08 has been placed in the Libraries. A full five-year time series from 2003-04 detailing how many children have been taken into care in that year has also been placed in the Libraries.

Only the first occasion where a child has been taken into care in each financial year has been counted in all of the analysis provided. Subsequent occasions where a child ceases to be looked after and then is taken into care again in another month or quarter in the same financial year have not been included. This analysis can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of children that have been taken into care in each month and quarter for the period 2004-05, 2006-07 and pre-April 2003 has not been provided due to disproportionate costs.

Children: Day Care

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average hourly cost of childcare in (a) London and (b) the rest of England was for different age groups of children in the latest period for which information is available. [256982]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Survey of Parents collects information on parents' use, views and experiences of child care and early years provision, including information on costs of child care. When reporting the costs of childcare, parents were asked to include payments made directly by the family and payments made by an external source, for example money paid by employers, the local authority, or an ex-partner. Therefore the costs recorded in the survey are not costs that parents actually pay for child care as they include help that is available through tax credits, childcare vouchers and the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds.

Table 1 shows the figures from the 2007 survey on the hourly costs of child care by region. Regional data on the hourly cost, by the age of the child are not available due to small sub-sample sizes at the regional level.

Table 1: Hourly cost of child care (including subsidies), by region

	Mean hourly cost (£)
All children	2.58
North East	2.35
North West	2.05
Yorkshire and the Humber	1.95
East Midlands	1.96
West Midlands	2.48
East	2.51
London	3.50
South East	3.03
South West	2.27

Notes:
1. Based on all children paying for child care used in last week.
2. Figures include subsidies, eg money paid by employers, the local authority, or an ex-partner.

Table 2 shows the hourly costs of child care by the age of the child in 2007.

Table 2: Hourly cost of child care (including subsidies), by age of the child

	Mean hourly cost (£)
All children	2.58
Age of child
0-2	3.23
3-4	2.13
5-7	2.50
8-11	2.50
12-14	2.31

Notes:
1. Based on all children paying for child care used in last week.
2. Figures include subsidies, eg money paid by employers, the local authority, or an ex-partner.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has undertaken on (a) charging for extended school activities, (b) the number of parents claiming child care tax credit for help with funding out of school activities, (c) the percentage change in the number of parents paying for out of school childcare in the last three years and (d) the percentage change in the number of parents claiming child care tax credit for help with out of school activities in each of the last three years. [257385]

Beverley Hughes: The Department commissioned research from Ipsos MORI ("Extended Schools Survey of School, Pupils and Parents", 2009). Schools were asked how they fund activities and child care (multiple choices were possible). The report found that:

"Around three-quarters (73%) of schools that provide childcare, or activities used as childcare, say that users pay for services, although around three in ten (32%) say that the school itself provides funding to enable this service to run. Activities are also most commonly funded by the school (58%), although this is also more likely in secondary schools (74%) and schools in deprived areas (70%). In around two in five cases, the users pay for the service (43%)."

The report also found that:

"Among schools that charge users for childcare and activities, the majority provide help for families who struggle to pay the full fee. Schools most commonly do this by charging a lower fee or waiving payment altogether (53%), or by signposting families to other sources of support such as the Working Tax Credit (49%)."

Of those eligible to benefit from the child care element of tax credits—available for working parents to help with the cost of Ofsted-registered child care or activity-based provision—take up has increased from 14 per cent. in 2004-05 to 17 per cent. in 2006-07. The latest Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) snapshot data shows that 19 per cent. of families were receiving the child care element in December 2008, which equates to about 460,000 families.

The Department does not collect data on point (c) of the question.

HMRC published data do not record what types of provision a family is using.

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many serious case reviews have been conducted into the deaths or serious injuries of children in each local authority area in each of the last five years; [240761]

(2) how many Part 8 reviews into child deaths occurred in each local authority area in each of the last five years. [240758]

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many serious case reviews have been conducted into the (a) deaths and (b) serious injuries of children in each of the last five years, broken down by local authority area. [241890]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 8 December 2008]: Data currently held by the Department for Children, Schools and Families indicate that, of all notifications received between 1 April 2007 and 31 March 2008 of serious child care incidents, 89 serious case reviews had been initiated where a child died and abuse or neglect was known or suspected to be a factor and 60 were initiated in other circumstances, including where a child sustained a potentially life-threatening injury or serious and permanent impairment of health and development through abuse or neglect. These figures are broken down by local authority in the table, a copy of which has been placed in the Libraries.

Data prior to 1 April 2007 are not available in this form. However, the Department commissions an academic biennial analysis of all serious case reviews to help ensure lessons are clearly identified and disseminated. The latest report for the period 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2005 indicates that of the 161 serious case reviews in that study, two thirds were commissioned after a child had died and a third after a child was seriously injured. Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by his Department. [256041]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department will place in the Libraries a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by the Department.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff in his Department and its predecessor were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254092]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There have been no recorded cases of bullying or harassment of employees in the Department or the former Department for Education and Skills which resulted in staff being disciplined.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256215]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information could be obtained in the form requested only at disproportionate cost as once individuals are appointed to the Department, having cleared nationality, passport, proof of identity, reference and criminal records bureau checks, our human resource information systems does not distinguish between EU or non-EU nationality.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255227]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has no record of Ministers receiving representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253263]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of their pension on retirement if they continue in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement prompts the member to consider boosting their pension and provides details of the civil service pensions website (www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk) where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions and a calculator to work out costs for added pension (previously added years).

New entrants are informed of pension options in the employment offer and are provided with a pension information pack.

The Cabinet Office provides leaflets that explain added pension and additional voluntary contributions for members. The information is also available in scheme booklets. These are available on the civil service pensions website or on request from the member's pensions administrator.

The Department lists all pension scheme options for employees on its intranet including help and support and updates and links to the Cabinet Office pension website. This website can also be accessed via the Department's intranet.

Where an employee considers making changes to their pension arrangements based on updated information, the guidance on the intranet always advises that the individual seeks professional financial advice before taking action.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on flowers in each year since its establishment. [254872]

Departmental Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254059]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children Schools and Families has regular engagements with outside organisations including other relevant Government Departments on a range of issues relating to the economy.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254232]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on appointments made by the Department for Children, Schools and Families is published in the Department's annual report on the Department's website at http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/and in press notices issued when individual appointments are made. More detailed information about individual appointments is set out in the relevant body's annual report and in the body's relevant legislation.

Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at

Information on individual appointments is provided in the advert and the candidate's information pack. The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on when to appoint, political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication "Making and Managing Public Appointments". For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the "Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies". Copies are in the Libraries.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's capital spending (a) was in each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08 and (b) is planned to be in each year from 2008-09 to 2014-15 in 2005-06 prices; and if he will make a statement. [253462]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We are unable to provide capital spending figures prior to 2002 as they do not take into account Machinery of Government changes that took place in June 2007. Table 1 details the capital spending for the current Department, as published in the 2008 departmental report (DAR).

Table 1: DCSF capital spending 2002-08

Outturn	Capital spending (£ million)

[1] Actual Outturn as DAR 2007-08 figure was provisional at time of publication

The Department operates on comprehensive spending review cycles which currently extend to 31 March 2011 only. Figures from 2011-15 are not available at the present time. Table 2 is the Department's planned capital expenditure from 2008-11 at 2005-06 prices. These figures are based on the estimated Spring Supplementary figures and the gross domestic product (GDP) deflators published by Treasury on 23 December 2008.

Table 2: DCSF planned capital spending

	Capital budget (£ million)

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 9-10W, on departmental publications (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of answering the question, broken down by sub-category of expenditure; [248473]

(2) which documents were circulated to schools by his Department in exceptional circumstances in 2008. [248474]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The cost of preparing an answer to the question was considered likely to exceed the disproportionate cost threshold and, as a consequence, no estimate of likely expenditure was necessary. Similarly, to retrieve the information as to which documents the Department has circulated to schools in exceptional circumstances in 2008 can also be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental secondment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people have been seconded to his Department from the private sector in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [256903]

History: Secondary Education

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to encourage the study of history at GCSE and A-level. [253806]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: History is a statutory subject for all pupils to the end of key stage 3, normally age 14, and at key stage 4 students are entitled to follow a humanities course (comprising geography and history).

The review of statutory requirements for key stage 3 was completed in 2007 and new programmes of study are being implemented in the current academic year for children in year 7. The range and content of the key stage 3 programme of study set out the aspects of British, European and world history on which teachers should draw when teaching the skills of historical enquiry, use of evidence and communicating about the past. The new programmes of study also allow for joint working on issues such as diversity and ethnicity; and there are strong links between citizenship education and the teaching of history. More detailed information can be found on the QCA website:

www.qca.org.uk/curriculum.

History remains popular at KS4 and beyond, with 202,753 pupils entered for GCSE in 2007 and 67 per cent. of pupils achieving grades A* - C. In the same year, 40,542 pupils entered for A-level history; 25 per cent. achieved a grade A and 27 per cent. a grade B.

Home Education: Public Consultation

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps he has taken to ensure that people who do not have access to the internet are able to respond to his Department's consultation on home educators; [255910]

(2) what steps he has taken to inform home educators about his Department's consultations on home education; [255912]

(3) what representations he has received from local authorities about his Department's consultations on home education; and if he will make a statement. [255913]

Jim Knight: The team carrying out the independent review of home education has invited stakeholders including home educators and local authorities to offer evidence to inform the review. This call for evidence is not a public consultation.

The Department has notified a number of key stakeholders about the review. These include local authorities and all the representative groups from the home education community that the Department is aware of. Evidence can be supplied to the review team using an online form, through email or by writing to the review team.

All local authorities have been invited by the review team to complete a questionnaire and 48 responses have been received.

Information System for Parents and Providers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what information will be published from the Information System for Parents and Providers; [257020]

(2) what agreed suppliers there are in each local authority for the Information System and Parents for Providers; [257059]

(3) when each local authority will bring the Information System for Parents and Providers into operation. [257060]

Beverley Hughes: The Information System for Parents and Providers (ISPP) will provide a web-based comprehensive directory of information, advice and support services to parents, front line workers in local authorities and third sector services working with parents. The directory will include information collected by Ofsted and local authorities in England on childcare provision and other services which may be of benefit to parents, prospective parents, children and young people together with information provided by the Department on service providers who operate nationally. The system supports local authority delivery of their duty under section 12 of the Childcare Act 2006 to provide such service information to parents.

The ISPP, which will be publicly known as the Parent Know How directory, will significantly enhance parents' access to information on a far wider range of parenting and childcare topics than is currently available.

The Department has provided funding to local authorities to purchase their own information management systems according to local needs and so the choice of supplier is a matter for each local authority, based on guidance from the Department on requirements for these systems.

We expect each English local authority to implement their local information management system connected to the ISPP so that it can go live in September 2009.

International General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department plans to fund the International General Certificate of Secondary Education approved by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. [257024]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The iGCSE awarding organisations (Edexcel and Cambridge International) have not submitted any iGCSEs for accreditation by Ofqual.

Ofqual has recently accredited a number of Cambridge International Certificates, which have similarities to Cambridge International's iGCSEs. They have just been submitted for approval for funding purposes and we shall consider them in the normal way.

Music Standards Fund

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been allocated to the Music Standards Fund in each of the next three years. [256085]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: £82.56 million has been allocated to the Standards Fund Music Grant in each year of the current three year funding settlement, which runs from 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Music: Education

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish his response to the Ofsted report on Making More of Music. [256699]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We welcome this thorough analysis of music education which clearly shows what works in school music teaching and what does not. The report rightly illustrates how music can have much wider benefits to children and young people in terms of their engagement with education; their levels of self-esteem; and their progress across the whole of the national curriculum.

We will not be producing a written response to the report but will instead concentrate our efforts on continuing with our programme of work to make the most of the unprecedented funding that we have committed for music education—£332 million to 2011—and we will work with members of the Music Programme Board to address the recommendations that Ofsted makes.

Music: Teachers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff were responsible for musical instrument teaching in (a) headcount and (b) full-time equivalent terms in maintained (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in each year since 1997. [255921]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is not available.

The number of music teachers in maintained primary schools is not collected centrally; the number of teachers of music in maintained secondary schools in England is collected as part of the Secondary School Curriculum and Staffing Survey. This is an occasional survey that does not provide a full time series.

The following table gives data from the 2002 and 2007 surveys, the most recent years available, for full-time and full-time equivalent teachers (headcounts are not available). Please note, much musical instrument teaching is likely to be carried out by local Music Service staff, who will not be included in these figures:

Number of music teachers in maintained secondary schools in England: 2002 and 2007

	Full-time[1]		Full-time equivalent[1]
	2002	2007	2002	2007
Music	6,300	5,900	n/a	6,500

[1] Full-time teacher numbers are provided for 2002 and 2007; full-time equivalent teacher numbers (which includes part-time teachers) were only collected in 2007.

Note:
Teachers are counted once under each subject they teach. A teacher is included in the total if they teach at least one period per timetable rotation of Music.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy to implement online marking for Key Stage 2 national curriculum tests. [253697]

Jim Knight: In his report into the 2008 test delivery difficulties, Lord Sutherland recommended that the testing and assessment system should be modernised to include piloting on-screen marking. We accepted his recommendations in full and QCA is working with my officials to review the technological advances which would support test delivery from 2010 onwards.

QCA has already undertaken some trialling of on-screen marking of the December 2008 round of single level tests, part of the Making Good Progress pilot. QCA and DCSF are considering the evidence from this pilot and its implications for the National Curriculum tests.

Additionally, an Expert Group has been established by the Secretary of State to advise on proposed assessment arrangements and their delivery. The Group will take full account of Lord Sutherland's recommendations and will draw on a wide range of evidence—including that emerging from the pilot of Single Level Tests—in reaching its conclusions.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils who achieved a level 5 in English in their Key Stage 2 examinations in 2004-05 also achieved a level 7 or higher in English in their Key Stage 3 examinations in 2007-08; [257165]

(2) how many pupils who achieved a level 5 or higher in mathematics in their Key Stage 2 examinations in 2004-05 achieved a level 7 or higher in mathematics in their Key Stage 3 examinations in 2007-08; [257166]

(3) how many pupils who achieved a level 5 in science in their Key Stage 2 examinations in 2004-05 also achieved a level 7 or higher in science in their Key Stage 3 examinations in 2007-08. [257170]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 2007/08 data are not available. Data for 2006/07 can be found in table 8 of the Statistical First Release: National Curriculum Assessments at Key Stage 3 in England, 2006/07 (Revised), which can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000776/index.shtml

Nursery Schools

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were in nursery education in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [256461]

Beverley Hughes: The number of part-time equivalent, free early education places, filled by three and four-year-olds can be found in table 4 of the Statistical First Release: "Provision for Children Under Five Years of Age in England: January 2008". This publication can be viewed on the Department for Children, Schools and Families website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000790/index.shtml

Pre-school Education

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department plans to undertake a regulatory impact assessment on the planned extension of the entitlement to free nursery care from 12.5 to 15 hours per week in 2010. [258194]

Beverley Hughes: Extending the highly popular free early education entitlement from 12.5 hours a week to 15 hours, delivered more flexibly, is important both to ensuring all children benefit from high quality early education and parents are supported in balancing their work and family life. As part of the process towards extending the free entitlement, we will be making changes to regulations under section 7 of the Childcare Act and consulting widely on a revised code of practice for local authorities. We will include an impact assessment as part of the process.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects free early learning to be available to all two-year-old children; and if he will make a statement. [256981]

Beverley Hughes: We will extend the offer of free early learning and child care to 15 per cent. of the most disadvantaged two-year-olds in every local authority as the priority in our long term vision of a universal offer for all two-year-olds.

This will reach around 23,000 children per year and cost around £57 million in total. Decisions regarding the pace of further rollout will need to be taken based on evidence gathered from the pilot and in light of wider fiscal considerations as part of the next spending review.

Pre-school Education: Arson and Vandalism

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of (a) all childcare settings and (b) childcare settings in the (i) five per cent. most deprived, (ii) 10 per cent. most deprived, (iii) five per cent. least deprived and (iv) five per cent. most deprived areas have closed for a period of one day or more as a result of an act of arson in each year for which records are available; [257628]

(2) how many and what proportion of (a) all childcare settings and (b) settings in the (i) five per cent. most deprived, (ii) 10 per cent. most deprived, (iii) five per cent. least deprived and (iv) five per cent. most deprived areas have closed for a period of one day or more as a result of an act of vandalism in each year for which records are available. [257619]

Beverley Hughes: Data are not collected centrally on the temporary closure of child care settings.

Therefore, it is not possible to provide this information.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1498W, on pre-school education finance, when the Child Care Strategy will be published. [249641]

Beverley Hughes: The child care strategy document was published on 28 January 2009.

Primary Education: Admissions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children entered primary schools in each local education authority (LEA) in (a) 2000 and (b) 2005; what estimate he has made of the number of children who will enter primary schools in each LEA in (i) 2010, (ii) 2013, (iii) 2015, (iv) 2017 and (v) 2020; and what estimate he has made of the (A) number and (B) cost of primary school places required in each LEA in each of those years compared with 2009 requirements. [255716]

Jim Knight: A table showing the number of admissions to primary schools in 2000/01 and 2005/06 in each local authority area has been placed in the Libraries.

Pupil projections by individual age are available at national level. At a local authority level, the Department relies upon authorities to prepare their own pupil projections.

National pupil projections are available for each year to 2017. There is an increasing degree of uncertainty in projecting over longer time periods, influenced mainly by the underlying population trends. The following table shows the actual number of pupils in primary schools from 2003 to 2008, and projected figures for 2009 to 2017. Figures for pupils aged five, and rising fives, are separately shown (this is the nearest available information for new admissions to primary schools).

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) prepares population projections at a local level and advises that these are robust by quinary age band. A table showing the projected change in population aged five to 10 (primary ages) by local authority area has been placed in the Libraries.

Local authorities are responsible for ensuring sufficient school places are available for their area. The Department provides basic need capital funding to enable authorities to expand capacity where a growth in pupil numbers is anticipated.

Estimates of the cost of primary schools places are not available for the years in question. We can provide the amount of funds delegated to maintained primary schools (individual schools budget plus revenue grants) from the most recent Section 52 data returns, relating to 2008/09, for each local authority. This information has been placed in the Libraries.

Primary Education: Greater London

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimates he has made of the number of parents of reception-age pupils in each London borough who obtained (a) their first preference, (b) their second preference, (c) their third preference and (d) none of their three preferences in respect of their child's primary school placement in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007 and (iv) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [255707]

(2) how many reception pupils in each London borough had not been allocated a primary school place by September in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [255689]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect data on offers of primary school places or on the number of unplaced children. Local authorities are under a duty to make sure that every child of compulsory school age has a suitable school place.

Pupil Referral Units

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils who attended pupil referral units were (a) eligible for free school meals and (b) had statements of special educational needs in each year since 1997. [257660]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is provided in the following table.

Pupils: Internet

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent assessment of the level of access to broadband at home is for (a) all secondary school pupils and (b) secondary school pupils from lower income households. [250577]

Jim Knight: The most recent research[1] published by my Department found that 90 per cent. of parents of school-aged children in England reported that they had computer and internet access at home. Among parents of secondary age children the figure was 91 per cent. for parents of children in Key Stage 3, and 93 per cent. for children in Key Stage 4.

The research showed a variation in connectivity by social class. Among parents in social class E, 69 per cent. had a computer with internet access. The research did not distinguish broadband and dial-up connectivity. However Government statistics[2] show that most UK households with internet connectivity have a broadband connection: 65 per cent. of households had any internet access and 56 per cent. had broadband access.

Schools: Catering

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of secondary schools allow all pupils to leave school premises at lunchtime; [256008]

(2) what proportion of maintained mainstream secondary schools have a lunchtime break of one hour or more. [256010]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We do not hold this information.

Regulations state that a school day should be split into two sessions with a break in the middle of the day between those two sessions. There is currently no legal requirement on the length of the midday break and it is for individual schools' governing bodies to determine this.

It is also for schools to determine their own policy on whether pupils are allowed to leave school premises at lunchtime.

Schools: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have Disability Equality Schemes in place; and if he will make a statement. [257256]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to my written answer of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1159W.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether he has plans to control the overall levels of school balances; [256359]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of local education authorities in preventing the accumulation of excessive school balances; [256360]

(3) what recent assessment he has made of the level of school balances. [256361]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We will shortly be publishing final data on school balances for 2007-08, but provisional data available through local authorities' published section 52 returns suggests that the total level of school balances at year end 2007-08 is £1.9 billion.

We have not conducted a formal assessment of the progress that local authorities have made with their schools to reduce excess surplus balances. However, my officials have been working with local authorities to gather information about when they have been successful in retrieving surplus balances from schools; or when the authority has encountered considerable opposition from the schools and the public which has resulted in the local authority withdrawing their proposals to claw back balances.

We continue to monitor school balances. When the three year funding settlement was announced in November 2007, local authorities were informed that we expected to see them work with their schools to reduce the total amount of surplus, uncommitted balances held by schools. If we do not see a sizeable reduction of the total balances by the end of 2010-11, then we will seek other measures to reduce this total. We will conduct a wide consultation on a detailed proposition before the measure is implemented.

We have made it very clear that it unacceptable for schools to amass high levels of surplus, uncommitted balances and that their priority is to spend their funding to support the pupils of today.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects (a) St John's Primary School in Waltham Chase, (b) Bishops Waltham Primary School and (c) Curdridge Primary School to receive their Raise Online reports. [257355]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for Ofsted. The HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Full RAISEonline reports, containing contextual information and analysis based on 2008 Key Stage 1 data were made available to St Johns Primary School, Bishops Waltham Primary School and Curdridge Primary School on 24 November 2008. An updated report containing unvalidated Key Stage 2 data will be available in April 2009. The RAISEonline website will provide further details regarding the date of availability in March 2009.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Schools: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained schools in Hemel Hempstead have broadband internet access. [256489]

Jim Knight: All maintained schools in the constituency of Hemel Hempstead have broadband internet access.

Schools: Music

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils in maintained schools received specialist instrumental and vocal tuition in each year since 2001. [259924]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to his question of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1489W.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to assess demand for specialist instrumental or vocal tuition amongst (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils in maintained schools on a continuous basis. [256066]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Local authorities are currently drawing up their local three year music action plans, and have the main responsibility for addressing the needs and demands of children in their schools.

The Standards Fund Music Grant is a major source of funding for local authorities to provide participation opportunities for its young people. The guidance to the grant states its purpose is spending on activities which enhance opportunities for pupils to access high quality music education, giving priority to instrumental and vocal opportunities at KS2. The guidance goes on to say that local authorities

"retain overall responsibility for monitoring the quality and value for money of the provision purchased, and for ensuring that access at KS2 is a priority."

Schools: Procurement

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department has established the support team for the online procurement tool for schools to date. [247204]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The OPEN e-procurement system is managed by a team that has been established in DCSF. The team are responsible for managing the service on behalf of schools, provided by the OGC's contract with ProcServe who deliver a framework for provision of this e-procurement system. As part of the Department's support for schools it has established local educational procurement centres (EPCs) to provide on-the-ground support to schools on a regional basis, facilitating access to and support with the OPEN along with information and guidance to assist schools in understanding their procurement needs and maximise their budget.

Schools: Rural Areas

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many rural schools with unfilled teaching vacancies there are in each county. [256455]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

Social Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average number of days of sickness absence in each children's social services department in each local authority was for the most recent period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [256841]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We do not hold any data centrally on sickness absence in local authorities.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained special schools had boarders in 2008. [256441]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: A table has been placed in the Libraries indicating which maintained special schools had places for boarders in 2008, including those which closed during that year. This has been drawn from Edubase, which contains information supplied by local authorities and schools.

The Department does not collect data on the number of boarders actually taking up places. In general, local authorities fund special schools on the basis of the number of pupils for which they are expected to cater, including boarders, whether or not the places are actually occupied. This enables a stable resource base to be maintained, while allowing for the admission of pupils whose needs are identified during the year.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained special schools had (a) between 100 and 200 pupils, (b) between 201 and 300 pupils, (c) between 301 and 400 pupils and (d) over 400 pupils in 2008. [256442]

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1730-31W, on special educational needs, what steps he is taking to ensure that school censuses do not undercount the number of looked-after children in schools. [256859]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department recognises that when the School Census began to identify looked-after children, it undercounted them, and it is possible that an element of undercounting remains. We are therefore exploring ways of obtaining this information via other means without placing additional burdens on local authorities.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1730-1W, on special educational needs, how many (a) male and (b) female pupils there were in each category in each year. [256861]

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department plans to allow looked-after children the right to appeal to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (a) in their own name and (b) through a third party other than a local authority. Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to answer given on 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 930W.

Special Educational Needs: Private Sector

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2116-17W, on special educational needs: private sector, what the names are of the schools that opened between September 2005 and August 2008. [258047]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The 228 independent schools catering wholly or mainly for pupils with special educational needs which opened between 1 September 2005 and 31 August 2008 are listed.

The Education Act 2002 amended the definition of an independent school to include institutions providing full-time education for one or more pupils with a statement of special educational needs or a looked-after child.

This resulted in a number of children's homes which provide education on the premises registering as independent schools.

Specialised Diplomas: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils attending schools in Suffolk have been entered for diploma qualifications to date. [256960]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The number of pupils starting the diploma this September 2008 in the Suffolk local authority is shown in the following table. There is only one consortium in Suffolk (North Suffolk Partnership) which is only offering the engineering diploma.

Sir John Leman High School, Leiston Community High School and Bungay High School are the three schools teaching the engineering diploma.

Teachers: Pay

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the cost projections for the introduction of bonuses for teachers in deprived areas; [249119]

(2) what estimate he has made of his Department's expenditure on bonuses for teachers in deprived schools in each of the next five years; [249120]

(3) in what year the first bonus for teachers in deprived areas will be paid; [249122]

(4) from which funding stream golden handcuffs for teachers in deprived areas will be drawn; [249124]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The cost of the 'golden handcuff' element of the incentive package announced in the "New Opportunities" White Paper on 13 January will depend entirely on the decisions made by individual schools. Some may choose not to take part in the initiative and those that do will be able to select which new teachers they want to offer the incentives to.

Head teachers will be able to offer the 'golden handcuff' to teachers taking up new posts in around 540 eligible schools from September 2009.

We are currently considering the precise structure of the incentive payment, so detailed costing are not yet available. However, the overall cost of a scheme as set out in the White Paper, "New Opportunities", will be affordable within the overall schools budget in 2010/11. Future years fall outside the current spending review period, so it is not possible to identify allocations beyond 2010/11.

Teachers: Pensions

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps will be taken to ensure that recipients of teaching pensions who have been overpaid receive clear information explaining (a) the reasons for the past miscalculation and (b) the new pension payment figures. [255759]

Jim Knight: In December 2008 we arranged for Capita Teachers' Pensions (TP), our pensions administrator, to write to all those pensioners who were known to be affected by this issue. The content of the letter was agreed across the public service pension schemes and provided a detailed explanation of how the calculation of an element of their pension, known as the guaranteed minimum pension, caused the overpayment. This was supported with a dedicated telephone helpline, which has received approximately 1,000 calls to date. TP will be writing again to those pensioners before the end of February to advise them of the impact on their pensions. At that time they will be provided with further information on how their revised pension amount has been calculated. A dedicated telephone service will continue to be provided to further assist those pensioners to understand their pension calculation.

Truancy: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of children in each decile of (a) area deprivation by pupil residence and (b) area deprivation by school residence have been recorded as having at least one unauthorised absence in the last year for which data are available. [257023]

Percentage of children in schools[1] recording an unauthorised absence[2] by IDACI decile[4] of pupil residence and school location, 2006/07

IDACI decile[4]	Percentage of pupils with at least one recorded unauthorised absence[3]

Young Offenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of people detained in young offender institutions (a) are from care home backgrounds, (b) were children in care and (c) have been assessed as having special educational needs, broken down by type of special educational need. [241727]

Beverley Hughes: Of the 59,500 young people looked after by local authorities at 31 March 2008, 130 were placed in a young offender institution (YOI) or prison. Data on the number of young people in YOIs who may have been looked after by local authorities earlier in their childhoods are not collected centrally.

Data on the number of young people in YOIs assessed as having special educational needs are not collected centrally. The Learning and Skills Council collects information on the number of referrals of young people in YOIs to special educational needs co-ordinators (SENCOs). Returns from August 2007 to July 2008 indicate that 3,320 such referrals were made over the period.

Young People: Antisocial Behaviour

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 11 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1081-2W, on young people: antisocial behaviour, who will conduct the independent national evaluation; what procedure will be used to appoint the evaluator; and when the evaluation will be complete. [247863]

Beverley Hughes: The evaluation will be carried out by an independent contractor, chosen through a competitive tender. The Department plans to issue tenders in spring 2009, and the evaluation will complete after the projects finish in April 2011. Interim results will be available before then.

Young People: Sports

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions he has had with the Association for Physical Education (afPE) on the development of the Physical Education and Sport Strategy for Young People; and what plans he has to involve afPE in the future development of the strategy. [255720]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Ministers and officials from DCSF and DCMS meet afPE regularly to discuss PE and its place in the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People. Representatives from afPE are also part of a consortium which is currently delivering the professional development workstrand of the strategy. We value afPE's experience and expertise and we will continue to consult them on the development of the strategy.

Young People: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many 16 to 18-year-olds there were resident in Suffolk in each of the last three years for which figures are available; and what proportion of these were (a) in full-time work and (b) not in education, employment or training in each such year. [256957]

Beverley Hughes: The Department publishes annual estimates of the number of 16 to 18-year-olds not in education, employment or training (NEET) in England. These estimates cannot be disaggregated to local authority level.

However, we can use information collected by the Connexions Service to estimate the number and proportion of young people NEET at local authority level. The following table gives estimates of the number of 16 to 18-year-olds resident in Suffolk and the proportion who were in full-time employment and not in education, employment or training at the end of 2005, 2006 and 2007.

	Number of young people aged 16-18	Proportion of young people aged 16-18 in full time employment (percentage)	Proportion of young people aged 16-18 NEET (percentage)
2005	21,112	17.5	8.6
2006	21,206	18.7	8.4
2007	20,928	19.6	7.2

Youth Facilities: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government have taken to improve youth facilities in Coventry. [257704]

Beverley Hughes: The Government have allocated a total of £185,300 per annum over the period 2008-11 to the Youth Capital Fund (YCF) in Coventry local authority. YCF empowers young people by giving them control over funding decisions for new facilities in their area.

Coventry is also receiving an additional £452,000 in 2008-09 via the Youth Capital Fund Plus which will deliver a significant new facility in a neighbourhood with a high level of deprivation, crime and antisocial behaviour.

In December 2008 Coventry and Warwickshire YMCA received £1.5 million from the Youth Sector Development Fund to develop a programme aimed at engaging young people involved in gangs, antisocial behaviour and crime in positive activities.

In addition, since April 2008, all local areas have had the opportunity to bid for funding for world-class youth facilities through the Government's £202 million myplace programme.

Youth Inclusion Programme

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 717W, on crime prevention: young people, on which 110 estates the Youth Inclusion programme operates; and on what criteria those estates were selected. [256435]

Beverley Hughes: The specific names of the estates in which Youth Inclusion programmes (YIPs) run are not formally collected centrally by the Youth Justice Board. However, the information about each area that is available, which in many cases does include the names of relevant estate, is included in annex A.

The criteria upon which estates are selected are high scores for both deprivation and crime.

The number listed is over 110. This is due to local flexibilities which allow for youth offending teams to set up additional YIPs from their prevention budgets where they deem appropriate.

TRANSPORT

Ashchurch Station

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many calls Cross Country Trains services are required to make at Ashchurch station (a) each day and (b) each week; what recent changes have been made to this requirement; whether any further changes are planned; and if he will make a statement. [257451]

Paul Clark: The service level commitment within its franchise agreement requires Cross Country to call at Ashchurch station on Mondays to Saturdays. Four services to Birmingham New Street and two services to Cardiff Central are required to be provided. The current service level commitment commenced on 14 December 2008. The previous service level commitment required Cross Country to operate two services calling at Ashchurch in the direction of Cardiff Central. There are no current plans to change this current level of service.

Aviation: Fares

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eddisbury of 11 November 2008, Official Report, columns 955-56W, on aviation: fares, if he will provide details of the data referred to in note 3 to the table. [258061]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The domestic component of the average air fare referred to in note 3 of the table has been based on a sample of fares data compiled from air passenger interviews conducted by the CAA on 12 domestic routes, excluding passengers transferring to international flights.

Average domestic air fare, 1997 prices

1997	143
1998	145
1999	143
2000	141
2001	135
2002	117
2003	112
2004	105
2005	104
2006	102

The sample of routes that this table is based on is as follows:

Gatwick—Glasgow
Gatwick—Newcastle
Heathrow—Aberdeen
Heathrow—Belfast International
Heathrow—Edinburgh
Heathrow—Manchester
Luton—Glasgow
Luton—Aberdeen
Manchester—Belfast International
Manchester—Edinburgh
Manchester—Southampton
Stansted—Prestwick

The domestic fare index is based only on routes from airports that are continuously surveyed by the CAA, as many domestic routes are between regional airports that are only intermittently surveyed. Fares at Heathrow, Gatwick and Manchester airports were surveyed continuously over the whole period, but Luton and Stansted were surveyed continuously by the CAA only from 2000 onwards.

In addition, the index has been compiled only from domestic routes that have been operational throughout the time period under analysis.

Bus Services: Driving Instruction

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which bus companies operating in the Greater London area have delegated driving examiners. [257391]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Greater London bus companies that are approved to appoint delegated examiners are as follows:

Arriva London North
Arriva London South
Docklands Minibuses
East London Bus and Coach Co.
First London
London General Transport
London United Busways Ltd.
Metrobus Ltd.
Metroline Travel Ltd.
National Express London

The delegated examiners may conduct tests for sister companies both inside and outside the Greater London area.

Bus Services: Standards

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bus drivers were examined under the driver quality monitoring scheme in each year since 2005; and how many were found to be (a) unacceptable with serious faults and (b) unacceptable with dangerous faults in each such year. [256233]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Driving Standards Agency provides Driver Quality Monitoring (DQM) assessments to bus companies on a commercial basis. The Agency has no powers to revoke a bus driver's licence based on the outcome of a DQM assessment.

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Total DQM assessments	9,059	9,089	8,177
Unacceptable serious faults	3,311	2,783	2,086
Unacceptable dangerous faults	136	113	77

A serious fault is defined as a significant deviation from the defined outcome with safety, control and/or legal requirements breached, such as moving off from a bus stop causing a car driver from the rear to brake.

A dangerous fault is defined as safety, control and/or legal requirement breached that would have caused actual danger, such as moving off from a bus stop into the path of a car from the rear causing the other driver to swerve to avoid a collision.

The data from the assessment are collated and reported back to the client on the next day, for potential remedial action. For those assessments recording dangerous faults the bus company is notified on the day of the assessment. In all cases the client is responsible for any further action. Some operators use these reports for disciplinary and reward purposes.

Bus companies use DQM assessments as part of their internal quality supervision arrangements. The Agency's records indicate that the proportion of assessments giving rise to serious and dangerous markings decreases year on year during the life of a DQM contract.

Bus Services: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much his Department has spent on supporting bus services in York in each year since the creation of the York unitary authority; [257834]

(2) how much his Department has spent on road improvements in City of York constituency in each year since the creation of the York unitary authority. [257835]

Paul Clark: Funding provided by the Department for Transport to local authorities is not generally ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities. Figures are not therefore available at constituency level.

The Department allocates integrated transport block funding to local transport authorities for general capital investment in transport. Figures are available from 1997-98 and are shown in £ millions in Table 1:

Table 1: Capital support for transport schemes in City of York council

£ million

	Integrated transport block	Total pre-LTP funding
2008-09	3.737	—
2007-08	4.141	—

1999-2000	—	1.983
1998-99	—	1.127
1997-98	—	2.212

Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's Formula Grant.

Rural Bus Subsidy

The City of York council also receives grant funding to help support marginal bus services through the rural bus subsidy grant (RBSG) and rural bus challenge (RBC), as shown in Table 2:

Table 2: Bus subsidy for City of York since 1998-99

[1] Since April 2008, RBSG has been included in Area Based Grant allocations to local authorities.

Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG)

Local bus service and community transport operators receive bus service operators grant (BSOG) from this Department, amounting to over £400 million in 2008-09. Records are not kept of BSOG expenditure by local authority area.

Concessionary fares

Before 1 April 2008, funding for the statutory minimum bus concession was provided exclusively through the Formula Grant system, which is administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG). The Department for Transport therefore provided no funding to City of York council for concessionary bus travel prior to this date.

The Department did however provide City of York council with £130,972 in 2007-08 for the cost of producing and issuing the new England-wide bus passes to all their eligible people. In 2008-09 DFT will provide City of York council with special grant funding of £1.1 million for the improvement to statutory concessionary travel; this is in addition to the existing formula grant funding from CLG.

The Department also provides block funding for road improvements and maintenance, as set out in Table 3:

Table 3: Funding for road improvements and maintenance in City of York council

	Highways Maintenance	Other funding[1]	Total
2008-09	1.379	1.217	2.596

1997-98	—	—	0.977
1996-97	—	—	2.262

[1] Other funding covers capital and revenue funding for detrunking, and road safety capital funding.

In 1996-97 and 1997-98 the Department provided £3.239 million for the Peasholme Green bridge scheme.

Buses: Regulation

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost to bus and coach operators of implementating the measures included in the proposed EU Regulation 2008/0237 on the rights of passengers in bus and coach transport. [256609]

Paul Clark [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Department for Transport will be consulting shortly on the European Commission's proposal for a regulation on bus and coach passenger rights including our initial assessment of its impact.

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effects on trends in the number of spurious claims of injury by bus and coach passengers of implementation of provisions in the proposed EU Regulation 2008/0237 on the rights of passengers in bus and coach transport. [256610]

Paul Clark [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The European Commission's proposal for a new regulation on bus and coach passenger rights would make operators liable for loss or damage resulting from the death, personal injury or mental harm to passengers caused by an accident while the passengers were on, entering or leaving the vehicle. In certain circumstances the operator would not be able to contest damages, although they would not be liable if the accident was the fault of the passenger or caused by the passenger's negligence. No assessment has been made of the likely effect of these provisions on trends in the number of spurious injury claims made by passengers. The Department will shortly be consulting on the European Commission's proposal to help inform the Government's position.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls and Expenditure

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the gross annual revenue from the Dartford crossings was in the last year for which figures are available; [258072]

(2) what the costs of operating and maintaining the Dartford crossings were in the last year for which figures are available; [258073]

(3) what the cost of collecting tolls was for the Dartford crossings in the last year for which figures are available. [258074]

Paul Clark: The 2007-08 accounts were published on 29 January 2009 and show gross income of £67.3 million, managing agent costs of £15.8 million, which includes charge collection and general running costs, and other expenditure of £8.6 million which includes capital works. A copy of the Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Charging Scheme Account for 2007-08 has been placed in the House Library.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256146]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Flowers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on cut flowers in each of the last three years. [256173]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information is provided in the following table.

[2] The £100.00 spend in 2005-06 relates to the purchase of two flower arrangements for the Memorial Service of B. Ley (DVLA Director) in June 2005 and the hire of two flower stands.
The £150.00 spend in 2006-07 relates to the purchase of cut flowers for the victims of the letter bomb explosion at the Agency's mail room in February 2007.
[3] Requested information can only be provided at disproportionate cost.
[4] Relates to spend incurred during 2006-07 to 2008-09 (to date). Flowers are sent to staff following a serious, personal and often unexpected event. This would include a serious illness, major accident or bereavement.

This excludes spend by the Government Car and Despatch Agency, Highways Agency, and the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency as the requested information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of those outside the Senior Civil Service in his Department received a bonus in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [252680]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 29 January 2009]: The Department for Transport comprises a central Department plus seven Executive agencies, each with its own pay and reward system. Information regarding non-consolidated performance pay has been collected from the central Department and all seven agencies and collated to one set of figures.

The percentage of staff outside the senior civil service structure in the Department for Transport who received non-consolidated performance pay in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008 is set out in the following table:

	Percentage of staff outside of SCS receiving non-consolidated performance pay	Non-consolidated performance pay as a percentage of pay bill
2005-06	71	1.47
2006-07	77	1.67
2007-08	72	1.56

The aforementioned figures exclude VOSA performance pay data for 2007-08 because this has not yet been paid.

Departmental Recruitment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many new recruits his Department took on in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; how many of these were taken on as (i) permanent, (ii) temporary and (iii) agency staff; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for (A) 2009-10 and (B) 2010-11. [254472]

Mr. Hoon: The number of new recruits taken on by the Department in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09 and how many of these were taken on as (i) permanent, (ii) temporary and (iii) agency staff is set out in the following table.

	Number of permanent staff taken on	Number of temporary staff taken on	Number of agency staff taken on
2005-06	2,234	680	845
2006-07	1,931	555	966
2007-08	1,415	82[1]	989

The data in the table are for the Department for Transport (Centre) and its agencies. The figures for 2008-09 are not available. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has a category of staff termed "casual staff" which have been recorded under temporary staff in the aforementioned table; the Vehicle Operator Services Agency does not record agency staff numbers centrally; and temporary/fixed term staff are recorded within the permanent category for the Department for Transport (Centre) for 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Estimates for the equivalent figures for (A) 2009-10 and (B) 2010-11 are not available.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent estimate is of the number of inaccurate records on the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's vehicle system software. [256070]

Jim Fitzpatrick: An accurate record is defined as one where the registered keeper of the vehicle or the driving licence holder can be traced from the details contained on the database.

The latest estimate of the accuracy of the vehicles record showed it was 96.9 per cent. accurate. This equates to 1,052,662 records that are inaccurate.

The latest estimate of the accuracy of the drivers record showed it was 81.5 per cent. accurate. This equates to 7,906,275 records that are inaccurate.

The responsibility for notifying the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority (DVLA) of a change of address lies with the vehicle keeper or licence holder. So far as vehicle records are concerned there is an annual requirement to tax the vehicle and this transaction is a regular prompt to owners to fulfil the requirement to notify change of address. There is no equivalent annual driver transaction that prompts a notification.

DVLA is not complacent about accuracy. The task is to encourage and support drivers and vehicle keepers to meet their obligations and to that end a dedicated accuracy improvement team has been established to improve matters. Current initiatives in hand include checks of credit reference agency databases for current addresses and working with others in the cross-government Tell Us Once initiative to obtain early notification of the death of a licence holder.

Driving Instruction: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Driving Standards Agency driving examiners conducting passenger service vehicle tests there were in the Greater London area in the last 12 months. [257390]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Twenty-one.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many delegated driving examiners in the Greater London area were quality assured in 2008. [257396]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 18.

Driving Tests: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the pass rate was of tests taken with delegated driving examiners in the Greater London area in each year from 2005 to 2008. [257392]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The pass rates of tests taken with delegated driving examiners working for bus companies, in the Greater London area between 2005 and 2008 are as follows:

	Percentage pass rate
2005	52.7
2006	54.8
2007	53.1
2008[1]	57.3

[1] January to August 2008 only.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the pass rate was for passenger service vehicle driving tests taken by Driving Standards Agency examiners in the Greater London area in each year from 2005 to 2008. [257393]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Driving Standards Agency do not hold historical information on pass rates by calendar year. They do have this information by financial year as follows, along with the 2008 calendar year.

Greater London area

Period covered	Percentage pass
1 January 2008 to 31 December 2008	40.6
1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008	40.6
1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007	41.3
1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006	40.9

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what monitoring processes his Department and its agencies use to ensure equality of opportunity for members of ethnic minority groups (a) applying for provisional driving licences and (b) applying to take the driving test. [256536]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) does not monitor the ethnicity of applicants for a provisional driving licence.

The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) completed an Equality Impact Assessment (EIA) on the processes for applying to take a driving test in January 2008. This confirmed they were not influenced by ethnicity or race.

DSA's driving test booking processes are validated annually via a 'mystery shopping' exercise. This ensures the assessment is undertaken anonymously and independently by independent researchers. This survey is undertaken to ensure that the processes validated by the EIA are performed correctly and fairly.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many driving licence change of address notifications were received by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in 2008. [258218]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 2,181,677.

Garages and petrol Stations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to require all petrol stations to provide a free air service for tyre inflation. [257069]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not have any plans to require all petrol stations to offer a free tyre inflation service. However, correct tyre inflation is important from a CO_2 reduction perspective. This is why provision of tyre inflation equipment is included in a list of energy efficiency measures, on which the Department is seeking to establish a voluntary agreement with fuel suppliers. The Department is also promoting the importance of keeping tyres correctly inflated via the Act On CO_2 campaign.

Heathrow Airport

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation would be required before a third runway at Heathrow could come into operation. [256764]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport made clear on 15 January 2009 the Government's strong environment commitments in relation to expanding Heathrow. These are firm obligations. The precise mechanisms needed to deliver them—including any necessary legislation—are under consideration and will be announced in due course.

Heathrow Airport: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the effect of a third runway at Heathrow on levels of carbon dioxide emissions resulting from stacking by commercial aircraft awaiting clearance to land at Heathrow. [254681]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport's report, "Improving the Air Passenger Experience", provides appropriate estimates of aircraft stacking above Heathrow. This report is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/airports/improveairpassengerexp.pdf

Figure 27 on page 25 shows that in 2006-07, 56 per cent. of arriving aircraft were held in a stack and for those held, there was an average 8.5 minute hold. This equates to roughly 50,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide emitted by aircraft stacking at Heathrow in 2006-07.

As the capacity constraint is reached at Heathrow, these delays and emissions are forecast to increase in future without additional capacity.

Although the effect on stacking of a third runway has not yet been quantified, it is anticipated that a third runway will reduce the need for aircraft to be held in stacks. It will also enable the airport to operate with greater flexibility for slot re-timing with potentially fewer delays for passengers.

High Speed Trains: Lancashire

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent discussions he has had with High Speed Two Ltd. on proposals to develop a high speed railway line between (a) London and Lancashire and (b) London and the centre of Birmingham; [257983]

(2) whether an assessment of proposals for a high speed railway line between London and Lancaster will be contained in the document to be produced by High Speed Two Ltd. by the end of 2009; [257984]

(3) whether he has commissioned research on the provision of a new high speed rail link to Scotland. [257985]

Paul Clark: A new company, High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd., has been formed to develop the case for high speed services between London and Scotland.

As a first stage, the company is expected to bring forward proposals for Britain's second new high speed line, between London and the west midlands, by the end of the year, and to consider the potential for new lines to serve the north of England and Scotland. This will need to include an appraisal of the environmental, planning, technological, capacity, value for money and funding issues.

High Speed Trains: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department has taken to fund the development of high-speed rail links to and from the north-east in the next five years. [257544]

Paul Clark: A new company, High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd., has been formed to develop the case for high speed services between London and Scotland.

As a first stage, the company is expected to bring forward proposals for Britain's second new high speed line, between London and the west midlands, by the end of the year, and to consider the potential for new lines to serve the north of England and Scotland. This will need to include an appraisal of the environmental, planning, technological, capacity, value for money and funding issues.

Humber Bridge: Road Traffic

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of levels of traffic on the Humber Bridge in each of the next 10 years. [257399]

Paul Clark: The Humber Bridge Board is responsible for estimating levels of traffic on the Humber bridge.

Humber Bridge: Tolls

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has made an assessment of the merits of a reduction of the Humber Bridge toll by £1 for a one-year period. [258037]

Paul Clark: It is for the Humber Bridge Board to make such an assessment and make an application to the Secretary of State.

No such application has been made.

Low Emission Zones: Ambulance Services

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on (a) the establishment of low emission zones by local authorities and (b) the charges which may be imposed on ambulances operated by St. John Ambulance entering these zones; and if he will make a statement. [256915]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None, although the Department continues to discuss with a number of stakeholders, including the Environmental Industries Commission, DEFRA and CENEX, the role of low emissions zones.

The establishment of a low emission zone is a matter for consideration by the relevant local authority, as are the criteria and standards for a scheme. That is, the criteria and standards, including which vehicles are affected and any exemptions, are determined by the relevant local authority as the scheme sponsor. This is most evident with the London low emission zone where Transport for London, directed by the London Mayor, administer and monitor the scheme.

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicle excise duty (VED) licences were issued for domestic vehicles registered at addresses in City of York constituency in each VED band in each of the last five years. [257841]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of licensed cars registered to private keepers in the City of York parliamentary constituency at the end of each of the last five years were:

Vehicle excise duty band	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
A: Up to 100g/km CO_2	0	0	0	0	0
B: 101-120 g/km CO_2	16	18	35	76	159
C: 121-150 g/km CO_2	102	220	294	357	454
D: 151-165 g/km CO_2	71	158	282	404	549
E: 166-185 g/km CO_2	792	1,181	1,519	1,848	2,211
F: Over 185 g/km CO_2 - registered before 23 March 2006	1,572	2,427	3,142	3,725	4,182
G: Over 225 g/km CO_2 – registered on or after 23 March 2006	n/a	n/a	n/a	70	162
Licensed in the private and light goods vehicles class	29,941	30,057	29,628	28,991	28,096
Exempt from VED	905	779	697	679	631
Total number of licensed privately owned cars	33,399	34,840	35,597	36,150	36,444

Cars registered prior to 1 March 2001 are licensed in the private and light goods vehicles class and not in relation to their carbon dioxide emissions.

Statistics relating to the end of 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published in April 2009.

Motor Vehicles: Licensing

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has of the current number of unlicensed (a) cars, (b) vans, (c) lorries and (d) motorcycles, broken down by make; and if he will make a statement. [256724]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Estimates of the number of unlicensed vehicles in use in Great Britain are available by taxation class. Estimates for 2008 (in thousands) were as follows:

Taxation class	Estimated number of unlicensed vehicles (thousand)	Rate of unlicensed vehicles in active stock (percentage)
Private and light goods	265	0.9
Goods	3	0.7
Motorcycle	44	3.6
Bus	1	0.6
Exempt	15	0.7
Other	2	1.8
All taxation classes	330	1.0

These estimates cannot be disaggregated by vehicle make.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many unlicensed (a) cars, (b) vans, (c) lorries and (d) motorcycles were (i) clamped and (ii) crushed in each of the last three years for which information is available, broken down by make; what legislation authorises the (A) clamping and (B) crushing of unlicensed vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [256725]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A breakdown of the total number of vehicles clamped and crushed under Department for Transport legislation for the last three years is given in the following table. The figure for each year includes cars, vans, lorries and motorcycles. The statistical data held by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency are not held in such a way to allow figures to be broken down by make.

Calendar year	Vehicles clamped	Vehicles crushed
2006	89,941	38,309
2007	128,691	45,892
2008	157,977	59,489

The legislation that enables both the clamping and crushing of unlicensed vehicles is the Vehicle Excise Duty (Immobilisation, Removal and Disposal of Vehicles) Regulations 1997, as amended.

Motorways: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the motorway infrastructure in the west midlands. [256815]

Paul Clark: Over the last three years 19 major maintenance schemes, each costing between £1 million and £5 million, have been completed; and one major project costing more than £5 million is under construction. These include resurfacing of carriageways and substantial repairs to the structures of the elevated sections of motorway within Birmingham and the Black Country.

The following improvement schemes have also been introduced to tackle particular areas of congestion, improve safety and increase capacity:

- Active traffic management on the M42 east of Birmingham, which is now being extended northwards and introduced on the M40 and M6, with hard shoulder running on the M6 between junction 4 and 5, and junction 8 and 10a;
- Four lengths of MIDAS (motorway incident detection and automated signalling) on the M6 and M42;
- Increased capacity at the junction of the M42 and M6 toll road by adding an additional lane; and
- Traffic light signalisation of several junctions on the M5 and M6 to smooth flow during peak periods.

In the Secretary of State's announcement 'Britain's Transport Infrastructure Motorway and Major Trunk Roads' on 15 January 2009, the following schemes that benefit the west midlands were identified as being expected to enter construction by 2015:

- Hard shoulder running on the M6 from junction 5 to 8 around Birmingham
- Hard shoulder running on the M6 from junction 10a to 13 north of Birmingham
- Improvement of M1 junction 19, the key intersection of the M6, M1 andA14.

In addition, as part of our longer term plans to roll out hard shoulder running across the core motorway network over the next 10 to 15 years, this innovative technique is planned to be implemented on the following parts of the motorway network relevant to the west midlands:

- M6 from junction 2 to 4, between Coventry and Birmingham
- M6 from junction 13 to 19 in Staffordshire
- M5 from junction 4a to 6, south of Birmingham
- M1 junction 13 to 19, south of Rugby.

National Express East Anglia

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next plans to meet the management of National Express to discuss the (a) level of their fares, (b) quality of their service and (c) morale of their staff. [257163]

Paul Clark: In addition to regular general meetings with the Association of Train Operating Companies and representatives of the train operators, Department for Transport Ministers meet senior representatives of all GB train operators every four weeks specifically to discuss rail industry operational performance.

In addition, Departmental officials meet all franchise train operators every four weeks to discuss the delivery of franchise agreements and obligations.

Newhaven Marine Railway Station

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1135W, on Newhaven Marine railway station, on what date the passenger train service was last delivered by rail. [257002]

Paul Clark: Further to my answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1135W Newhaven Marine station has not been safe for passengers since August 2006.

Official Cars: Snow and Ice

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many sets of snow chains the Government Car and Despatch Agency held for use on the Government car fleet on 2 February 2009; [256912]

(2) how many ministerial cars were in use on 2 February 2009; and how many were fitted with snow chains. [256913]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 2 February 2009 ministerial transport movements were kept to a minimum, in line with advice given by the emergency services and the Highways Agency. The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) was able to fulfil all its essential ministerial transport obligations on that day.

GCDA does not fit snow chains to its car fleet.

Park and Ride Schemes: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many park and ride locations there were in York in each year since 1997. [257837]

Paul Clark: Since 1997 two park and ride locations have opened in York, at the Designer Outlet in 2000 and at Monks Cross in 2004. These are in addition to those opened at Askham Bar in 1990, Grimston Bar in 1994 and Rawcliffe Bar in 1996. Two new park and ride faculties planned on A59 and at Clifton Moor with openings anticipated in 2011-12.

Public Transport

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to encourage people to use public transport. [256816]

Paul Clark: The Local Transport Act 2008, which secured Royal Assent in November 2008, will give local authorities enhanced powers to deliver better bus services and a more integrated transport system tailored to local needs.

We are also investing heavily in improving both bus and rail services. Local and central Government now provide £2.5 billion in supporting the local bus network, double the level of spending a decade ago. This includes £1 billion for free off-peak bus travel anywhere in England for older and eligible disabled people and £57 million through the Rural Bus Subsidy Grant.

We have also launched a new Kickstart bus funding competition which offers local transport authorities the chance to bid for a share of £25 million to pump-prime new or enhanced bus services in partnership with bus operators.

The Government are putting record investment in rail as part of their strategy to give people an alternative to travelling by road and meet our environmental obligations on CO_2 emissions. Over £10 billion will be invested in enhancing capacity between 2009 and 2014, with overall Government support for the railway totalling £15 billion.

Public Transport: Elderly

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to make public transport more affordable for older citizens. [256817]

Paul Clark: The Government introduced the statutory minimum bus concession in England in 2001 giving half fare local bus travel at off-peak times to older and eligible disabled residents. In April 2006 this was improved to give free off-peak bus travel in a resident's local area.

From 1 April 2008, this was extended England-wide so that 11 million older and eligible disabled people are entitled to free off-peak bus travel anywhere in England.

The Government are providing around £1 billion each year to support the England-wide concession. An extra £212 million has been made available to local authorities from 2008-09, through a special grant, to fund the increased cost of the new statutory minimum bus concession. The funding allocation was approved following debate in the House on 25 March 2008.

Railway Stations: Opening Hours

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria his Department set for determining whether South West Trains be allowed to close ticket offices within the terms of its franchise agreement; and what criteria will be applied in decisions on First Capital Connect's proposed closures of ticket offices. [255995]

Paul Clark: South West Trains (SWT) submitted its proposals as a major change" under the procedures of the Ticketing and Settlement Agreement (TSA—the approved industry process for such matters), which sets the procedures that operators use to change ticket office hours.

The major change procedure permits operators to make reductions in the opening hours of their ticket offices as long as the appropriate criteria are met. These are that:

> the change represents an improvement on current arrangements in terms of quality of service and/or cost-effectiveness; and > that members of the public will continue to enjoy widespread and easy access to the purchase of rail products

Following the required consultation period Passenger Focus (PF) and London TravelWatch (LTW) raised objections to the SWT proposal and the Secretary of State was required to arbitrate.

The Secretary of State reviewed the proposal against the criteria set out in the Ticketing and Settlement Agreement, taking into account the views of Passenger Focus, London TravelWatch and SWT. No SWT ticket offices were closed completely.

First Capital Connect's proposals are currently under consultation. It would therefore be inappropriate for me to make any comment on them at present as that may fetter the discretion of the Secretary of State if the proposals are referred by the operator for arbitration. However, should this arise the same criteria will be applied.

Railways: Accidents

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) injuries and (b) deaths have occurred in accidents on railway crossings in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in each year since 1998. [255644]

Paul Clark: There are no level crossings in the Hemel Hempstead area.

The following data, relating to Hertfordshire, are based on incidents reported to the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR), under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 (RIDDOR 95). Figures for 2008 are provisional and may change with the receipt of coroners' findings for inquests that are currently outstanding.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) fatalities and (b) injuries there have been on the railways in (i) Greater London, (ii) Sutton and Cheam constituency and (iii) nationwide in each year since 1998. [256662]

Paul Clark: Fatality and injury data by constituency can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the other information requested on fatalities and injuries on the railways in Greater London and nationwide in each year since 1998 is shown in the following tables.

Table 1: Railway fatalities and injuries Great Britain 1998-08[1]

Railways: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to improve rail services to and from Coventry. [256814]

Paul Clark: The Government have specified an increase in the number of inter-city trains from two to three each way per hour between London, Coventry and Birmingham, and the additional services were introduced in December 2008. The Government have also specified an increase in the number of trains between Northampton, Coventry and Birmingham from one to two each way per hour throughout the day, and these too were introduced in December 2008.

Railways: East Midlands

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1305W, on railways: overcrowding, whether East Midlands Trains Class 158 trains will be providing a service during rush hour periods. [258135]

Paul Clark: Yes. East Midlands Trains is under an obligation to deploy all its available fleet during peak hours, which includes Class 158 units.

Railways: Fares

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1137W, on railways: fares, what reasons underlie the Government's policy on the provision of additional railcard schemes; and if he will make a statement. [256823]

Paul Clark: Railcards offer a discount against the full price of travel. They are designed to encourage travel by groups of people who might otherwise be unable to use rail and to encourage social inclusion. In general, railcards are for off-peak travel where there is spare train capacity.

All franchised train operators must accept the Senior Railcard, Young Persons Railcard and Disabled Persons' Railcard. Other railcards are offered commercially by train operators.

Factors in considering any additional railcard would include whether it was likely to reduce the revenue to the railway, and whether it would benefit those on a high income as well as those on a lower income. Fares revenue and subsidy together have to cover the costs of providing the service. We could require operators to offer more railcards but only if Government paid higher subsidies to offset the reduction in revenue. This would reduce the funds available for other things, including investment in train services.

Railways: Franchises

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria his Department uses to assign red light status to a rail franchise in its assessment of the financial position of train operating companies. [257008]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport uses a number of criteria in its routine reviews of the operational and financial performance of train operating companies. These include an examination of forecast costs and revenues going forward, as well as an analysis of wider economic forecasts that might have an impact on the franchise in question.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the value was of the bond deposited by each of the train operating companies awarded a rail franchise. [257010]

Paul Clark: The value of bonds deposited by train operating companies are based on a formula relating to the assessed costs of the franchise in question. As such the values of the bonds are commercially confidential.

Railways: Greater Manchester

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department plans to increase the carrying capacity of rail services in Greater Manchester; and if he will make a statement. [257582]

Paul Clark: In the White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway" of July 2007 the Government announced their intention to meet extra demand for rail travel into Manchester by 2013-14, namely an additional 2,200 passengers in the morning high-peak hour, and 4,100 passengers in the morning peak three hours. We are currently in discussion with relevant train operating companies on measures to meet this demand and will make announcements in due course.

Railways: Northern Region

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to increase rail capacity between Durham and Newcastle. [257991]

Paul Clark: In the White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway" of July 2007 the Government announced their intention to meet extra demand for rail travel into "other urban areas" (including Newcastle) by 2013-14; in total, 2,000 passengers in the morning high-peak hour, and 3,600 passengers in the morning peak three hours for all such areas. The Government are currently in discussion with relevant train operating companies on measures to meet this demand, and will make announcements in due course.

Railways: Standards

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next plans to meet UK train operators to discuss the (a) level of fares, (b) train punctuality, (c) quality of rolling stock and (d) level and quality of refreshment services on board trains. [257162]

Paul Clark: In addition to regular general meetings with the Association of Train Operating Companies and representatives of the train operators, Department for Transport Ministers meet senior representatives of all GB train operators every four weeks specifically to discuss rail industry operational performance.

In addition, departmental officials meet all franchise train operators every four weeks to discuss the delivery of franchise agreements and obligations.

Railways: Wales

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will assign the line from Bidston to Wrexham to Merseyrail; and if he will make a statement. [257007]

Paul Clark: This is a matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the GB national rail infrastructure. The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the specification and funding of the franchised passenger services operated by Arriva Trains Wales between Bidston and Wrexham.

Railways: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on railway infrastructure serving the (a) City of York and (b) east coast main line in each of the last 15 years. [257838]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold the information in the form requested.

The majority of capital investment on the railway is undertaken by Network Rail which is funded through a combination of direct grants from Government and track access charges levied on train operators. Details of total historic Government spending on the railway are published by the Office of Rail Regulation in National Rail Trends. Copies of this are available in the Library of the House and on the ORR's website at http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/nav.1863.

Roads: Lighting

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effects on (a) levels of road safety and (b) numbers of road accidents of reducing the hours during which (i) street and (ii) motorway lighting is used; and if he will make a statement. [255612]

Paul Clark: Street lighting service levels on local roads are a matter for individual highway authorities.

The effects of reducing lighting levels or turning lights off will vary from case to case. Any reduction in energy use would have to be balanced against potential adverse effects, for example on accidents. The UK Lighting Board in conjunction with the Institution of Lighting Engineers has published "Invest to Save" which provides guidance to local authorities considering reducing lighting levels. The document can be found at the Institution of Lighting Engineers' website at:

www.ile.org.uk

In respect of motorways, the Highways Agency provides and renews lighting by conducting a cost-benefit appraisal based on the historic accident rates for individual locations. This aims to deliver improvements to road safety and reduced night time accidents, where they would have the most effect.

Consideration is being given to switching off lighting on sections of motorway where there is a good safety record, traffic flows are low between midnight and 5 am, and have been subject to the completion of a thorough safety risk assessment.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost to the public purse was of maintaining each (a) motorway, (b) trunk road and (c) other road for which the Highways Agency was responsible in each year since 1997-98, broken down by road. [257398]

Paul Clark: The cost to the public purse of maintaining the motorways, trunk roads and other roads for which the Highways Agency was responsible in each year since 1997-98 is as follows:

	£millions
2007-08	879
2006-07	850
2005-06	852
2004-05	732
2003-04	726
2002-03	760
2001-02	711
2000-01	736
1999-2000	726
1998-99	638
1997-98	499

The expenditure figures are for maintenance on the strategic road network managed and maintained by the Highways Agency. This includes renewal of the road surface and repairs to structures, as well as routine maintenance such as gully clearing, white lining, cleaning and winter maintenance. Costs excluded are those associated with our PFI contracts and our traffic and incident management service. To provide the aggregate of this information by individual road/route would require a significant amount of additional analysis, and as such could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Expenditure figures have been adjusted to account for spend relating to roads trunked or detrunked in the financial year.

Spend figures prior to 2000-01 are based on cash accounting; the later years are based on resource accounting.

Roads: Safety

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding his Department has provided for road safety schemes in (a) Eastbourne constituency and (b) East Sussex in 2008-09. [257082]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport provided East Sussex county council with a specific road safety capital grant of £181,269 for 2008-09. It also provided £814,713 of resource funding on the basis of an assessment of road safety issues for the area based grant for East Sussex county council. The area based grant is paid to the local authority by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

In addition the Department for Transport has provided £4.504 million of capital funding in 2008-09 for integrated transport improvements, including for road safety. It is for East Sussex county council to decide how much of this to allocate to road safety related projects according to its local policies and priorities.

The distribution of all this funding between the Eastbourne constituency and the rest of the county council's area is a matter for the county council.

Roads: Snow and Ice

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the (a) adequacy and (b) security of the supply of salt and other road gritting agents. [255840]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The Department for Transport is working with the Cabinet Office, other Government Departments, the Local Government Association, individual local authorities and the Highways Agency to identify the current capacity of the main suppliers of road salt nationally and to work with those suppliers to enable salt supplies to get to those highway authorities with the most urgent needs.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Highways Agency has spent on grit in each of the last 10 years. [256226]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency does not use grit. The mineral used for the treatment of its network is road salt.

The Highways Agency's routine and winter service is undertaken by its service providers. The procurement of road salt used for the treatment of the network is a part of the lump-sum activity of these service providers. The specific amount spent on road salt is not discernable from the contracts with our service providers.

Salt usage for the strategic road network varies between 300,000-400,000 tonnes per annum and the current cost for road salt is approximately £25 per tonne.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the (a) Highways Agency and (b) Salt Union on the distribution of salt to (i) Highways Agency depots and (ii) local authorities since 1 January 2009. [256618]

Paul Clark [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Government, Highways Agency, the Local Government Agency and individual local authorities have been working closely together to help prioritise the distribution of new supplies of road salt both to the Highways Agency for the strategic road network and to local highway authorities for local roads. As a consequence of this, since the onset of the adverse weather conditions, the Department for Transport has been in regular contact with Salt Union on their delivery plans and priorities.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department has issued to the Highways Agency on minimum salt reserves; what level of salt stocks the Highways Agency held in each week since 1 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [256620]

Paul Clark [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Highways Agency requires its service providers to hold a contractual minimum salting capability of four to six days (depending on the contract). This is based on heavy salting conditions, typically snow conditions. This requirement has been eased in recent days to reflect the adverse weather conditions.

Given the recent severe weather and pressures on road salt supplies nationwide, the Secretary of State agreed that the Highways Agency should maintain an average salting capability for the strategic road network of at least three days based on heavy salting conditions.

The following table shows the stocks held in capability days for the last seven weeks.

	HA average salting capability (days)
W/C 29 December 2008 average	9.60
W/C 5 January 2009 average	8.37
W/C 12 January 2009 average	8.60
W/C 19 January 2009 average	8.77
W/C 26 January 2009 average	7.83
W/C 2 February 2009 average	4.90
W/C 9 February 2009 average	3.67

Roads: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) adults and (b) children died on the roads in York in each of the last 15 years. [257836]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of (a) adults and (b) children fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents in the City of York each year since 1996 is given in the table:

	Number of fatalities
	Adults	Children[1]	Total
1996	3	1	4
1997	8	0	8
1998	4	0	4
1999	9	0	9
2000	11	1	12
2001	7	0	7
2002	11	0	11
2003	8	0	8
2004	7	0	7
2005	11	0	11
2006	6	2	8
2007	4	0	4

[1] Children aged 0-15

Information is given only from year 1996 onwards due to the change in local authority boundaries. The City of York became a unitary authority in 1996.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of kilometres travelled by an average rail carriage in each year since 1995. [258085]

Paul Clark: Information on the number of kilometres travelled by an average rail carriage is not held by the Department for Transport. Statistics on the number of kilometres travelled by rail are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook, which is available in the House Library, or from the ORR website:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

Rolling Stock: Greater Manchester

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether relevant passenger transport executives will be involved in decisions regarding the redeployment of railway rolling stock released through Greater Manchester's spending on the Rochdale and Oldham Metrolink extension; and if he will make a statement. [256885]

Paul Clark: In accordance with the Northern Rail franchise agreement, consultations regarding the future redeployment of this rolling stock will be held with the relevant passenger transport executives (PTEs).

The following PTEs are co-signatories to the Northern franchise agreement:

West Yorkshire PTE
South Yorkshire PTE
Greater Manchester PTE
Tyne and Wear PTE
Merseytravel PTE.

Trains

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the safety of (a) the type of trains chosen to replace high speed trains and (b) Pendolino trains. [257954]

Paul Clark: Under the Railways (Interoperability) Regulations 2006 any new train to be operated on Great Britain's network must be authorised by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR). The authorisation involves confirmation that essential requirements, including safety, have been met.

Pendolino trains were subject to earlier interoperability regulations and authorised to be placed into service by the Office of Rail Regulation. The design chosen to replace high speed trains will also be subject to interoperability regulations.

Trains: Safety Measures

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the weight of trains in relation to safety loads. [257955]

Paul Clark: All trains are designed to meet appropriate safety standards. The reduced weight of the new Super Express trains is being achieved through careful design and lightweight materials and will in no way compromise safety.

The Department for Transport intentionally set challenging targets to reverse the trend of increasing train weight and so deliver significant energy and performance benefits as well as reducing track damage.

TransPennine Express: Franchises

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of First TransPennine Express's performance in operating their franchise. [257989]

Paul Clark: First TransPennine Express has been a successful franchise to date, delivering all obligations contained within its franchise agreement that commenced on 1 February 2004. This includes:

management of the build and delivery into service of a fleet of 51 new diesel trains, together with construction and implementation of dedicated maintenance facilities including new depots in Manchester and York.

Completion of a £12.2 million expenditure plan delivering improvements and enhancement to the 30 stations for which they are responsible.

Improvements in train operating performance year on year, meeting public performance measure targets.

Introduction of additional routes and services, between Manchester airport and Blackpool and Scottish destinations.

Transport: Planning

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the effects of planning delays on major transport infrastructure projects since 1997. [258156]

Paul Clark: The White Paper 'Planning for a Sustainable Future' published in May 2007, which took account of Sir Rod Eddington's advice to Government on the links between transport and the economy, set out the Government's assessment that the then planning system for nationally significant transport (and other) infrastructure was too slow and complicated. The impact assessment for the Planning Bill, now the Planning Act 2008, estimated net benefits worth some £23 million per annum for the aviation sector alone from the reformed system provided for by the Act.

Vehicle and Operator Services Agency

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will provide a breakdown of the figures in table A1.36 of the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency's Effectiveness Report 2007-08 to show how many drivers were (a) employed and (b) self-employed. [256973]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operators Services Agency does not record encounters in such a way that would allow identification of how many drivers were employed or self-employed.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Gaza

9. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Gaza. [257922]

Gillian Merron: The political situation is undoubtedly complex. Our first priority is to ensure the Gaza population receives humanitarian aid and reconstruction materials, and so we have made available £26.8 million for the relief operation and are pressing Israel to open the crossings more fully. The Egyptian efforts to embed the ceasefire and to bridge the divide in Palestinian politics are at the heart of improving the political situation. We strongly support their efforts. I am travelling to Cairo today to discuss Gaza—as well as other issues—with Egypt.

UK-Canada Relations

11. Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Canadian counterpart on UK-Canada relations. [257924]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary wrote to his Canadian counterpart, Lawrence Cannon, last November to congratulate him on his appointment as Foreign Minister following federal elections. This emphasised our commitment to working in effective partnership with Canada on a range of international issues, including Afghanistan and the world financial crisis. On 16 February 2009, the Foreign Secretary met with Peter MacKay, Canada's Minister of National Defence and Chair of its Cabinet Foreign Affairs Committee.

UK-India Relations

12. Mr. Mark Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of UK-India relations. [257925]

22. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of UK-India relations. [257936]

23. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of UK relations with India; and if he will make a statement. [257937]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to enjoy a close and constructive relationship with the Indian Government and the Indian people. India is a key partner for the UK in tackling the full range of global challenges facing us today and we co-operate in promoting regional security, trade, development, culture, science and education.

UK-China Relations

13. Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the expected effects on UK-China relations of the new framework for engagement between the UK and China. [257926]

Bill Rammell: The Chinese Government have welcomed the new framework. We believe it provides a coherent basis for delivering UK interests in China and for strengthening co-operation between our two countries to address global challenges.

Sri Lanka

14. Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to seek to ensure a long-term ceasefire in Sri Lanka. [257927]

Bill Rammell: We are extremely concerned about the situation in Sri Lanka. On 29 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for an immediate humanitarian ceasefire. We have made it clear to the Government of Sri Lanka that a political solution that addresses the legitimate concerns of all communities in Sri Lanka is the only way to bring a sustainable end to the conflict.

16. Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the political situation in Sri Lanka. [257929]

Bill Rammell: The recent military advances of the Sri Lankan Government and the subsequent humanitarian crisis make a sustained drive for a lasting political solution to the conflict all the more urgent. We have made it clear to the Government of Sri Lanka that a political solution that addresses the legitimate concerns of all communities in Sri Lanka is the only way to bring a sustainable end to the conflict.

18. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to seek to ensure a lasting ceasefire in Sri Lanka. [257932]

Bill Rammell: We are extremely concerned about the situation in Sri Lanka. On 29 January, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for an immediate humanitarian ceasefire. We have made it clear to the Government of Sri Lanka that a political solution that addresses the legitimate concerns of all communities in Sri Lanka is the only way to bring a sustainable end to the conflict.

Prohibited Individuals: Zimbabwe

17. Nigel Griffiths (Edinburgh South): To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, how many people associated with the Zimbabwean government are on the UK's list of individuals prohibited from entering the UK. [257931]

Gillian Merron: Two hundred and three individuals associated with the Zimbabwean Government, as constituted prior to the inauguration of Prime Minister Tsvangirai, are subject to an EU-wide travel ban and an assets freeze. This includes 27 people added to the list by the EU on 26 January 2009.

UN Counter-racism Strategies

19. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the international effectiveness of strategies to counter racism adopted by the United Nations and its agencies. [257933]

Gillian Merron: The Government have not made a formal assessment of the effectiveness of the strategies to counter racism adopted by the UN and its agencies. We do however believe that some of the UN's mechanisms related to combating racism are making a real contribution to that goal. In particular, we attach importance to the International Convention on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and the work of its Committee. We remain concerned that some other UN processes created to address racism—notably the follow-up mechanisms of the Durban World Conference against Racism—are currently proving less effective.

Afghanistan

20. Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of progress against the objectives of UK foreign policy in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [257934]

Bill Rammell: Much has been achieved across Afghanistan since 2001, including in the south. For example, all the major towns in Helmand are now under the Government of Afghanistan's control and the insurgency has been pushed out of its traditional heartland.

Mumbai: Terrorist Attacks

21. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his counterpart in Pakistan on steps that country could take with India to prosecute all those involved in the terrorist attacks on Mumbai. [257935]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last discussed the Mumbai attacks with Pakistani Foreign Minister Qureshi on 7 February 2009. The recent steps Pakistan has taken towards prosecution of those responsible are welcome. The UK will continue to press the Government of Pakistan for faster and further progress, and for effective action to break up the terrorist networks operating within its borders.

Common Foreign and Security Policy

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Czech counterpart on the Czech Presidency's priorities for the EU's common foreign and security policy. [257928]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has spoken to Czech Foreign Minister Schwarzenberg about the Presidency's priority foreign policy issues on a number of occasions, including by phone on 4 January 2009, and in person ahead of the General Affairs and External Relations Council meeting on 26 January 2009 in Brussels. He also took part in a plenary discussion of the Czech Presidency priorities at that same meeting.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of EU disbursements for (a) operations and (b) other commitments in Afghanistan is met from UK contributions. [253204]

Bill Rammell: The UK's contribution to spending on the EU's commitments in Afghanistan (the office of the European Union Special Representative, the European Commission Delegation and common costs of the European Union Police Mission (EUPOL Afghanistan)) is approximately 17 per cent. This is the assessed contribution rate that the UK pays for all such EU missions. In financial year 2008-09, the UK is spending an additional £3.18 million to fund the deployment of UK police officers and experts to EUPOL.

British Nationality: Detainees

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 1183W, on British nationality: detainees, and with reference to the Minister of State's letter of 10 December 2008 to the hon. Member for Chichester, in how many of the four cases (a) the British nationals complained of mistreatment, (b) consular access was requested, (c) consular access was granted and (d) the detainees were visited by other British officials. [245488]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Two of the four British nationals alleged that they were ill-treated at the time of their release. However, we have no record of them pursuing the matter with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Consular access was requested in all four cases.

Consular access was granted to the two individuals detained in Bangladesh. Consular access was granted only to the two individuals detained in Syria at the end of their periods of detention, immediately prior to their deportation.

We can neither confirm nor deny whether other UK officials met any of these individuals to discuss non-consular matters.

Croatia: Slovenia

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to assist in the resolution of the boundary disputes between Croatia and Slovenia. [253751]

Caroline Flint: We continue to encourage the two countries to resolve this issue bilaterally. We do not believe that this issue should hold up progress of accession negotiations between the EU and Croatia.

I raised the issue with the Government of Croatia during my visit to Zagreb on 6-7 November 2008.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised the issue with Slovenian Prime Minister Pahor on 5 February 2009.

We welcome the recent initiative from Commissioner Rehn to set up a group of wise men to facilitate dialogue between the two sides.

Cyprus: Cultural Heritage

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the prospects for the Europa Nostra initiative for the restoration of Famagusta/Varosha; and if he will make a statement. [245192]

Caroline Flint: Under the aegis of Europa Nostra, on 4 April 2008 agreement was reached by Greek and Turkish Cypriots to join forces to restore Famagusta. We welcome all such bi-communal initiatives to protect cultural heritage. We hope that early progress can be made.

European Union

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what recent steps the Government have taken to promote better links with its EU neighbours. [248110]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 19 January 2009]: We work hard to maintain and build links with our neighbours within the EU, both on a bilateral basis and through European Union institutions. The websites of our embassies to European neighbours such as Ireland, Germany and France detail recent developments on bilateral co-operation. Furthermore, through the EU we regularly meet with EU members at Prime Ministerial, ministerial and official level. The EU today is a unique partnership in which countries work closely together for the benefit of all their citizens, where collective and co-ordinated initiatives can be more effective than individual state action.

India: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department provides funding to India Aid. [248349]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not provide funding to India Aid. The Department for International Development has allocated £270 million for India in the financial year 2008-09, which includes assistance to other Indian non-governmental organisations, but not to India Aid.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to respond to the letters from the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute of 21 November 2008 and 22 December 2008 on correspondence from a constituent about Israel and Palestine. [256106]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 10 February 2009]: I apologise for the delay in replying to the hon. Member. A reply will be sent out shortly.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Gaza. [257930]

Bill Rammell: The political situation is undoubtedly complex. Our first priority is to ensure the Gaza population receives humanitarian aid and reconstruction materials, and so we have made available £26.8 million for the relief operation and are pressing Israel to open the crossings more fully. The Egyptian efforts to embed the ceasefire and to bridge the divide in Palestinian politics are at the heart of improving the political situation. We strongly support their efforts. I am travelling to Cairo today to discuss Gaza—and other issues—with Egypt.

Pakistan: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made to the Pakistani authorities on the decision to release A.Q. Khan from house arrest; and if he will make a statement. [256383]

David Miliband: I met Pakistan Foreign Minister Qureshi on 7 February 2009. I expressed concern about the release of A.Q. Khan and made clear that the UK would still like to see A.Q. Khan interviewed about his proliferation activities. These concerns have been further reinforced with the Pakistani authorities in Islamabad at senior level through the acting high commissioner who also sought reassurance that A.Q. Khan would not be able to continue his proliferation activities.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken in co-operation with international counterparts and organisations to bring about a peaceful solution to the Tamil conflict in Sri Lanka. [251997]

Bill Rammell [holding answer of 29 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has made it clear that the UK wants to see an end to the conflict and a new drive for a lasting political solution. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary repeated the Prime Minister's call in his statement on 29 January urging the Government of Sri Lanka to announce a humanitarian ceasefire. He made this clear when he spoke to President Rajapakse on 30 January 2009. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials are in regular contact with the EU, Commonwealth and UN member state counterparts about the situation in Sri Lanka.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken in co-operation with international counterparts to persuade the Government of Sri Lanka to allow access for UN and international observers in the northern region of the country. [253351]

David Miliband: The UK regularly lobbies the Government of Sri Lanka to allow full humanitarian access, including monitoring in the northern regions, which are most affected by the conflict. This is done both bilaterally in talks with the Sri Lankan Government and in conjunction with international partners, through the EU, Commonwealth and UN.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised the issue of humanitarian access to the Vanni in his letter to President Rajapakse in January 2009. I also raised telephone conversations with President Rajapakse and the Foreign Minister Bogollogama, most recently on 13 February 2009.

My noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown made clear in his address to the Human Rights Council in March 2008 that the UK supports a stronger mandate and presence for the UN human rights mission for Sri Lanka.

WALES

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256337]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Records for sick absence are only available for each financial year since April 2004.

No staff were absent for more than 30 days in 2004-05 or 2005-06.

In 2006-07 and 2007-08 a very small number of staff were absent for more than 30 days. In line with Cabinet Office guidance, exact figures are not given in order to protect their privacy.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the average number of days sick leave per staff member in his Department was in each of the last five years. [256391]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Figures for the level of sickness absence at the Wales Office are available for each financial year since April 2004.

The average number of days of sickness absence is as follows:

	Days
2004-05	4.59
2005-06	3.56
2006-07	5.18
2007-08	[1] 9.27

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Drinking Water

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 196W, on departmental drinking water, what reductions in the number of water coolers are planned. [257291]

Mr. Woodward: We plan to reduce the overall number of water coolers by around 10 in the course of the next 12 months.

Departmental Press

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what newspapers his Department subscribed to in the last 12 months; and at what cost. [257261]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office's (excluding its Agencies and Executive NDPBs) total expenditure on newspapers in 2007-08 was £53,275. The information provided on the department's finance system does not allow the identification of costs which relate to subscriptions.

Departmental Television

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 995W, on departmental television, what criteria are used to decide which television subscriptions to subscribe to. [257263]

Mr. Woodward: Access is provided to TV channels to meet business requirements, and for Ministers and staff who are working away from home.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 995W, on departmental television, what criteria are used to decide which makes of television are purchased. [257265]

Mr. Woodward: The televisions purchased by the Department were selected because they were fit for purpose and represented value for money.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 995-6W, on departmental travel, how much was spent on hotels used by his Department's staff in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06 and (d) 2006-07. [257269]

Mr. Woodward: Prior to 2007-08, the Northern Ireland Office recorded expenditure relating to hotels under the general expense heading of overnight subsistence. The extraction of hotel costs would require the manual investigation of transactions within the overnight subsistence heading which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 729W, on departmental travel, how much was spent by his Department's agencies on (a) staff travel within the UK and (b) international staff travel in each year since 1997. [257274]

Mr. Woodward: As each of the Northern Ireland Office's agencies maintain their own finance systems, there are differences in the information that can be provided.

FSNI's current finance system has only been in operation since 2006-07 and groups expenditure on travel under the same heading as subsistence. To provide the other information requested would involve a manual investigation of claims and could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Visits Abroad

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1996W, on departmental visits abroad, what the purpose was of each of the visits to the US. [257209]

Mr. Woodward: My previous answer included official visits made by me, the Minister of State for Northern Ireland and officials.

The United States has played and continues to play a critical role in the political process. Their involvement is crucial in securing further progress towards the devolution of policing and justice and investment in Northern Ireland. Successive Secretaries of State have worked closely with the United States and have made regular visits to discuss policy. I continue this policy.

In addition officials have gone to the United States on official business for the purposes of learning and sharing knowledge (e.g. presenting evidence at the United Nations building).

All travel is undertaken in accordance with departmental rules and the Civil Service Management Code.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Energy Performance Certificates

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what consideration the House of Commons Commission has given to displaying energy certificates at the public entrances to the Palace of Westminster in line with Government policy on public non-domestic buildings exceeding a floor area of 1000 square metres. [257000]

Nick Harvey: In line with good practice energy assessments were commissioned in July 2008. Energy certificates will shortly be displayed on the parliamentary estate.

SCOTLAND

Baugur Group

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he plans to meet (a) Ministerial colleagues and (b) business leaders to discuss the risks to commercial activity in Scotland arising from the financial position of the Baugur Group. [256249]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend and I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues and business leaders on a wide range of issues.

By-Elections: Glenrothes

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the implications of the marked register from the Glenrothes by-election going missing for his responsibility for policy for the conduct of elections in Scotland; what discussions he has had with the Scottish Courts Service on the matter; when the marked register should have been lodged with the Courts Service; and if he will make a statement. [257818]

Ann McKechin: Following UK Parliament elections, certain election documents and records, including the marked register currently, must be sent to the relevant sheriff clerk for storage. After one year the records must be destroyed. Following a Scotland Office consultation last year, responsibility for the retention and supply of post-election documents and records for UK Parliament elections is to be transferred from sheriff clerks to returning officers. The amendment is being made through the Political Parties and Elections Bill currently before Parliament. This will bring Scotland more into line with the arrangements in England and Wales as well as with the existing arrangements for local authority and European Parliament elections in Scotland. The intention is to make similar provision for Scottish Parliament election records through secondary legislation.

I am aware that the Scottish Courts Service has commissioned an independent investigation into the particular circumstances of the loss of the marked register from the Glenrothes by-election and it would not, therefore, be appropriate for me to comment. Neither the Secretary of State nor I have had discussions with the Scottish Courts Service about the matter.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [256655]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 68W, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257223]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office website accessibility plan will be published on our new website which is to be launched shortly. As part of this upgrade, our website will be updated from Level Single-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines to Level Double-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines version 2.0.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years; [256333]

(2) how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256626]

Ann McKechin: All staff are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, who as parent Departments have absence management policies that apply to those of their staff working in this Office. We do not maintain a separate central record of sick absences. Such records are held by the parent Departments who publish their sick absence statistics.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many contacts there were between British forces and anti-coalition militia in Afghanistan in each month since June 2006; [251650]

(2) how many contacts between British and anti-coalition militia forces there have been in Helmand province in each roulement since June 2006. [257686]

Mr. Hutton: The Ministry of Defence is currently collating and validating the data needed to answer this question. I will write to the hon. Member when this work is complete, and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Schools

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) on what dates he has had meetings with the Leader of Essex county council on the involvement of the Ministry of Defence in either a military academy school or a military vocational college at Colchester; and if he will make a statement; [256077]

(2) whether he has met the hon. Member for North Essex to discuss the involvement of his Department in a military academy school or a military vocational college at Colchester; and if he will make a statement. [256079]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I met the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) and the Leader of Essex county council on 28 January 2009. No decision has been made regarding MOD involvement in an Academy school in the Colchester area and no proposal has been tabled by local authorities for any such initiative. Should an appropriate proposal be made, the Ministry of Defence would not be opposed in principle and would examine any proposal on its merits.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252253]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The total paybill for staff below the Senior Civil Service (excluding Trading Funds) covered by the main pay awards is £1,827 billion of which up to 2.7 per cent. is for non-consolidated performance awards to staff. The median payment is £775.

The total paybill for permanent members of the Senior Civil Service (SCS) is £18.4 million of which 8.6 per cent. is for non-consolidated performance awards. The median payment is £8,000. This does not include fixed term employees at SCS level.

Non consolidated performance awards are designed to reward those deemed to have made the greatest contribution through specific in-year achievements such as the delivery of a major project, to departmental objectives or defence business more widely and overall costs must be contained within a set percentage of the pay bill. For the Senior Civil Service the size of the non-consolidated performance pay pot is based on recommendations by the independent Senior Salaries Review Body.

Departmental Security

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff working in his Department's main building lost their security passes in each month of 2008. [257690]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In 2008, 23 members of staff (including contractors) working in MOD Main Building reported their passes as lost or stolen. The monthly breakdown is tabled as follows:

	Lost	Stolen
January	2	–
February	2	–
March	–	1
April	–	–
May	1	–
June	2	1
July	2	1
August	1	–
September	2	–
October	3	1
November	–	1
December	2	1

Once reported as lost or stolen, passes are disabled immediately, denying access to the building.

EU Battlegroups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1116W, on Netherlands: military exercises, whether the training exercise planned for 2009 will be used to meet the EU certification requirement for the UK's commitment to the EU Battlegroup for the first half of 2010. [257496]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No. There will be a separate training exercise in November 2009 which will be used to validate the UK commitment to the EU Battlegroup.

Ex-servicemen: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many ex-service (a) men and (b) women living in the City of York have received Veteran's Badges. [257825]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held in the format that identifies how many ex-service men and women living in the City of York have received their Veterans Badges. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

We have however, identified that 1,391 veterans applying for the badge have included York in their address.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) service and (b) ex-service (i) men and (ii) women normally resident in York have received (A) medals for bravery or distinguished service, (B) mentions in despatches, (C) campaign medals and (D) other medals and honours for military service since 1997. [257828]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any unmanned aerial vehicles tested at Parc Aberporth have been deployed by Israel in Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [257361]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The MOD has not tested any unmanned aerial vehicles at Parc Aberporth.

QinetiQ

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the Treasury Minute entitled The privatisation of QinetiQ issued in response to the Committee of Public Accounts' Twenty-Fourth Report of session 2007-08, what steps his Department has taken as a result of the findings of the review of QinetiQ's compliance regime undertaken by his Department's internal auditors. [257577]

Mr. Quentin Davies: As a result of the recommendations made by the Defence Internal Audit report, the following action has been taken by the Department:

Inclusion of Defence Equipment and Support senior commercial staff in the approvals process to ensure that risk assessments address interrelationships between projects and cover the totality of MOD's business.

Increased visibility of QinetiQ's oversight and implementation of the compliance regime through Defence Equipment and Support Director General Commercial involvement and inclusion in the QinetiQ Compliance Committee correspondence.

QinetiQ will provide Defence Equipment and Support with formal confirmation of their internal reviews and notify the Department of the findings, to enable a joint approach to managing risk.

Improvements to day to day operation of the firewall procedures including an update to QinetiQ's Compliance Manual to improve the firewall closure process.

Ongoing awareness training for Department commercial staff to ensure early identification of conflicts in the supply chain.

Development of a set of generic principles for dealing with conflicts of interest wherever they occur in the supply chain. These principles draw heavily on the QinetiQ compliance regime which is seen as effective and comprehensive.

TRANSPORT

Accessibility and Equalities Directorate

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 298W, on the Accessibility and Equalities Directorate, what timetable he has set for considering options for the management of his Department's business in relation to the work carried out by the Accessibility and Equalities Directorate. [258199]

Mr. Hoon: I have not set a timetable. The Permanent Secretary is responsible for the effective management of staff and resources to achieve all departmental goals, including the promotion of greater equality of opportunity for all citizens.

Departmental Aviation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many flights each Minister in his Department has made in each of the last five years; how many miles each Minister has flown in each of those years; how much in carbon dioxide emissions is attributable to these flights; and what the cost of the flights has been. [258162]

Mr. Hoon: The detailed information requested is not held centrally, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Since 1999 the Government have published a list of Cabinet Ministers' overseas travel over £500 along with the total cost for all ministerial travel. The list for 2007-08 includes a list of overseas travel over £500 undertaken by all Ministers. Information for the last financial year was published on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 102WS. Copies of previous lists are available in the Libraries of the House. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

All central Government ministerial and official air travel has been offset from 1 April 2006. Most Departments calculate their aviation emissions on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund purchases UN-approved certified emissions reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

A list of Government Carbon Offsetting Fund members, their emission figures and what activities they have offset through the fund is available online at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/climatechange/uk/carbonoffset/govt-list.htm

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248243]

Mr. Hoon: The Department's seven Executive agencies and its Shared Service Centre have not found records of any instances of staff members being suspended or dismissed in relation to the loss of memory sticks, laptop computers, desktop computers or mobile telephones. To fully search the historical disciplinary data for the central Department would incur disproportionate costs.

Departments have taken urgent and decisive action across Government to improve data handing including minimising the amount of data put on removable media, encryption programmes for data and mobile devices that carry personal protected data and the introduction of training and education programmes to improve staff awareness of information risks.

The Government take data security very seriously which is why a report into data handling procedures across Government was commissioned and new measures to improve and strengthen controls in the protection of personal data were introduced.

Under Para 2.8 of the Data Handling Report published in June 2008, all Departments are required to:

"amend HR processes where necessary to make clear that failing to apply controls in handling personal data could amount to gross misconduct."

The Department and its agencies are in the process of reviewing HR processes to ensure that they meet the requirements of paragraph 2.8 of the Data Handling Report.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256199]

Mr. Hoon: There are a total of (a) 56 EU foreign nationals and (b) 27 non-EU foreign nationals employed in the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, the Maritime and Coastguard Agency, the Vehicle Certification Agency and the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency. The Central Department, the Driving Standards Agency, the Government Car and Despatch Agency and the Highways Agency do not record these data separately and they can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Equality Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255065]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport and its agencies have carried out over 100 Equality Impact Assessments in the last 12 months and are in the process of setting up a system to accurately monitor all assessments going forward. A cost estimate could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257225]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport intends to comply with Level Double-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (version 1.0 or the version 2.0 equivalent) by December 2009.

A summary of the online accessibility plan/policy for the Department's website:

www.dft.gov.uk

is available at:

www.dft.gov.uk/accessibility

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252258]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport comprises a central Department plus seven executive agencies each with its own pay and reward system. Information regarding non-consolidated performance pay has been collected from the central Department and all seven agencies.

The Department has allocated £12,336,194 for non-consolidated performance payments to staff in 2008-09.

The total paybill for the Department for 2008-09 is £606,890,207. Non-consolidated performance payments represent 2.03 per cent. of the paybill.

Non-consolidated performance pay is funded within existing paybill controls and has to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets. It is paid in respect of exceptional overall performance or exceptional performance on a specific task or at a specific time and, as such, does not add to future pay bill costs.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many language translators are employed in (a) each of his Department's Executive agencies and (b) its non-Ministerial department; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257145]

Mr. Hoon: The central Department and its agencies do not employ any staff specifically for translation purposes. However, when such services are required they will be procured on an ad hoc basis.

The cost of such services are shown in the following table.

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	£ 2007-08

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253590]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. To answer this question fully would entail all policy units and agencies of the Department researching and providing the information.

Railways: Bus Services

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on rail replacement bus services in the North East in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [257534]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold this information.

Railways: Finance

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 50WS, on rail services, whether the fund for the provision of rail services promoted by local authorities or passenger transport authorities will come from the rail budget; how many projects he estimates will meet his Department's criteria for funding in this manner; what representations he has received from local authorities on the number of projects that are likely to meet his Department's criteria; whether capital projects designed to enhance capacity on the rail network will be applicable for such funding; and whether he plans to allow private sector organisations to bid for capital projects on the railways under the fund. [256765]

Paul Clark: A fund for supporting rail services initially funded by local authorities and passenger transport executives (PTEs) will be formally established at the time the high level output specification for the period 2014-19 is published in 2012. As the fund has only just been announced, we have yet to receive representations from local authorities and therefore have no precise number of the projects likely to meet the Department for Transport's criteria for funding from this initiative in the period 2014-19. This fund does not include capital funding for projects. Local authorities and regions can already recommend to Ministers that regional funding allocations can be used for investment in rail schemes.

Railways: Pennines

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Transpennine Express train services on the Manchester to Hull line scheduled to run at peak hours ran according to the timetable in each year since 1997. [257400]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the custodian of timetable and performance data for the rail industry. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his question:

Ian Coucher
Chief Executive Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London, NW1 2EE.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the schedule for de-trunking of each road in the non-core network in the next five years is. [257397]

Paul Clark: The 1998 Transport White Paper, "A New Deal for Transport: Better for Everyone", set in hand a programme of de-trunking to allow the Highways Agency to concentrate on the operation of a strategic road network that links the main centres of population and major transport hubs.

There are four road sections remaining in this de-trunking programme as follows:

The A38 from Minworth (Birmingham) to its junction with the A5 at Weeford Island.

The A63/A19 between the Boot and Shoe roundabout at Micklefield and Loftsome Bridge.

The A65 from M6 junction 36 to the Lancashire/North Yorkshire boundary.

The A40 from Ross-on-Wye to the county of Herefordshire/ Gloucestershire boundary.

These road sections are expected to be de-trunked by the end of March 2009 and the de-trunking programme will then be completed.

There are no plans to initiate any similar programme of de-trunking in future years, as distinct from individual de-trunking orders that may be required as a matter of routine following a new road opening, or for operational reasons.

TransPennine Express: Rolling Stock

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to ensure that extra carriages for TransPennine Express will be manufactured in England. [257990]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport's procurement procedures conform to European Union procurement directives and UK regulations which prohibit the selection of suppliers on the grounds of country of origin or manufacture. The Department's process in evaluating bids does not therefore incorporate such criteria.

The winning bidder for new rolling stock procured by the Department will be selected on the basis of compliance with the technical specification, deliverability and value for money for the taxpayer.

TREASURY

Banks: Accountancy

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what dates the auditors of banks regulated by the Financial Services Authority who issued a qualified audit report on the 2007-08 accounts of a bank informed his Department of their plans to issue such reports. [256999]

Ian Pearson: The auditors of banks that are regulated by the FSA have a duty to report to the FSA if they intend to issue a qualified audit report. The auditors do not have a duty to report such matters to HM Treasury.

Capital Gains Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate what the cost to the Exchequer would be of exempting from capital gains tax business owners who sell their businesses upon retirement up to the value of (a) £100,000, (b) £200,000, (c) £300,000, (d) £400,000, (e) £500,000 and (f) £1,000,000 in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257645]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the former Financial Secretary (Jane Kennedy) on 22 May 2008, Official Report, column 435W.

Child Care Tax Credit

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many parents were claiming child care tax credit in respect of children aged (a) between four and 11 and (b) over 11 years old in each of the last three years. [257386]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, estimates of the number of families, by age group of children, benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit at selected dates, are published in table 4.4 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics" for each year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256336]

Angela Eagle: The following table shows the total staff on sick leave in each of the last five years.

	Over 30 days	Over 50 days	Over 100 days
2004	12	13	12
2005	18	15	11
2006	11	20	7
2007	11	17	12
2008	7	10	7

Excise Duties: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the extra revenue which would be raised in 2008-09 by increasing the rate of duty on cider to that levied on beer. [257504]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs publishes estimates of the revenue effects of alcohol duty rate changes on its website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-6.pdf

The duty rate on still cider and perry exceeding 1.2 per cent. abv and not exceeding 7.5 per cent. abv is £31.21 per hectolitre of product. The duty rate on beer is £16.15 per hectolitre per cent. of alcohol in the beer. Hence, the duty rate on beer will vary depending on its alcoholic strength, whereas cider pays the same amount of duty regardless of its strength within the 1.2 per cent.—7.5 per cent. strength band. Any beer with abv in excess of 1.93 per cent. will pay higher duty per hectolitre than cider between 1.2 per cent. abv and 7.5 per cent. abv.

Job Creation

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 588W, on public expenditure, what estimate he has made of the proportion of the 100,000 jobs which will go to British workers; and how many of these jobs he expects to arise in relation to eco-friendly projects. [256550]

Angela Eagle: The public sector capital investment brought forward in 2009-10, which was detailed in the pre-Budget report, will create jobs in sectors and communities across the UK. A number of areas in which capital will be brought forward are focused on environmental goals, including the Warm Front programme and spending to improve household energy efficiency.

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department carried out of the effect on businesses of the planned increase in national non-domestic rates in April 2009; and if he will make a statement. [256252]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

Government policy on Impact Assessments is that they are not required where a predetermined formula, such as the rate of inflation, changes the rate of a tax.

Non-Profit Making Associations

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Office of Government Commerce is taking to implement the recommendations of the Glover review. [257847]

Angela Eagle: In response to the recommendations of the Glover report, the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) is working on a number of projects to make it easier for small and medium sized enterprises to supply the public sector. Work is underway to deliver all of the recommendations by the end of 2010, though many will be delivered sooner. An update of progress will be provided at Budget 2009. Government will continue to work closely with SMEs and business representative groups to ensure that the impact of the recommendations is positive.

Public Expenditure: Small Businesses

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department monitors the proportion of Government spending on public sector contracts which goes to small businesses. [257845]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury does not currently monitor this. However, the Glover report, "Accelerating the SME Economic Engine" published on the HMT website in November 2008, made 12 recommendations to improve SMEE access to public procurement including:

"The committee recommends that all central Government departments should report annually on the value of their contract spend with SMEs."

Government are currently implementing all the recommendations of the Glover report.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what training the Office of Government Commerce provides for public procurement managers on dealing with consortia of small businesses tendering for public contracts. [257846]

Angela Eagle: In response to the recommendations of the Glover report, the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) is working on a number of projects to make it easier for small and medium sized enterprises to supply the public sector. One of the projects to be delivered this year has a specific focus on advising and training procurers and will cover the issue of consortia bidding. This area is also covered in OGC's supply chain management guidance which is available on the OGC website.

Regional Planning and Development: Finance

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the timetable is for the next regional finance allocation for each region; and what scrutiny processes apply to the allocations. [258139]

Angela Eagle: The allocation of resources to Government Departments is determined through the regular spending review framework. The allocation of spending to the English regions by Government Departments is determined by a large number of factors taking into account the needs and circumstances of each region.

Revenue and Customs

Mr. Meale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of the closure of HM Revenue and Customs' office, Chaucer House, Mansfield; and by what date he expects such costs to be recouped by anticipated savings resulting from the closure. [257072]

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of the closure of the HM Revenue and Customs office in Burton-on-Trent; and by what date he expects such costs to be recouped by anticipated savings resulting from the closure. [257537]

Mr. Timms: Reliable figures for the costs of closing both offices will only be established once workable options have been found for all staff prior to the buildings being vacated. It is not possible to give a date by which costs would be recouped by anticipated savings from specific closures because HM Revenue and Customs' efficiency savings from business restructuring will be recognised at a department-wide level and not at individual office levels.

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the change in the amount of travel allowance paid in each month to HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) staff who are to relocate following the closure of the HMRC office in Burton-on-Trent. [257538]

Mr. Timms: The daily travel allowance that will be paid to staff as a result of the closure of Crown House, Burton on Trent cannot be estimated at this stage. The actual amounts payable depend on a number of factors which cannot be calculated in advance. These can include the mode of transport, the working pattern of the employee, availability of season tickets and cost of fuel, among others. Staff who have been working at this locality will be moving to Derby, Nottingham or Birmingham.

It is not yet certain where all employees currently working at Crown House will relocate to, as the redeployment opportunities we offer include help in moving to other Government Departments, retraining for posts in the wider public sector or other early release schemes.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the total cost of redundancy payments for HM Revenue and Customs staff who are leaving the service following the closure of Chaucer House, Mansfield. [257027]

Mr. Timms: HMRC has not estimated redundancy payments for the staff at Chaucer House in Mansfield. While it has announced the vacation of the building, with the exception of the Enquiry Centre, by March 2010 HMRC is working with the staff and managers involved to identify redeployment opportunities.

Managers are meeting individually with staff to discuss their personal circumstances and the full package of options and assistance which are available.

HMRC has not used compulsory redundancy to date and will maintain this policy where it is reasonably practical to do so.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the change to the total amount of travel allowance paid to HM Revenue and Customs staff who are to relocate following the closure of Chaucer House office, Mansfield. [257177]

Mr. Timms: The daily travel allowance that will be paid to staff as a result of the closure of Chaucer House, Mansfield cannot be estimated at this stage. The actual amounts payable depend on a number of factors which cannot be calculated in advance. These can include the mode of transport, the working pattern of the employee, availability of season tickets and cost of fuel, amongst others.

It is not yet certain that all employees currently working at Chaucer House will relocate to Castle Meadow as the redeployment opportunities we offer include help in moving to other Government Departments, retraining for posts in the wider public sector or other early release schemes.

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of redundancy payments for HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) staff who are leaving the service following the closure of the HMRC office in Burton-on-Trent. [257536]

Mr. Timms: HMRC has not estimated redundancy payments for the staff at Crown House in Burton upon Trent. It plans to vacate the building with the exception of one floor containing an inquiry centre by 31 March 2010. HMRC is working with the staff and managers involved to identify redeployment opportunities.

Managers are meeting individually with staff to discuss their personal circumstances and the full package of options and assistance which are available.

HMRC has not used compulsory redundancy to date and will maintain this policy where it is reasonably practical to do so.

Revenue and Customs: Standards

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will call for a report from HM Revenue and Customs as to the percentage of tax returns received by 31 October 2008 which had been processed by 31 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [257375]

Mr. Timms: Of 2.74 million paper tax returns received by the new deadline of 31 October 2008, less than 1 per cent. remained unprocessed at 5 February, the nearest date to 31 January for which HMRC has a precise count.

Smuggling: Tobacco

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much HM Revenue and Customs spent on information campaigns relating to the smuggling and supply of illegal and counterfeit tobacco in each of the last five years. [256863]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs spend by year on targeted media campaigns to support their anti-smuggling strategy was:

2003-04	672,449
2004-05	83,368
2005-06	556,382
2006-07	91,993
2007-08	55,000

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much HM Revenue and Customs spent on reducing levels of smuggling and supplying of illegal and counterfeit tobacco in the latest period for which figures are available. [256864]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is not available.

Tax Allowances

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide tax relief to all forms of media using public interest criteria. [257200]

Mr. Timms: The Government have no plans to provide additional tax relief to all forms of media.

The Government have clear objectives for the tax system, which include minimising distortions. For the introduction of any special reliefs the Government will need to be satisfied that there is clear evidence of the benefits, and that these outweigh the costs of the introduction of the measure.

VAT: Catering

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of reducing to five per cent. value added tax on the supply of restaurants and catering services, exclusive of services relating to the sale of alcohol. [257505]

Mr. Timms: No recent estimate of the cost of such a reduction has been made.

VAT: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the rules relating to value added tax relief for people with disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [257258]

Mr. Timms: VAT zero-rating currently applies to a wide range of goods and services supplied to disabled people for their personal use. Under the VAT agreements with our European partners signed by successive governments, we can retain our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT from additional goods and services purchased by disabled people.

The same VAT agreements allow EU member states to introduce reduced rates of VAT of not less than 5 per cent. on a prescribed list of goods and services. All taxes are kept under review, but given the wide range of the UK's zero rates we see little scope within the reduced rate list for the introduction of further VAT reliefs that would benefit disabled people.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of (a) the total value of value added tax (VAT) relief on goods and services for people with disabilities, (b) the number of sold goods for disabled people which were VAT zero-rated and (c) the number of disabled people who have received goods and services that have been VAT zero-rated in each year since 1997. [257259]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the value of the VAT zero rate on vehicles and other supplies to people with disabilities are published in Table 7 of the Tax Ready Reckoner and Tax Reliefs, available on the HM Treasury website at:

These estimates are based on expenditure data only. HM Revenue and Customs does not collect information on the number of such goods sold, or on the number of disabled people receiving them.

VAT: Museums and Galleries

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with HM Revenue and Customs officials on changes to the interpretation of the rules on the recovery of value added tax for libraries and museums; and if he will make a statement. [257349]

Mr. Timms: There have been no discussions about changing the interpretation of the rules governing the scheme that provides for the recovery of VAT by libraries and museums under the provisions of section 33A of the VAT Act 1994.

The scheme was introduced as a part of the Government's commitment to make access to the main museums and galleries free. Because VAT can be recovered only on purchases relating to taxable business activities (such as charging for admission), abolishing admission charges could have left museums and galleries bearing the cost of irrecoverable VAT. The scheme refunds this VAT, but it is confined to museums and galleries. The National Libraries are included in it, but only in relation to their permanent collections on free public display.

Welfare Tax Credits

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many and what proportion of (a) new claims, (b) renewals and (c) change of circumstances claims for tax credits have been processed (i) within and (ii) after the target time in each month since the introduction of tax credits; [257185]

(2) how many and what proportion of tax credit payments have been made (a) within and (b) after the target time for payments in each month since their introduction; [257186]

(3) what targets his Department has set for the time taken to process (a) a new application for tax credits and (b) an application to renew a tax credits claim; how long on average it has taken to process (i) a new claim for tax credits and (ii) an application to renew a tax credits claim (A) in each year since the scheme's introduction and (B) in each of the last 12 months; how many new claims for tax credits have been received by the Tax Credit Office in each month since their introduction; and if he will make a statement. [257189]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) sets its tax credits processing targets annually.

Performance outturn for all new claims, renewals and changes of circumstances for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 can be found in the Department's autumn performance reports which are available at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports.htm

(a) Information relating solely to new claims for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is provided in the following table:

Target		86% in five working days	Percentage 95% in 30 working days
2006-07	Outturn	80	91.7
2007-08	Outturn	81	91.7

In 2008-09 the Tax Credit Office (TCO) aims to pay 60 per cent. of all tax credits claims in 15 calendar days and all new tax credit claims in 20 calendar days In light of the difference to previous years' targets, HMRC is working hard to identify how resources can be most effectively deployed to achieve these revised aims. Separate information about the time taken to make payments in earlier years is not available.

(b) Information relating solely to renewals for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is provided in the following table:

Target		86% in five working days	Percentage 95% in 30 working days
2006-07	Outturn	43.7	85.3
2007-08	Outturn	74.7	90

In 2008, HMRC had an internal measure that aimed to process 85 per cent. of tax credits renewals in 15 working days over the renewal period. Around 99 per cent. of renewals cleared from April 2008 to September 2008 inclusive were processed within the target time with an average processing time of around three days.

(c) For information about change of circumstances I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Cardiff Central (Jenny Willott) on 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 591W. Detailed information about the number of change of circumstance notifications received and processed is not available in the format requested.

For the number of new tax credits claims received from January 2006 to November 2008 inclusive, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Wealden (Charles Hendry) on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 792W and the answer my hon. Friend the Exchequer Secretary gave the hon. Member for Cardiff Central (Jenny Willott) on 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 198W.

The number of new claims received from households in each month November 2002 to December 2005 inclusive, and in December 2008 and January 2009 are shown in the following table:

	Number of new claims

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions the Tax Credit Office has been notified by claimants of a delay in receiving payments in each of the last 12 months. [257190]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available.

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effect on public expenditure of removing the second income threshold on tax credits and applying a consistent taper rate of 44 per cent. while increasing the first income threshold of tax credits to (a) £6,750, (b) £7,000, (c) £7,500, (d) £8,000, (e) £8,500, (f) £9,000, (g) £9,500 and (h) £10,000 in each of the next six years; if he will estimate the number of people who would have an entitlement reduced to zero in each case; and if he will make a statement. [257195]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Constituencies

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Electoral Commission has made estimates of the likely impact of under-registration on the size of the electorates in new constituencies proposed by the Boundary Commissions. [257305]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that it has not made any such estimates.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Electoral Commission has undertaken research on the effect of recent changes in the law that allow local authority electoral registration officers to consult local goyernment databases. [257311]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that it has undertaken no such research. However, its performance standards for electoral registration officers include the requirement to check council tax, housing benefit and any other council records that would help them to carry out their registration duties. The Electoral Commission will publish an assessment of the performance of electoral registration officers in respect of this standard in spring 2009.

The Electoral Commission further informs me that it will also review the use and effectiveness of local government databases as part of its longer term research programme into the accuracy and completeness of electoral registers.

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what representations the Electoral Commission has received on electoral registration officers using central government databases to improve their electoral registers. [257313]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that in its 2002 consultation "Electoral registration: a review of the process", it specifically sought views on whether better data-sharing between local and central Government databases would help electoral registration officers improve the accuracy of electoral registers. The Commission received 32 representations addressing this issue, from electoral registration officers, political parties and other organisations.

The Commission further informs me that many respondents to the consultation supported the principle of better gathering of data to improve the accuracy of electoral registers. However, there was considerable variance in views on, or understanding of, the extent to which this would be possible under existing law.

Electoral Register and Postal Votes

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how much funding the Electoral Commission has provided for research into (a) under-registration and (b) postal vote fraud in each year since it was established. [257312]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it does not hold this information in the requested format. However it regularly conducts research into both registration and the security of postal voting. The following table sets out the costs of all public opinion research projects that have addressed these subjects.

UK
Financial year	Cost (£)
2001-02	60,000
2002-03	89,065
2003-04	346,332
2004-05	343,706
2005-06	229,933
2006-07	284,071
2007-08	278,459
2008-09	122,850

The Commission has also conducted research using electoral registers to review the extent of under-registration. Costs for this are as follows:

UK

Financial year	Cost (£)
2001-02	—
2002-03	39,405
2003-04	40,185
2004-05	146,064

In addition to expenditure on research, the Commission also works to identify and analyse the scale and frequency of postal voting malpractice, through monitoring electoral petitions and prosecutions for electoral offences and liaison with the police, prosecuting authorities, and electoral registration and returning officers.

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many meetings Electoral Commission officers have (a) initiated and (b) attended on (i) postal ballot fraud and (ii) electoral registration in each of the last five years. [257715]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission does not hold this information in the requested format. However, it informs me that over the past five years, Commission staff initiated or attended a number of briefings, seminars and meetings involving electoral registration officers, electoral administrators, academics, political parties, the Crown Prosecution Service, the police, Government officials and elected representatives, at which postal ballot fraud and electoral registration were discussed.

The Commission further informs me that in 2007 it hosted 10 dedicated seminars covering electoral registration across England and Wales for electoral registration officers and administrators. It has also held four national and two regional seminars for Single Point of Contact (SPOC) police officers on reducing and preventing electoral fraud, including postal ballot fraud.

Electoral Register: Marketing

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what assessment the Electoral Commission has made of the effectiveness of its advertising campaign to raise electoral registration levels. [257321]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that it measures the effect of its advertising campaigns through direct response statistics such as the number of voter registration forms ordered through its telephone helpline or downloaded from its website. The Commission also undertakes independent tracking research to measure the reach of its campaigns among target audiences.

The 2006 report by the Comptroller and Auditor General to the Speaker's Committee entitled "Is the Public Aware of Democracy" concluded that "the Commission has used its resources in raising public awareness in general effectively when judged by measures such as recall rates and other industry measures for its advertising. There does too, seem to have been an overall positive effect on voter registration".

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Electoral Commission has taken to encourage the use of doorstep canvassing in increasing levels of voter registration. [257462]

Sir Peter Viggers: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to him of 21 October 2008, Official Report, column 151W.

Electoral Register: Standards

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Electoral Commission has taken to measure the effectiveness of electoral registration officers in increasing levels of voter registration. [257461]

Sir Peter Viggers: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to him of 21 October 2008, Official Report, column 151W. The Electoral Commission informs me that it is in the process of assessing EROs against the published performance standards and will publish an assessment in spring 2009.

Pay

Mr. Grieve: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many bonus payments were made in 2007-08 to (a) senior civil servants and (b) other staff of the Electoral Commission; and how much was paid in total. [257745]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that there were 15 bonus payments to staff during 2007-08, totalling £23,145. The Electoral Commission is independent of Government and its staff are not civil servants.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1278W, on council housing: Greater London, what data her Department routinely collects on the number of people (a) on housing waiting lists and (b) in housing need; and if she will make a statement. [256663]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities report summary information about their housing waiting list in Section C of their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) returns. The latest available data are at April 2008. These include the total number of households (rather than people) on the housing register and a breakdown of their bedroom requirements. A question was recently added requesting the number of households on the waiting list in any reasonable preference category. Information is collected at local authority level.

A link to the table presenting the number of households on the housing waiting list in each local authority is as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table600.xls

Further information on the number of households on the local authority housing waiting lists for England, including the full HSSA datasets, can be accessed from the statistical release "Local Authority Housing Statistics England: 2007-08: Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA)". This was published on 22 January 2009 on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/lahousing200708

Copies of the statistical release and live table have been deposited in the Library.

Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time. The size of the waiting list is not an indicator of absolute need, it is only useful as a broad indicator of housing demand in an area.

Currently no information is collected on housing need. A new analytical model is currently being developed to improve the Department's capacity to estimate the number and type of households with some form of housing related need.

Council Housing: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people are on local authority housing waiting lists in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire; and what the equivalent figures were (i) five and (ii) 10 years ago. [256498]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households registered on local authority housing waiting lists in each local authority, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The latest available data are at April 2008. The link for this table is given as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table600.xls

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Hemel Hempstead is included under Dacorum district council. The number of households on local authorities' waiting lists in Hertfordshire and Dacorum is given in the following table.

Number of households on the council house waiting list (excludes households looking for transfers)

Dacorum	3,274	5,465	4,794

Copies of the statistical release and live table have been deposited in the Library.

The accuracy of the local authority housing waiting list depends on the extent to which housing authorities keep the register up-to-date, e.g. some households might already have found housing, yet remain on the list. It is also important to bear in mind that not everyone on the waiting list will necessarily be in urgent housing need. It will also include those who consider social housing as their preferred choice, or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

Council Housing: Lambeth

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions the Minister for Housing has had with Lambeth Council on rent increases from 1 April 2009. [255822]

Mr. Iain Wright: No such discussions have taken place. Communities and Local Government issued rent guidelines for each council within the Housing Revenue Account Determination on 18 December. Councils have the discretion to set their own rent levels. They are not set by central Government.

Council Housing: Rents

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will estimate the effect on the change in the level of rents in each local housing authority in 2009-10 if the relevant month for the purpose of including inflation in her Department's guideline rent increase was (a) October, (b) November and (c) December 2008. [255372]

Mr. Iain Wright: No. Decisions on rent levels are a matter for each local housing authority.

The national average guideline rent increase within the Housing Revenue Account (HRA) subsidy determination for 2009-10, consulted upon in October and issued on 18 December 2008, was based upon Government policy for social rents and on information available at the time, with full consideration of affordability for tenants. It would not be appropriate to estimate in retrospect the possible impact of changing inflation rates on individual guideline rents for local authorities.

Council Tax: Second Homes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of houses were registered as second homes for council tax purposes in each county in each year since 1997. [256458]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of the number of properties registered as second homes for council tax purposes, and the percentage of the total number of homes this represents, in each county in England since 2004 are given in the following table. Information for previous years is not available.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256149]

Mr. Khan: A full answer to the question could be given only at disproportionate cost. However I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 2 November 2006, Official Report, column 619W.

Empty Dwelling Management Orders

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty dwelling management orders have been issued since the Housing Act 2004 came into force. [256651]

Mr. Iain Wright: To date, 17 Interim Empty Dwelling Management Orders (EDMOs) have been approved by the Residential Property Tribunal Service (RPTS) since the legislation came into effect in April 2006. However, local authorities claim that in many cases the threat of an EDMO has been sufficient to make owners take action to bring long-term empty homes back into use.

We are confident that the legislation is beginning to work well. We always intended that the legislation should be used only as a last resort where other measures have proved unsuccessful. We want to encourage voluntary re-occupation of empty homes but this can only work well where there is realistic compulsion to back them up. EDMOs provide this compulsion and should therefore be a key component of a comprehensive empty property strategy.

We are keen for local authorities to make use of EDMOs, where appropriate, and are supporting the independent Empty Homes Agency's new guidance on EDMOs. The guidance, which is currently being tested, is internet based and interactive and will take local authorities through the EDMO process step by step.

My right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning is providing a foreword for the guidance.

We are also hosting a seminar at which I will address local authorities encouraging them to take action and to share best practice on tackling empty homes, including the use of EDMOs.

Homelessness

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people who applied to local authorities for housing have been assessed under homelessness criteria as priority need in the last (a) six months, (b) 12 months and (c) two years; and how many of those applicants were (i) ex-service personnel, (ii) ex-prisoners and (iii) asylum seekers. [258036]

Mr. Khan: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected include the number of applicants accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). These households are known as 'accepted' households.

In addition, some applicants may be found to be in priority need, but are not accepted as owed a main homelessness duty because they were found to be intentionally homeless. For these cases we do not hold the reason for priority need centrally.

During the last six months for which data are available (April to September 2008), 34,640 applicants were assessed as being homeless and in priority need. 30,020 of these were accepted as owed a main homelessness duty, of which 20 were vulnerable through having previously served in HM forces, 140 through having previously been on remand or in custody, and 40 through having previously been an asylum seeker (note that since April 2000, asylum seekers have been ineligible for assistance under the homelessness legislation, with certain exceptions where an asylum claim had been made prior to 3 April 2000).

The following table summarises the data for the most recent six months, and also shows figures for the most recent 12-month and two-year period:

	(a) April to September 2008 (last 6 months)	(b) October 2007 to September 2008 (12 months)	(c) October 2006 to September 2008 (2 years)
Applicants found to be homeless and in priority need	34,640	69,360	147,170
Of which: accepted as owed a main homelessness duty	30,020	60,600	127,730
Of which: applicants vulnerable as a result of:
(i) having served in HM forces	20	40	80
(ii) having previously been on remand or in custody	140	270	430
(iii) being a former asylum seeker	40	100	220

However it is important to note that some applicants who had previously been in the HM forces, on remand or in custody, or are a former asylum seeker, may have been accepted with alternative primary priority needs (for example through having dependent children or being a pregnant woman) and so will not be shown as being priority need for these reasons.

Homelessness: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for housing assistance under homelessness legislation were made in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each of the last five years. [257084]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected by the Department. Authorities provide data on the number of applications for housing assistance (including those by ineligible households), as well as the number of households who are accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty.

Figures are collected at local authority level. The following table shows the number of applicants who have applied for housing assistance in each local authority within East Sussex (which includes Eastbourne).

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for housing assistance under homelessness legislation were made in (a) Winchester and (b) Hampshire in each of the last five years. [258225]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local housing authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected by the Department. Authorities provide data on the number of applications for housing assistance (including those by ineligible households), as well as the number of households who are accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty.

Figures are collected at local authority level. The following table shows the number of applicants who have applied for housing assistance in each local authority within the county of Hampshire (which includes Winchester).

Homelessness: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households in York were accepted as statutorily homeless in each of the last 15 years. [257832]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

A summary table which includes the total number of households accepted as owed a main homelessness duty in each year between 1997-98 and 2007-08, for each local authority, including York, was provided in response to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1499-1500W, and placed in the Library. Figures for York are shown in the following table:

Housing: Braintree

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans have been made for the (a) provision and (b) development of affordable housing in Braintree. [255309]

Mr. Iain Wright: Braintree district council is part of the Greater Haven Gateway sub-region which has an indicative allocation for the period 2008-11 of £76.8 million. For the period up to 31 December 2008 the homes and communities agency has allocated Braintree district council a grant of £3.49 million which will deliver 86 units for rent and 16 units for sale.

Housing: Low Incomes

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase (a) the supply of and (b) access to affordable housing in rural areas in the North East. [257535]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Homes and Communities Agency has been set a national target to provide 10,300 affordable homes in smaller rural communities from 2008-11 for both social rent and low cost home ownership. Grant from the £8 billion National Affordable Housing Programme is allocated through a competitive bidding process based on four main criteria: deliverability, quality, value for money and fit with national, regional and local priorities.

A number of rural communities in the North East will be supported through the Homes and Communities Agency's investment in North East former Coalfields areas.

The Government are committed to helping the development of a viable, well managed and financially robust Community Land Trust sector. Community Land Trusts have the potential to get the weight of the community behind the development of affordable housing and bring forward land for development, particularly in rural areas. We recently published a consultation on the development of a viable Community Land Trust sector and we have received 63 responses from a wide range of stakeholders which we are currently analysing. We will publish the results in the near future.

The Homes and Communities Agency has built links with the Community Land Trust movement in the North East and aims to deliver more new rural housing through this route.

Access to social rented housing is determined by the allocations legislation. This is designed to ensure the widest possible access while ensuring that priority goes to those people who are in the greatest housing need. Access to low cost home ownership schemes funded through the Affordable Housing Programme is open to first time buyers with an annual household income of £60,000 or less who are unable to buy a home in the market.

The Prime Minister commissioned a report from the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) who has been looking at how land use and planning can better support rural business and deliver affordable housing in rural communities. His report, published in July 2008, provides a comprehensive review of the issues that our rural communities face, including access to affordable housing, and provides a number of practical recommendations. We are looking at the report in detail and will publish a full response shortly.

Housing: Standards

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of properties (a) in the private rented sector and (b) under owner occupation in each (i) region and (ii) London local authority area are deemed to be below the Decent Homes standard. [257384]

Mr. Iain Wright: The English House Condition survey provides national estimates of the number and proportion of homes below the Decent Homes standard in each of the main tenures.

The survey can provide estimates for each tenure only by grouped regions. The number and proportion of private rented and owner occupied homes assessed to be below the Decent Homes standard by the English House Condition survey are provided for three regional groups by averaging three years of survey data (2005-06 to 2007-08) to establish reasonably robust results for each tenure in Table 1 as follows. Taking into account margins of error associated with the sample survey, the table indicates.

For the private rented sector, south east regions (London and South East regions combined) have below average proportions of non-decent homes, but there is no significant difference between other regional groups and the national average for this sector.

For the owner occupied sector, there is no significant difference between any of the regional groups and the national average for this sector.

Table 1: Number and percentage of privately rented and owner-occupied homes that are non- decent by regional group, 2006

Housing: Students

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many bed spaces have been completed in purpose-built communal housing for students and key workers in each local planning authority area since 2004; and what assessment her Department has made of the effects of such accommodation on local housing markets. [258010]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not held centrally.

Mobile Homes

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many residential park homes there are on licensed park home sites in (a) St Ives constituency, (b) Cornwall and (c) England; [257357]

(2) how many licensed sites for park homes are registered in (a) St Ives constituency, (b) Cornwall and (c) England. [257358]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not routinely collect statistics on the number of park homes or the number of park home sites. However, an ad hoc survey of local authorities in England carried out in 2006 suggested the following:

	Approximate number of residential park home sites	Approximate number of residential park homes
Constituency of St. Ives	30	856
Cornwall	86	4,102
England	1795	83,753

Property Development: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what analysis she plans to undertake of the 16 recent planning applications on which the Environment Agency advised against proceeding but which went ahead on flood plains under Planning Policy Statement 25; and if she will make a statement. [257332]

Mr. Iain Wright: We continue to work closely with the Environment Agency, local authorities and other stakeholders to ensure our policies in Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25), "Development and Flood Risk", are delivered on the ground. The Environment Agency's latest annual 'Development and Flood Risk' report, produced jointly with local government, sets out how the Agency's technical advice was taken into account in local authority planning decisions during the period April 2007 to March 2008. The report lists 16 'major developments' (residential development of 10 dwellings or more, or other new building of 1,000 square meters or more) that were granted planning permission against Agency advice on flood risk. The report notes that six of the cases were in areas of high flood risk but that in eight cases the developments were located in areas with a low risk of flooding. The report sets out the Agency's advice and how the relevant local authority responded.

Rented Housing: Regulation

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will establish an independent watchdog for tenants renting managed properties via letting agencies. [256848]

Mr. Iain Wright: Last year the Government commissioned an independent review of the private rented sector from Julie Rugg and David Rhodes of the centre for housing policy in the university of York. The review reported in October 2008. As part of its proposals to improve quality and professionalism within the sector, it recommended that letting and managing agents should be subject to mandatory, independently-led regulation. Such a regime would include independent redress for consumers and policing of the sector. We are currently considering the proposals in the review with key stakeholders and will be responding formally later this year.

Rented Housing: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on building and repairing (a) council and (b) housing association homes in City of York constituency in each year since the creation of the unitary authority. [257830]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the grant funding through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme in each financial year by registered social landlords (RSLs) in the City of York local authority area on the provision of affordable housing. This includes both new build and acquisition and refurbishment. This does not include expenditure that RSLs may have invested through their own resources.

Data on the cost of building council homes are not collected but no new council homes have built in the City of York since 1996. Capital spend on council housing stock is captured from the Business Plan Statistical Appendix. These data have been collected only since 2001:

Rents: Wimbledon

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the change in rental rates for (a) business and (b) council tenants in Wimbledon constituency arising from her Department's decisions on the rental increase formula for 2008-09. [256617]

Mr. Iain Wright: No estimate has been made. Local authority rents are set by the councils themselves, not central Government. We do not estimate rent increases that might be made by individual councils.

The guideline rent formula used in the housing revenue account subsidy determination does not impact upon business rents.

Rough Sleepers: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many rough sleepers there were estimated to be in Eastbourne in each year since 1990. [257094]

Mr. Iain Wright: Annual rough sleeping figures for Eastbourne have been collected since 1998. The figures are based on local authority street counts and estimates where a street count did not take place.

Social Rented Housing

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social housing tenants received payments under cash incentive schemes in each (a) English region and (b) London local authority area in each year since 1990. [257383]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government collects information from local authorities on cash incentive schemes intended to support social tenants who wish to buy property in the private sector, releasing social housing for other households in need. Figures are only available from 1997-98 onwards.

The total number of grants given in each English region is provided in the following table.

Social Rented Housing: Standards

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of social housing in (a) London, (b) Birmingham, (c) Liverpool, (d) Leeds, (e) Sheffield, (f) Bristol, (g) Manchester, (h) Leicester, (i) Coventry, (j) Kingston upon Hull, (k) Bradford, (l) Stoke-on-Trent, (m) Wolverhampton, (n) Nottingham, (o) Plymouth, (p) Southampton, (q) Reading, (r) Derby, (s) Dudley and (t) Newcastle upon Tyne (i) met the decent home standard (A) in December 2007 and (B) in December 2008 and (ii) is expected to meet the standard by 2010. [249779]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table provides the information requested. This is drawn from the Business Plan Statistical Appendix—Annual Monitoring data from Local Authorities for 2007-08 published by CLG last month. The RSL data is from the Regulatory Statistical Return (RSR) for 2007-08 published by the Housing Corporation (now Tenant Services Authority) last autumn.

Social Rented Housing: Sustainable Development

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social rented homes she expects to be built in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010; and to what level under the Code for Sustainable Homes she expects such homes to be built. [257533]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1278-79W, to the hon. Member for Solihull (Lorely Burt).

Standards of Living

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the 10 per cent. (a) most and (b) least deprived lower level super output areas are in (i) London and (ii) Sutton and Cheam constituency. [257174]

John Healey: A table that lists the most deprived 10 per cent and the least deprived 10 per cent. Lower Super Output Areas (LSOAs) in London has been placed in the Library of the House. This table also lists the 10 per cent. most and least deprived LSOAs in the parliamentary constituency of Sutton and Cheam.

Supporting People Programme: Learning Disability

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to her answers of 2 April 2008, Official Report, column 1902W, on supporting people programme: learning disability, and 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1306W, on learning disability: adults, what proportion of the supporting people budget has been allocated to people with learning disabilities in each of the last five years. [257502]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Supporting People programme is administered at the local level by the relevant administering authority. It is for the authority to decide which services to fund, informed by the local needs and priorities identified in their five year Supporting People Strategies. The following table sets out the amount spent on Supporting People services for people with a learning disability, as reported to the Department by administering authorities. It will not identify all funding spent on people with a learning disability who access Supporting People services: some may have a different service classification (for example, people with a learning disability may access support from Supporting People services that help them move on from domestic violence or homelessness).

Theology Board of Muslim Scholars

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who has been appointed to the Theology Board of Muslim Scholars; how many workshops the board has held; and when she expects the Board to publish its recommendations to the Government. [256965]

Mr. Khan: This initiative is now called the 'Contextualising Islam in Britain' project. Cambridge university, with participation from the universities of Exeter, Glasgow and Westminster are hosting a series of independent symposia to engage in academic debate and discussion about Islam in a British context. As the project is being delivered through a series of seminars, contributors are being invited by Cambridge according to their specific expertise and views. There are no formal appointments being made, and it is for Cambridge university to decide on who should contribute to the symposia.

The discussions and debates hosted by Cambridge will be captured in a report and published by Cambridge university in summer 2009.

Travelling People

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Shipley of 22 February 2008, Official Report, column 1098W, on Travelling people, what (a) financial and (b) other support her Department has given to developing services for Gypsies and Travellers in each year since 2005. [258059]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government has given no financial or logistical support to an annual conference called Developing Services for Gypsies and Travellers. An annual conference on this topic is arranged by the private sector and Ministers and officials have supported it by attending as speakers.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate his Department has made of the potential taxpayer liability for (a) fines disallowance and (b) other penalties as a result of late payment under the single farm payment scheme and other precursor common agricultural schemes since 1997; [241252]

(2) what (a) fines, (b) disallowance and (c) other penalties the Government has incurred as a result of late payments under the single payment scheme and other precursor common agricultural schemes since 1997; and from which budget each penalty was paid. [241253]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA financial corrections incurred as a result of late payments on the single payment and other common agricultural policy schemes have been £144.8 million since 1999. This is based on EU Commission Ad Hoc Decisions from February 1999 to November 2008.

To analyse the data prior to February 1999 would involve a disproportionate cost.

These corrections have been met from a separate ring fenced disallowance budget.

It is not possible at this stage to say what further decisions may be published this year.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent steps the Government has taken to assist arable farmers; [256933]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to assist livestock farmers. [256934]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government's wider economic policies are aimed at assisting arable and livestock farmers emerge stronger from the global recession just as they are for other businesses.

The Government also works closely with the arable and livestock sectors on sector specific issues to further our objective of a thriving farming and food sector with an improving net environmental impact. We are pressing the case here and in Europe for policies that are evidence based and take account of the principles of better regulation, such as in the case of the Commission's proposals on pesticides and electronic identification of sheep. We also strongly support the continued process of greater market orientation of the CAP and the recent health check agreement will contribute to improved competitiveness by further reducing trade distorting coupled payments and the regulatory burden on farmers.

Over the last 12 months, the regional development agencies have begun delivering a £300 million programme of investment in improving the competitiveness of farming and forestry under the Rural Development Programme for England, of which at least £107 million will be targeted at the livestock sector to help it meet the particular challenges that it faces. The continued progress of the Rural Payments Agency in making more timely payments under the Single Payments Scheme has helped farmers' cash flow, with just under £1.37 billion in payments made by 16 February, equivalent to around 84 per cent. of the estimated total fund.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the ceiling is in each region for direct payments in (a) pounds sterling and (b) euros. [257296]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Under EU legislation (Article 8 of Council Regulation (EC) no. 73/2009) giving effect to the CAP Health Check agreement, ceilings are set for the amount of direct payments, net of modulation, that may be granted each year by member states. The ceiling for the UK for 2009 scheme payments is €3.3731 billion. The sterling equivalent will be determined by the last exchange rate set at the end of September 2009, but using the 2008 exchange rate (€1=£0.79030) it would be £2.6658 billion. No decisions have been taken to date on regional breakdowns.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many single farm payments which erroneously omitted (a) protein crop premium, (b) aid for energy crops and (c) nut aid were made in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [257585]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: 974 Single Payment scheme (SPS) claimants received an SPS payment that initially omitted a protein crop premium, aid for energy crops or a nut aid payment in 2008. These cases were all fully validated at the point of payment but required additional action to enable the omitted payments to be made.

The number of claims attributed to each omitted payment type are as follows:

Payment type	Number of claims
Protein crop premium	825
Aid for energy crops	128
Nut aid	44
Total	997

The figures include claims for which a combination of the three premium payment types were initially omitted.

All of these cases have now been reviewed and top-up payments made in all cases where underpayments have been identified.

The Rural Payments Agency is not aware of any similar issues resulting in the erroneous omission of protein crop premium, aid for energy crops or a nut aid payments for the 2007 scheme year.

Agriculture: Vocational Guidance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government has taken to encourage young people into agricultural careers. [256932]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Fresh Start, an industry-led initiative supported by Government, helps train new entrants to the farming industry. There are 24 Fresh Start Academies, with more in the pipeline, focusing on developing business skills for new farmers.

We are working with the National Federation of Young Farmers' Clubs to provide training opportunities that enable members to learn an array of new skills to become successful farmers.

Government supported the Year of Food and Farming in 2007-08 and are supporting the legacy campaign, Think Food and Farming. These schemes have helped children and young people learn about growing food, what happens on a farm, what life is like in the countryside and what the countryside can offer in terms of employment. Through agri-environmental schemes farmers receive approximately £1 million per year to provide educational visits to their farms from schools and other interest groups.

From this September the new Diploma in Environmental and Land-based studies will be available to 14 to 19-year-olds to help them develop an understanding of these industries.

Agriculture: Waste Disposal

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research into on-farm anaerobic digestion techniques in each of the last six years. [257426]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has spent £380,000 over the last six years on research into anaerobic digestion that addressed on-farm techniques, and their impacts on the environment and on reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

Angling

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated size of the recreational fishing catch of each species was in the latest period for which information is available. [256986]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In 2007, anglers reported the capture of 19,884 salmon and 29,398 sea trout from rivers in England and Wales; many of these fish were released alive. There is no current requirement to report recreational catches for other freshwater or marine species, so it is not possible to estimate these reliably.

From 2009, under EU regulation 199/2008 relating to data collection, the UK will be required to sample recreational catches of cod and eels in the North sea and bass and eels in western waters. Some estimate of the recreational catches of these species will therefore be possible for these areas in the future.

Birds of Prey: Genetics

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 34W, on birds of prey: genetics, in which scientific journal the final report on DNA profiling of birds of prey completed in November 2006 was published. [257286]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: An article based on the report and subsequent work was recently published in 'Forensic Science International: Genetics—An international journal dedicated to the application of genetics in the administration of justice'. The report can be found on the DEFRA website.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Deer

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research for a vaccine for tuberculosis in deer in each of the last five years. [257427]

Jane Kennedy: No money has been spent on TB vaccine development for deer in the last five years. The vaccine research programme is currently focused on developing TB vaccines for cattle and badgers.

Common Agricultural Policy

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average value of claims made in England under the Common Agricultural Policy were in 2007; [257432]

(2) what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average value was of claims made in England under the Common Agricultural Policy in 2008. [257433]

Jane Kennedy: The 2007 scheme year value of payments made under the Common Agricultural Policy are:

Maximum	3,170,052.01
Minimum	0.01
Average	14,511.63

This information relates to the European financial year 2008, which is 16 October 2007 to 15 October 2008.

Unfortunately the data required to provide payment information for earlier years is not held in a form that is easily accessible and it could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256046]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by my Department and its agencies.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many expert advisers, excluding special advisers, have been commissioned by his Department since June 2007; and on which topics they have advised. [254744]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Department does not have a central list and to compile a list as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255074]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In total we have published 37 completed equality impact assessments on our internet and intranet websites (25 of which were published in 2008). These are predominantly in relation to employment and organisational change as these were areas highlighted for priority action. Since the EqIA is integrated into our policy making process, it is not possible to estimate any additional cost.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on (a) pot plants and (b) flowers in each of the last three years. [254876]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The total sum spent by DEFRA on internal and external planting for each of the three years are as follows:

2005-06	21,009.90
2006-07	27,844.42
2007-08	31,017.53

These costs include internal and external planting. The nature of provision through the current FM contractor makes it difficult to separate internal planting from the overall costs. The costs also include provision of cut flowers on a weekly basis to Nobel House and 55 Whitehall.

Dogs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to support research into (a) canine and (b) feline illnesses. [256931]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: In 2008-09 DEFRA has begun to co-fund (£2,500 p.a.) a consortium led by the University of Liverpool that will ultimately combine veterinary practice data from computerised clinical records and reports from some private veterinary laboratories to give a nationwide overview of diseases in companion animals. Although only recently initiated, this project is already piloting voluntary reporting from private veterinary laboratories, and plans to soon conduct real time surveillance of clinical conditions at veterinary practices using a particular suppliers software package.

The Department also supports ongoing research with a total of approximately £1.4 million committed to the following projects:

Antimicrobial use and carriage of antimicrobial-resistant Escherichia coli and staphylococci in dogs and horses in the community: molecular mechanisms of resistance and risk to humans.

The epidemiology of Campylobacter infection in dogs in context of the risk of infection to humans.

Incidence of, risk factors for, histological features of and protein expression patterns in injection site sarcomas in cats.

The clinical treatment of pet dogs and antibiotic resistance in commensal and potentially pathogenic bacteria.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1049W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, if he will place in the Library a copy of the report on (a) Project REDUCE, (b) Understanding Household Waste Prevention Behaviour and (c) Establishing the Behaviour Change Evidence Base. [252717]

Jane Kennedy: The following projects have been completed and the reports published via the DEFRA website:

(WR0112) Understanding Household Waste Behaviour—University of Paisley

(WR0504) Establishing the Behaviour Change Evidence Base to Inform Community-based Waste Prevention and Recycling—Brook Lyndhurst

Output from the project (WR0105) Project REDUCE Monitoring and Evaluation: Developing Tools to Measure Waste Prevention—has been incorporated into the review study referred to in the response to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1050W, on Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal, and will be published later in 2009.

Electronic Tagging: Sheep

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the cost to farmers of the electronic tagging of sheep in line with EC proposals. [256674]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for East Devon (Mr. Swire) on 11 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2030-31W.

Flood Control

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many flood warnings have been issued by the Environment Agency in each county of England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [256351]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table shows the number of flood warnings issued by the Environment Agency in each of its regions from 2006. The warnings are defined as either flood watches, flood warnings or severe flood warnings dependent upon the likelihood of flooding occurring.

Environment Agency region	2006	2007	2008	2009	Total
Flood warnings issued

Before the Floodline Warnings Direct (FWD) system became operational in January 2006, flood warnings were sent out locally by Environment Agency offices. Information prior to 2006 is therefore not held centrally and cannot be collated without incurring disproportionate cost.

Flood warning information is organised into operational areas based on water management catchments. The information above has therefore been organised by Environment Agency region.

The numbers of flood warnings are dependent on the weather and the number of sites where warnings are issued. The Environment Agency is constantly adding new areas where a flood warning service is provided.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress his Department has made in implementing the flood defence schemes brought forward under spending announced in the Pre-Budget Report. [256353]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The flood risk management schemes brought forward are in development and due to start from 1 April 2009 to 31 March 2010. They will be completed over a number of years.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how his Department calculated that 27,000 homes will receive protection from bringing forward spending on flood defences as part of the measures announced in the Pre-Budget Report. [256354]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The protection of an additional 27,405 homes through the accelerated programme is based on detailed local mapping and flood modelling.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his latest estimate is of the number of posts in flood risk management in local authorities which are (a) filled and (b) vacant. [256357]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information on vacancies in flood risk management within local authorities is not held centrally. This is because local authorities are independent autonomous bodies responsible for decisions on pay and work force issues.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to amend his Department's policy in flood management expenditure areas where provision has been made in the past for land drainage and agriculture benefits. [257028]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department has no plans to amend policy for flood management expenditure which is specific to areas where provision has been made in the past for land drainage and agriculture benefits.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding has been allocated by his Department to implementing the recommendations of Sir Michael Pitt's review of the summer 2007 floods. [257448]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Annex B of the Government's response to Sir Michael Pitt's review of the summer 2007 floods contains a complete breakdown of funding. The document can be viewed at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environ/fcd/floods07/Govtresptopitt.pdf

Flood Control: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons (a) the right for regional flood defence committees to decide spending priorities will be replaced by a national Government block grant which will decide which area is to receive funding for flood defence and (b) the Environment Agency will decide nationally where such money is spent and which defences are of strategic priority. [257029]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA makes a national allocation of Flood Defence Grant in Aid, which the Environment Agency is then responsible for allocating to each of its Regional Flood Defence Committees.

The allocation of funding is done on a national basis to ensure consistency and so that the available funding is used most effectively. Capital schemes are prioritised based on the practical consequences that will result from the flood defence measures they provide.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on flood risk management plans (a) in each year since 1997 and (b) in 2008-09 to date; and how much was budgeted for such expenditure in each period. [257664]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are committed to effective management of flood and coastal erosion risk and some £4.5 billion has been invested across England in total since 1996-97.

Spending across central and local government has increased from £307 million in 1996-97 to some £650 million this year and will increase to a total of £2.15 billion over the three years of the Spending Review.

The following table shows past and expected future expenditure on flooding and coastal erosion risk management.

Figures for 1996-07 to 2007-08 are actual figures based on outturns; figures for 2008-09 onwards are budgets or estimates.

£ million

Financial year	DEFRA funding	LA funding
2010-11	[2]697	87
2009-10	[2]633	87
2008-09	563	87
2007-08	507.5	[1]100.6
2006-07	506.0	84.5
2005-06	514.8	84.4
2004-05	415.4	80.3
2003-04	135.5	322
2002-03	128.4	299.4
2001-02	84.7	281.4
2000-01	71.4	262.7
1999-2000	75.5	246.6
1998-99	78.3	233.2
1997-98	87.1	223.3
1996-97	101.9	205.2

[1] Expenditure following the 2007 floods may explain why local authority spending was considerably higher in 2007-08 than in previous years. The figures for future local authority expenditure are as previously forecast, although it is for local authorities to decide how much to spend on flood risk management as budgets are not ring-fenced for the purpose.

[2] As announced in the 2008 pre-Budget report, £20 million has been brought forward from 2010-11 into 2009-10 as part of the fiscal stimulation package. This reduces the 2010-11 budget from £804 million to £784 million, with 2009-10 increasing from £700 million to £720 million.

From 2004-05 the money previously given to LAs for expenditure on flood risk management was largely brought together to form a central grant to the Environment Agency.

DEFRA flood and coastal erosion risk management budgets for the current year are on track and as forecast, subject to the recent bad weather.

Figures on budgeted expenditure for each year from 1996-97 are not available without disproportionate cost.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs over what period he expects funds allocated for response measures following the Pitt report on flooding to be spent. [257665]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 600W.

Floods

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has any plans to establish a single telephone number for use by the public to report incidents of flooding and related concerns. [258040]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Environment Agency operates a 24-hour freephone incident hotline service for the reporting of all environmental incidents including flooding. In addition the Environment Agency's Floodline service operates a 24-hour helpline providing information and general advice on flooding.

Floods: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 326W, on floods: Canvey Island, what representations the Environment Agency has received from (a) local authorities and (b) others on controls on development in flood risk areas of Canvey Island in the last three years; what discussions it has had on the matter in that period. [256402]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has had several meetings with Castlepoint district council in the last three years to discuss development on Canvey Island and explain the implications of planning policy statement 25 "Development and Flood Risk". The Environment Agency has sought safe development and advised Castlepoint district council and individual developers to take into account the potential impact of flooding on new development.

Landfill

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects current landfill sites in each region of England to be full. [257482]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency estimated the remaining capacity at existing non-hazardous landfill sites in England at the end of 2007 as follows:

Region	Remaining capacity in years[1]
North East	7.6
North West	5.0
Yorks and Humber	12.5
East Midlands	7.8
West Midlands	10.8
East of England	4.2
London	3.0
South East	5.1
South West	6.2

[1]Figures are in base 10

Landfill: EC Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what progress has been made in implementing the EU Landfill Directive; and if he will make a statement; [251690]

(2) what progress he has made on implementation of (a) the EU Landfill Directive and (b) the EU Packaging Directive; and if he will make a statement. [253202]

Jane Kennedy: The requirements of the Landfill Directive are now contained in the Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. These requirements have been progressively implemented, with the final measure being introduced in October 2007.

Separately from this the Waste and Emissions Trading Act 2003 implements Article 5(2) of the Landfill Directive, which requires member states to reduce the amount of biodegradable municipal waste sent to landfill.

The UK has fully implemented the requirements of the EU packaging directive via the producer responsibility obligations (packaging waste) regulations and the essential requirements regulations.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the Minister for Farming and the Environment to reply substantively to the letter of 14 October 2008 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on water rate charges for scout groups. [256808]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 12 February 2009]: I am very aware of the affordability issues faced by some customers, such as scout groups, following the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage by some companies.

Our view is that while the basic polluter pays principle of the guidance is correct, something is clearly very wrong if faith buildings, community amateur sports clubs and scout huts are facing such big increases in their bills, and where there are such marked variations between what is being charged in different areas, by different companies.

Under the powers enshrined in the Water Industry Act 1999, in 2000 the Government issued statutory guidance to Ofwat on water charging policy. Ofwat's subsequent and more detailed guidance to companies on surface water drainage charging was issued in 2003. Both of these documents addressed the issues surrounding the scale and pace of surface water bill changes for non-domestic, non-business customers and the need for charges to be based only upon the actual area within a property that drains to the public sewer.

We understand that the highest price increases are occurring in the United Utilities area, and that United Utilities now proposes to set its surface water drainage charges for 2009-10 at 2007-08 levels for customers such as faith buildings, community amateur sports clubs and scout huts (i.e. at levels prior to the introduction of site area charging). This is a very welcome step forward although we will continue to monitor this issue and engage further with Ofwat if necessary.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when a reply will be sent to the letter from the right hon. Member for West Derbyshire of 15 August 2008 on water drainage charges for non-profit organisations. [257959]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: A reply was sent to the right hon. Member on 16 February 2009.

Nature Conservation

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many wildlife species in England were classified as at risk in each of the last 10 years. [257481]

Huw Irranca-Davies: 'At risk' is not an official threat category for species either internationally or within England. The Government does, however, maintain a list of species of principal importance for the conservation of biological diversity in England under section 41 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006.

The species on the section 41 list are almost entirely the English components of the UK Biodiversity Action Plan priority species, which were selected using criteria based on international importance, rapid decline and high risk. From 1999 to 2008, the section 41 list contained 473 species. In 2008 it was revised and now contains 943 species.

Pesticides: EC Law

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the effect on the farming industry's revenue of the introduction of the EU Pesticides Directive. [257423]

Huw Irranca-Davies: An economic assessment of restrictions included in the proposed regulation on the authorisation of pesticides was published last year by Sean Rickard, Senior Lecturer in Business Economics at Cranfield University School of Management, and is available at the Cranfield University website.

Public Consultation

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list all consultations initiated by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies since 1 January 2008, including the dates given for responses and the intended dates for report. [256036]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: A total of 86 consultations were carried out by DEFRA since 1 January 2008. Records are held on the start and end dates of consultations, but not the intended dates for reports (see following table). DEFRA does not co-ordinate consultations for its executive agencies, therefore information on these consultations is not held.

Recycling

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the reduction in the value of recyclable materials on the recycling rates of local authorities. [256366]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for local authority recycling rates since the onset of the fall in value of recyclable materials are not yet available. However, the Waste and Resources Action Programme reports that so far there is no indication of any significant change in local authority recycling performance as a result of the fall in market prices.

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what his policy is on the payment of recycling credits to third party collectors who collect material from the kerbside in one local authority area but send the material to a neighbouring local authority area which is willing to pay a recycling credit and claim the recycling within their reported recycling rate and his Department's WasteDataFlow system. [256886]

(2) how household recycling collected at the kerbside by social enterprise organisations is included in his Department's WasteDataFlow in circumstances where the local authority does not pay a recycling credit. [256887]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Local authorities have a power but not a duty to pay recycling credits to third parties. The local authority in the area where the waste was collected may decide whether it would be reasonable to pay credits under these circumstances.

WasteDataFlow collects information on "tonnes of material collected from kerbside schemes by non contracted/voluntary community sector from household sources". No information is collected on whether or not local authorities pay recycling credit in WasteDataFlow.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review the distinction between his Department's definitions of domestic and commercial waste for the purposes of recycling waste; and if he will make a statement. [257488]

Jane Kennedy: The definitions of household and commercial waste used by DEFRA are those contained within Section 75 of The Environmental Protection Act 1990. Further clarification of these definitions is contained in the Controlled Waste Regulations 1992.

There are no plans to review these definitions.

Rights of Way

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to identify and restore lost rights of way. [256896]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In the wake of the Discovering Lost Ways project, Natural England has formed a Stakeholder Working Group to bring together key interests nationally to agree a package of strategic reforms relating to unrecorded and other rights of way. These include any reforms the group considers would improve the system for processing claims and reduce unnecessary delay and bureaucracy.

The group is expected to report by the end of the year. We have undertaken not to commence the provisions of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 relating to the extinguishment of unclaimed historic rights of way from 2026 at least until the group has reported.

Rural Payments Agency: ICT

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 2249W, on the Rural Payments Agency: ICT, if he will estimate the shelf-life of the Epsilon programme. [258193]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The Epsilon programme, involving a 12 month development cycle, made changes to IT systems used to process claims under the Single Payments scheme. The changes made during the Epsilon upgrade will continue to be used unless amendments to the scheme affect the functions introduced as part of that programme.

Sewers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which budget his Department plans to meet net new burdens on local authorities imposed as a result of the transfer of responsibilities for maintaining private sewers and lateral drains. [257952]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The transfer of responsibility for private sewers and drains to the water and sewerage companies in England will impose no new net burdens on local authorities. It is expected that the transfer will produce savings to local authorities which will no longer need to exercise their statutory powers to ensure the repair of privately owned lateral drains and sewers.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many local authorities have received advice through the Local Authority Support Direct Consultancy Service about the operation of alternate weekly collections of household waste in the last 24 months. [257834]

Jane Kennedy: There is no such named service.

Waste Management

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department holds for benchmarking purposes on the proportion of municipal waste (a) recycled or composted, (b) landfilled and (c) incinerated with energy from waste by each member state of the EU-15 in each of the last 10 years. [257666]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA supplies data to Eurostat as part of its European reporting obligations. This reported national data for all EU member states is publicly available from Eurostat:

http://epp.eurostat.ec.europa.eu

Data for the last 10 years is available from this site via the Eurostat Environmental Data Centre on Waste

Water Charges

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has (a) been budgeted for expenditure on and (b) has been spent to date on the surface water management plan announced on 17 December 2008. [257967]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 25 February 2009]: At present, £300,000 is allocated towards the production of surface water management plans (SWMP) split over the six local authorities which are trialling the new SWMP guidance document. To date, no expenditure has been made but invoices are expected from the six authorities in the next few weeks. The anticipated expenditure up to end of March 2009 will be £190,000 with the remaining £110,000 spent by end of July 2009.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has made available to each local authority for the development of a surface water management plan; and whether the allocation of this funding takes account of the geographical size of each local authority. [258059]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: DEFRA announced initial funding of £300,000 in December 2008 for an initial programme of six locations where guidance for Surface Water Management Plans will be trialled. The money was divided equally between the successful bids. The findings from the trials are required quickly to inform final guidance which we are planning to consult on later in 2009 and then make available to all local authorities. Work on this first phase is not expected to deliver complete coverage within all the locations selected due to the variation in size and complexity.

Water Charges: Religious Buildings

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from the General Synod about church water bills; and if he will make a statement. [257842]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department has received a number of representations from the Church of England and I am aware that the issue of surface water drainage charges for churches was discussed by the General Synod on 11 February.

The Government support site area charging for surface water drainage in principle. However, it is very wrong that customers such as churches are facing increases in bills of several hundred per cent., and where there are massive variations between what is being charged in different areas by different companies.

I have made this clear to Ofwat as the economic regulator for the water industry. I have also made it clear that increases in bills of this magnitude are not in line with the Government's guidance on charging issued to Ofwat in 2000, or Ofwat's more detailed 2003 guidance to the water companies.

It is for individual water companies to prepare their charging schemes and for Ofwat to review and approve them. In response to representations, United Utilities now proposes to set its surface water drainage charges for 2009-10 at 2007-08 levels for places of public religious worship.

Water Charges: Yorkshire and the Humber

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with (a) Yorkshire Water and (b) the East Riding Council on the development of a surface water management plan; and what progress has been made on such a plan. [258038]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The East Riding Council (indicating that Yorkshire Water would be a partner) submitted a bid for funding from DEFRA in October 2008. This followed a call for expressions of interest from local authorities to undertake early implementation of surface water drainage improvements. The purpose of the work was to test new guidance for producing surface water management plans and report back findings by mid 2009. DEFRA received more than 30 applications although the trial was restricted to six owing to the proposed level of support and advice that would be available during the trial. The East Riding proposal was of good quality but in this instance was not selected to be part of this first phase. The successful bids were announced by the Secretary of State on 18 December 2008 during the Government's Response to Sir Michael Pitt's Review—Lessons Learned from the 2007 Floods. DEFRA will shortly be publishing a living draft of the current guidance and inviting comments on this with a view to publishing a final version in autumn 2009.

Water Companies: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what powers he has to direct Ofwat to direct water companies to adopt carbon dioxide emission reduction measures; [257733]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to promote the adoption of carbon dioxide emission reduction programmes by water supply companies. [257735]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ofwat sets out how it is taking into account the impact of climate change for the 2009 price review in its documents "Setting Price Limits for 2010 to 2015: Framework and approach" and "Capital Expenditure for 2010 to 2015: Ofwat's views on companies' draft business plans". These documents are available on the Ofwat website.

The Secretary of State has no powers to direct Ofwat to direct water companies. However, guidance issued by the Secretary of State to Ofwat in 2000 states that "companies' charges schemes should take proper account of the impact of the use of water services on the environment".

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of water companies and the construction sector to discuss major infrastructure projects and carbon dioxide emission reductions. [257734]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State and myself are in the process of arranging a meeting with water company chief executives to discuss a range of water issues.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of women in the UK have children. [257617]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your request for information on how many, and what proportion, of women in the UK have children. (257617)

The information requested is only available for women of childbearing age in England and Wales (ages 15-44). The latest year for which figures are available is 2007.

The table below shows for 2007, the estimated number and proportion of women aged between 15 and 44 in England and Wales who have ever had a child.

Estimated number and proportion of women aged 15-44 who have ever had a child, England and Wales, 2007

	Number/Percentage
All women	11,127,200
Women who have ever had a child	5,381,000
Proportion of women who have ever had a child	48.4

The proportion of women aged 15-44 in 2007 who have evet had a child is relatively low because many of the women in this age group have not yet started childbearing. For women who have completed their childbearing years (women aged 45 in 2007), 80 per cent are estimated to have had at least one child.

More detailed information showing the proportion of women of childbearing age by number of live-born children, by year of birth of mother and age is published annually for England and Wales in Birth Statistics Series FM1. Table 10.5.

Civil Service: Work Experience

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what summer placement internship schemes are available in the Civil Service for students (a) with disabilities, (b) without disabilities, (c) from an ethnic minority and (d) not from an ethnic minority. [256469]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Cabinet Office is responsible for managing the Civil Service Summer Diversity Internship programme. The Summer Diversity Internship programme is open to undergraduates and graduates from black and ethnic minority backgrounds and those with disabilities. The programme seeks to provide high calibre ethnic minority and disabled undergraduates/graduates with a six-nine weeks work placement within Government Departments across Whitehall. The aim of the programme is to ensure that the civil service is bringing through a diverse range of people to further increase the capacity and capability of the civil service to better respond to the needs of the business and public.

The Cabinet Office is not responsible for centrally coordinating any internship schemes that are department specific and does not hold any information about these local schemes.

We have been in discussions with senior officials at the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and other stakeholders about the proposed new National Internship programme and have offered our support to this programme across the civil service.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 336-7W, on Government Departments: information and communications technology, which IP addresses are used by (a) his Department and (b) computers in the offices of its (i) Ministers, (ii) communications officials and (iii) special advisers. [241946]

Mr. Watson: In accordance with standard good information security practice and to help defend against electronic attack, my department does not publish internal IP addresses for its corporate IT systems. When accessing external services such as internet websites, the IP addresses of all the computers on my Department's internal office IT system are hidden behind the following IP addresses which are publicly available—195.92.40.49 and 62.25.106.209.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248716]

Mr. Watson: The amount spent by the Cabinet Office on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years is set out as follows:

	Amount spent (£)
2007-08	24,350
2006-07	12,600
2005-06	0

These totals represent small individual awards to staff as part of the overall pay award. They are used to drive performance and recognise individual instances of exceptional performance.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of the population is registered to vote in each constituency, ranked in descending order in each region. [257330]

Kevin Brennan: The information falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 20 February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what percentage of the population is registered to vote in each constituency ranked in descending order in each region (257330)

Table 1 shows the number of people who were registered to vote in parliamentary elections as a percentage of the estimated resident population aged 18 and over for each parliamentary constituency in England Wales for 2007. This is the latest year for which estimates of the usually resident population are available by parliamentary constituency. The table has been placed in the House of Commons library.

These figures should not be interpreted as the percentage of the eligible population who are registered to vote. The population eligible to vote in parliamentary elections includes British Citizens resident overseas and excludes foreign citizens (from outside the British Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland) resident within England and Wales.

In addition, figures for the registered electorate may be inflated because people who have more than one address may register in more than one place (e.g. students may register at parental and term-time addresses) and electoral registration officers vary in how quickly they remove people from the registers after they have moved away from an area or died. This may lead to percentages of over one hundred per cent and can affect the comparability of figures across parliamentary constituencies.

Employment: Lone Parents

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many lone parents were in work in (a) 1998 and (b) 2005; and how many lone parents were in work on the most recent date for which figures are available. [257315]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many lone parents were in work in (a) 1998 and (b) 2005; and how many lone parents are in work on the most recent date for which figures are available. (257315)

The information requested is given in the table attached. The figures in the table are estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) household datasets available for the three month period ending in June of each year requested.

The LFS is a sample survey covering over 53,000 households in the United Kingdom, in each three month period. As with any sample survey, estimates from the Labour Force Survey are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Employment: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were in employment in the City of York in each of the last 15 years. [257975]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many people were in employment in the City of York in each of the last 15 years.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles employment statistics for local areas from the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) and following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

The following table shows the number of people, aged 16 and over, resident in the City of York constituency, who were in employment in each of the last 15 years. Estimates are provided for the 12 months ending in February from 1995, the earliest period for which estimates are available, to 2004, from the annual LFS, and for the 12 months ending in March from 2005 to 2008, from the APS. An estimate for July 2007 to June 2008 has also been provided, the most recent twelve months for which data are available.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

[2] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See Guide to Quality below.
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV — for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) [%] Statistical robustness
* 0 = CV ≤ 5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV ≤ 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 = CV ≤ 20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV ≥ 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.

Foreign Workers: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many non-UK nationals were working in Wales in 2008. [258034]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many non-UK nationals were working in Wales in 2008. (258034)

There are an estimated 48 thousand non-UK nationals aged 16 and over in employment in Wales.

The estimate is derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) using the latest data available (October-December 2008). It should be noted that the above estimate excludes people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figure is derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the estimate is not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, or the migrant workers figures published every quarter, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many freedom of information requests refused in whole or in part by his Department are subject to further review by the Information Commissioner. [253510]

Mr. Watson: Information about cases referred to the Information Commissioner's Office is not a matter for the Cabinet Office.

Government Departments: Computer Software

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will conduct a cost-benefit analysis of the adoption of open source software in Government. [256972]

Mr. Watson: The Government are committed to seek the best value for money in the technology it buys. We announced in 2004 that Open Source solutions should be considered fairly on this basis. Since then, many Government Departments have shown that Open Source can be best for the taxpayer—for our web services, for the NHS and in other vital public services.

However we need to ensure that the potential of open source solutions are fully appreciated among all Government IT Suppliers and among the Government's own IT and procurement professionals. I am publishing today new procurement guidelines and a programme of ten positive actions to ensure that cost-benefit analysis of open source is a regular part of IT procurement. I am placing a full copy of the document in the Libraries of the House.

Job Vacancies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average number of job vacancies was in (a) Darlington constituency, (b) County Durham and (c) England in each of the last three years. [258256]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the average number of vacancies was in (a) Darlington constituency, (b) County Durham and (c) England in each of the last three years. (258256)

The Office for National Statistics estimates the total number of UK vacancies from the Vacancy Survey, but estimates for areas within the UK are not available from this source.

An alternative source of information on job vacancies is the administrative data from Jobcentre Plus. This data only includes job vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus and so is inconsistent with the Vacancy Survey, which includes all known vacancies. However, detailed geographical breakdowns of the administrative data are available.

The table attached shows the number of live, unfilled job vacancies held by Jobcentre Plus for the Darlington constituency, for County Durham and for England, in December 2006, 2007 and 2008. Figures from Jobcentre Plus for Great Britain and three month averages for the UK from the Vacancy Survey have also been included, for comparison.

Lobbying

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will establish a register of lobbyists to record (a) representations made by lobbyists, (b) salaries of lobbyists, (c) each lobbying event involving a Minister and (d) the subject of each lobbying event. [254457]

Mr. Watson: The Public Administration Select Committee published its report on lobbying on 5 January 2009. The Government will respond in due course.

Minimum Wage

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in (a) the UK, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the City of York he estimates are being paid at the level of the national minimum wage. [257973]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people in (a) the UK, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the City of York are estimated as being paid at the level of the national minimum wage. (257973)

Estimates for the number of jobs paid at the national minimum wage are not available from the Office for National Statistics. However, estimates for the number of all employee jobs paid below the national wage are available by Government Office Region. This is the lowest geographical breakdown published by ONS.

I attach a table showing the number of jobs earning less than the national minimum wage for UK and the Yorkshire and the Humber region for all employees in 2008.

A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles can be found on the National Statistics website at:

Pay

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average weekly earnings were of (a) full-time and (b) part-time (i) employees, (ii) male employees and (iii) female employees in (A) the UK, (B) Yorkshire and the Humber and (C) the City of York in (1) cash and (2) real terms in each year since the City of York unitary council was established. [257976]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average weekly earnings were of (a) full-time and (b) part-time (i) employees, (ii) male employees and (iii) female employees in (A) the UK, (B) Yorkshire and the Humber and (C) City of York in (1) cash and (2) real terms in each year since the City of York unitary council was established. (257976)

City of York unitary council was established in 1996. Since 1997, average levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

Table 1 attached below shows the median gross weekly earnings for full-time, male full-time, female full-time, part-time, male part-time and female part-time employees for the specified geographies for all years since 1997. In table 2, the figures from table 1 are expressed in 2008 prices by deflating with the Retail Price Index (RPI).

Guide to quality

The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of a figure, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an average of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population average to be within the range 180 to 220.

Key

CV <= 5%
* CV > 5% and <= 10%
 CV > 10% and <= 20%
X CV > 20%

Pupils: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the Information Commissioner was consulted on the provisions of the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 (Disclosure of Pupil Information) (England) Regulations 2009; and what advice the Commissioner gave in respect of the regulations. [258607]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated February 2009:

I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking whether the Information Commissioner was consulted over the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 (Disclosure of Pupil Information) (England) Regulations 2009, and what representations the Commissioner made in respect of the proposals (258607). I am replying on behalf of the National Statistician who is away on business.

As part of the preparation for the laying of the draft Regulations before Parliament, officials from the Office for National Statistics met with staff from the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) on 1 August 2008 to discuss their plans. The ICO indicated that it was content for the proposed disclosure of information to proceed given that the information was to be used for statistical purposes only, that it was to be authorised by Parliament and that it was to be transmitted securely.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will publish a copy of her Office's website accessibility plan. [257231]

Tessa Jowell: The Government's official website for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games is part of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's (DCMS) website.

DCMS has not produced a separate website accessibility plan. This has been incorporated into the Department's Equality Scheme 2007-10 which is published on the Department's website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/3506.aspx

In addition, DCMS have published an accessibility statement at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/0912.aspx

This specifies the Department's commitment to high standards of website accessibility.

Olympic Games 2012: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent estimate her Office has made of the net financial effect on (a) London and (b) each London borough of the London 2012 Olympic Games, broken down by borough; and if she will make a statement. [257276]

Tessa Jowell: The financial and economic benefits of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games are already evident. Over 3,300 people are currently working for contractors on the Olympic Park. Over 800 businesses have already won over £3.5 billion of work supplying the Olympic Delivery Authority.

The 2012 games will continue to play an active role in meeting the challenges of the current economic environment by:

- Creating up to 75,000 supply chain opportunities – there will be opportunities for businesses across the country to get involved;
- Creating employment – with up to 11,000 people working on site at the peak and 100,000 contract jobs to stage the games;
- Opening up skills and employment opportunities for most, if not all, sectors, extending well beyond the Olympic Park and London;
- Delivering a total of 350 construction apprenticeships at the Olympic Park site.

In the longer term, London 2012 will deliver economic benefits to East London and bring wider benefits across the UK, including:

- Long-term job creation, with up to 50,000 new permanent jobs created in the Olympic Park and surrounding area after the games;
- Through public and private investment, 10,000 - 12,000 new mixed-tenure homes in the Olympic Park site, 35 per cent. of which will be affordable housing, and over 5,000 new homes in the Olympic Village and Stratford City development.

Creating opportunities for tourism, media, sport and many other sectors, for example, the value of the games to UK tourism is estimated to be £2.1 billion between 2007 and 2017, increasing the potential for inward investment and export, including through the use of local facilities as training camps.

The Mayor of London is responsible for maximising the impact of the 2012 games on London. The London Development Agency (LDA) is commissioning a study to evaluate the impacts, outcomes, benefits and additionality of investment in LDA 2012 games legacy programmes.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date the euro changeover plan of (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies was last updated; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version of each plan. [258593]

Andy Burnham: The information is as follows:

(a) The Euro changeover plan for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport was last updated in June 2006. A copy of the DCMS changeover plan will be placed in the Library. The Department will however review their plans at a later date.

(b) The Royal Parks Agency (the only agency of DCMS) does not maintain a separate Euro changeover plan. Legislation relating to the Agency is included in the Department's plan.

National Lottery: Sports

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much National Lottery funding has been allocated to sporting projects in Cornwall in the last five years, broken down by lottery distributor. [258508]

Barbara Follett: The Big Lottery Fund, their legacy bodies, Awards for All, and Sport England have advised that the following funding has been allocated to sporting projects in Cornwall in the last five years for which information is available.

Olympic Games 2012: Gun Sports

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding has been (a) allocated to and (b) provided to the training of the British Olympic shooting team for the London 2012 Olympics. [256879]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 25 February 2009]: UK Sport have advised that the British Olympic shooting team and athletes from shooting disciplines on the World Class Pathway have been allocated £1,225,350 for the period 2009-13.

Sport and Arts: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to provide facilities for (a) sporting activity and (b) participation in the arts for young people in the South West. [255409]

Andy Burnham: The majority of Exchequer funding provided in support of these activities is channelled to local authorities via settlements from the Department for Communities and Local Government.

DCMS works with other Departments and our network of sponsored bodies (NDPBs) to set overarching objectives relating to the sectors for which we have policy responsibility in Government. Delivery of these objectives is usually the responsibility of the lead NDPB who take forward delivery of our strategic priorities at a national and local level. As follows are examples of work taken forward in the South West region:

Sporting Activity

Free Swimming

Local authorities across the South West have signed up to the Government's initiative to offer free swimming to both those aged 16 and under and over 60. The local authorities that have opted in to offer the scheme to both age groups have also received a share of a £10 million capital fund to spend on modernising or improving pool provision in time for the start of the two-year scheme in 2009. Those local authorities that will offer free swimming to both age groups also stand to benefit from a further £25 million capital challenge fund in both 2009-10 and 2010-11 to spend on improving pool provision.

5 Hours of Sport

DCMS works with the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) to support the delivery of the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People (PESSYP) which will increase the quality and quantity of school and community based sport on offer and give young people more opportunities to be active. It builds on the success of the 2003 PE, School Sport and Club Links Strategy (PESSCL) for five-16 year olds.

The new 5 hour offer will deliver further Government commitments announced by the Prime Minister in 2007 and set out in PSA 22 which promises to 'deliver a successful Olympic games and Paralympic games with a sustainable legacy and get more children and young people taking part in high quality PE and sport'.

The strategy will be delivered through the two key delivery bodies, Sport England—with its focus on sport in the community, and the Youth Sport Trust—with its network of School Sport Partnerships and focus on PE and sport in schools.

Sport England (who fund projects from Exchequer and lottery funding), have identified two projects for which funding has been provided specifically for built facilities for young people in the South West:

£136,500 granted over the last three years to Swim Torquay Limited for extension of facilities which is heavily used for swimming lessons for young people.

Falmouth Youth Club was awarded £300,000 for the Docksteps Centre in 2007 (this was a CIF award).

Young people will also benefit from funding targeted to the wider community.

In addition to built facilities, in the last five years (April 2003-to date) Sport England has invested in 216 projects in the South West. Projects which would benefit young people specifically include:

Sport Unlimited This project is in its second year and it constitutes Sport England's part of the 5 hour sport offer.

The Youth Sport Trust is delivering two hours of sport via PE in schools plus one hour of extra curricular sport.

The Step into Sport programme which amounts to £770,000 focuses on young people aged 14 to 19 started three years ago. It provides opportunities for young people to become involved in sports leadership and volunteering encouraging them to continue this into later life

Cultural Activity

Participation in the Arts

Many cultural initiatives in the South West Region are supported by Arts Council England including DAISI (Drown Arts in Schools Initiative) and The Wren Music Trust.

Find Your Talent

In February 2008 the Government announced the new £25 million Find Your Talent (FYT) pathfinder programme to trial different ways of delivering a five hour cultural offer for children and young people from 0-19.

North Somerset is one of ten Find Your Talent pathfinder areas launched in September 2008. The pathfinders, working in partnership with schools and local and national organisations over three years, will provide opportunities for children and young people to have a range of high quality arts and cultural experiences in and out of school.

Awards For All

"Awards For All" is a Lottery Grants scheme for local communities. Managed by the Big Lottery Fund, in the last five years, 5381 awards in the South West, the majority of these projects will affect young people.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of apprenticeship training providers funded by the Learning and Skills Council were employers in each year since 2001. [254167]

Mr. Simon: [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The information on the number of employers who are apprenticeship training providers is not available. Table 1 shows the percentage of apprenticeship starts in 2005/06 to 2007/08 at each type of provider.

Many of these organisation types such as 'Organisation In Business In Its Own Right' and 'Other Private Organisation' could be training providers or employers. It is not possible to specifically identify employers without surveying all Learning and Skills Council partnership teams, and this would not provide wholly accurate information.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what arrangements there are for co-ordination between the National Apprenticeship Service and the National Employment Service in their programmes of work. [254371]

Mr. Simon: There will be a Service Level Agreement between the National Apprenticeship Service and the National Employer Service. This will outline how apprenticeship provision will be managed by the National Employer Service on behalf of the National Apprenticeship Service working with large national employers who need a one stop shop approach. The National Apprenticeship Service will have its own chief executive who will be required to work closely with the Skills Funding Agency's chief executive to deliver apprenticeships as part of a coherent strategy dealing with a wide range of employers.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the merits of increasing the proportion of the training costs of adult apprentices paid by employers. [254705]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 9 February 2009]: It is a key principle of Government funding of adult learning that there is a shared responsibility on the part of learners, employers and the Government to contribute towards the costs of learning. The Skills Strategy White Paper 21st Century Skills: Realising our Potential (published in July 2003) set out our intention that employers and learners should contribute towards the cost of their course, in light of the returns they derive from learning. Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances (March 2006) confirmed our intention to increase learner and/or employer fee contributions to 50 per cent. by 2010-11 for those not eligible for free provision. Lord Leitch's Review of Skills (December 2006) reaffirmed the importance for a shared responsibility to invest in skills with employers and learners asked to contribute most where they see the greatest private returns. We are therefore increasing private fee contributions for both employers and learners from 42.5 per cent. in 2008-09, to 47.5 per cent. for 2009-10 and 50 per cent. for 2010-11.

Apprenticeship funding rates for adults therefore are lower than rates for young people aged 16-18, with employers expected to contribute to the total cost of an adult apprenticeship framework. Employer contributions may be in cash to the training provider or in kind through supporting the delivery of the training activity.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to encourage the uptake of part-time apprenticeships. [256833]

Mr. Simon: Apprenticeship frameworks are designed to meet both the skills needs of employers and individuals. Like employment in general there is no presumption that they be full-time or part-time although custom and practice will differ between employers and across sectors. Any employee should be able to apply for an apprenticeship irrespective of whether they work full or part-time and we are making special efforts to break down gender or race stereotypes in apprenticeships. Our aim is to encourage the take-up of apprenticeships. The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007-08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 27 per cent. in 1997. A remarkable achievement.

Apprentices: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what percentage of people taking up apprenticeship schemes in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland constituency in each of the last five years were disabled; [255028]

(2) what percentage of people taking up apprenticeships in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland constituency in each of the last five years were female. [255032]

Mr. Simon: Tables 1-4 show apprenticeship starts by learning difficulty and/or disability and gender, in Cumbria local authority and Copeland constituency. Figures are presented from 2003-04 to 2007-08, the latest year for which fully audited data are available. We are also looking at schemes which will encourage employers to see the potential in recruiting disabled people for apprenticeships.

Apprentices: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate his Department has made of the number of apprenticeships taken up in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each month since January 2006, broken down by apprenticeship type. [242677]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the total number of apprenticeship starts in Hertfordshire local authority from January 2006 to July 2007, by the month in which the apprenticeship was started. Figures are presented up to the end of the 2006/07 academic year, the latest year for which fully audited data is available. Information by apprenticeship type/level is too small to split by month in which the course has started.

Numbers for Hemel Hempstead constituency are too small to split by the month in which the course has started.

Table 2 shows the total number of apprenticeship starts in Hemel Hempstead constituency, Hertfordshire local authority and a total for all regions for the 2005/06 and 2006/07 academic years.

Higher Education: Apprentices

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to improve the collection of data on the progression of apprentices into higher education. [249272]

Mr. Simon: In order to improve the identification of those learners who progress from an apprenticeship into higher education we are exploring the possibility of linking administrative datasets. The early work looks promising and the Higher Education Funding Council for England is currently testing the methodology to ensure it is robust. The findings are expected to be published in 2009.

In World Class Apprenticeships we set out the Government's intention that every apprenticeship framework has a clear pathway to higher education and this will be a requirement of our revised Apprenticeships Blueprint when it is published in 2009. This will ensure every apprentice knows there is a clear pathway to higher education if they want it.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when the commissioned reports from users of higher education were placed on his Department's website; and how these reports were publicised. [258461]

Mr. Lammy: The commissioned reports were placed on the Department's website on 16 February. A letter was sent to all of DIUS's major higher education stakeholders from the Director General for higher education to inform them of the publication, and the sector press were informed. A feature on the reports was included in Times Higher Education on 19 February.

The reports are part of the wider debate on the future of higher education that DIUS is currently conducting. This will lead to the publication of a Framework for the development of Higher Education during 2009.

Higher Education: Women

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of women and children who do not have a first degree. [257612]

Mr. Simon: In Quarter 4[1] 2008 an estimated 338,000 adult[2] women in England had a child but did not hold a first degree. This estimate is taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS).

[2] Women aged 19 to 59.

Skilled Workers: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the future skills needs of low carbon, resource-efficient industrial sectors. [255959]

Mr. Simon: The Department has not commissioned any specific research on skills for a low carbon resource efficient economy (LCREE), although we have consulted widely on this issue in other ways. In response to the Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change, for example, we jointly sponsored the Commission on Environmental Markets and Economic Performance with BERR and Defra. Further consultations are planned with lead employers in the next few months with a view to drawing cutting edge LCREE expertise into the skills system.

The Department has reviewed a range of research reports on LCREE skills including:

Skills for a Low Carbon Resource Efficient Economy—Review of Evidence: Defra 2008

Energy Skills—Meeting the Challenge: a report for BERR by the Sector Skills network: 2008

Employment Opportunities and Challenges in the context of rapid industry growth: British Wind Energy Association October 2008

Today's Investment—Tomorrow's Asset: skills and employment in the Wind, Wave and Tidal Sector: British Wind Energy Association October 2008.

These reports have been instrumental in helping the Department set out a strategic LCREE-skills solution in the proposed low carbon industrial strategy.

Students: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of people in each ward in each of the principal seaside towns of England were participating in (a) higher and (b) further education in each of the last three years. [257333]

Mr. Simon: Information on participation in further or higher education is not available at ward level.

Table 1 shows enrolments in Higher Education for each local authority, for 2005/06 to 2007/08. Table 2 shows FE and Skills participation for each local authority, for 2005/06 to 2007/08, the latest year for which we have fully audited information. Information on FE and Skills participation is also available on the Data Service website, and was released alongside the post-16 education statistical first release, which was published on 18 December 2008:

www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics

A copy of these tables has been provided and the relevant data will be placed in the Library.

Information is not available on the proportion of people in each local authority in further or higher education.

Notes:
1. Volumes are rounded to the nearest hundred.
2. These figures include FE, University for Industry, WBL (including apprenticeships, Entry to Employment), Train to Gain and Adult Safeguarded Learning.
3. Final 2007/08 data will be published in March 2009.
4. This table uses learner volumes as a measure for comparative purposes. Full-year numbers are a count of the number of learners that participated at any point during the year.
5. Learners that are included in different data collections e.g. a learner undertaking an apprenticeship and a Train to Gain qualification, will be counted twice in this table.
6. Local authority is based on the home postcode of the learner, for learners participating in England.

Students: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what financial support his Department offers to part-time students with children. [257618]

Mr. Lammy: This Government were the first to introduce statutory support for part-time undergraduate students in 2000. In 2004/05 we introduced a package comprising two non-repayable, income assessed grants; a grant towards fee costs and a course grant to pay towards study costs such as travel and books. In 2006/07 we created the most generous package so far for part-time students in England, increasing the maximum fee grant by 27 per cent. and raising the income threshold for receiving support by more than the rate of inflation.

In the current academic year the maximum course grant is £255 and the maximum fee grant is £1,180. Single students with an annual household income of below £16,090 may be eligible for full fee and course grants; those with incomes up to £26,825 may be eligible for partial grants. These income thresholds are increased by £2,000 if the student has one dependent child, by £1,000 for each subsequent dependent child and by a further £2,000 if the student lives with a partner. Additional discretionary support, via the Access to Learning Fund, administered by the higher education institutions, may also be available to help part-time undergraduates with their fees, child care and other costs.

Vocational Training: Leeds

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people took a Skills for Life qualification in Leeds West constituency in each year since 2005. [255472]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows Skills for Life participation figures in Leeds West for the academic years 2005-06 to 2007-08.

Young People: Unemployed

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people aged 16 to 24 years were not in education, employment or training in each local education authority area in each year from 1997 to 2002. [247135]

Mr. Simon: The following table shows estimates of the numbers and percentage of people aged[1] 16 to 24 not in education, employment or training (NEET) for local education authorities (LEAs) in England for 2000 to 2002.

Information is only available on young people who are NEET by local education authority for 2000 onwards. These estimates are from the Annual Local Area Labour Force Survey (ALALFS), which began in March 1999. Similar information for local areas is not available prior to this date. Although the ALALFS was conducted in 1999, due to the different way in which information was collected, estimates of NEETs are not comparable with later years and so are not provided.

[1] Age used is the respondent's academic age, which is defined as their age at the preceding 31 August.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Day Care

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent research his Department has undertaken into the average hourly costs of childcare in (a) London and (b) the UK for different age groups of children. [257317]

Kitty Ussher: The Department for Work and Pensions regularly collects information on the hourly child care costs, by region and age of child, through two surveys: the Families and Children Study and the Family Resources Survey.

The Families and Children Study is a longitudinal survey of about 7,000 families with dependent children in Great Britain. The Family Resources Survey collects information on the incomes and circumstances of private households in the United Kingdom.

Research is also conducted by the Department for Children, Schools and Families to assess the hourly costs of childcare, by region and age of child, in England. The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey is a repeated cross sectional survey of childcare and early years providers. The Childcare and Early Years Survey of Parents is a repeated cross sectional survey of approximately 7,200 parents.

Children: Maintenance

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many orders for the confiscation of (a) driving licences and (b) travel documents were made by the Child Support Agency in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; [255878]

(2) how many applications the Child Support Agency made to the courts for the confiscation of (a) driving licences and (b) travel documents in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; [255879]

(3) how many applications from the Child Support Agency for the confiscation of (a) a driving licence and (b) travel documents were refused by the courts in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; [255880]

(4) how many served orders for the confiscation of (a) a driving licence and (b) travel documents resulted in the full payment of child support arrears in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [255881]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many orders for the confiscation of (a) driving licences and (b) travel documents were made by the Child Support Agency in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [255878] and

How many applications the Child Support Agency made to the courts for the confiscation of (a) driving licences and (b) travel documents in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [255879] and

How many applications from the Child Support Agency for the confiscation of (a) a driving licence and (b) travel documents were refused by the courts in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [255880] and

How many served orders for the confiscation of (a) a driving licence and (b) travel documents resulted in the full payment of child support arrears in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [255881]

The entire system of child maintenance, including the Child Support Agency, is, as of 1 November 2008, the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Information on the number of enforcement actions undertaken by the Agency is published in table 21 of the Quarterly Summary of Statistics and is available in the House of Commons Library and online at:

http://www.childmaintenance.org/publications/statistics.html.

Currently, under Section 39A of the Child Support Act 1991, the Commission may apply to a magistrates' court or sheriff to impose a sanction in cases where other legal enforcement action has failed. It is up to the courts to decide which, if either, of the available sanctions is most appropriate. Those sanctions are driving licence disqualification or a committal sentence; the courts do not currently have the power to confiscate travel documents in child support cases.

In the last two years the courts issued 505 suspended or full committal sentences, and 19 suspended or full driving licence disqualifications in relation to child maintenance cases.

The Commission may make representations to the court as to which sanction it considers appropriate in the circumstances but we do not keep a record of how many times, or in what proportion of cases, this right has been exercised. The courts issued four full driving licence disqualifications in 2006-07 and five in 2007-08. Of these, 66% showed an improvement in the debt figure owed, with two cases paying off the full amount owed to their children.

Sections 27 to 30 of the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 enables the Commission to make an application to the court for a specific sanction. The available sanctions will be driving licence disqualification, imprisonment, passport confiscation or imposition of a curfew, the latter two of which will be new powers for the courts. These powers are not yet commenced.

The Welfare Reform Bill 2009 contains powers to enable the Commission, without application to the court, to disqualify non-resident parents who wilfully refuse to maintain their children from holding or obtaining a passport or driving licence.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Notes:
1. Regions are Government office regions. Data by region are available only from April 2004. Awards are recorded in the region where they are administered. Until January 2005, a small area of the East of England region was administered for social fund purposes from a district within the London region. Until March 2005, a small area of the East Midlands region was administered for social fund purposes from a district within the North West region.
2. In recent years there have been many changes to the boundaries of Jobcentre Plus districts. In some cases, a district has been split and the parts merged with other districts. For the districts involved in such a situation it is not possible to give comparable data for the last five years. The last split took place in August 2006. Since then some districts have merged, so to provide data for the year 2007-08, it has been organised on the basis of the current Jobcentre Plus social fund budget area structure.
3. Figures are for awards, not for the number of people who received an award. (Some people received more than one award.)
4. Figures are for initial awards only. Awards made after review are not included.
5. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Industrial Health and Safety: Wales

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions have taken place with the Welsh Assembly Government on work under its national action plan to reduce suicide and self harm in Wales 2008-2013 with his Department to encourage employers to be alert to the risk of suicide amongst staff and to encourage and facilitate uptake of help and support; and if he will make a statement. [247145]

Jonathan Shaw: We have had no discussions with the Welsh Assembly government on work under their national action plan to reduce suicide and self harm in Wales 2008-13. Officials have, however, had several conversations on related subjects such as mental health and the workplace. We could specify these only at disproportionate cost.

Pension Schemes

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Government have taken to ensure that under the new pension auto enrolment scheme due to start in 2012 each £1 invested by an individual saver, their employer and HM Revenue and Customs will net £1 of value (investment and inflation). [257042]

Mr. Rosie Winterton: Our reforms contain a number of measures to boost the value of pension saving:

From 2012, employers will be required to automatically enrol their workers into a qualifying workplace pension arrangement and contribute to that arrangement. Employer contributions will be a minimum of percent on a band of earnings, and around 1 per cent. in the form of tax relief. Overall contributions, including the employee contribution, will be at least 8 per cent.

The new personal accounts scheme will be one of the pension schemes available to employers to meet the employer duty from 2012, and is designed to be low cost to minimise the impact of charges on the value of saving.

A more generous and simpler state pension to provide a solid foundation for saving. By 2050 just 30 per cent. of pensioner households are projected to be entitled to pension credit, compared to 45 per cent. today.

There are also measures to boost the value of saving within the existing pension and benefits system:

Pension rules allow up to 25 per cent. of a pension pot to be taken as a tax free lump sum.

In addition the 'trivial commutation' rules allow individuals with small pension funds to take the full amount as a lump sum (£16,500 in aggregate private pension saving in 2008-09, of which up to 25 per cent. may be tax free).

The savings credit was designed to reward those who have made small savings for their retirement.

Capital disregards in the benefit system mean that small amounts of capital do not affect benefit entitlement.

Some working age benefits and tax credits discount some or all of the value of pension contributions when calculating benefit entitlement.

Those people who see a lower impact on their net retirement income due to interactions with the benefit system will still get the full value of their private savings, and many will also be receiving generous top ups from the state to boost their total income, due to their needs in retirement. This could be due to circumstances such as needing extra support, for example due to disability.

The report of the Savings Incentive Work programme "Saving for retirement: Implications of pensions reforms on financial incentives to save for retirement showed" that, on standard assumptions, over 95 per cent. of savers modelled could expect to get more than £1 plus inflation back for each £1 contributed, and a large majority could expect double that. It also showed that for a range of case studies the reforms improve the payback on saving. The report also explored a number of measures proposed by stakeholders to further improve returns which suggested that the Government have struck a good balance between the competing objectives of affordability, maximising saving and alleviating poverty—on balance the package does not need to be changed.

Pensions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the weekly income, to the nearest whole pound, from the basic state pension and pension credit for a single person who began work in 2012 and who retired at 68 with a full history of national insurance contributions and had (a) no savings and (b) non-pensions savings of (i) £1,000, (ii) £2,000, (iii) £3,000, (iv) £4,000, (v) £5,000 and (vi) £10,000. [249442]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is projected that a single person aged 25 in 2012, who earned median earnings throughout their working life would receive £159 basic state pension plus state second pension on reaching state pension age of 68 in 2055. They would not be entitled to pension credit. This figure is not affected by different non-pension savings scenarios. Figures are in 2008-09 earnings terms.

Poverty: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children were living in poverty in Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency in (a) January 2007, (b) January 2008 and (c) January 2009. [257532]

Kitty Ussher: Child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, only allow a breakdown of the overall number of children in relative poverty at Government Office region level or for inner or outer London. This means information for Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland is not available.

Redundancy

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to ensure that his Department has the capacity to provide effective and timely assistance and support to those made redundant. [252692]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what steps he is taking to ensure that his Department has the capacity to provide effective and timely assistance and support to those made redundant. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The support we can provide begins as soon as a business announces redundancies and involves help for the employer and employees. In Scotland this help is delivered by way of the Partnership Action for Continuing Employment (PACE) initiative. PACE is a Scottish Government initiative, in which Jobcentre Plus is an active participant, which provides a framework for a consistent and co-ordinated public sector response to dealing with companies in difficulty, including redundancy. The key aim of PACE is to help people who have been made redundant into alternative employment or training, as quickly as possible. This help can include workplace briefings by Jobcentre staff, skills assessments, and advice on how to look for a new job.

Support is also available through the Rapid Response Service (RRS) administered across Great Britain by Jobcentre Plus. This provides access to funding to help individuals made redundant where no other help exists or is insufficient to get them back into work. The budget for this service was doubled this year, from £3m to £6m, and will be doubled again next year to £12m. This will enable us to deal more effectively with situations involving 20 or more redundancies, or where there is a group of smaller redundancies in one locality. Although this funding has not yet been called upon in Scotland, any bid will be administered in line with the local PACE Partnership.

We have also announced that more people who are made redundant will get help through Programme Centres. These provide people with different kinds of help such as assistance with CV-writing and gaining jobsearch skills. Access to Programme Centres was previously restricted to those furthest from the labour market. Advisers will now have the discretion to allow any customers to access this help as soon as they become unemployed. This will be useful for people who have been in work for a long time and have no recent experience of job hunting.

We are also extending Local Employment Partnerships to provide help for newly redundant people. Local Employment Partnerships are simple deals we have agreed with employers, from local to national level, whereby we prepare customers for work and employers provide guaranteed job interviews, work placements, mentoring and work trials. Through these, Jobcentre Plus is already working successfully with over 13,000 employers, and has helped over 100,000 people into work.

To enable Jobcentres to manage the increase in register sizes, we are recruiting additional staff and are looking at extending office opening hours and how we might use partner premises where appropriate to create the additional capacity we need to help the increasing number of customer who need our help. We have also expanded our Rapid Reclaim arrangements. These enable customers who were in receipt of benefit at any time in the 26 weeks immediately prior to redundancy, to quickly access benefits via an abbreviated new claims process.

Vocational Training: Redundancy

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employees have been offered early access under Jobcentre Plus's rapid response service to (a) work-based learning for adults, (b) programme centres and (c) rapid response service focused training (i) 12 weeks before the date of redundancy, (ii) between 12 weeks before the date of redundancy and the date of redundancy and (iii) between the date of redundancy and 12 weeks after that date. [241006]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Winter Fuel Payments

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households with more than (a) £100,000 and (b) £200,000 annual income were in receipt of a winter fuel payment in the most recent year for which figures are available. [255975]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Winter fuel payments were designed to give older people reassurance that they could turn up their heating in winter. Eligibility is not based on income. The winter fuel payment for 2008-09 is £250 for households with someone aged 60-79, and £400 for households with someone aged 80 and over.

Information based on the Department's Family Resources Survey, shows that in 2006-07, winter fuel payments were made to less than 50,000 households with net income before housing costs of more than £100,000 per annum. Higher up the income distribution, clearly, the number is less than that. 2006-07 is the latest year for which information is available.

50,000 households represents less than 0.5 per cent. of all households where at least one adult is aged 60 and over.

Net income before housing costs is gross income less income tax payments, national insurance contributions, contributions to occupational and private pension schemes, local taxes, maintenance and child support payments, and parental contributions to children living away from home.

Winter Fuel Payments: Maladministration

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's policy on recovering cold weather payments made in error is; and if he will make a statement. [249451]

Kitty Ussher: Customers are asked to repay overpayments of Cold Weather payments arising as a result of customer error, but only where it is cost-effective to do so.

The Department does not currently seek to recover Cold Weather payments made as a result of official error.

HEALTH

Care Homes: Hampshire

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of care home residents were asked to pay a top-up fee in (a) Winchester and (b) Hampshire in each of the last five years. [258224]

Phil Hope: Information about top-up fees is not collected centrally. However, according to the Office of Fair Trading report, "Survey of Older People in Care Homes", published in May 2005, 33 per cent. of the 382 United Kingdom local authority funded residents interviewed said part of their fees were paid as a third party contribution or top-up.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care homes in each region did not comply with the national (a) privacy and dignity standard 10.1, (b) medicines management standard 9.6, (c) nutrition standards 12.2 and 15.4 and (d) protection from abuse standard 18.1 in each year since the standards were established. [257172]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that its inspectors assess the performance of care homes against each national minimum standard (NMS) and rate them on a four-point scale. A score of four indicates that a standard has been exceeded. A score of three shows that it has been met. A score of two denotes that the standard has not been met with minor shortfalls—this indicates that one of the numerous subsections in the standard has not been completely met. A score of one means the standard has not been met. CSCI assesses whether an entire standard has been met.

Tables showing the scores of care homes against the NMS for medication, privacy and dignity, meals and mealtimes and protection for care homes for older people, broken down by CSCI region, for each year since the standards were introduced, have been placed in the Library.

Childbirth

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many births there were at (a) under 20 weeks, (b) between 20 and 23 weeks, (c) between 24 and 27 weeks, (d) between 28 and 31 weeks and (e) between 32 and 36 weeks gestation in 2007-08. [258140]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many premature births there were at (a) under 20 weeks, (b) between 20 and 23 weeks, (c) between 24 and 27 weeks, (d) between 28 and 31 weeks and (e) between 32 and 36 weeks gestation in 2007-08.

Figures on premature births in England and Wales are only available for 2005. These figures are not routinely published by ONS as information on gestational age is not collected at birth registration. Since 2005, ONS has had access to NHS numbers for babies records which include information on gestational age and this has been linked to birth registration records.

(a) Figures on live births under 20 weeks gestation are not available.

(b) There were 312 live births under 22 weeks gestation. Of these, 100 live births had a birth weight of 1,000 grams and above. This recording is implausible and raises concerns about the accuracy in the recording of gestational age, birth weight or both. There were 435 live births at 22-23 weeks gestation.

(c) There 2,431 live births between 24 and 27 weeks gestation.

(d) There were 5,825 live births between 28 and 31 weeks gestation.

(e) There were 39,538 live births between 32 and 36 weeks gestation.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the survival rates were for babies born at (a) under 20 weeks, (b) between 20 and 23 weeks, (c) between 24 and 27 weeks, (d) between 28 and 31 weeks and (e) between 32 and 36 weeks gestation in each year since 1997. [258141]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the survival rates were for premature babies born at (a) under 20 weeks, (b) between 20 and 23 weeks, and (c) between 24 and 27 weeks, (d) between 28 and 31 weeks and (e) between 32 and 36 weeks gestation in each year since 1997.

Survival rates for premature babies in England and Wales are only available for 2005. These figures are not routinely published by ONS as information on gestational age is not collected at birth or death registration. However, since 2005, ONS has had access to NHS numbers for babies records which include information on gestational age and this has been linked to birth and infant death registration records.

Survival rates for babies born under 20 weeks gestation are not available. Figures are however available for babies born under 22 weeks gestation and 22 to 36 weeks gestation that survived to age one. These are shown in the following table.

Survival to age 1 of babies born in England and Wales by gestation weeks, 2005

Gestation (weeks)	Survival to age 1 (percentage)
Under 22 weeks and birth weight under 1,000g	1.4
Under 22 weeks and birth weight 1,000g and over[1]	75.0

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of GP referrals to first outpatient appointments were made using Choose and Book in each (a) primary care trust and (b) strategic health authority in the latest period for which figures are available. [257674]

Mr. Bradshaw: Latest figures for the percentage of general practitioner (GP) referrals to first out-patient appointment made using choose and book in each primary care trust and strategic health authority are shown in the following table.

Civil Servants: Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) civil servants, (b) permanent non-civil servants and (c) temporary or agency staff are employed at each (i) grade and (ii) salary range on the 18 week referral to treatment team. [258137]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The 18 weeks referral to treatment commitment is programme managed by a mixture of civil servants, secondees and temporary staff. The majority of these staff work on this area as part of other wider responsibilities. A breakdown of these staff is shown in the following table:

Civil servants - by civil service pay band from national pay range minimum to inner London pay range maximum

Death Rate

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the mortality rate for (a) four-limb deficient thalidomiders and the (b) the general public is; [257353]

(2) how many NHS trusts are equipped to measure the blood pressure of an upper-limb deficient thalidomide survivor. [257354]

Dawn Primarolo: We have made no estimate of the difference between the mortality rate for four limb deficient thalidomiders and the mortality rate for the general public.

Information on the number of national health service trusts equipped to measure the blood pressure of an upper limb deficient thalidomide survivor is not collected centrally.

Dementia

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the statement that the level of diagnosis and treatment of people with dementia is generally low in the UK and that there is a 24-fold variation between primary care trusts, as referred to on page 17 of the national dementia strategy; and if he will place in the Library a copy of such evidence. [257558]

Phil Hope: The source of the statement referred to on page 17 in the Dementia Strategy publication "Living well with dementia: A National Dementia Strategy" is from the Dementia UK report, published in 2007 by the Alzheimer's Society. A copy of the Dementia UK report has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how the £150 million he has allocated to fund the National Dementia Strategy will be allocated to each year of the strategy; and how much will be allocated to (a) resource and (b) capital expenditure in each year; [257562]

(2) from which budget the £150 million he has allocated to fund the National Dementia Strategy will be taken; and by what mechanism it will be allocated to the NHS; [257563]

(3) how the £150 million he has allocated to fund his National Dementia Strategy will be broken down between each of the 17 objectives in the strategy. [257566]

Phil Hope: The £150 million is revenue, not capital expenditure. It is being made available as part of primary care trusts' (PCTs) overall general allocations. These are increasing by 5.5 per cent. in each of 2009-10 and 2010-11, a total increase of £8.6 billion over the two years of which the dementia funding is part. PCTs have flexibility over the use of these resources in line with the operating framework. Total expenditure in each year on dementia, and on each of the 17 objectives that are not central budgets, will therefore be determined by the national health service locally. National estimates of expenditure on each objective are set out in the impact assessment published on the Department's website alongside the National Dementia Strategy. This information is contained with "Living well with dementia: A National Dementia Strategy", which has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many dementia advisers there are; how many he plans to recruit in each year; and by what date he plans to complete the proposed complement of additional advisers; [257567]

(2) what estimate he has made of the average annual cost of a dementia adviser. [257568]

Phil Hope: The role of dementia advisor will be an entirely new one. As such, the role will be piloted in the first year of the strategy. Subsequent decisions about the nature, number and funding of dementia advisers will be made locally by primary care trusts, depending on local circumstances.

Dementia: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date his Department plans to publish its reviews of the inappropriate use of anti-psychotic drugs for people with dementia. [257738]

Phil Hope: The work of the review will be concluded in spring 2009.

Dementia: Research

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much research funding has been allocated to studies linked to dementia in each financial year since 1997-98 for which figures are available; and how much he plans to allocate in each financial year up to 2010-11. [257737]

Dawn Primarolo: Both the Department and the Medical Research Council (MRC) support research into dementia. Annual expenditure figures are shown in the following table.

Expenditure on dementia research

£ million

	Department	Medical Research Council	Total
1997-98	0.4	5.5	5.9
1998-99	3.2	6	9.2
1999-2000	1	7.2	8.2
2000-01	4.7	8.2	12.9
2001-02	2.9	6.6	9.5

Expenditure on dementia research

£ million

	Department	Medical Research Council	Total
2002-03	1.6	6.6	8.2
2003-04	1.1	7.4	8.5
2004-05	19	6.2	25.2
2005-06	18.3	6	24.3
2006-07	22.8	6.4	29.2
2007-08	22.2	10.2	32.2

The Departmental figures for the years from 1997-98 to 2003-04 relate to national research programme expenditure. They do not include the part of the research and development allocations made annually at that time to national health service (NHS) providers and spent on dementia research. That information was not collected prior to 2004-05.

The more recent departmental figures are the aggregate of NHS support for degenerative neurological disorder research and comparable expenditure from National Institute for Health Research funding streams, including the cost of the dementias and neurodegenerative diseases research network.

The MRC expenditure figure for 2007-08 includes spend on some projects not previously included in annual totals.

The usual practice of the Department's National Institute for Health Research and of the MRC is not to ring-fence funds for expenditure on particular topics: research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. Future levels of expenditure on dementia research will be determined by the success of relevant bids for funding.

Dental Services: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were seen by dentists in Cornwall in each of the last 10 years. [256456]

Ann Keen: This information is not available in the format requested.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in table D3 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008/09" report. Information is provided by the primary care trust (PCT) and by the strategic health authority (SHA). This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006.

The "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008/09" report, was published on 27 November 2008 and is available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

This publication has already been placed in the Library.

The patients seen measure is not available under the old dental contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. The closest equivalent measure to patients seen is the number of patients registered with an NHS dentist. However, this is not directly comparable to the patients seen data under the new contractual arrangements.

The number of patients registered with an NHS dentist, in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in annex A of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006". Information is provided by PCT and by SHA.

The "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006" report, was published on 23 August 2006 and is available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

Information is provided by the primary care trust and the strategic health authority. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006.

Validated information at a regional level under the old contractual arrangements could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dental Services: Durham

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of levels of access to NHS dentistry services in the City of Durham. [257981]

Ann Keen: The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in table D3 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Quarter 1: 30 June 2008" report. Information is provided by primary care trust and by strategic health authority.

Dental Services: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there were with practices in City of York constituency in each of the last 15 years. [257978]

Ann Keen: The numbers of national health service dentists, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 are available in annex E of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". Information is available by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). Annex G contains information by parliamentary constituency. Validated information is not available for earlier years.

This measure counted the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

The numbers of dentists with NHS activity during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in table G1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. Information is provided by SHA and by PCT but is not available by constituency. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

Further work is currently being undertaken to determine whether the new definition used under the new dental contractual arrangements can be applied to the years under the old contractual arrangements to produce a consistent time series.

Both sets of published figures relate to headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people from City of York constituency there were on the lists of NHS dentists in City of York constituency in each of the last 15 years. [257979]

Ann Keen: Information is not available for years prior to 1997.

The number of patients registered with an national health service (NHS) dentist, in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in annex A of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006". Information is provided by primary care trust (PCT) and by strategic health authority (SHA). Annex C contains information by parliamentary constituency.

This information is based on the old contractual arrangements that were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with an NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services, 'patients seen' over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in table D3 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Quarter 1: 30 June 2008" report. Information is provided by PCT and SHA but is not available by constituency.

This report, published on 27 November 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256049]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by the Department and its agencies.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252247]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department total paybill for 2008-09 is forecast to be £140 million of which 1.3 per cent. has been used for non-consolidated performance payments to staff. The median payment made was £536.

All non-consolidated performance payments are funded within existing pay bill controls, have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs. The purpose of such payments is to ensure that those staff making the greatest contribution to the work of the Department are suitably rewarded.

For grades below the Senior Civil Service, 2008-09 is the first year that non-consolidated performance payments have been made. For the Senior Civil Service, the size of the non-consolidated performance pay pot is based on recommendations by the independent Senior Salaries Review Body.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Lord Crisp has claimed in travel expenses in the course of producing his report on global health. [256554]

Mr. Bradshaw: According to departmental records, Lord Crisp undertook international travel to the following countries between May 2006 and November 2006 to inform his 'Global Health Partnerships' report: South Africa, Malawi, Ethiopia, India, Ghana, USA and Switzerland. For this he claimed £12,600 in travel and subsistence.

Drugs: Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency's 24-hour anti-counterfeiting hotline was established; how much it cost to run in the last 12 months; how many calls it has received since its inception; and how many of these have led to the discovery each year of counterfeit drugs; [256556]

(2) what assessment of the risk from counterfeit medicines and devices the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency has made in each of the last 12 months; [256557]

(3) how many instances of counterfeit medicines or devices in the supply chain have been discovered in each of the last four years; [256707]

(4) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's anti-counterfeiting strategy. [256708]

Dawn Primarolo: The supply of counterfeit medicines is a growing problem worldwide and one which the Government are taking very seriously.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has therefore introduced a 24-hour anti-counterfeiting hotline in November 2007 as part of the Agency's Anti-Counterfeiting strategy. The Strategy was launched in November 2007. It sets out a three year plan and contains a commitment to audit activities carried out under it. A review is planned for the end of the three year period. The cost of the designated telephone is currently £65.00 per quarter, which is met from the Agency's overall telecommunications budget and it is manned by MHRA personnel as part of their normal duties. To date, 64 reports have been received (via e-mail, website, telephone and letter). All were responded to and none have proved to be counterfeit.

The MHRA has analysed in detail all of the cases of counterfeit medicines which have been discovered in the United Kingdom supply chain. This study has also contributed to the European Commission's proposals to tackle counterfeit medicines which are currently subject to public consultation. It has also contributed to a comprehensive review of the UK supply chain which has also been released for public consultation.

A 'watch list' of counterfeit medicines and medical devices which may appear in the supply chain has been established and circulated to Customs, police and other regulators to be aware of, and to deal with, potential threats.

The number of instances that counterfeit medicines and Devices have been found in the supply chain in each of the last four years is in the following table. The figures given are for every individual instance and may feature the same type of medicine or medical device on more than one occasion.

	Medicines	Devices
2005-06	1	4
2006-07	2	5
2008-09	0	0

There have been no reports of counterfeit medicines discovered in the regulated supply chain since May 2007.

Eating Disorders

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure there is appropriate treatment and support available for individuals who have an eating disorder. [258198]

Phil Hope: We take the issue of eating disorders, especially among young people, seriously. This is why the Department asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to produce clinical guidelines on core interventions in the treatment and management of anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and related eating disorders. This guidance was published in 2004.

The Department currently supports the eating disorder charity, beat, through direct funding worth £131,000 over three years, 2006-09. Since 2001-02, real terms investment in adult mental health services increased by 44 per cent., almost £1.7 billion, putting in place the services and staff needed to transform mental health services. The national health service (NHS) spent £5.53 billion on these services in 2007-08, with real term investment increasing by 3.74 per cent. between 2006 to 2007 and 2007 to 2008.

We have thus made very substantial resources available to the NHS from which to provide treatments and services for the population. However, the responsibility for the provision of all NHS services, including the provision of support and treatment for eating disorders, rests with primary care trusts.

Emergency Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average (a) cost and (b) number of staff in an emergency operations centre is. [257696]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally. Arrangements for ambulance service operations centres are a matter for the local national health service. The hon. Member may wish to approach his local NHS organisations for further information.

General Practitioners: Wirral

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints the Healthcare Commission has received on GP services in Wirral West constituency in the last five years. [256838]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally. However, this information can be obtained direct from the Healthcare Commission.

Genetics: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the evidence of his Department's chief scientific adviser to the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee on 21 January 2009, when his Department first considered the inclusion of DNA information on the NHS care record; what consideration has been given to the use of

DNA information on the care record for patient identification; what discussions there have been in his Department on the form in which the care record service could hold such information; and what estimate he has made of the date by which the DNA of the majority of individuals will be held on the care record. [256714]

Mr. Bradshaw: Decisions about the necessity and relevance of recording particular information, including data relating to the patient's DNA, on health records, whether those held within the NHS care records service (NHS CRS) or elsewhere, is a matter for individual clinicians.

Access to health records is only permitted to clinical staff who have a legitimate relationship with the patient for which consent may be implied, for example because they are providing NHS health care or treatment, or who have express consent from the patient for other reasons, for example clinical research.

Within the NHS CRS, both detailed care records and summary care records, for those who choose to have one, will potentially be updated each time patients receive NHS care, and for obvious reasons the precise information held will differ from patient to patient.

Health and Social Care

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve the coordination of assessments carried out by those in the health and social care sectors; and if he will make a statement. [257437]

Phil Hope: A consultation published on 22 January and running to 17 April 2009 details proposals to improve information sharing around assessments and care and support planning. The Common Assessment Framework for Adults will look to enable the sharing of information, with the consent of the individual, between health, social care and wider community support services. A report of responses to the consultation will be published in the summer 2009, and the comments received are being used to inform the practical approaches being tested and evaluated over the next three years in nine local authority led partnerships.

Health and Social Care: Elderly

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons real terms social care expenditure on older people has fallen, as reported in his Department's report Personal Social Services Expenditure and Unit Costs England, 2007-08. [258174]

Phil Hope: The data published by the NHS Information Centre on adult personal social services expenditure and unit costs, England, 2007-08, set out expenditure as reported by councils on personal social services and does not record the reasons for changes in expenditure. A copy of the publication has been placed in the Library. Expenditure on personal social services is a matter for each individual council and local discretion, through engagement with their democratically accountable members and the public, in order to deliver services that meet local needs and pressures.

Health Services: Dementia

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many memory clinics there are; and how many memory clinics he intends to establish by what date under the provisions of the National Dementia Strategy; [257560]

(2) how many staff he expects to be employed in each memory clinic, as referred to in the National Dementia Strategy; [257653]

(3) what estimate he has made of the average (a) initial start-up costs and (b) annual operating costs of a memory clinic; and how much he has allocated to memory clinics in each financial year until 2010-11. [257739]

Phil Hope: Decisions about the nature, number and funding of memory services will be made locally by primary care trusts, depending on local circumstances.

Health Services: Rural Areas

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies his Department has undertaken into the costs of administering healthcare in rural locations. [254724]

Mr. Bradshaw: The cost of administering health care in rural locations has been considered by the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation (ACRA). ACRA is an independent body that oversees the development of the weighted capitation formula, used to inform primary care trust (PCT) revenue allocations, and makes recommendations to ministers on potential changes to the funding formula prior to each allocations round. ACRA's latest report has been placed in the Library and at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_091484

Both ACRA and its predecessor, the Resource Allocation Group, have commissioned independent research into how the weighted capitation formula takes account of the issues faced in rural areas, both in terms of additional need for health care and the additional cost of providing health care in rural areas. In particular, 'Combining Age Related and Additional Needs (CARAN) Report' and 'Review of Specific Cost Approach to Staff Market Forces Factor', which consider the impact of rurality on health care needs and costs respectively.

In addition, 'A Study of Costs of Providing Health Services in Rural Areas', led to the introduction of the emergency ambulance cost adjustment , in recognition of the geographical cost differences found for emergency ambulance services.

These research reports have also been placed in the Library and can be accessed at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/Allocations/DH_4108515

Hepatitis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) males and (b) females in each age group have been diagnosed with acute hepatitis (i) A, (ii) B, (iii) C, (iv) D, (v) E and (vi) G in each year since 1997. [254997]

Dawn Primarolo: The available information is shown in the following tables. However, data for acute hepatitis C are not available, as surveillance data collected by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) do not distinguish between current and past infections or between recently acquired and chronic infections. The HPA does not collect data on hepatitis D as hepatitis D is a defective virus that replicates only in the presence of acute or chronic hepatitis B infection. The HPA also does not routinely collect data on hepatitis G as extensive worldwide investigation has failed to identify any association between the hepatitis G virus and hepatitis and its clinical significance is unknown.

Notes:
1. Surveillance of hepatitis B is based upon reports of confirmed acute hepatitis B received from laboratories in England. Since 2003, the completeness of data on whether hepatitis B infections are acute or chronic infection has decreased and therefore figures since then are not reliable. The HPA is working to improve the quality of information on acute hepatitis B reporting and provisional data for 2007 should be available later this year.
2. Where fewer than five cases were reported for a category, the table indicates the number of cases reported as <5 rather than the actual number in order to reduce the risk of deductive disclosure of an individual's identity.

[1] 'Tender award date' is the equivalent of financial close for public capital funded schemes.
[2] It is not yet known what schemes are likely to reach financial close or award tender during 2009.
Note:
Several trust schemes (marked with *) have still to develop and submit their outline business cases, which sets out their intended scope and procurement options. The values shown for those schemes are the latest the Department has collected from the strategic health authorities.

Measles

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce the incidence of measles in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Teesside and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [257540]

Dawn Primarolo: The way to reduce the number of confirmed cases of measles recorded each year is to increase the number of children vaccinated with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine.

In addition to the routine MMR vaccination programme, on 6 August 2008 the Department launched a national MMR vaccine catch-up campaign. The aim of the campaign is to immunise all children between one and 18 years of age who are unvaccinated or only partially vaccinated with MMR vaccine.

To support the campaign the Department has provided extra funding to primary care trusts (PCTs) with PCTs outside London having their funding limits increased by £30,000 and London PCTs' funding limits increased by £60,000. The Department has also sourced additional supplies of vaccine, provided technical support to general practitioners to help them identify children who have not received the MMR vaccine and provided additional online reports to PCTs to help them monitor the effectiveness of their catch-up programmes. The Department has also sent all general practitioner surgeries new measles leaflets and posters.

The Department has held meetings with both strategic health authorities and PCT immunisation co-ordinators, regional directors of public health and directors of performance to emphasise the importance of reducing measles cases through improving vaccination uptake.

A public relations campaign will be rolled out from March 2009. Key messages will include how serious and infectious measles is and how it's never too late to have the MMR vaccine.

Middlesbrough PCT, Redcar and Cleveland PCT and Stockton-on Tees Teaching PCT are implementing the national MMR vaccine catch-up campaign and have three key strategies:

a local service level agreement with GPs to help with the catch-up plan especially with pre-school age children; sending a letter to all parents of school leavers offering an MMR vaccine booster for those who have not received two MMR vaccine doses; and a local radio advertising campaign promoting MMR vaccinations.

Meat Hygiene Service: Inspections

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of inspections carried out by the Meat Hygiene Service was in each year since 1997. [257671]

Dawn Primarolo: The Meat Hygiene Service (MHS) undertakes not just inspection activities in abattoirs but also programmes for other Government Departments such as the Department for the Environment Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) for animal health and welfare purposes. The gross cost of the MHS and the proportion of that cost, including administrative and managerial support costs that relates to inspection, is shown in the following table.

The cost of inspection is estimated at:

£ million

	1996-97	1997-98	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Mental Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the tariff uplift breakdown for 2009-10, published by his Department on 5 February 2009, when he plans to develop a tariff for mental health services. [257643]

Mr. Bradshaw: A programme of work is underway to develop and make available for use national contract 'currencies' for mental health activity by 2010-11. This is in line with the commitment made in High Quality Care for All - NHS Next Stage Review Final Report (Department of Health, June 2008), which has already been placed in the Library.

The currencies being developed will allow national comparison and benchmarking. Once they are in place, they will facilitate an informed decision on whether to introduce a national tariff for mental health services. Therefore, no date has yet been set for the introduction of a tariff for mental health services.

NHS Hospital Foundation Trusts

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which applications for NHS Hospital Foundation Trust status have been deferred from the initial date for consideration. [257454]

Mr. Bradshaw: The decision to authorise an NHS foundation trust (NHS FT) is made by the Board of Monitor. An authorisation decision may be deferred if the issues preventing a successful application are likely to be resolved or addressed within a reasonable period of time.

I am informed by the chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the independent regulator of NHS FTs) that a total of 19 applications for NHS FT status have been deferred, of which 13 were subsequently authorised, three are currently under assessment, two have withdrawn and one is awaiting reactivation.

NHS Negligence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 938W, on NHS negligence, how much of the total premium for 2009-10 will be collected (a) from each NHS trust and (b) in respect of each type of claim. [257741]

Ann Keen: We do not know how much will be collected from individual national health service trusts because the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) is still in the process of calculating actual contributions. Risk management assessments, which can discount an individual member's contribution, are still being carried out. Data on actual amounts collected will be available after 1 April 2009.

In respect of each type of claim, the NHSLA have supplied the following table. This shows the breakdown of the estimated global contribution of £713 million for 2009-10 by the NHSLA's risk categories that claims fall into.

Risk Category	(£) Total contribution
Nursing and other	372,315
Low[1]	5,217,893
Psychiatry/Mental Health	14,350,759
Medium[1]	20,597,730
High[1]	91,888,822

Neurosurgery	10,335043
Neurology	7,775,245

Accident and emergency	45,846,498
General surgery	52,080,154
Anaesthetics	18,032,986
Obstetrics	392,516,185
Total	713,000,000

[1] These cover a range of over 100 specific risk categories

NHS Plus

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS occupational health departments were members of NHS Plus in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [249271]

Ann Keen: There are 112 NHS Plus providers as at the end of 2008 and there were 104 in 2007. A list for both years has been placed in the Library. We do not have the information for 2006.

NHS: Dental Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date he expects the conclusions of his Department's independent review of NHS dentistry to be published. [257561]

Ann Keen: We expect the findings of the independent review team will be published in early summer 2009.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what monitoring procedures are in place to ensure that primary care trusts are providing sufficient NHS dentistry services. [257982]

Ann Keen: The Dental Services Division of the Business Services Authority collects data on the numbers of patients who receive national health service care or treatment from a dentist one or more times during a 24-month period broken down by primary care trust. The latest data are contained in 'NHS Dental Statistics for England Quarter 1: 30 June 2008', a copy of which has already been placed in the Library.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what capital expenditure allocations to NHS organisations have been agreed for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; which organisation will receive the funding in each case; and what the purpose of the funding is in each case. [255341]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the amounts of capital resources so far allocated to strategic health authorities, national health service trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in 2008 to 2009 has been placed in the Library.

The allocations data provided show the total capital resources allocated up to the end of Quarter 3, December 2008. Allocations include capital funding for locally prioritised capital expenditure and programme capital for centrally announced initiatives and reflect adjustments for capital grants to third parties.

Some organisations are showing a negative capital allocation. Negative allocations can arise where there are planned asset disposals and the selling organisation does not plan to reinvest the total value of the disposal in capital assets in the selling organisation's books in the year of disposal.

Allocations for 2009-10 are being set as part of NHS trusts' and PCTs' financial plans. This financial planning process is ongoing. 2010-11's capital allocations for NHS trusts and PCTs will be set under a similar process.

The Department does not hold information on the capital investment plans of NHS foundation trusts.

NHS: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has carried out on the effectiveness of Clinell in the elimination of bacteria and viruses in NHS hospitals. [257304]

Ann Keen: The Department has not undertaken any research on the efficacy of Clinell in preventing viral and bacterial infections in hospitals. However, the Rapid Review Panel has concluded that more research and development is required before Clinell wipes are ready for evaluation in practice.

NHS: Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average number of sick days taken per member of staff was in each NHS trust in each of the last five years. [256367]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available has been placed in the Library.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce levels of sick leave in the NHS. [256449]

Ann Keen: National health service employing organisations are responsible for taking appropriate local action to reduce levels of sick leave.

The Department recently published 'The NHS Constitution' which included a pledge to staff in the NHS "to provide support and opportunities for staff to maintain their health, well-being and safety". A copy of the publication has already been placed in the Library.

To support work on this pledge there will be a review of the health and well-being of the NHS work force as part of the Government's response to Dame Carol Black's report on the health of the United Kingdom's working-age population.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates his Department has made of the cost of sick leave to the NHS in the latest period for which figures are available. [256450]

Ann Keen: Sickness absence in 2005 was reported to amount to 4.5 per cent. of available working time. It was estimated that each 0.1 percentage point reduction would give a theoretical saving of £35 million.

NHS: Wheelchairs

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost to the NHS of a motorised wheelchair for someone without arms and legs is; and if he will make a statement. [257501]

Phil Hope: Each wheelchair will need to be specifically tailored to each user's needs, and so the price will vary accordingly.

NHS Supply Chain has a framework agreement to supply motorised wheelchairs to the national health service. Prices on this framework agreement range from £865 to £5,400.

Personal Injury: Compensation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 411W, on personal injury: compensation, (1) on how many occasions a check produced evidence of error or misleading information in 2007-08; [255769]

(2) on how many occasions a check led to prosecution in 2007-08. [255770]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2007-08, the Compensation Recovery Unit (CRU) undertook 60,440 checks on the initial statements of insurers and their agents where no NHS treatment was recorded in respect of the NHS injury costs recovery scheme. From these checks, 5364 claims were subsequently identified as having either inpatient or outpatient treatment where costs are recoverable under the scheme.

The CRU initiates these checks at the beginning of the recovery process to ensure that claims will be correct when it comes to settlement. There were no resulting prosecutions in 2007-08.

Rapid Review Panel

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the operational cost of the Rapid Review Panel was in the last 12 months; [257302]

(2) what the average time taken by the Rapid Review Panel to complete a review of a potential new product for use in the NHS is; [257303]

(3) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Rapid Review Panel in reducing infectious diseases in NHS hospitals. [257410]

Ann Keen: The operational costs of the Rapid Review Panel (RRP) for the last 12 months were £24,210.

The RRP meets quarterly and the deadline for applications is approximately four weeks prior to the meeting date. Once the panel has met the reports are published on the RRP's website within two weeks. Thus, the time taken to review a product will vary according to when the application was made in relation to the meeting date but generally a product will be reviewed within three months.

It is not possible to directly link the RRP work to infection rates as their role is to identify whether or not products submitted to the RRP have the potential to help the national health service reduce infections. However, the panel has undertaken 235 assessments since its first meeting and eight products have demonstrated sufficient basic research and development, validation and recent in use evaluations to enable the RRP to make a recommendation that the product should be made available to NHS bodies. Of these eight products, seven have been made available to the NHS by the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency via the NHS Supply Chain and will be contributing to their programmes to reduce infections.

Screening: Diabetes

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance his Department has issued on steps to be taken on the identification of an abnormal result in a test carried out under the national screening programme for diabetic retinopathy; [256776]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the national screening programme for diabetic retinopathy in reducing the risk of sight loss among people with diabetes. [256781]

Ann Keen: The English national screening programme for sight threatening retinopathy (NSP) was established to support local delivery of diabetic retinopathy screening. It has published guidance on the steps to be taken on the identification of an abnormal result in a test carried out under the national screening programme for diabetic retinopathy. This guidance is contained in the NSP's workbook, a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

The NSP has also set national quality standards for screening programmes to measure the effectiveness of all screening programmes, also available in the Library. These include standards for the timely referral, assessment and treatment of patients with screen positive results and the reduction of new blindness due to retinopathy. The effectiveness of local screening programmes against these standards is being assessed as part of the external quality assurance process being undertaken by the NSP. In addition, the NSP is developing a project which aims to determine which type of delivery of the programme is most effective in the detection of sight threatening diabetic retinopathy.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) syphilis, (b) HIV infection and (c) gonorrhoea have been diagnosed in (i) England, (ii)

the North East and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last 10 years. [257541]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on diagnoses of syphilis, HIV and gonorrhoea in genito-urinary medicine (GUM) clinics are only collected by strategic health authority (SHA). Data for syphilis, HIV and gonorrhoea for England and the North East SHA since 1998 to 2007, the latest year for which figures are available, are given in the following table.

Infection	Area of diagnoses	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

Notes:
HIV
1. Numbers will rise as further reports are received.
2. Diagnoses are from reports received to end June 2008.
3. Data include individuals who have an existing infection as well as those who have a newly acquired infection and therefore the data do not present incidence of infection.
4. Areas when presented are area of diagnoses and not of residence, there is evidence that a large proportion of individuals are diagnosed outside of their PCT of residence.
Syphilis and Gonorrhoea
1. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
2. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed.
3. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
4. Data are unavailable for 2008.
5. Syphilis figures include diagnoses of primary and secondary infection only.

Slaughterhouses

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abattoirs have closed in each of the last five years. [257421]

Dawn Primarolo: According to the Food Standards Agency, the total number of abattoirs in the United Kingdom that have ceased operating in each of the last five years is as shown in the following table:

Year	Number closed
2004	38
2005	29
2006	34
2007	23
2008	17

Social Care: Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information he holds on disbursements of the social care reform grant by each local authority. [256792]

Phil Hope: In January 2008, the Department published Local Authority Circular (LAC) (2008) 1.

This Local Authority Circular sets out information to support the transformation of social care set out in "Putting People First", including the details of the social care reform grant. This new ring-fenced grant provides £520 million from 2008-11 to support councils to help redesign and reshape their systems. Annex A provides a copy of the Social Care Reform Grant Determination to Local Authorities.

A copy of the Local Authority Circular has been placed in the Library and is available at:

Social Services: Complaints

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many independent review panels were held in 2006 to 2008; and what assessment he has made of levels of complainant satisfaction with the process; [258472]

(2) how many social care complaints were independently investigated in 2006-07; and how many were found to be valid; [258473]

(3) how many complaints which were independently investigated under the social care complaints procedure which progress to stage 2 overturned the findings at the local resolution stage in the most recent period for which information is available. [258475]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Surgery

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the period of time between a surgical operation and further surgery required by a patient is counted for the purposes of performance against waiting time targets. [257644]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 18 week commitment covers all consultant-led elective services from the time the patient is referred for treatment to the start of their first definitive hospital treatment. On completion of an 18 week referral to treatment period, a new 18 week clock starts upon the decision to start a substantively new or different treatment that does not already form part of that patient's agreed care plan.

Vioxx

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost to the NHS of prescribing the drug Vioxx has been in each year since the drug became available on the NHS; [256530]

(2) how many (a) males and (b) females in each (i) age group and (ii) health authority have been prescribed Vioxx in each year since 1999; and how many in each category have suffered (A) heart attacks and (B) fatal heart attacks while prescribed Vioxx in each such year. [256539]

Phil Hope: Information is not collected on either the gender or number of people prescribed a medicine, only on the number of prescription items dispensed. Information on the estimated number and net ingredient cost for Vioxx items dispensed in the community in England, by age group, from 1999, when the drug was licensed in the UK, is provided in the following table.

Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) data

Prescribing activity for individual primary care trusts (PCTs) for 2004—the most recent year reportable prescribing took place, has been placed in the Library. From 2005 to 2007 less than 50 items were dispensed in the community each year in a significant number of PCTs. Releasing actual figures may potentially allow the identification of individual patients. NHS Prescription Services retains these data for 60 months on a rolling basis, therefore this information is not available at PCT level prior to 2004.

Information on the number of people who have suffered heart attacks or fatal heart attacks while prescribed Vioxx is not available.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions for being drunk and disorderly there have been in the Chelmsford division of the Essex police force area in each of the last 10 years. [254837]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Court proceedings data, and PND data, are collected centrally at police force area level and are not further broken down. Therefore data for the Chelmsford division of the Essex police force are not available.

The number of persons found guilty at all courts for being drunk and disorderly in the Essex police force area, from 1998 to 2007, is given in table 1.

Additionally, penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) are available for this offence. The number of PNDs issued to persons aged 16 and over for being drunk and disorderly in the Essex police force area, from 2004, when the scheme was implemented to 2007 is given in table 2.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were of retailers for selling alcohol to persons under 18 years old in 2007; and what the average fine imposed was on those convicted. [255197]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and convicted at all courts, the number of persons fined and the average fine for selling alcohol to persons aged under 18, in England and Wales, for 2007 are shown in the following table.

Additionally, penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) are available for this offence. The number of PNDs issued for sales of alcohol to persons aged under 18 are also included in the table.

Number of defendants[1] proceeded against at magistrates courts[2], convicted and fined at all courts[2], and the number of persons issued with a penalty notice for disorder (PND)[3] for sale of alcohol to a person under 18, England and Wales, 2007[4]

[1] Defendants includes persons and 'other' defendants (companies and public bodies etc.).

When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Antisocial Behaviour: Crime Prevention

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what method her Department uses to apportion funding to local authorities to tackle anti-social behaviour. [257201]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Local authority funding generally takes the form of mainstream non-ring fenced grants or non-ring fenced area-based grant (ABG): a single capital pot designed to increase the funding flexibility and allow local areas much greater freedom to spend money in a way they see fit to support the delivery of local, regional and national priorities in their areas. The position in Wales is slightly different, whereby the funding for community safety partnerships has been consolidated into the crime reduction and antisocial behaviour national resource grant.

In both England and Wales it is for local partnerships to agree how the grants received should be allocated against locally determined priorities, including tackling antisocial behaviour.

Antisocial Behaviour: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to tackle antisocial behaviour in Enfield North constituency. [256779]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have provided local agencies with a wide range of tools and powers to tackle antisocial behaviour to ensure they can tailor the response to each individual case. We have also provided front-line practitioners with updated guidance on providing support to victims and witnesses and the use of existing tools and powers, backed up with a programme of regional workshops.

Enfield has established a multi-agency partnership between the council and the police who co-ordinate all issues of antisocial behaviour in the borough, which includes Enfield North. The team work closely with all partners including social housing providers in an effort to tackle antisocial behaviour in the area.

Appropriate Adults

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what progress has been made in her Department's review of the role of appropriate adults; and when the new guidance on the matter is expected to be published; [251193]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of making it a statutory requirement that an appropriate adult be present at the police station in cases where the police have concerns about a suspect's mental state. [253686]

Mr. Coaker [holding answers 26 January 2009 and 2 February 2009]: Code of Practice C for the Detention, treatment and questioning of persons by police officers issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 requires that if an officer has any suspicion, or is told in good faith, that a person of any age may be mentally disordered or otherwise mentally vulnerable, or mentally incapable of understanding the significance of questions or replies that person shall be treated as mentally disordered or otherwise mentally vulnerable. In those circumstances, an appropriate adult must be called. The Review of PACE, published in August 2008 as a public consultation document, contained proposals on the role, training and use of appropriate adults.

We intend to publish the summary of responses to the consultation paper in March 2009.

Cannabis

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been (a) evaluated and (b) commissioned by her Department on the likely effects of the change in classification of cannabis on (i) the numbers in prison and (ii) the cost of arrest, prosecution and imprisonment in each of the next five years; and if she will make a statement. [245482]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The likely effects of the reclassification of cannabis to a Class B drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 have been evaluated in the regulatory impact assessment (IA)[1] produced to accompany the Parliamentary Order. This IA is an internal evaluation. Based on existing evidence the IA makes a series of key assumptions; it forecasts potential liabilities associated with the legislative and the proposed enforcement change. The IA is published at:

http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2008/em/uksiem_20083130_en.pdf

Estimates of unit costs applied to criminal justice system outcomes within the IA were obtained from the agencies involved and from relevant research where available. As a result, volumes and figures stated are broad estimates; they do not necessarily reflect actual costs in any particular situation or point in time.

In respect of prison places, the IA identifies potential additional prison places for cannabis possession offences; it estimates a potential increase in prison place requirement of 21 places over five years.

For supply, trafficking and production offences the impact assessment clearly sets out the reasons why an assessment on prison places was not made. This includes the fact that the maximum sentence prescribed by the 1971 Act will remain unchanged at 14 years.

The overall estimate change in the enforcement liability associated with cannabis possession including arrest and prosecution can be found in Table 6 of the IA as set out.

[1] Please note the Impact Assessment was re laid on 16 January 2009. A drafting error in the IA was identified on 19 December 2008. Following this, the impact assessment was withdrawn from the OPSI website on 23 December 2009. A full review of the IA was undertaken and the revised document is now in the public domain. For a full explanation of the drafting error please see response to PQ 24583. The error identified in the document does not affect the estimates of costs of arrest, prosecution or prison numbers.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the reclassification of cannabis on (a) the numbers using cannabis and (b) the numbers using other illegal drugs. [245483]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 13 January 2009]: In respect of the movement to Class B alone on the numbers using cannabis there is no claim that this alone will act as a deterrent on cannabis use.

The Impact Assessment (IA)[1] on the reclassification of cannabis looks at reclassification alongside a step change in enforcement response and the potential change in the estimated population of cannabis users. Based on existing evidence the IA makes a series of key assumptions; it forecasts potential liabilities and volumes associated with the legislative and proposed enforcement response. These assumptions include a reduction in the population of serious cannabis users following recent British Crime Survey trends, desistance from users 'getting older' and increased desistance of users is assumed following more robust contact with police and the Criminal Justice System. The full IA can be found at:

http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2008/em/uksiem_20083130_en.pdf

Over the seven year period examined in the impact assessment there is estimated to be a desistance of an additional 23,000 serious cannabis users under reclassification alongside the associated enforcement response. The estimated difference in total population of serious cannabis users under reclassification and the enforcement response is set out in Table 8 of the aforementioned impact assessment.

There has been no assessment of how cannabis reclassification will impact on those using other illegal drugs.

[1] In preparing the response to this PQ a minor drafting error was identified in the Impact Assessment (IA). As a consequence the IA was withdrawn from the public domain. A revised version was re laid in Parliament on 16 January 2009.

The erroneous sentence in the IA stated:

"Over the entire period, the change option is estimated to result in the desistence of 72,000 additional serious cannabis users" and appeared on page 15 of the original IA as found on the OPSI website. The cited figure of 72,000 was incorrectly quoted as a result of misinterpretation of the figures in Table 8 as relating to annual levels of desistance, rather than the cumulative level of desistance. The correct figure of 23,000 additionally desisting over seven years was cited in the preceding sentence and contained in Table 8 of the IA. Following the identification of this error a full review of all figures and tabular information contained in the IA has been conducted. There have been no errors in the original calculations contained within the IA.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training police officers receive to allow them to recognise cannabis. [257043]

Jacqui Smith: All student police officers are issued with notes which cover drugs and their supply, importation and manufacture. The identification of classified drugs is also dealt with in a case study exercise.

As part of their training, it is common practice for student police officers to undertake a familiarisation exercise with samples of a variety of drugs. This helps student officers to recognise different drugs, both visually and by smell. Due care must be exercised to ensure that any illegal drugs used for training purposes are closely monitored and controlled.

Children: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to ensure that social networking sites act upon requests from adoptive parents and adoption agencies where they have a reasonable fear for the safety of the adopted child via such sites. [257324]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The Home Office Task Force on Child Protection on the Internet published good practice guidance for social networking sites last year. The guidance provides recommendations for how the managers of such sites should deal with incidents of bullying and other forms of abuse or threats to children's safety, and to make it easy for all young people and their parents or guardians to report their concerns.

This guidance is being promoted by the newly formed UK Council for Child Internet Safety and has formed the core of the new European Agreement on Social Networking. Social networking sites are expected to inform the European Commission about their individual safety policies and how they will put these principles in place by April 2009.

The guidance may be downloaded from:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/operational-policing/social-networking-guidance/

A copy has been placed in the Libraries.

Crime Prevention

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information her Department collects on each crime and disorder reduction partnership. [257042]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office collects information relating to the community safety indicators of the new National Indicator Set for Local Government in England. Much of this information is available at CDRP level, including crime data.

The Home Office also collects specific information from CDRPs relating to particular policy areas where this is deemed necessary to support delivery. Currently this relates to quarterly information on antisocial behaviour, which is submitted on a voluntarily basis from each CDRP on local activity, and information due in April from 198 areas involved in a three-month Alcohol Related Partnership Activity campaign ending in March 2009.

Crime Prevention: International Cooperation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken in preparation for the UN General Assembly Special Session on Narcotic Drugs; and what objectives she has set for the session. [256803]

Mr. Alan Campbell: A 1998 UN General Assembly special session on countering the world drug problem agreed a political declaration to establish goals and targets to be met over a 10 year period. A high-level segment at the UN Commission on Narcotic Drugs in March 2009 will review progress against the 1998 Declaration and adopt a further declaration on future approaches to countering the world drug problem.

The Government's priorities for the review process are:

Improving and strengthening data collection and analysis by the UN as an essential basis for all UN drugs activity;

Adherence by UN drugs bodies to the UN's "Delivery as One" concept - supporting the UN's Millennium Development goal to reduce the incidence of HIV/AIDS, and improving access to controlled opiate-based medication for developing nations;

Encouraging of effective law-enforcement effort through greater information sharing and analysis on the manufacture, supply and consumption of drugs in order to ensure that policy decisions are based on evidence;

Recognition of the effectiveness of using intelligence in combating drug supply, in particular combating trafficking in narcotic drugs, and encouraging sharing of intelligence between law enforcement agencies;

Recognition that illicit production and trafficking of drugs fuels instability and insecurity in many parts of the world;

Strengthening regional and international co-operation in combating the illicit cultivation, manufacture, trafficking and consumption of illicit drugs;

Affirmation of the need to devote particular attention to measures for the control of precursor chemicals;

Reflection of the Government's position that eradication of illicit crops in Afghanistan and elsewhere is targeted on areas where farmers have access to alternative sources of income.

Crime: Business

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) shoplifting, (b) robbery of business property and (c) theft by an employee were recorded by police in the quarter (i) July to September 2006, (ii) July to September 2007 and (iii) July to September 2008. [257044]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is given in the following table.

Mr. Alan Campbell: The particular nature of incidents cannot be identified from the main recorded crime dataset. Available information is from the firearm offences database and relates only to violence against the person offences recorded by the police in England and Wales in which firearms (including air weapons) were reported to have been used.

Dogs: Crime

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in combating crime involving dogs; and if she will make a statement. [256875]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 23 February 2009]: There has been no recent assessment of this Act by the Home Department. This Government are determined to curb the use of dogs by criminals and, in particular, gangs. Our proposed amendments to the Police and Crime Bill 2009 will build on existing legislation, to further target the use of dogs by gangs. The amendment will give the courts power to stop an individual taking charge of a dog in a public place if it is being used to support gang related activity.

Domestic Violence

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment her Department has made of the merits of bringing forward proposals to reduce levels of financial abuse in domestic settings; if she will review the Domestic Violence National Action Plan in respect of such proposals; and if she will make a statement. [252446]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government do recognise the financial and economic impact that happens within domestic violence relationships. We are working with stakeholders and the British Banker's Association to ensure that both domestic violence victims and their advisers are more fully informed of their options. We will be considering this issue when developing our Delivery Plan in the future and recently produced a leaflet including some advice on this issue. From the information received on domestic violence cases we are not able to identify the financial abuse aspect.

Driving Under Influence

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of causing death by careless driving when under the influence of (a) drugs and (b) alcohol have been recorded by police since 2004. [257090]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not currently available. For the period up until 2007-08, the Home Office collected data on recorded offences of 'Causing death by dangerous or careless driving (including while under the influence of drink or drugs)'. However, it has not been possible to determine from the information held centrally which, if any, of these offences were committed while the offender was under the influence.

However, with effect from April 2008, offences of 'Causing death by careless driving under the influence of drugs and alcohol' have been collected separately and figures for 2008-09 will be available in July 2009.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what qualifications the initial assessors referred to in Part 3 of the Drugs Act 2005 are required to have for the role of establishing drug misuse; whether all police stations have at least one qualified initial assessor; and what estimate she has made of the cost of maintaining and training an initial assessor in the last 12 months for which information is available. [256541]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The current specification of the qualifications for initial assessors who deliver interventions under the drug interventions programme is given in the Home Office operational guidance for implementation of testing on arrest, required assessment and restriction on bail. That guidance defines initial assessors as

'somebody who is competent to carry out the initial assessment and will, in almost all instances, be a CJIT (criminal justice integrated team) worker, who will also be employed to carry out voluntary assessments in the same area. All such workers will have, or be working towards, the relevant drug and alcohol national occupational standards (DANOS) competencies'.

In the majority of cases, CJIT workers will carry out initial assessments within custody suites. CJIT workers are employed by drug action teams and substance misuse action teams who are responsible for delivering drug interventions programme services in their areas.

There is no national estimate of the training and maintaining costs of local initial assessors.

Emergency Calls

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent operators for 999 calls there were in each year since 1997; and how many such calls there were in each of those years. [254593]

Jacqui Smith: Data provided from the Home Office's collection relate to the volume of 999 calls since 2005-06, and are given in the following table. Previous data were published as part of HMIC's Annual Report and can be found at:

http://inspectorates.homeoffice.gov.uk/hmic/inspections/annual-reports/

Data for the number of operators dealing specifically with 999 calls are not collected centrally.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long on average it took her Department to respond to the requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in 2008. [251763]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available statistics on the timeliness of FOI requests received by the Home Office up to the third quarter of 2008 are published on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter to her of 20 October from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Ms A Mlay. [241694]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 16 December 2008.

National Security

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the appropriateness of the current official threat level. [248350]

Mr. Coaker: The current threat level for international terrorism is set at SEVERE.

The Home Office do not make any assessments into the threat level. The threat level for international terrorism is assessed and set by the joint terrorism analysis centre (JTAC). The Security Service is responsible for assessing the level and nature of the threat arising from domestic terrorism, principally the Irish-related terrorist threat.

More information on how the threat level is assessed can be found on the JTAC website at:

http://www.intelligence.gov.uk/threat_levels.aspx

Offences Against Children: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of progress in securing the co-operation of internet service providers in deploying the blocking list of known child pornography web sites by the Internet Watch Foundation. [257036]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government warmly welcome the work done by industry to block images of child sexual abuse, resulting in 95 per cent. of consumer broadband lines being covered by blocking. The Government would like to thank the Internet Watch Foundation (IWF) for their work to manage the creation of their list of sites that should be blocked. The UK now hosts less than 1 per cent. of the total number of child abuse image sites on the internet, and when one is identified it is quickly closed down.

Offensive Weapons: Greater Manchester

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal weapons were confiscated by the Greater Manchester police force in each year since 1997. [244798]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 18 December 2008]: This information is not held centrally.

Police: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made towards delivering the policing pledge in Enfield. [256780]

Mr. Coaker: All police forces across England and Wales, including the Metropolitan police, have now implemented the national Policing Pledge. This means that every citizen in Enfield and throughout England and Wales has a clear minimum standard of what to expect from their police force. The focus for forces now is ensuring that local pledges are in place and that the public know what they are entitled to.

The Policing Green Paper made it clear that the Home Office will now adopt a more strategic role, strengthening grassroots accountability and enhancing the role of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) in providing public assurance about the quality of policing in all forces. Locally, if the public do not feel the commitments embodied in the pledge are being met they can raise this with the police themselves or through their police authority.

Police: ICT

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces (a) have adopted fully and (b) are piloting ExISS release 1; how much was spent on the programme in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [256683]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

ExISS release 1 consists of the police to magistrates court and the police to Crown Prosecution Service links.

As of 18 February 2009, out of 43 police forces, 39 had completed deployment of the police to magistrates court link. 34 police forces had completed deployment of the police to Crown Prosecution Service link with a further eight police forces partially deployed. One police force was in the advanced stages of deployment planning for both release 1 links. No police force is piloting the link, all are either deployed or in the deployment phase.

In the year 2007-08 there was a capital spend of £9 million on the programme.

It should be noted that in addition to the programme to deploy ExISS release 1 to the 43 'Home Office' police forces, a further project is under way to deploy to the British Transport police, managed by the British Transport police themselves, with a target for deployment later in 2009.

The primary aim of ExISS release 1 is to ensure that the links between the applications are being fully utilised in order for police, magistrates court and CPS staff to reduce the amount of re-keying of information that has already been entered into a partner organisation's application. By the end of the financial year 2008-09 it is expected that 40 police forces will have fully deployed ExISS release 1, and by the end of calendar 2009 all 43 forces will have fully deployed ExISS release 1. By the end of calendar 2008 ExISS release 1 had delivered £2.7 million of benefit to the agencies.

Police: Internet

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of the police portal has been to date, including any costs associated with the termination of the contract for the creation of the portal. [256095]

Mr. Coaker: The police portal provided a national communications channel for the Police Service. It was procured in January 2001 and the total annual cost of running this service was just under £2 million per annum up to 31 March 2007 when the contract with the service provider expired. A replacement portal service was planned but owing to a number of issues the contract was terminated.

Legal costs of £1,352,000 (inclusive of solicitors, barristers, experts, mediation costs and court fees) were incurred by the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) in connection with legal proceedings associated with the termination of the contract for a replacement portal service.

The proceedings were settled out of court towards the end of 2008 to the mutual satisfaction of both parties. The issues being debated between NPIA and its supplier were set out in publicly available court documents. The terms of the settlement are confidential.

Police: Pay

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the salary range is of the chief constable of each constabulary for each year since 1997. [252942]

Mr. Coaker: Until September 2003, chief constables were paid according to a series of pay scales based on the population of the force area. Information on salaries paid to each chief constable from 1997 to September 2003 is not available centrally. From September 2003, the salaries for each chief constable post in England and Wales is contained in Home Office Circulars, which can be found on the Home Office website at:

http://www.knowledgenetwork.gov.uk/HO/circular.nsf/ViewTemplatepercent20Forpercent20HOCircularsWeb?OpenForm

I am also placing copies of the relevant Home Circulars in the House of Commons Library.

Police: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average total (a) direct staff cost, (b) operational support cost, (c) business support cost and (d) cost excluding sustaining overhead for providing police assistance was for (i) a road traffic accident, (ii) public disorder, (iii) a missing person incident, (iv) a sudden or suspicious death and (v) other activities not related to crime was under the activity-based costs model in 2007-08. [256690]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the average cost of providing policing assistance in 2007-08 for road traffic accidents, missing person incidents, and sudden or suspicious deaths is set out in the following table:

Average costs of dealing with non-crime incidents

	Total Direct Staff Cost (a)	Total Operational Support Cost (b)	Total Business Support Cost (c)	Total Cost Excluding Overheads (d)
(i) Road Traffic Accident	167	112	68	347
(iii) Missing Person Incident	270	195	107	573
(iv) Sudden or Suspicious Death[1]	589	382	240	1,212

[1] These figures exclude Dorset, Essex, the Metropolitan Police, Staffordshire, Suffolk and Thames Valley, from whom data were not available.

Notes:

1. Sudden deaths will only be those reported and later deemed to be non suspicious. All confirmed suspicious deaths amount to crime and would fall within crime data.
2. Consistent costing information is not available for (ii) public disorder and for (v) other non-crime incidents.
3. Unit costs are rounded.

Police: Surveillance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 729W, on police: surveillance, if she will place in the Library a redacted copy of the Guidance on the Lawful and Effective Use of Covert Techniques, removing restricted text. [256773]

Mr. Coaker: We are currently considering the publication of a non-restricted version of the guidance for other public authorities. If this proves practicable than I will be happy to place a copy of this guidance in the Library of the House.

Prostitution

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of women convicted of loitering and soliciting who will be ordered to attend meetings under the provisions of clause 16 of the Policing and Crime Bill in the first year of operation of the legislation. [257282]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has published an impact assessment on this measure, which is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/iapolicecrimebill08/iaprostitutionreferral?view=Binary

This estimates that up to 321 orders will be made in the year following implementation of this legislation.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what resources she plans to make available to implement orders requiring attendance at meetings in clause 16 of the Policing and Crime Bill in the first year of its operation; and who will be responsible for the supervision of women convicted of loitering or soliciting under the terms of the proposed legislation. [257293]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We are currently considering this issue and will outline our plans in due course.

Clause 16 provides for the court to appoint a supervisor in relation to an offender subject to an order. The intention is that the supervisor will normally be based in a dedicated support project for those involved in prostitution, where such a project exists in a local area.

However, the role of the supervisor has not been defined in order to allow flexibility in how the order is delivered, and allow courts to appoint the most appropriate person.

Public Order

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place for regular assessments of threats to public order; how frequently such assessments are carried out; when the last such assessment was made; and what consideration she has given to assessing the threat to public order arising from the current economic situation. [251623]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 29 January 2009]: The police are very experienced at public order policing and look at all information available to them, including economic factors, at a local and national level, continually, to ensure the police response is the best it can be. The police at the current time possess no information relating to a wave of potentially violent mass protests.

Rape: Convictions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to increase the conviction rate in rape cases; and what assessment she has made of effectiveness of those steps. [255433]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are committed to increasing the conviction rate for rape. In order to do so the Government have focused their effort on improving the response of the criminal justice system by implementing changes to the ways in which the Police and Crown Prosecution Service investigate and prosecute such cases and by providing special measures in court to ensure that victims are confident to come forward and report an offence, and see it through to conviction. The Government have also provided support for victims through services such as sexual assault referral centres and independent sexual violence advisors.

There are a number of different ways of calculating conviction rates. In respect of cases that are prosecuted as rape that result in a conviction for rape, the conviction rate in 2007 was 37 per cent. This is the highest it has been for 10 years.

Rape: Victim Support Schemes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of (a) the ratio of rape crisis centres to the female population and (b) the average waiting list of rape crisis centres in (i) London, (ii) Birmingham, (iii) Manchester, (iv) Newcastle upon Tyne and (v) Norwich; and if she will make a statement. [255615]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government do not collect this information.

Security Guards: Licensing

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of appeals against the suspension or revocation of a licence by the Security Industry Authority have been upheld by the courts in each of the last five years. [257051]

Jacqui Smith: Information on the outcome of appeals against the suspension or revocation of a licence has only been collected since April 2008. Data on previous years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Between 1 April 2008 and 31 January 2009, 57 appeals against revocation were lodged, of which six of those that went to a hearing were upheld by the courts.

In the same period seven appeals against suspension were lodged against revocation, of which two of those that went to a hearing were upheld by the courts.

In addition, information about appeals lodged in relation to revocations on the basis of Right to Work checks which have taken place since late 2007 has been recorded separately. In 2007-08, there were 86 appeals lodged against revocation on the basis of Right to Work, of which one of those that went to a hearing was upheld by the courts. Between 1 April 2008 and 31 January 2009, 242 appeals were lodged against revocation on the basis of Right to Work, of which three of those that went to a hearing were upheld by the courts.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many private security licences have been revoked by the Security Industry Authority; [257052]

(2) how many people are listed on the Security Industry Authority's register of licence holders as having a valid licence. [257053]

Jacqui Smith: As at 16 February 2009 the total number of licences revoked by the Security Industry Authority (SIA) was 11,676. The number of valid licences was 299,171.

Statistics for valid and revoked licences are shown on the SIA's website at:

http://www.the-sia.org.uk/home/licensing/stats_2.htm and are updated every week.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many private security licences are currently suspended by the Security Industry Authority. [257054]

Jacqui Smith: As at 12 February 2009, 220 licences were suspended by the Security Industry Authority.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time to process a licence application from (a) British citizens, (b) other EEA nationals and (c) non-EEA nationals by the Security Industry Authority was in each of the last five years. [257055]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many offences under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 of (a) working without a licence, (b) breaking licence conditions and (c) deploying unlicensed operatives have been identified by the Security Industry Authority's enforcement activity in each of the last five years; [257057]

(2) how many people have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted for offences of (i) working without a licence, (ii) breaking licence conditions and (iii) deploying unlicensed operatives under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 in each of the last five years. [257058]

Jacqui Smith: Data on offences identified by the Security Industry Authority are not available.

The following table provides annual data on the numbers of prosecutions and convictions for the offences of working without a licence and deploying unlicensed operatives under the Private Security Industry Act 2001.

Data on the numbers and prosecutions and convictions for breaking licence conditions are not available. This is because offences under section 9(4) of the Private Security Industry Act 2001 cannot be separately identified.

Data for 2008 will be available in late 2009.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under the 2001 Private Security Industry Act, England and Wales, 2004-07[1,2]

Conduct prohibited without a licence	Private Security Industry Act 2001 s.3(1)(6)	6	6	159	65	141	84	235	179

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Sexual Offences

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to gather specific information from local police forces on the ages of victims of sexual crimes in order to (a) centrally record and (b) centrally analyse the data. [255719]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office is currently developing a new system for receiving recorded crime data from police forces. This is designed to enable forces to submit information in the form of individual crime records. Data, once validated, will give the Home Office access to more detailed information about victims of crimes, including the age of victims. We expect this system to become fully operational during 2009-10.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 were recorded in 2007-08, broken down by offence; what percentage of such offences was proceeded against at court; and what percentage resulted in (a) a conviction and (b) a sanction detection. [256689]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information is not available in the form requested.

Table 1 gives the number of offences recorded in 2007-08 for the offence classifications which came into force with the introduction of the Sexual Offences Act 2003. It also gives the number of offences detected by means of a sanction detection. Table 2 shows the numbers of defendants proceeded against and found guilty at all courts for 2007 and is taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform

The figures given in table 2 relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Recorded crime and court proceedings statistics are from two different databases and recorded in quite different ways. Recorded crime data are provided on a financial year basis and count offences whereas court proceedings data are on a calendar year basis and count offenders. Therefore, these two separate data-sets are not directly comparable.

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The found guilty column can often exceed the number proceeded against when a conviction takes place in a different month to when the proceeding was originally brought, or for a different offence.

Sexual Offences: Victim Support Schemes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many local authorities have a specialist support service for women who have suffered sexual violence. [255616]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government do not collect this information.

Stop and Search

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1252W, on stop and search, how many of the resultant arrests were (a) made under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2000, (b) of people aged 18 years or under and (c) of people aged 18 years or under and made under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2000. [256434]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of persons arrested under terrorism legislation and for other reasons following stops and searches under section 44 (sections 1 and 2) of the Terrorism Act 2000, from 1999-2000 to 2006-07 (latest available) are provided in the following table. It is not possible to separately identify arrests under the Terrorism Act 2000 from other terrorism legislation from the information reported to the Home Office.

The data on stops and searches under terrorism legislation reported to the Home Office do not separately identify the age of persons searched.

Terrorism

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the possible effects of the Israeli military attack on Gaza on future levels of terrorism in the UK. [248497]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not conduct assessments into the threat from international terrorism.

The Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) is responsible for analysing all-source intelligence on the activities, intentions and capabilities of international terrorists who may threaten UK and allied interests worldwide.

Its responsibilities include setting and analysing the threat level for international Terrorism to the UK and its assets, and providing detailed reports on trends, terrorist networks and capabilities.

More information on JTAC can be found here:

http://www.intelligence.gov.uk/agencies/jtac.aspx

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on the (a) prepare, (b) prevent, (c) protect and (d) pursue strands of the Contest counter-terrorism strategy in each of the last three years. [254793]

Mr. Coaker: The £2.5 billion Counter Terrorism and Intelligence budget supports a wide range of activities broader than the Contest strategy. In many cases within the Home Office those activities are in support of more than one strand and details spent under each strand is not currently available.

Terrorism: Internet

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK-based websites have been closed down because they contained extremist material inciting terrorism in the last five years. [254791]

Mr. Coaker: The legislation that allows a request to be made that unlawfully terrorism-related material is modified or removed from the internet is section 3 of the Terrorism Act 2006. Section 3 allows for the service of a notice by a constable where he or she is of the opinion that unlawfully terrorism-related material is available on an electronic service such as a website, on the person(s) responsible for that material. The notice requires that the unlawfully terrorism-related material is removed or modified within two working days.

However, the preferred route of the police is to use informal contact with the communication service providers to request that the material is removed. To date no Section 3 notices have been issued as this informal route has proved effective but statistics covering the number of sites removed through such informal contact are not collected.

Theft: Motor Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had on the potential of stolen vehicle slowdown technology to assist in stopping vehicles; and if she will make a statement. [256993]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB) is currently undertaking a range of work to identify new means of stopping vehicles. Investigation of existing products has found no commercial off-the-shelf solution that would meet police needs. HOSDB is therefore now looking at different technologies that might be used. The objective is to provide the police with equipment that meets their needs, is safe, affordable and is proportionate to the safety threat posed by a vehicle that has refused to stop and is under police pursuit. We are aware too of the developing potential of remote vehicle slowdown and stopping technology and are keeping in touch with progress to ensure we are able to benefit from advances in this area.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on stolen vehicle slowdown technology to assist the police in stopping vehicles; and if she will make a statement. [256994]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office Scientific Development Branch (HOSDB) is currently undertaking a range of work to identify new means of stopping vehicles. Investigation of existing products has found no commercial off-the-shelf solution that would meet police needs. HOSDB is therefore now looking at different technologies that might be used. The objective is to provide the police with equipment that meets their needs, is safe, affordable and is proportionate to the safety threat posed by a vehicle that has refused to stop and is under police pursuit. We are aware too of the developing potential of remote vehicle slowdown and stopping technology and are keeping in touch with progress to ensure we are able to benefit from advances in this area.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences by (a) confectioners and tobacconists and (b) other retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 were recorded in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; how many police cautions were issued in each case; how many fines were imposed in each case; and what the average fine imposed in each year was. [256752]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice. The figures cover calendar years and are given in the following table.

Offenders[1] cautioned and fined for selling tobacco etc to persons under 16[2]

	Number of police cautions issued	Number of fines imposed	Average fine amount (£)
2006	3	51	330
2007	1	49	324

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Community Energy Saving Programme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the budget of the Community Energy Saving Programme is for (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the next five years. [255854]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Community Energy Saving Programme (CESP) proposes a new carbon reduction obligation on energy suppliers and electricity generators.

The overall target for the CESP obligation will be specified in the legislation in terms of a carbon points score. We are proposing to set the overall target at a level that we estimate will require the obligated companies to deliver around £350 million worth of measures over the period of the obligation, achieving carbon savings of around 3.9 million tonnes.

The Government are consulting on the timescale for the new CESP obligation, with the proposal that it should run until 2012.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253268]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of their pension on retirement if they continue in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement prompts the member to consider boosting their pension and provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions and a calculator to work out costs for added pension (previously added years).

New entrants are informed of pension options in the employment offer and are provided with a pension information pack.

Cabinet Office provides leaflets that explain added pension and additional voluntary contributions for members. The information is also available in scheme booklets. These are available on the civil service pensions website or on request from the member's pensions administrator.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC), which was formed on 3 October 2008, consists of posts taken from the existing Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, (DEFRA), plus corporate services. DECC staff can access the BERR and DEFRA internal HR intranets to access information on a range of issues. This includes comprehensive information on how staff can boost their pension through added pension and additional voluntary contributions (AVCs).

Departmental Public Consultation

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consultations have been initiated by his Department since 6 October 2008, including the dates given for responses and the intended dates for report. [256037]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Since 6 October 2008, DECC has initiated the following public consultations:

Departmental Redundancy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) voluntary and (b) compulsory redundancies there have been in his Department since its creation. [255149]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None since its creation in October.

Electricity: Local Government

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy to provide guidance to local authorities on the sale of surplus electricity generated by such authorities back to the National Grid; and if he will make a statement. [253579]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Government want local authorities to be able to play a full role in development of renewable heat and electricity.

The Local Government Act (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976, as amended by the Energy Act 1989, includes a provision preventing local authorities from selling electricity which is produced otherwise than in association with heat.

As announced in the consultation on heat and energy savings strategy, launched on 12 February, we will consult soon on whether and how those restrictions should be changed, with any amendments enacted through secondary legislation.

Electricity: Small Businesses

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average amount a small business spent on its electricity supply in the last 12 months. [256680]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department does not hold any data on electricity prices paid by small businesses. Data on prices are collected based on energy consumption levels, which do not always correspond to business size. Energy expenditure as a share of turnover varies widely from around 1 per cent. to over 20 per cent. depending upon the nature of the business.

Energy prices for non-domestic consumers by consumption band are published quarterly in Table 3.4.1 of 'Quarterly Energy Prices', the latest edition of which was published in December 2008 and is available online at

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file49203.pdf

Energy Saving Trust

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which Minister in his Department oversees the (a) Carbon Trust and (b) Energy Saving Trust; and if he will make a statement. [256856]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I oversee the Carbon Trust and my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change is responsible for the Energy Savings Trust.

Energy Supply: Competition

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 118W, on energy supply, whether he received advice on competition issues from officials prior to the meeting he held with the main energy supply companies on 17 November 2008. [255957]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I am told that my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy regularly requests and receives oral and written advice on a number of issues relating to competition in the energy supply markets, and did so prior to that meeting.

Energy Supply: Unfair Practices

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to eradicate sales malpractices by gas and electricity suppliers. [255331]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, including the sales practice of suppliers. It is open to Ofgem to take enforcement action where it considers there has been a breach of any relevant licence condition or other obligations. In December 2008, Ofgem announced that it was fining Npower £1.8million for breach of its licence obligations for failing to take sufficient action to prevent mis-selling of energy contracts to customers.

Energy: Meters

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the number of domestic (a) gas and (b) electricity meters in UK households that are (i) less than five years old and (ii) between five and 10 years old. [255980]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Around 5 per cent. of the domestic meter stock is replaced or newly installed each year—around one million gas and 1.35 million electricity meters. On that basis, five million gas and 6.75 million electricity meters will be less than five years old, and a further five million gas and 6.75 million electricity meters will be between five and 10 years old.

Energy: Prices

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether Ofgem has received notifications from energy supply companies of intentions to reduce domestic energy prices since British Gas last reduced its prices to domestic consumers. [253911]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ofgem had anticipated moves to reduce prices prior to British Gas' announcement and expects further moves from other suppliers. Scottish and Southern Electricity plc has already announced that it will reduce its prices for domestic gas and electricity customers on 30 March 2009, and E.On has also made an announcement. However, there is no legal requirement for suppliers to share details of price movements with the regulator prior to their being announced publicly.

From February, Ofgem will publish the first of its quarterly reports showing the relationship between wholesale energy costs and retail prices, which should improve transparency for customers.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average cost of household energy in each of the last 10 years in each (a) Government Office region, (b) local authority area and (c) constituency. [257601]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not hold billing information by Government office region, local authority or constituency.

However, DECC does hold information on the average annual gas and electricity bills a household is likely to incur in each PES (public electricity supplier) area and gas LDZ (local distribution zone). These bills are based on standard consumption levels of 3,300 kWh for electricity and 18,000 kWh for gas for customers paying their bill on receipt(standard credit). As the PES and LDZ regions do not exactly match data for electricity and gas are shown separately.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the oudget of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme is. [255988]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The total budget for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme is £86 million. Phase One of the programme was launched in April 2006; it has a budget of £36 million and is currently only open to household applications. Phase Two was announced in the Budget 2006 and provides an additional £50 million of funding for applications from the public sector, communities and not-for-profit organisations.

Office For Nuclear Development

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many secondees from the nuclear industrial sector (a) within the UK and (b) abroad have been recruited to the Office of Nuclear Development; for what period each is seconded; who pays their salary; and what criteria were used in their appointment. [253931]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Office for Nuclear Development (OND) currently employs five secondees from the nuclear industrial sector, or from commercial organisations which have been involved directly in, or in giving advice to clients involved in, the nuclear industry. The organisations who have seconded staff into the OND are Allen and Overy, CH2M Hill, Clifford Chance KPMG, and WS Atkins.

Each secondee was recruited from an organisation operating within the UK, although one individual is a non-UK national. The length of secondments in the OND currently ranges from six months to three years.

Individuals' salaries continue to be paid by their seconding organisations, but the Department reimburses seconding organisations at a rate appropriate to the equivalent civil service grade.

Secondees were appointed on the basis of their experience and ability to contribute to the work and objectives of the OND, and on our being satisfied that there is no conflict of interest in their working for the OND.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Prosecutions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions under the Anti-Social Behaviour Act 2003 there were in respect of (a) noise, (b) graffiti and fly-posting and (c) waste and litter in (i) each local authority and (ii) each police basic command unit in 2007-08. [256684]

Maria Eagle: The information requested covering the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for noise, waste offences and littering in England and Wales for 2007 by police force area, are provided in the following table. Offences of graffiti and fly-posting are not separately identifiable from other criminal damage offences (for example vandalism and damaging property) from the information reported to the Ministry of Justice.

It is not possible to separately identify prosecutions taking place in (i) local authority area and (ii) basic command units within police force areas in England and Wales from the information reported to the Ministry of Justice.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. Depositing, causing the deposition or permitting the deposition of controlled special waste in or on land without a licence.
Contravening conditions of a waste management licence.
Depositing litter.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any category of (a) defendant and (b) convicted offender is to be excluded from receiving assistance under the Bail Accommodation and Support Service. [257639]

Mr. Hanson: Those charged with or convicted of sex offences, those charged with or convicted of arson of buildings, those who are considered to pose a significant risk to the public or to staff and those under 18 years of age are excluded from this service.

Additionally defendants will only be released into the service if they are granted bail. The court may refuse bail if it is considered that the defendant would if granted bail abscond, offend or interfere with witnesses.

Offenders are excluded unless they are eligible for and are granted home detention curfew or are given a placement in the service as part of a community order as an intensive alternative to custody. The home detention curfew scheme applies primarily to prisoners serving sentences of at least three months but less than four years. Prisoners subject to the notification requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003, prisoners serving public protection sentences and foreign national prisoners who are liable to removal are statutorily excluded from release under the home detention curfew scheme. In addition, prisoners serving sentences for certain serious violent offences and prisoners with any history of sexual offending are presumed unsuitable unless there are exceptional circumstances. Prisoners must pass a risk assessment to be released on HDC and are not referred to ClearSprings unless the Governor considers the prisoner is suitable for release.

Full details of the eligibility criteria for HDC and the assessment process are contained in Prison Service Order 6700 home detention curfew and details of the bail accommodation and support service are contained in Prison Service Instructions 29/2007 and 49/2007 which are available on the HM Prison Service website.

Data Protection: Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the provisions of the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 amending the Data Protection Act 1998 to grant the Information Commissioner powers to fine organisations which have deliberately or recklessly breached data protection rules were first scheduled to enter into force; when he expects them to enter into force; and for what reason the commencement has been delayed. [257633]

Mr. Wills: We are committed to bringing these provisions into force as soon as possible. We will continue to work with the Information Commissioner's Office to provide the Commissioner with the powers he needs to impose appropriate penalties on organisations who fail to comply with the data protection principles.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248389]

Maria Eagle: The data in the following tables show spend on food and drink by supplier at the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) since its creation on 1 May 2007. The majority of spend is on food for use in HM Prison Service and includes food for resale to staff and catering for prisoners and staff. The remainder represents food for catering across other parts of the Ministry of Justice. 93.4 per cent. of Ministry of Justice spend on food in 2007-08 were through nationally contracted suppliers.

National contracted suppliers are shown separately in each section. These are the suppliers that are expected to be used on a continuous basis. Those marked with an asterix are used in the current financial year. All other contracts have expired and have been subsumed into other contracts by application of MOJ food procurement policy.

Ad-hoc supplier spend includes a combination of off-contract spend, food bought for resale (e.g. staff canteens) and the use of the Government Procurement Card (for ad-hoc purchases, e.g. unavailable within national contracts or emergency requirement). These figures may also include some non-food items as there are suppliers within this list that sell non-food items which are however primarily a food provider.

It was only possible to identify the use of these suppliers following implementation of an e-procurement system in 2007. By the nature of these purchases, it is not expected that these suppliers will be used in the future.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [243715]

Mr. Straw: Since Ministry of Justice was created in May 2007 and to end March 2008 the total figure for spend on advertising was £6.3 million. Figures are available only on a full financial year basis and it is not possible to provide accurate data for December 2007 to December 2008.

A breakdown of these figures is given in the answer to the right hon. Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1671W. Approximately £6 million of the total £6.3 million was spent on recruitment advertising, principally by Her Majesty's Prison Service.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years; [256331]

(2) what the average number of days sick leave per staff member in his Department and its predecessors was in each of the last five years; [256386]

(3) were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each year since his Department was established; [256642]

Mr. Straw: For the year 2007-08 the average number of days of sick absence per person in the Ministry of Justice was 10.4 days.

Due to a machinery of government change the Ministry of Justice was created in May 2007. The figures for its predecessor the Department for Constitutional Affairs are contained in the following table.

Department for Constitutional Affairs sickness absence rate

	Working days lost	Average staff in post	Working days lost per person
2003-04	128170	12158	10.5
2004-05	124390	12643	9.8
2005-06	174096	16702	10.4
2006-07	276166	25395	10.9

Absence data for 2003 to 2007 for the Prison Service and National Offender Management Service headquarters are contained in the following table.

Prison Service sickness absence rates

	Working days lost	Average staff in post	Working days lost per person
2003-4	628623	47224	13.3
2004-5	616367	48607	12.7
2005-6	589211	48419	12.2
2006-7	573071	49216	11.6

While the MoJ does monitor long term sickness absence it does not record it centrally in these categories and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Dovegate Prison: Fines

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what financial penalties the operators of Dovegate prison have incurred in respect of failures to meet contractual obligations in each year since it opened; and in each case (a) what penalty was imposed, (b) when it was imposed and (c) what action was taken to remedy the breach. [257467]

Mr. Hanson: There is a mechanism contained within the Dovegate contract that allows the authority to recover the cost of services which have not been provided but have been agreed by the parties under the terms of contract.

The financial deduction is dealt with under a "performance measure" that means events or circumstances in respect of which there may be a reduction in the amount payable to the contractor. If the contractor fails to achieve the required and previously agreed output then "performance points" are levied. Fines are not imposed on the contractor. Performance points have a financial value which is a pre-estimated loss (between authority and contractor) of services not provided. Any claim for services not provided is deducted from the monthly operating fee invoice.

Driving Offences: Fines

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of drivers with foreign-registered cars did not pay fines for motoring offences in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) the last 12 months. [256395]

Maria Eagle: Financial penalties for motoring offences can take the form of a fixed penalty notice issued by the police or a fine imposed by the courts.

Information held centrally by the Home Office on fixed penalty notices issued by the police does not identify where a vehicle is registered. In addition it is not possible from the information held by the Ministry of Justice to identify separately the payment rate of court fines arising from specific offences.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions of uninsured drivers there were in each police force area in 2007-08; and what the average penalty imposed was. [256686]

Maria Eagle: The number of proceedings at the magistrates courts for the offence of using a motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks, and the average fine imposed, by police force area, for the years 2006 and 2007 are shown in the following table.

Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

[2] Magistrates courts data only. Fines given at the Crown court total nationally (England and Wales) less than 10 each year.
[3] It is known that for some police force areas the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete.
However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Driving under Influence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) males and (b) females in each age group were convicted for driving under the influence of alcohol in each police authority area in each of the last five years. [256658]

Maria Eagle: Tables giving available information held by the Ministry of Justice on convictions at all courts for offences of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs for the years 2003 to 2007 (latest available), broken down by sex, age group and police force area have been placed in the House Library. Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009. The data provided covers both drink and drugs offences combined, as volumes of convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be provided separately.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many and what percentage of people eligible to vote in each (a) constituency and (b) ward of each constituency were registered to vote in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2008; [257318]

(2) what percentage of those eligible to vote were registered to vote in each local authority in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland in each of the last 12 years; [257320]

(3) how many electors there were in each ward of (a) the Vale of Clwyd and (b) Denbighshire in each of the last 12 years. [257319]

Mr. Wills: Figures in relation to the percentage of people eligible to vote in each (a) constituency and (b) ward of each constituency were registered to vote in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2008 and the percentage of those eligible to vote were registered to vote in each local authority in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland in each of the last 12 years are not available. This is because the Office for National Statistics (ONS) does not hold data for the population eligible to vote in parliamentary elections, which includes British citizens resident overseas and excludes foreign citizens (from outside the British Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland) resident within England and Wales.

In addition, it is not known how many electors there were in each ward of (a) the Vale of Clwyd and (b) Denbighshire in each of the last 12 years. However, I am aware that in response to a recent parliamentary question—17 June 2008, Official Report, column 889 ONS provided the actual number of electors registered in each ward during this period.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment he has made of the likely levels of compliance with requirements for individual voter registration by members of different social groups; [257463]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely effect of individual voter registration on (a) levels of voter registration and (b) the accuracy of the register; and if he will make a statement. [257713]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to similar questions from the hon. Gentleman on 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 1096W, and 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 242W, the Government have not made any assessment of the impact that individual voter registration is likely to have on the levels of registration and the accuracy of the register. We are aware that any new system of electoral registration in Great Britain would need to be tailored to current circumstances, and in particular would need to address the challenge of under-registration.

The Government are committed to the principle of individual registration. But this would be a far-reaching reform, and it would need to be undertaken with great care—both to make sure a new system is robust, and to ensure that it properly tackles the problem of under-registration.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people eligible but not registered to vote in each of the last 11 years, broken down by region; [257708]

(2) what the average rate of voter registration is in the 100 (a) least and (b) most deprived wards; what assessment he has made of the effects of individual voter registration on the rate of registration in such wards; and if he will make a statement. [257722]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects of individual voter registration on the level of voter registration. [257743]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to these questions from the hon. Gentleman on 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 887W, the Government have not made any estimate of the number of people eligible but not registered to vote in each of the last 11 years, as such information is not available. However, the Electoral Commission estimated that 3.5 million eligible electors were not registered to vote in their report, 'Understanding Electoral Registration', which was published in 2005.

It is not known what the average rate of voter registration is in the 100 (a) least and (b) most deprived wards, as this information is not collected by Government. However, any new system of electoral registration in GB would need to be tailored to current circumstances, and in particular would need to address the challenge of under-registration.

Electoral Register: Local Government

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment he has made of trends in the annual expenditure of local authority electoral registration officers over the last 10 years; [257464]

(2) if he will assess the merits of ring-fencing funds allocated to local government for registration of voters. [257718]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to a similar question from the hon. Gentleman on 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 241W there are no current plans to ring-fence funding for electoral registration activities. Funding is included in the local authority formula grant issued by central Government. Once these funds are allocated, decisions on how it is utilised are a matter for the local authorities concerned. There is also a parallel protocol which states that unless there is an exceptional reason to do so, money provided to local authorities for discharging their statutory responsibilities should not be 'ring-fenced'.

There has been no assessment of the trends in the annual expenditure of local authority electoral registration officers over the past 10 years. However, as part of its work in developing Performance Standards for electoral services, the Electoral Commission launched its financial information survey across Great Britain on 10 September 2007. Electoral Registration Officers and Returning Officers were asked to complete the survey and return it by 31 July 2008. The Commission is currently analysing this information in conjunction with CIPFA (the Chartered Institute of Public Finance Accountants) and will publish results in due course.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of funding of local authority registration officers in relation to their objectives to increase voter registration; what assessment he has made of the relationship between additional funding and increased voter registration; and if he will make a statement; [257709]

(2) how much of the funding allocated to local authorities for registration for elections taking place in 2008-09 has been spent on voter registration. [257719]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to this question from the hon. Gentleman on 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 242W, as part of the development of the Electoral Administration Act 2006, which included a new duty to undertake work to ensure all eligible people were registered to vote, a need for additional resources was identified. Monies were made available to support this work as part of the funding provided for the implementation of the Act.

Section 67 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 allows the Electoral Commission to set and monitor performance standards for electoral services. As part of its work in developing performance standards for electoral services, the Commission launched its financial information survey across Great Britain on 10 September 2007. Electoral registration officers and returning officers were asked to complete the survey and return it by 31 July 2008. The Commission is currently analysing this information in conjunction with CIPFA (the Chartered Institute of Public Finance Accountants) and will publish results in due course. It will be for the Commission to decide whether it wishes to collect and publish financial information in relation 2008-09.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment his Department has made of the reasons for any variation in levels of electoral registration between different local authorities; [257726]

(2) if he will commission research on the effects on electoral registration rates of levels of functional illiteracy in the population; [257710]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of those eligible to vote but not registered to do so in each parliamentary constituency. [257724]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to similar questions from the hon. Member on 18 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1000-01W, the Government have not made an assessment of the reasons for variations in the levels of electoral registration between different local authorities. There are no plans at present to commission research on the effects of functional illiteracy in the population on electoral registration rates. The Government have not made any estimate of the number of people eligible but not registered to vote in each parliamentary constituency. Whatever the reasons for shortfalls, the Government are determined to take all practicable measures to increase levels of registration. Since 2006, the numbers of those registered to vote have increased by 679,439 for parliamentary elections and 976,394 for local government elections.

The Electoral Administration Act includes a provision for the Electoral Commission to introduce new performance standards for Electoral Registration Officers. The Electoral Commission published its Performance Standards for Electoral Registration Officers in Great Britain in July 2008. A copy of these standards has been laid before the House and the information obtained from local authorities as a consequence will enable us to get a better understanding of the actions taken to increase registration. The Commission intends to produce a report on performance against the standards during spring 2009.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) duties and (b) powers local electoral registration officers have to promote electoral registration. [257988]

Mr. Wills: The Government have taken a number of steps to help Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) promote and increase electoral registration rates. Section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 (EA Act) placed a new duty on EROs to take all necessary steps to maintain the electoral register, including sending the annual canvass form more than once, making house-to house-inquiries and inspecting records that an ERO is permitted to inspect. These records are those held by the local authority and include council tax, land and property, housing benefit and educational where available. It is for each ERO to decide on the best steps to use in conjunction with their local knowledge to ensure that requirements for making contact with persons and maintaining the register are complied with.

Section 69 of the EA Act imposes a duty on EROs to promote local participation within their areas. Assisting EROs in meeting this obligation falls within the Electoral Commission's remit, as does issuing guidance to electoral registration officers more generally.

The Act also included a provision for the Electoral Commission to introduce a new performance standards framework for electoral services. The Commission published a final set of performance standards for Electoral Registration Officers in Great Britain in July 2008, details of which have been laid before the House. The Commission will publish the results of EROs' self-assessments against these standards in spring 2009.

Fraud: Financial Institutions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of financial abuse by partners (a) have been reported to the police, (b) have been prosecuted and (c) resulted in a conviction in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [252445]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do recognise the financial and economic impact that happens within domestic violence relationships. We are working with stakeholders and the British Banker's Association to ensure that both domestic violence victims and their advisers are more fully informed of their options. We will be considering this issue when developing our delivery plan in the future and recently produced a leaflet including some advice on this issue. From the information received on domestic violence cases we are not able to identify the financial abuse aspect.

Judges: Public Appointments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he last met Baroness Prashar to discuss judicial appointments. [256676]

Mr. Straw: I routinely meet Baroness Prashar to discuss all matters relating to her role as chairman of the Judicial Appointments Commission. Our most recent meeting was on 10 February 2009.

Offenders

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in which prison establishments an offender supervisor is allocated to each inmate; and if he will make a statement. [258182]

Mr. Hanson: The national offender management model does not require every offender to have an offender supervisor. The implementation of the model has been phased to give priority to those offenders serving community orders or on post-release licences; adult offenders serving a determinate sentence of 12 months or more assessed as posing a high or very high risk of serious harm, or who have been identified as prolific or other priority offenders; and those sentenced to imprisonment for public protection.

Offenders: Databases

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms are in place to ensure that information held by a prison about an offender is made available to a community offender manager on the offender's release from custody; and if he will make a statement. [258183]

Mr. Hanson: The National Standards for the Management of Offenders (2007) require offender managers to maintain contact with the offender and the offender supervisor sufficiently frequently during custody to ensure both the implementation of the sentence plan and the smooth, safe and effective transition from custody to the community. On release from custody the electronic offender assessment record (OASys) is transferred from the Prison Service to the National Probation Service.

Offenders: Ex-servicemen

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) the veterans in custody support programme at HM Prison Everthorpe and (b) extending the programme across the custodial estate; and whether he has had discussions with (i) the Ministry of Defence, (ii) the Department of Health, (iii) HM Prison Service and (iv) the National Offender Management Service on the (A) funding and (B) timetable for an extension of the programme; and if he will make a statement. [258181]

Mr. Hanson: To date, no formal estimate has been made of the cost of the HM Prison Everthorpe veterans in custody support programme. However, we are aware that a prison officer in the establishment devotes about one day a week to attend to referrals and a further three hours a month to facilitate a veterans' forum. It will not be possible to estimate the cost of a national roll-out of this programme, until we have some reliable research to better determine the numbers of veterans offending. We anticipate that this information will be available to us by September 2009.

Prison In-Reach, a cross departmental non-executive working group, led by the Ministry of Defence, brings together representation from The National Offender Management Service and public sector prisons in addition to third sector partners. This provides an excellent opportunity for collaborative working and the pooling of resources. The Department of Health is a key partner of both the Ministry of Defence and the Ministry of Justice in the provision of health care services to veterans and the general offender population. Once the research is available, it may be possible to discuss the delivery of specific interventions to meet the needs of veterans.

The group is currently preparing a guidance pack for prison officers, working with veterans. This will provide a useful resource for prisons wishing to develop a service similar to that delivered at Everthorpe. We anticipate that this will be ready for distribution and introduction during the second quarter of this year.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms are in place to ensure that account is taken of the needs of offenders who are former members of the armed forces in the preparation of (a) an assessment outcome and (b) a resettlement plan by the (i) offender supervisor and (ii) offender manager; and if he will make a statement. [258184]

Mr. Hanson: The Offender Assessment System (OASys) is the mechanism by which the risks posed by an offender and the needs associated with offending behaviour are assessed. There is no separate system for assessing the needs of serving or former members of the armed forces but OASys has a broad scope and includes the assessment of the offender's accommodation, financial management and emotional well-being, for example. It provides the opportunity to record relevant matters relating to an offender's military history.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to assist offender managers in identifying offenders who have served in the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [258187]

Mr. Hanson: The Offender Assessment System (OASys) prompts an offender manager to review an offender's employment history and work related skills. Offenders are also encouraged to use a self-assessment questionnaire to highlight information that is important to them and is relevant to their offending behaviour.

Offensive Weapons: Convictions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted for (a) possessing and (b) distributing prohibited (i) weapons and (ii) ammunition in each police force area in 2007-08. [256691]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons found guilty at all courts of offences for possessing or distributing prohibited weapons or ammunition in England and Wales, by police force area for the year 2007 (latest available) can be found in the following table:

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Prison Sentences

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 519W, on prison sentences, how many and what proportion of prisoners serving a prison sentence beyond their original or adjusted tariff were prisoners serving indeterminate imprisonment for public protection who had (a) not yet completed their mandatory courses and (b) are awaiting a Parole Board hearing at the most recent date for which figures are available, broken down by region. [256225]

Maria Eagle: As of 15 December 2008 there were 1,508 prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence for public protection (IPP) who were or would be held in prison beyond their tariff on 9 February 2009.

There are no mandatory courses that IPP prisoners must complete before being considered for a Parole Board hearing. Therefore, there are no IPP prisoners who are awaiting a Parole Board hearing having not completed a mandatory course.

However, IPP prisoners may be identified as suitable for inclusion in specific offending behaviour programmes, depending upon the nature of their offending and their identified risk factors. As of December 2008, 2,865 IPP prisoners had been given access to at least one offending behaviour programme. This equates to 58 per cent. of the current IPP prisoner population.

These figures are taken from a NOMS database and, as with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

Prisons: Databases

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects to ensure (a) that all prisoners at HM Prison Gartree receive an OASys assessment on or within eight weeks of arrival at the prison and thereafter annually or on completion of significant milestones and (b) that the backlog of OASys assessments at HM Prison Gartree is cleared; [258094]

(2) when he expects to have recruited the necessary additional staff at HM Prison Gartree to provide OASys assessments for prisoners there. [258095]

Mr. Hanson: The requirement for an offender assessment (OAsys) to be completed within eight weeks of arrival applies to offenders received into an establishment following sentencing. As Gartree is a training prison, all prisoners received there should already have an up to date OASys assessment in place. However, Gartree did develop a backlog of OASys assessments that had not been reviewed for over three years and a recovery plan has been put in place to address. It is expected that annual reviews of all outstanding OASys plans will be completed by June 2009.

Staff recruitment is complete as far as officer posts are concerned, thought he recent National Offender Management Service recruitment freeze means that there are still vacancies for support staff which are currently filled by agency staff.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress has been made in the provision of drug treatment in prisons following the establishment of the Prison Drug Treatment Strategy Review Group in 2008. [256393]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Drug Treatment Strategy Review Group reports jointly to the Ministry of Justice and the Department of Health. Work on the review started in September 2008 and is expected to take two years to complete. The remit of the Group will be to consider the PricewaterhouseCoopers recommendations, agree a single set of priorities and compile national guidance around the streamlining of the commissioning, delivery, funding and performance management of drug treatment for offenders.

My noble Friend Lord Patel has spent a number of months visiting prisons and talking to key stakeholders such as commissioners, treatment providers and service users in order to select membership of the Review Group. In January I announced that he had selected these members and a list was placed in the Libraries of the House. The first meeting of the Review Group will be held on 26 February. The work programme will include the development of minimum standards, outcomes and commissioning systems for drug-using offenders in prisons and those leaving custody.

I expect to receive quarterly updates on progress and will report periodically to the House. A decision has yet to be taken on publication of the final report.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of using dogs in the detection of drugs in prisons. [256396]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has in place a process to ensure that each prison dog and handler team are assessed annually as to their effectiveness in detecting concealed drugs. Without passing the annual assessment, for which a certificate of accreditation is awarded, dog and handler teams are not permitted to operate.

In addition, the Government have accepted all 10 recommendations contained within David Blakey's review: Disrupting the supply of drugs into prisons. One recommendation was that NOMS conducts an internal review to determine whether search dogs and their handlers are distributed effectively around the prison estate and that the management processes for handlers are robust. That review is currently under way.

Prisons: Industrial Health and safety

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison cells were closed for health and safety reasons in each of the last five years. [257634]

Mr. Straw: Prisoner accommodation is certified for use or to be taken out of use by senior operational managers (as required by section 14 of the Prison Act 1952).

Unfortunately cell-certificates do not always provide details of why accommodation is being taking out of operation and to provide this information would require a manual check of all cell certificates for the last five years and would incur disproportionate costs.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many sentences were given to young offenders in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008, broken down by type of offence. [256738]

Mr. Hanson: The available information, for offenders aged 10 to 17 is shown in the following tables.

Statistics for 2008 will not be available until Sentencing Statistics 2008 is published in late 2009.

Young People: Remand in Custody

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) 15, (b) 16 and (c) 17 year olds were on remand in each police force area in 2007-08; and how many subsequently served a prison sentence. [256511]

Mr. Hanson: At 30 June 2007, the number of unsentenced (a) 15, (b) 16, and (c) 17-year-olds detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales were as shown in the following table:

	Number
15-year-olds	63
16-year-olds	133
17-year-olds	348

These totals comprise the numbers held untried or convicted unsentenced and include both males and females for 17-year-olds; there are no 15 or 16-year-old female prisoners detained on remand in prison establishments in England and Wales.

This table is taken from table 7.11 of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2007, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which can also be found at the following website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm

I also refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer he was given to him on 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 662W. A breakdown by police force area is not available.

During 2007 the proportion of all prisoners held on remand whose court proceedings resulted in immediate custodial sentence was 55 per cent. for males and 47 per cent. for females. This information is not available for 15 to 17-year-olds separately.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

ACAS: Parking

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the workplace parking charges being introduced by Nottingham City Council will be required to be paid in whole or in part by members of staff in respect of (a) Advisory Conciliation and Arbitration Service offices and (b) East Midlands Regional Development Agency offices located within the workplace parking charging zone. [253773]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Department for Transport on 4 February 2009, Official Report, column reference 1189W.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer of 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 769W, on apprentices, what steps are being taken to increase the number of apprentices employed by his Department. [251737]

Mr. McFadden: In our response of 2 June 2008 we were not able to state how many apprentices we had as responsibility was devolved to each business area. We have since established a corporate apprenticeship offer for BERR staff who do not have degrees.

BERR is promoting a new apprenticeship offer for staff in business administration, customer service, information technology, team leadership and management. Awareness sessions are running for staff and their managers throughout February, with the first programmes starting in April. Our aim is to recruit 20 apprentices at either level 2 or level 3 during the first year, and currently have one member of staff on the apprenticeship pathfinder.

We are working together with our agencies to help them promote apprenticeships for their staff. Currently Companies House has a 61 staff studying for apprenticeships (35 at level 2 and 26 at level 3).

Bankruptcy

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were recorded in (i) Braintree, (ii) Essex and (iii) England in each year since 1997. [256842]

Mr. McFadden: Table 1 as follows shows the number of (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary arrangements (IVAs) recorded in (i) Braintree, (ii) Essex and (iii) England in each year from 2000 to 2007. Regional figures are not yet available for 2008, nor for years prior to 2000.

Notes:
1. Classifying insolvent individuals into administrative geographies is done using the postcode that the person provides.
2. Inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007.
3. Figures for Essex cover Southend-on-Sea, Thurrock and Essex CC.

Bankruptcy: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many businesses in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) the London Borough of Bexley have been declared bankrupt in each of the last 12 months. [250743]

Mr. McFadden: Self-employed traders may be declared bankrupt (or enter into an individual voluntary arrangement (IVA)), however, registered companies are the subject of 'liquidation' (compulsory liquidation or creditors voluntary liquidation (CVL)).

It is not currently possible, from information held centrally in electronic format, to count the number of insolvent companies in Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency or the London borough of Bexley.

However Table 1 shows the number of self employed bankrupts in each month of 2007 (the latest for which information is currently available for Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and the London borough of Bexley), derived from postcodes provided by bankrupt individuals[1, 2].

[1] Classifying bankrupts into administrative geographies is done using the postcode that the bankrupt individual provides. The use of this in assigning an individual to a borough is thus only as reliable as the postcode information provided.

[2] In particular, inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the following table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007.

Bankruptcy: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people have been declared bankrupt in Stroud constituency in each year since 1997. [250787]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows the number of bankruptcies in Stroud constituency in each year between 2000 and 2007, derived from postcodes provided by bankrupt individuals[1, 2]. Earlier figures are not available on this basis; figures for 2008 are not yet available

[1] Classifying bankrupts into administrative geographies is done using the postcode that the bankrupt individual provides. The use of this in assigning an individual to a borough is thus only as reliable as the postcode information provided.

[2] In particular, inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the following table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007.

Broadband

Nick Herbert: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many households are expected to obtain access to 2MB/s broadband between now and 2012. [256372]

Mr. McFadden: Currently 93 per cent. of UK homes are able to access 2MB/s broadband and with improvements to existing home connections this should increase. The Department's officials are working with key stakeholders to develop proposals for universal access to broadband that will be published in the full Digital Britain Report later this year.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the costs of ensuring that all households have access to 2MB/s broadband. [256373]

Mr. McFadden: The Department's officials are working with key market players and Ofcom to assess the most appropriate and efficient way of delivering universal broadband in the UK.

The final Digital Britain report containing details of proposals on universal broadband will be published later this year and will look at estimated costs.

Broadband: Low Incomes

John Battle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to increase levels of access to broadband for lower-income households. [255471]

Mr. McFadden: My right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister appointed my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales as Minister for Digital Inclusion last year because the Government recognise this as a very important challenge facing the UK.

While there had been a modest increase in broadband use in recent years it was clear that take-up had slowed down and that the remaining one third of the population (17 million people) would need to see the benefits of the internet and develop the skills and confidence to use it.

Since taking on the role, the Digital Inclusion Minister has formed a dedicated Cabinet committee—MISC 34, he has established a cross-government coordination unit, and Government have engaged a wide range of stakeholders in developing the cross-government report "Delivering Digital Inclusion—An Action plan for Consultation" http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/deliveringdigitalinclusion in order to have a coherent and concerted drive to address digital inclusion and increase access to broadband for poorer households with children for example The Home Access programme. We are also looking at with key stakeholders—planners, registered social landlords (RSL's) and the construction industry at ways of designing out "digital exclusion" from social housing, special accommodation and new builds. The action plan details over 70 Government actions taking place to advance digital inclusion and future actions being considered by Government to facilitate access and skills to digital technologies for disadvantaged groups and individuals in The annex http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/digitalinclusionannex of the report. The consultation was launched on 27 October 2008 and was extended to 26 January at the request of stakeholders. Government are currently analysing responses to inform further progress.

My noble Friend, Lord Carter's Digital Britain report will develop plans for a digital Universal Service Commitment to be effective by 2012. An interim report was published on 29 January 2009, which laid out the road of travel and issues Government intend to look at before a full report is published in the summer 2009.

Broadband: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the provision of high-speed broadband in Milton Keynes. [257404]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department has made no recent assessment of the provision of high–speed broadband in Milton Keynes.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to fulfil the Government's target of access to a broadband speed of at least 2 MB/s in respect of Milton Keynes. [257405]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Digital Britain interim report includes specific proposals on next generation networks and universal service access to broadband. We will be working with stakeholders to examine how a broadband universal service might work across the UK and will be publishing these findings in the full Digital Britain report in late spring/early summer.

The Government have also accepted the recommendations made in the Caio Review on broadband and will now act to implement them.

Charities: Telephone Services

Willie Rennie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will assess the merits of exempting charities from the requirements of the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003 in relation to telephone numbers registered with the Telephone Preference Service. [257009]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The ability for consumers to register their wish not to be contacted by Direct Marketers, whether they be charities or commercial organisations, is a key benefit of the telephone preference system. The Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations lay down rules for organisations, including charities, sending unsolicited marketing by electronic means.

Direct marketing does not just refer to selling products or services to individuals, it includes the promotional activities of charities as well. This means that both the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003 apply to charities.

The European directive from which these regulations are derived (the Directive on Privacy and Electronic Communications (2002/58/EC)) specifies that the "soft" opt-in rules on marketing by electronic means apply to all commercial relationships between organisations and consumers.

Charities may wish to improve the wording of their data protection and privacy statements so that a potential donor would actively "invite" promotional material through electronic mail.

Departmental Compensation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the 10 highest payments made by his Department in settlement of personal injury claims brought against it were in the last 12 months for which figures are available; which of those cases were (a) contested and (b) uncontested by his Department; and what the nature of the incident was in each case. [248874]

Mr. McFadden: There have been no personal injury claims brought against the Department in the past 12 months.

The BERR annual report and accounts 2007-08, available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/aboutus/corporate/performance/annual-spending/page47093.html confirms that there were few accidents that caused time off work and all were of a minor nature.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each year since it was established. [251432]

Mr. McFadden: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public, this information cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs. The Department does however aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days.

Statistics on the handling of letters from members of the public are published in the BERR annual report which will be available later in the year.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254093]

Mr. McFadden: In total, there have been fewer than five such cases in the Department over the past three years. I am unable to give further details as to do so could breach the confidentiality of individuals concerned.

Departmental Manpower

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people his Department employs. [255656]

Mr. McFadden: Information on the number of people employed by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform is available through the Quarterly Public Sector Employment Survey statistics published by the Office for National Statistics (ONS). The latest published statistics are for 30 September 2008 (quarter 3, 2008) and can be accessed from the following link:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_labour/Table6AllDepts.xls

Departmental Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's internal guidance for officials on the drafting of answers to parliamentary questions. [250295]

Mr. McFadden: Cabinet Office guidance for civil servants on drafting answers to parliamentary questions was updated on 25 November 2008. A copy of the guidance is in the Library of the House. It can also be found on the Cabinet Office website at:

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/propriety_and_ethics/civil service/pq_guidance.aspx

BERRs internal guidance for officials answering parliamentary questions is updated regularly and issued on the Department's intranet. I will send the hon. Member a copy and also arrange for it to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Sick Leave

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average duration of single periods of sick leave taken by staff in (a) his Department and its predecessor, (b) its agencies and (c) the non-departmental bodies for which his Department has responsibility was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [241094]

Mr. McFadden: Information for 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006-07 for the Department, its predecessor and its agencies can be found on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp

For years prior to 2003, sickness absence data is not available in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many sick days were taken by employees in (a) his Department and its predecessor, (b) its agencies and (c) the non-departmental bodies for which his Department has responsibility due to (i) stress and (ii) mental health and behavioural disorders in each of the last 10 years; what proportion of sick days taken in each body this represented in each case; and if he will make a statement; [241204]

(2) how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and its predecessor, (b) its agencies and (c) the non-departmental bodies for which his Department has responsibility have taken sick days due to (i) stress and (ii) mental health and behavioural disorders in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [241093]

Mr. McFadden: Information for 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006-07 for the Department, its predecessor and its agencies can be found on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp

Stress, mental health and behavioural disorders all fall within the category of 'mental and behavioural disorders'.

For years prior to 2003, sickness absence data is not available in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Sick Pay

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff in (a) his Department and its predecessor, (b) its agencies and (c) the non-departmental bodies for which his Department has responsibility have received sick pay for sick leave due to (i) stress and (ii) mental health and behavioural disorders in each of the last 10 years; what the average length of time was for which sick pay was paid in these cases; and if he will make a statement. [241091]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not routinely calculate the number of staff who have received sick pay for stress, or the average length of time for which sick pay was paid in those cases. As this would involve manually investigating employee sickness records and pay details on an individual basis, the cost of doing this would be disproportionate to the benefit to be derived.

Information relating to agencies and non-departmental bodies will, where available, be provided separately by those bodies.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 24 February 2009:

The Minister of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2008/23) asking how many staff have received sick pay, and what the average length of time was for which sick leave was paid for staff with stress, mental health and behavioural disorders in each of the last 10 years.

The information for the year 1999 is not provided as no reliable data exists. The table below schedules the period 2000-08.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 24 February 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 3 December 2008, UIN 241091, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House do not keep details of staff sickness for stress, mental health and behavioural disorders separately, they are categorised together. Details for the last ten years are not available, however those for the last eight years for which records are available are as follows:

Financial Year	Number of staff	Average length of time paid (days)
2000/01	53	37
2001/02	66	38

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each year since his Department was established. [251883]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial code.

Foreign Workers: EU Nationals

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many companies from other EU member states with contracts in the UK have brought a workforce of non-UK nationals to the UK in each of the last four years. [254839]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not collect such data.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Secretary of State plans to reply to the letter of 18 December 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. Thomas Stocker, transferred from the Ministry of Defence. [253872]

Mr. McFadden: I responded to my right hon. Friend on 11 February 2009.

Oil: Reserves

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of the UK's compulsory oil stocks under EU law are accounted for by the Compulsory Oil Stock Reservation Agreement for stock held outside the UK. [253309]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I have been asked to reply.

The UK has bilateral agreements with other EU countries where they can hold stocks on behalf of the UK and the UK can hold stocks on their behalf.

The latest figures for November 2008 show that the net proportion of stocks held abroad equated to 18 per cent. of the UK's compulsory oil stocks.

Postal Services: Rural Areas

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on the removal by Royal Mail of certain rural addresses from the national database of postcodes. [257551]

Mr. McFadden: The Postcode Address File (PAF) is owned and managed by Royal Mail. The provision of this service is an operational matter for which Royal Mail has direct responsibility.

As specified under the Postal Services Act 2000 and as a condition of its licence, the company is obliged to maintain the PAF and to make it available to any person who wishes to use it on terms that are reasonable.

Postcomm, the industry regulator, will consider the merits of complaints about Royal Mail's management of the PAF in accordance with its statutory duties.

Regional Development Agencies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 288W, on regional development agencies: offices, what the address is of each overseas office of each regional development agency. [257728]

Mr. McFadden: The addresses of RDA overseas offices are as requested .

Telephone Preference Service: Charities

Willie Rennie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effects of registration with the telephone preference scheme on the ability of charities to raise funds through telephone appeals. [256812]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The Department has made no assessment of the effect of the registration with the telephone preference scheme (TPS) on the ability of charities to raise funds through telephone appeals. The effectiveness of the TPS is a matter for the Information Commissioner's Office.

The ability for consumers to register their wish not to be contacted unnecessarily by Direct Marketeers, whether they be charities or commercial organisations, is a key benefit of the telephone preference system.

Before they register with the TPS, consumers should bear in mind that they may miss out on calls from companies and charities that they would be happy to hear from. It is important to make sure that permission is given in advance to those companies and charities so they can continue to contact potential donors via the telephone.

Welsh Language

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many members of staff at each grade in his Department identify themselves as Welsh speakers. [257793]

Mr. McFadden: The information requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Age: Discrimination

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality whether the plans outlined in section seven of the Government's draft legislative programme on improved data collection on equality include the collection of data on discrimination based on age, with particular reference to children and young people under 18 years old; and if she will make a statement. [256485]

Maria Eagle: The reference to 'improved data collection on equality' made in the draft legislative programme relates to the equality measurement framework (EMF), currently under development at the London School of Economics and Oxford University, with support from the Government Equalities Office and the Equality and Human Rights Commission.

The EMF is designed to measure all equality strands, including age. However, the framework is intended for adults only. The EHRC, Government Equalities Office and others are therefore considering whether a similar project could be developed to produce a set of indicators suitable for children.

Charities

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1312W, on charities, what criteria the Government Equalities Office used in determining applications for funding from the charities referred to; and if she will make a statement. [255980]

Maria Eagle: For the special fund for rape crisis centres, the following criteria were used:

Applicants had to be a member of Rape Crisis England and Wales, ensuring that the fund was targeted at those organisations where there was evidence of need for support;

Applicants had to have a demonstrable charitable purpose;

Applications for funding could only be sought for the continuation of support services to victims of sexual violence.

For the three other charities listed in 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1312W, the main criteria were:

Applicants had to have a demonstrable charitable purpose;

The projects for which funding was sought had to contribute to the Government Equalities Office's departmental strategic objective to address the disadvantage that individuals experience because of their gender, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, religion or belief.

As set out in my answer to 251979, decisions on any future funding to these or other charities will be announced in the usual way.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by the Government Equalities Office. [256058]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office is based in Eland House, the headquarters building of Communities and Local Government.

It will fall to CLG to place copies of the relevant certificates and reports in the Library.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by the Government Equalities Office. [256196]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office employs five EU foreign nationals and three non-EU foreign nationals.

Equality: Pay

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce the gender pay gap. [251679]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the recent answer given to the hon. Member for Basingstoke (Mrs. Miller) by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Women and Equality on 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 160-61.

Rape: Victim Support Schemes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many rape crisis centres have closed in each of the last five years; how much has been spent on (a) services for rape victims and (b) rape crisis centres in each of the last five years; what steps she is taking to increase the (i) capacity and (ii) financial stability of rape crisis centres; and if she will make a statement. [255614]

Maria Eagle: The Government do not record information on rape crisis centre closures. However information provided by Rape Crisis England and Wales in 2008 stated that eight centres had closed in the previous three years with a further two centres closing temporarily, before re-opening. In March 2008 the Minister for Women, Harriet Harman announced a special fund to prevent the closure of at-risk rape crisis centres. Since that time, no centres have closed.

The following table summarises total Government funding to (a) services for rape victims, and (b) rape crisis centres (identified as affiliated to Rape Crisis England and Wales in the given year) in each of the last five years. The figures in the table represent funding streams from across Government.

	2008-09	2007-08	2006-07	2005-06	2004-05
(a) Total funding on services for rape victims	3,364,247	2,564,664	1,603,242	1,908,657	943,828
(b) Total funding for rape crisis centres only	1,686,345	844,562	673,538	473,717	199,270

The Government have invested around £11 million over the last five years in specialist services for victims of sexual violence: this is in addition to funding provided locally. Most of this funding has come from the Victims Fund.

The Government have taken steps to build the capacity and sustainability of organisations working with victims of rape and sexual violence and to raise the issue of sexual violence locally. This has included providing £150,000 core funding to umbrella organisations, Rape Crisis England and Wales and The Survivors' Trust to help build the stability of the sector, including increasing capacity of rape crisis centres.

In relation to (ii) I met with Rape Crisis England and Wales and the Survivors Trust on 12 February to discuss the financial stability of the sector going forward.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the policy of Connexions is on the provision to students under the age of 16 years attending Catholic schools of access to (a) abortion and (b) abortifacient birth control drugs and devices without parental (i) knowledge and (ii) permission; and if he will make a statement. [256727]

Beverley Hughes: Under-16s have the same right to confidential advice on abortion and contraception—including emergency contraception—as adults. Where a young woman discloses to a non-health professional working in a school—such as a Connexions Personal Adviser or Youth Worker—that they are, or may be pregnant, the professional should refer the young woman to a health professional. There is no legal obligation to inform or seek permission from the young woman's parent or carer before making the referral, although professionals are required to make every effort to encourage the young woman to talk to her parent or carer.

However, confidentiality is not absolute and can be breached if the professional judges that the young woman is at risk of significant harm. If this is the case, the professional would follow local child protection procedures.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 947W, on apprentices, what progress his Department has made towards meeting its share of the Government's commitment to employ over 1,000 apprentices in central Government Departments and agencies in 2008-09. [256253]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: My right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Children Schools and Families, and for Innovation Universities and Skills together with other members of the Cabinet this week announced 21,000 new apprenticeships in the public sector to deliver on the Government's pledge earlier this year to create 35,000 additional apprenticeship places. This will considerably expand the number of apprenticeship places in frontline public services including hospitals, schools, colleges and town halls across the country in 2009-10. The following table sets out the number of people undertaking apprenticeship training as part of the Government Skills National Apprenticeship Pathfinder scheme in 2008-09:

Children

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued on which "Every Child Matters" outcomes should be directly linked to the curriculum. [257820]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority has published "Every Child Matters" at the heart of the curriculum booklet. This explores the place of "Every Child Matters" as a fundamental part of the curriculum, why each outcome is important and the implications for curriculum design. It also looks at the type of learning experiences—both in the curriculum and out of lessons—that schools can design to achieve each of the "Every Child Matters" outcomes.

There is further QCA guidance on the importance of the "Every Child Matters" outcomes in designing an effective new secondary curriculum, available at:

Children In Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils who were children in care (a) lived and (b) attended school in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas as determined by the income deprivation affecting children indices in 2008. [256431]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is as follows:

4,847 pupils[1, 2] who were children in care live in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas as determined by IDAC13 2008. This represents 14.2 per cent. of all pupils who were children in care of known residence in England.

4,245 pupils[1, 2] who were children in care attend school in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas as determined by IDACI[3] in 2008. This represents 12.3 per cent. of all pupils who were children in care attending schools in England.

[1] Includes solely registered and main registration of dually registered pupils.

[2] Includes pupils aged five to 19 years attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary, CTC's, Academies, special and non-maintained special schools.

Departmental Cleaning Services

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contractors his Department uses to undertake cleaning duties; and what the hourly rates of pay are for cleaners working in his Department. [256980]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families engages MITIE Cleaning and Support Services Ltd (MCSS) to undertake cleaning duties across its headquarter buildings located in London, Sheffield, Runcorn and Darlington. The cleaning staff are paid national minimum wage, however, it is our intention to pay London based cleaning staff £7.45 per hour with effect from 1 April 2009.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people were employed by his Department as consultants in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [256904]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In keeping with good procurement practice most consultancy engagements placed by DCSF are based on a requirement for the delivery of outcomes or outputs, and not for the number of people employed. Our management information system reflects this and records the numbers and values of contracts or engagements, rather than individual consultants. We are, therefore, unable to answer the question in the way it has been asked. However, the total number of live consultancy engagements in DCSF at the end of November 2008 was 329 and at the end of November 2007 was 202. The equivalent figure for the Department for Education and Skills at the end of November 2006 was 146. Figures were not kept centrally for previous years. The increase partly reflects the need for additional input from external experts on our delivery programmes (such as academies and contact point) and partly better recording as new systems we introduced in 2006-07 bedded in.

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255079]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 27 equality impact assessments (EQUIAs) have been undertaken within DCSF in the last 12 month period. There are no significant additional costs in carrying out these assessments as the requirement to undertake EQUIAs is an integral part of the policy making process.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252250]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's annual non-consolidated performance payments for 2008-09 totalled £1.9 million and was met within existing pay controls.

Payments are used to drive high performance and those for the senior civil service are based on recommendations from the independent Senior Salaries Review Body.

Education: Standards

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to encourage and improve (a) individual, (b) parental and (c) community responsibility in improving education standards. [253804]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: It is important that individuals, parents and schools should all take responsibility for improvements in educational standards. In fact this is essential if the nation is to get a proper return on the large and growing investment in education in the early years and in schools, colleges and universities. Education standards have risen greatly over the past decade, thanks in part to the partnership between the education system and the young people whom it exists to support, but there is more to do. The Children's Plan set out the Government's commitment to put children and young people, their families and their communities at the heart of everything we do. Partnership with parents is a unifying theme of the Children's Plan, and the chapter entitled "Excellence and Equity" sets out further steps the Government are taking to extend and deepen this partnership, and to respond to the views of pupils themselves. It is also vital to raise educational aspirations at both family and community level, and the recently announced cross-Government project "Inspiring Communities" is one example of how this vision is being carried forward.

GCE A-level

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in each decile of income deprivation affecting children indices achieved three A grades at A level in 2008. [251116]
